Depradations of Hawk on Dixon's Pigeons And Chickens Spur Trenton Man to Hunt For Bird of Prey

Trenton, April 1 (Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—Walter Dixon, 44 was accidentally shot and killed by his own shotgun about ten o'clock today while hunting a hawk which had killed several of his pigeons and chickens. He was seeking the bird on the Graham estate on the east side of Sidney Street and was with C. Silla, S. Silla and C. Gibson all of whom had guns.

Dixon was walking ahead of the other three about fifty or a hundred yards and was getting over a fence when his companions heard a muffled shot and a groan. Seeing him crumpled up they rushed to the fence beside which he had fallen and found his left hand black with powder and the gun pointing towards his kidney. He had been shot in the left side.

Dr. W. J. Johnstone of Trenton was summoned but before he reached the scene Dixon had died.

According to the statement of the police by his companions Dixon appears to have been about to climb over the fence and was holding the gun by the muzzle in his left hand in order to draw it after him.

The gun was of 12 gauge and the shell a No. 6 shell.

Coroner Dr. Crowe was called. The body was taken to Cobley's undertaking parlors.

Dixon has a daughter about ten years of age and his mother who lives with him.

M. J. Houck Addresses Members Of Holstein Breeders at Annual Dinner Held Last Evening

Praises Dr. Faulkner's Efforts to Improve Sanitary Conditions in Milk Plants

ADVERTISING NEEDED

Members of the Hastings County Club of the Holstein Breeders' Association of this central area, at their regular annual dinner meeting before the yearly sale, were treated last evening at the Belleville Hotel to members of the parent association who gathered in this city yesterday from throughout a wide area.

Community singing, stories and voluntary offerings of individual entertainment, as well as a general social evening, marked the meeting at which Mr. J. Houck, of Tweed, chairman of the Milk Control Board of Ontario, was the guest speaker in the immediate absence of Hon. Hon. Duncan Marshall, scheduled to attend and address the gathering.

As chairman of the evening, Mr. Murray Reynolds in his opening remarks stressed the harm gathering pointing out that the evening was the usual get arranged by the Hastings Club yearly for the other members. "We always glad to unite with the district breeders on occasions of this sort because we know the value of these gatherings toward better understanding and fellowship," declared the genial president.

A warm welcome and freedom of the city during their stay here, was extended the breeders by Mayor Harry Hill, who also declared that he felt completely at home, inasmuch as he knew many of the club members present. Pointing to Mr. James Gadsby, Madoc, Mayor Hill referred to him as one of the oldest breeders in the country. "I can remember when James Gadsby's father, in 1866 brought the first Holstein to Madoc. That was the people turned out to see them you would have thought it was a circus. Jim Gadsby is here tonight and is still dealing with Holsteins", added the Mayor.

Previous to the brief addresses, Mr. Murray Reynolds, a song leader assisted by Mr. Leo Biggs on the mouth organ, led the club and the gathering through the many old time favorite songs. Mr. Harold Barrett of Madoc, also gave entertainment with several vocal solos. The high light of the evening was the duet by Mr. Fred Hubbs, 1st vice-president of the Association, and Ben Lucas.

Results First Annual Sale

Mr. A. Ernest Deyell, secretary of Club, augmenting his address with a series of witty stories told of the first annual sale held just twenty-five years ago, when one of the first cows offered, May Echo, sold for $1100. "In those days we brought without the blood T.B. tests, but there is a lot of difference in the way sales are being conducted now," he added. "And we also have to do a lot of things in this business that grandfather did not do", reminded the speaker in referring to the necessity of tests especially for T.B. "It's surprising how quickly breeders have taken to the tests, and how quickly the popularity of the tests has spread since they first started", declared the cows half enough", declared Mr. Bixby.

Mr. Dunham Foster, sales manager, pointed out that the 25th year's sale would be one of the best one that has been held in some time. "We have had 25 years at least", he added.

Introduced by Chairman Reynolds Mr. J. Houck, guest speaker of the evening, who hails from Belleville and the Club upon the invitation of the Hon. Duncan Marshall, offered an apology for his latter's unavoidable absence, pointing to the urgent pressure of new legislation facing members of the Cabinet. Mr. Houck's following his preliminary remarks cited enthusiasm as one of the most vital needs in any business undertaking. He understood that "A lesson can be drawn from any successful undertaking and one in which every player is imbued with enthusiasm and pep. You can either fold up or go on. Fortunately for the Province and the country, we have not folded up, men who can stand up and say they are not afraid to tackle the biggest mountains the odds appear," declared Mr. Houck.

Farm Conditions Improve

Better conditions on the farms at present are bringing greater return and optimism, he thought, and the general farmers, urging his listeners to capitalize on this situation and the "break" come.

Referring to the Holstein, Mr. Houck declared it to be a breed which needed help. "The rest of the breeds can look after itself, for. They are 'up on the tit'; their supporters are convincing and working hard."

Mr. Houck paid sincere tribute to the efforts of Belleville's own representative the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, Minister of Health, who piloted to the milk industry.

"Dr. Faulkner's contribution to this industry is greater than any that has been made in many years a year. He has standardized sanitary methods in milk plants, and has done more than a year for this standard yard stick of cleanliness. It has been one of the forward steps and ties in well with the provincial health department and the general cleanliness prevails, then consumption will be greater. More consumption means more sales and better breeds", declared the speaker.

Advertising Needed

Advertising their product, the speaker was asked, both through the motor cars and hundreds or other articles in daily use upon which advertising could be placed, to bring the attention of the people generally to the many products that could be tried, he believed, with splendid results. Good Milk, advertising this product of the dairy cow, one of our most important foods could be daily and widely carried on with the aid of a National campaign, Mr. Houck declared was a demand. The press, the radio, "and the billboard are the most potent demand, continued Mr. Houck, who also interpreted his address on several, which were mostly connected with the live stock industry.

Brief addresses were also given by Chairman Reynolds, representatives Mr. Webster or Prince Edward County; Mr. Buchanan, Hastings; Mr. Martin, of Northumberland; Mr. Wm. Michael, Dominion seed Inspector of this district; Mr. Phillip Carr of Rawdon, who gave a humorous recitation and Mr. James Caskey, oldest breeder present, and Mr. Gadsby, the youngest breeder present—day breeding conditions with those when the first Holsteins were brought into this district.

The toast to the King was proposed by Chairman Reynolds, while a toast to the visitors was proposed and those who had contributed to the success of the evening, was proposed by Mr. A. Deyell.

HYDRO HISTORY TOLD KIWANIANS BY MR. O.H. SCOTT

Physical Condition and Hydro Supply of System Explained

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Dealing with the physical condition and hydro supply, O. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Hydro, addressed a most interesting and instructive address to members of the Kiwanis Club and invited guests at their regular luncheon on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel. The members were favored with a trombone solo by Reg. Wardle, Hydro engineer, while the banquet room was fitted up with the new type of lighting, the same being supplied by one local dealer, Mr. Jack Dommico, as president of the club, presided, while Harold Seldon led in the community singing and James Gowan, collected the several fines but was fined himself for not paying attention to business.

At the business session it was announced, that the club would meet at the Stone Church in Sidney Township next Tuesday, this being in the nature of a Ladies' Night. Rotarian Cecil Gordon, K.C., will be the principal speaker, while a super party will be held by the ladies of the evening. A good old-fashioned supper will be supplied and there, with a short musical program, will make it a point to be present on this occasion. The attendance of the club is up over the eighty per cent mark and if this can be topped, the members will be on hand to keep up the record.

Ball Statistics Discussed

George Lee, past president of the club, told of the fine condition of the Senior baseball situation in Belleville and district, and that whereas the Kiwanis Club would not be sponsoring a team this season, Manager George Lee, Bill Cook, Allan Boynton, Eddie Shapiro, and George Hamilton, would be on hand to see that the whole setup for this league was put over next Friday night, when a decision will be made. Any good players in the members, relative to flood sufferers, that conditions in the Senior league were extremely bad and he believed the committee was not cognizant of all the facts. He pointed out that in some of the houses visited this morning he was still ankle deep, there were no mattresses, the floors were all up, there was no fuel, and even in some homes, there was not enough fuel to dry out the homes properly. He suggested a donation, that the money being collected by the Flood Relief Committee should be spent at once and that the committee should make a tour of inspection personally.

Mayor Harry Hill stated that money was being spent from the fund all the time and fuel, clothing, furniture and bedding have been purchased. "No one needs to be in want," said the Mayor. "All they have to do is to make application and their wants will be attended to promptly." His Worship expressed the appreciation of the committee for the wonderful co-operation, that had been given by all classes of citizens and he believed the sufferers of the flood would be rehabilitated in the near future. George A. Reid, Chairman of the Belleville Hydro Commission, introduced the speaker of the day Wm. Scott, Harry Hill expressing Kiwanian appreciation for the latter's fairness address and stated, that Belleville was indeed fortunate in having one of the best managers in the Province of Ontario.

Makeup of System

The speaker outlined the make-up of the system from which Eastern Ontario receives its power at the present time and stated that the system as now constituted grew. The old Waterloo system was composed of the St. Lawrence, Ottawa, Mississi and Central Ontario systems, the latter receiving its power from the Trent River. The speaker stated that 62,700 h.p. was being purchased for this system and that the low point in consumption was reached between July 1st, 1933 and July 1st, 1934 and this was explained by the statement, that reduction in the use of power comes long after a period of decreased load. The increase during news was given, that the increase during the past year was nearly 7,000 h.p., per month and that continued till the present time. In a lower cost for his power and also make his place of business more attractive. "Light attracts business", said Mr. Tighe, "and the merchant must cause that attraction to his place of business in the seconds so it behooves all merchants to have the best window lighting possible. It is the cheapest form of advertising". The speaker dealt for a few minutes on the "Better Light Better Light" campaign and recounted that all would get the matter serious consideration.

IT IS MIRACLE" CRIES MOTHER

"Tonight I shall be able to sleep." She was glad that Hauptmann had also came to the door in a bright print dress and a black velvet hat, worn by Mrs. Hauptmann.

Farewell Message To Husband

Mrs. Hauptmann, near the telephone all day, "waiting for something to turn up," received a call by phone from Fisher.

Her hopes had instantly ebbed. She had sent to the prison what she thought might be her last message to her husband: "I love you and I will always remember you."

Scars Calls Death

Bells pealed at intervals from St. Mary's Cathedral and in mournful hour approached and reminded her time was flying.

Outside her window outside her room filled with people. Through the closed door she heard wounded-hard reports of the prison-scene—of flood-lights, a noisy crowd and peanut vendors.

Eight o'clock came and she heard the clamor subside in downtown Trenton shouting Hauptmann was about to die.

"Did you see Richard? How did he look?" was Mrs. Hauptmann's first query when Fisher arrived at her room. She had been weeping but she was calm when Fisher said:

Wife More Emotional

She showed more emotion than Hauptmann did on receiving the news.

Rev. Rev. Werner's description of Hauptmann's reaction was, "he was happy. He took it calmly and said nothing."

Mrs. Hauptmann asked the minister's hand and clasped when he entered smiling, "good news, Anna."

HAVEN'T MONEY SAYS PREMIER

cept in advance. It was that refusal that prompted the government to refuse the loan.

Thousands Awaited

The finance minister announced that the Premier Aberhart broke down he would feel obliged to table in the House of Commons a report of the communications passing between the Alberta and the Dominion Government on this matter.

Mr. Parnell could not be reached for further comment this morning. He was in his office busy on public affairs and stated that it was impossible to see the press at least before the middle of the afternoon.

On the meantime officials here awaited with interest the developments in Alberta and speculated upon the effect on this financial drama from which, it was now apparent, the province could definitely withdrawn.

There had been a feeling possibly some last minute arrangement this morning would avoid the necessity of the province being first Canadian Province to default its bond obligations. Mr. Hanson's acceptance of the federal treasury was concerned.

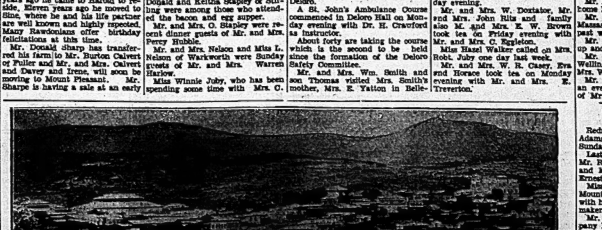
HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN



Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the continued use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than using pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Constipation Gone!

Suffered almost twelve years said Mrs. Fruit-a-tives brought lasting relief. Here's her letter.

"Since twelve years old I was ill with constipation. Then three years ago I started Fruit-a-tives. They are mild and gentle in action, and they gave me wonderful relief. I see now side by side my life with and without Fruit-a-tives." — Mrs. F. E. Williamson, Montreal.

Containing extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS, Fruit-a-tives acts directly on the intestines to overcome habit-forming constipation. Fruit-a-tives tones the whole system, strengthens the stomach and helps bring lasting, glowing health.

HOW QUAIL WERE SAVED.

Jack Miner, naturalist, will celebrate his seventy-first birthday on April 10th at Kingsville, Ontario, and plans to be at home feeding and caring for more birds, for future generations to see alive and for them to benefit from, instead of going to a museum to see rare and extinct specimens mounted in glass cases.

Miner is the man who is responsible for the sanctuary which has saved the Bobwhite quail from extermination in Ontario. Fifty years ago when he hunted quail, Jack Miner would always save his wing-tipped birds and bring them to his home; and each year these birds would nest and their eggs were placed under bantam hens, hatched and the birds reared by the bantam mothers and liberated through the county by Jack Miner in his own time and at his own expense. He was so successful in raising the quail with bantams and keeping the county stocked that whenever farmers while cutting hay would mow over a quail's nest and injure the mother quail, rather than allow the crows to eat the eggs or allow them to rot in the sun, the farmers co-operated and brought to Jack Miner the eggs to raise under the small hens. For many years he has raised and liberated from 50 to 250 throughout the county each season and for over thirty years the hunters of that generation have benefitted from the arrangement. During the past winter for miles around his sanctuary he personally has carried feed and distributed it, but he started doing this before the deep snow and ice came so that when the birds needed food they knew where to find it.

Other parts of the province which might have quail are almost without them. So would Essex be today were it not for the efforts of Jack Miner feeding, raising, caring for and liberating these birds by the hundreds, throughout Essex for the past forty or fifty years.

It is no wonder that many will halt on April 10th and remember Jack Miner and his work for wild life and his example to all men.

THE VIEW OF THE PULPIT

The church is wakening to the realization that if the principles of Christian education are to be taught in institutions of higher learning, the work must be done in the smaller denominational colleges, Rev. Dr. T. L. Cline of Gettysburg College, declared in the Lutheran Church of Our Saviour's Atonement, New York. He charged that privately endowed institutions such as Harvard, Yale and Princeton, had lost the purpose for which they were originally founded that of preparing men for the ministry and teaching and added that the influx of non-Christians into these schools and other factors had resulted in a diminishing interest in furthering Christianity. He said if the small colleges ceased functioning there would be a serious shortage of ministers in the next twenty five years, because most of the universities are doing little to encourage undergraduates to turn to the ministry.

"The larger institutions have not been able to keep within their faculties a controlling group interested in Christian education. In most universities it no longer is necessary for professors to believe in Christianity and most of them are frankly atheistic or agnostic.

"A man may have a superior mind, but if he sneers at religion in a classroom he does not belong there."

Communism has replaced heresy as the chief enemy of the church, Mgr. F. J. Sheen of the Catholic University at Washington, D.C. declared at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. He said that communism had two good things about it, "The only good things about it are its ideas of justice and service to our fellowmen. These are both Christian ideas and so are our common denominator with communism. Let us work on them to bring Communism to an understanding of a true society. Let us say to them, 'The justice and brotherly love you know not, is the church I preach unto you.'"

The world crisis cannot be solved by any force within its own order, the Monsignor said, advising Catholics by living spiritual lives to demonstrate that politics and economics are of secondary importance to godliness. He declared that "we are partly responsible for the world conditions by reason of our unfulfilled duties," and he remarked "Ours must be the virtue of fortitude. I am not saying this fortitude is going to prevent the world. I am not saying we are going to deplete our breadlines, do away with all employment and take out of America all crime, all social injustice. I say that if we have this spirit of fortitude it will save this generation. It will save it for another generation and that is a mighty important task at its moment."

Dean Very Rev. Milo Gates of St. John's Cathedral of St. John the Divine declared there are two kinds of characters "that are simply adorable", the kind-hearted and the simple-minded.

Inability to be shocked has come by be a present day virtue, but it is really nothing but a pose, stated Rev. T. C. Speers at Central Presbyterian Church. He cited Cardinal Newman who had said "Our great security against sin lies in being shocked at it." Mr. Speers said "We shall not win many battles with evil until a gentleman can again be recognized as one who finds something scalding in the touch of evil."

LAUGHTER.

At a wind-tossed hat and the chase that it brings;
A clumsy fall on a slippery street—
Inebriation gives some folks a treat.
Now I as alone at a show one night,
And heard a man laughing with all his might
At slapstick comedians flinging pies;
He laughed till the tears rolled out of his eyes,
And everyone there seemed to catch his mirth,
Till the whole house chuckled for all 'twas worth.
Yet some folks don't know what real laughter means,
Or of the goodwill that a kind smile gleans.
They go around wearing woe-begone stares,
Just hating the rest of the world their cares,
While others consider it almost a sin
To indulge in a friendly, open grin.
Now it wounds me to see a face look sad—
I always wish I could make it look glad;
For among the pleasures that life can bring,
Is the joy that lives in a true laugh's ring.

ESCAPING DANGER ON THE HIGH SEA, motoring safely through the flooded region of Pennsylvania, patrolled by Uncle Sam's soldiers with drawn bayonets, back on Ontario's good roads and hurrying to the home they left last fall to escape the rigors of a real old fashioned Canadian winter, a Belleville couple certainly had an adventurous journey. To escape the danger of washouts on flooded roads the Belleville couple shipped from Miami for Baltimore on a sea-going craft and as luck would have it ran into a terrific gale which made them wonder if there was any dry land left on earth, or how much longer they could stand the tremendous shaking up the ship was subjected to. However, Baltimore was reached safely and the couple disembarked with their motor car, thankful to be out of reach of that Old Devil Sea in an angry mood. They saw the sea but found that the Atlantic wasn't as Pacific as it was cracked up to be, and to see the sea from a distance was infinitely better than to see and feel the sea with nothing but the ship's hull between you and the sea. Then they motored homeward and reached Pennsylvania were stopped by the floods and soldiers, and delayed thereby considerably. Finally they reached Ontario and in sight of home drew a ticket for speeding. Arriving home at last much to be home again in the beautiful Bay of Quinte region where nothing dreadful ever happens—except in flood time.

A MAN MAY BE DOWN BUT HE'S NEVER OUT, a slogan of the Salvation Army, contains a great deal of truth. A man may be down but he need never be out, according to Neighbor Nellie Revell, who broadcasts every Sunday morning at 11.15 over WZZ, WHAM, and network from her bed. Neighbor Nellie Revell is an actress but fell upon evil days when from physical disability she was compelled to keep to her bed. She was down but not out for she writes for newspapers and magazines and has a radio broadcast Sundays at 11.15 a.m. and Tuesday at 3 p.m. over station WZZ, WHAM being the best station for Belleville listeners. Last Sunday Neighbor Nellie gave out a lot of helpful talk, relating instances where men and women had lost positions only to find better one, seeming misfortunes that were blessings in disguise. Nellie is a good sport all right and a good example of the fact that a man or woman may be down but they never need be out. Listen in on Nellie and if you could write her a letter of appreciation, occasionally it would help immensely. Nellie's Sunday talk is not commercial, she's just an added attraction, as it were, of the broadcasting company. Her time on the air was about to be disposed of to a commercial company some time ago and Nellie was going off the air but her fans raised such a commotion that she was continued in the spot she had made so helpful to many. Neighbor Nellie's program is bright and clean and helpful and as such deserves the commendation of all radio listeners, men as well as women.

The young wife was on her first shopping expedition and naturally felt very nervous.

The shopkeeper tried to help her by suggesting various articles, and finally said, "Would you like some nice horseradish, madam?"

"I think not," stammered the bride. "You see—er—we keep a car!"

Mr. Allord stated that he had watched the native make these vases at a famous bazaar in Cairo. The gift is much appreciated by Sir Mackenzie.

The vital statistics for the month of March as registered with the city clerk are: Births 10; marriages 8; deaths 13. Of the latter, six were outside the city limits, but interments was made in Belleville cemetery.

The jam of ice in the river is causing a lot of trouble and inconvenience to a number of citizens. About five o'clock last evening there was a downward movement of ice and then there being no outlet at the lower bridge the water rose rapidly and flowed over the west bank of the river south of the footbridge. In a few minutes it was a foot deep on Coleman Street and by six o'clock it was eighteen inches deep in several houses along the street. The water ran down to West Bridge Street and turned toward Front Street which was soon overflowed. During the night the water receded and this morning the streets were dry again. In many instances places on Front Street the cellars are flooded and the fire in furnaces out. This afternoon about 2.30 o'clock the ice showed down again and the flooded district is largely increased. Residents of West Belleville are also in trouble by the upper and lower bridges as there is two feet of water in the front of the passenger. All the ice below Corbyville is now gone and further trouble may be looked for from that source. Many fine guy wires on the footbridge were broken.

THREE KILLED AS EXPRESS TRAIN CRASHES FREIGHT—Flying around a curve at a sixty-five-mile-an-hour clip, the crack double-engined Pennsylvania Railroad Philadelphia night express was hurled from the track when sideswiped by a loose car on a passing freight train in Bloomsburg, Pa. The fast express was reduced to wreckage and a quarter mile of track was torn up, but the passengers miraculously escaped serious injury. The engineer, George Kuhn and the fireman, E. F. Supplee, were killed. Two others were injured. The Above shows the wreckage with one of the engines on its side like a slain monster, while behind it, mail cars and Pullmans are tossed heller-skelter.

LINDBERGH WORKS QUIETLY ON PLANS

Mechanical Heart and Lungs Device His Chief Interest

(By Albert W. Wilson)

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

London, March 31.—Work on a mechanical heart and lungs was Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's chief interest, persons close to him said today.

Harold Nicolson, one of the colonel's closest friends in this country and now his landlord, said Lindbergh was working on this scientific instrument since his arrival in England more than three months ago.

Nicolson said the Lindberghs would certainly return to stay—anything when Hauptmann was executed.

"They feel that tragic episode deeply and have resolved that the world may forget it is by never mentioning it under any circumstances," Nicolson said of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

For the last several weeks, the Lindberghs and their second son, Jon, have made their residence at 14th Century home "Long Barn," at Weald, Kent, which they rented from Nicolson.

Absolute Protection

The family has been away frequently, however, on motoring trips in England, Scotland and Wales.

"Long Barn" was assured absolute protection from prying eyes.

The chief constable of Kent threatened to arrest any person loitering in the vicinity and all the neighbors of the Lindbergh family joined enthusiastically to help them to preserve strict privacy, according to dispatches from London.

Nicolson said several British scientific institutes were eager to sponsor Lindbergh's work and that Colonel might permit one of them to do so.

The work on the mechanical heart and lungs device, understood to be a valveless pump, was begun by Lindbergh, in co-operation with Dr. Alexis Carrel, head of the Rockefeller Institute where they had been working for several years, was announced June 16, 1935, in New York. Its details were not immediately disclosed.

It is a mechanical pump, so perfect no individual cell is lost in it. With its aid pumping artificial blood and air, Dr. Carrel announced he could keep a dog indefinitely alive outside the body.

Perfection by Colonel Lindbergh and Dr. Carrel of the new mechanical heart and lung device at the Rockefeller Institute where they had been working for several years, was announced June 16, 1935, in New York. Its details were not immediately disclosed.

Organs removed from the body by surgery

Colonel Lindbergh contributed his mechanical genius to perfection of the new apparatus. Dr. Carrel had won the Nobel prize for his scientific achievements in keeping tissues alive outside the body.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his chair last night and ma was ironing, to her wrist watch not going saying to pop, Do you think Fluby is contented here, Willyum?

Meening her new goldfish, and pop said, I reckon I haven't done anything to make him otherwise. I don't know him a little smile every time I pass the aquarium, although I do like to pretend I must admire he hasn't smiled back, he said.

Well Willyum we mustn't expect miracles, ma said, all I mean to say is as long as I have a pet I like to feel that the contented is live with me, I mean even more contented than it would be in its wild or native state, and pop said, I never could get used to the idea of a pet state, but of course away back in the beginning of time, when the first fish crawled out of the sea it could without clocks, goldfish bowls or glass grate youngsters called goldcasurs or something ot other.

Well naturally they must of sprung from the ocean to some time in their career, and the afternoon I made a little experiment to see how much the reading of a evening to go back to nature, and I found out he hasn't, ma said, and pop said, What experiment for Pete sake?

Well you know that oil painting of a scene at sea down in the front room, ma said, I brawt it up here, and just as a little added atmosphere I brawt that old photograph record of Sailing Sailing Over the Bounding Main and started to put it while I was at the oil painting at all angles in front of the aquarium and Fluby took several good looks at it but as far as I could see he hasn't even smiled in it, so I'm sure such a thawt never enters his little mind, ma said, and pop said, He's not the dose start to show sines of restlessness, I'll cross the photograph of a fish cannery and he'll pipe right up.

ANGER OF IRAN BURSTS IN FLAME

Legation And Consulates Closed And Staffs Ready to Leave

Washington, March 31.—(AP)—Anger which has smouldered in Iran, (Persia) since two Maryland traffic violators beat up the Iranian minister burst into the open today.

Iran closed its legation and consulates in this country. Its diplomats in Washington and Consular officers in New York and Chicago packed up to leave for home.

Persia was hurt, authoritative sources said, because of action by the American Press which were considered disrespectful to the Shah and his country. Apparently, however the diplomatic break was a direct outgrowth of the Maryland incident.

Minister Ghaffar Djalal was motoring through Elkton, Md., last October when long pronounced signaled his car. They said his chauffeur was speeding.

After a dispute, the officers handcuffed the minister, prisoner, to the State Department and subsequently the policemen lost their jobs for violating diplomatic immunity. Secretary of State Hull apologized but he also hinted pointedly foreign diplomats should observe United States laws.

DISMISS CHARGES AGAINST FORD

Concerned Wages Paid Under Provisions of Industrial Standards Act

Windsor, Ont., April 1—(CP) — Twelve charges brought against the Ford Motor Company of Canada, under provisions of the Industrial Standards Act were dismissed yesterday by Magistrate Brodie. A 13th charge was withdrawn the day before.

The charges concerned wages paid 11 electricians and two bricklayers employed by the Ford Company. They were paid 75 cents an hour while the new act, passed at the last session of the Ontario legislature, calls for a minimum wage of $1 an hour for journeymen, electricians and bricklayers.

Magistrate Brodie said he entertained "much doubt" as to whether the new legislation applied to cases of the King subsidiary. In his final judgment, Ford officials explained all the benefits the workers employed for any work that might be assigned to them from day to day.

Holder of Sweep Ticket Is Non-Committal

Toronto, March 31—(CP)—Arthur L. With them on their flight from Dublin were Mrs. Dan Kelly, Toronto, Coon's solicitor, and Daniel Walsh, non-pilot of the plane.

Coon said not 30 minutes after he was notified from Ireland he had drawn a horse, a wire arrived from New York in which an Irish Syndicate offered to buy all or any portion of his ticket. He would not say if he had accepted the offer.

Coon drew the winner, Reynoldstown, in the Grand National sweepstakes. Reynoldstown, a chestnut, won by a length and a half.

Coon, who is a bachelor, said he did not intend to give up his job in the Toronto Department Store here. He is an interior decorator.

Tweed and District

FLOOD AT TWEED

Tweed, March 31—(Special)—The water in Stoco Lake on Monday reached the highest point in several years. Almost the entire park is inundated to a depth or several feet, completely submerging the cenotaph and several other permanent park furniture. The water has reached the first floor of Tom Sweet's home, and new entirely surrounds a barn belonging to Mr. Bentley. The north-east corner of the cement foundation of the pavilion has given way and a considerable section will have to be replaced. The lake is seven or eight feet above summer level but still lacks a few inches of reaching its record high.

The river above the dam at Purdy's mill is higher than for many years and at but three feet below the level of the bridge. Highway No. 37 in front of the residence of Reeve W. H. Sayers is only a foot or so above the river level. A heavy downpour of rain would probably submerge this section of the road. Some residents on Tweed Victoria Street are considerably inconvenienced by the high water which has filled their cellars and is up to their back doors. Harry Austin's residence is practically surrounded by water. The river, however, would need to come down several feet before serious results would ensue. Such a contingency is not anticipated.

The water has left a wide channel through the ice in Stoco Lake and there is more than a remote chance that West Branch railway bridge on the C.N.R. at the north let may suffer serious damage when the ice begins to move out of the lake. The water is already level with the floor of the bridge which is in danger of being carried away by the ice. The track between Tweed and Stoco is submerged to a depth of a foot or more in certain low places, and the Tweed-Napanee train had orders to proceed slowly along these sections of the line.

Carrying Place

Carrying Place—Members of the Community League met in the United Church Hall on Thursday evening last for their regularly bi-weekly meeting. Some forty members and visitors made up the audience and an unusually fine program was presented. The minutes were read by the secretary followed by the roll call with two new members enrolling. Committees in charge of the preparations for the next meeting were named. Mrs. Hennessey and George Lynn for program and Mrs. J. Hearns for refreshments. The first number was a reading by Mr. W. E. Weese, followed by a song by Jean Wells. Miss Jennie Green read an interesting selection about trees and the chairman, A. H. Norrington, gave a brief summary of current events. Mr. K. Wilson played guitar and harmonica together and the vigorously encored. Miss L. O. Rice read a portion of Scripture and carried on a brief Bible study question. Miss Helen Basset with guitar accompaniment sang two selections delightfully. The speaker of the evening, Rev. F. Clarke, was then introduced. Mr. Clarke, an ordained Anglican minister, teacher and missionary, has recently returned to the community after spending fourteen years on the Mackenzie River, most of the time at Wrigley Harbour.

"The singing of a second hymn and the repetition of the Church Benediction brought the formal part of the meeting to a close. Following this a delicious lunch of sandwiches and cake with coffee was served.

A dance sponsored by Messrs Stuart Chase and Frank Baker was presented in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening with a good crowd in attendance.

Concession Reads Not Good—Spring with all its delights seems to be here, but it has left residents with at least one unpleasant mark of the arrival—bearing and softening roads. Highways of course are in good shape, but people living on side roads and concessions are finding the going heavy. One unusual feature of the condition of these roads is that only certain places seem to be suffering. On the road from the post office to Wellers Bay for instance only a short stretch near the Corrigan home is bad, while the rest is in fair condition. The short piece between the end of the new Trenton highway and the village is very rough, and several attempts have been made to improve it by filling with soil and gravel. A few more days of warm sunshine and this nuisance will be quite gone.

Mr. E. H. Hennessey returned to his home here on Tuesday after spending some days in and near Deltor. Mr. Hennessey was vastly impressed at the absence of snow here, reporting that there was still a good ten feet of the winter covering over all the north land.

Picton and District

Picton—Picton Public Schools were officially closed Monday until April 20th. This action was taken as since Christmas one pupil after another has been kept through the schools, to such an extent that attendance has been not more than one-half of the roll at any time in that period in any of the grades. Matters last week were worse than usual, as after almost all pupils had had chicken-pox and German measles, the regular measles broke out, and one child after another contracted them. The time lost now is expected to be made up at a later date for these schools.

Supreme Court opened on Monday afternoon at the Court House. The first case being heard is that of Raymond Ostrander, plaintiff, versus the Marysburg Telephone Company, defendant. The action arose out of injuries sustained early in July, 1935, by the plaintiff, Raymond Ostrander, 21 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Ostrander of Wappoo, who was riding on a load of peas along the road at Hongard's Corners, seven miles south of here. A telephone wire, claimed to be out of place, caught the young man about the neck, throwing him from the loaded truck. He sustained painful injuries, his neck still being affected. Lawyer Nourse is appearing for the plaintiff, while J. L. Wright represents the Marysburg Telephone Co. Messrs. Ernest Johnson and Howard Reid, of Milford, are the owners of the telephone company.

Mrs. Leonard Dueels, of Greenbush, who has been a patient in the local hospital suffering from serious blood poisoning, following dental trouble, has been removed to her home, with a trained nurse in attendance and is slowly recovering.

Mrs. Stinson Ryall of Point Petre, who has been seriously ill for some months, underwent a major operation in P. E. C. Hospital on Monday and is doing as well as can be expected.

Messrs. Harry Welbanks, Carman Wellbanks, Herb. and Keith Dashney, Harold Sutlan and Dr. C. Black were among those in attendance the Detroit-Maple Leaf game in Toronto last week.

A very large number of representative citizens attended the funeral, at his home, King Street, on Friday afternoon, of Guy Johnson who died suddenly of a heart attack, at his home Wednesday evening. Rev. David Wren conducted the service, which was under Masonic auspices. The pallbearers were: E. P. Cox, Alex Wright, H. B. Tully, Wilfrid Scott, Harvard VanDusen, R. W. Case and John Shaw. The deceased was sixty-two years of age, and had suffered from heart trouble for some years. Interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery.

Obituary—Wesley Adams

A figure, long familiar in town life, Walter Adams, passed away in P. E. Co. Hospital, where he had been a patient for the past three weeks on Saturday, March 28th, after the deceased was born in Picton seventy-six years ago, and spent his entire life here. He was a cabinet-maker by trade, and had been connected with The Gilbert Co. for more than thirty years, where he was a valued employee. His wife, before her marriage, Hattie Hyatt, predeceased him several years ago. One sister, Mrs. Chadd of Oshawa, survives. The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian Church and Rev. R. M. Hobbs conducted the funeral service in Glenwood Chapel on Monday afternoon. The pallbearers were all old friends or business associates, N. D. Gilbert, Owen Jones, Marsh Branscomb, Milton Gilmore, Will Desjardin and Geo. Owens. Interment was made in Glenwood cemetery.

After being in failing health for some time, Albert Van Dusen, senior partner in the Adams and Van Dusen Company, passed away on Monday in his seventieth year.

Word has been received here of the recent birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Goodwin, of Toronto, formerly of Picton.

Mr. Walter Hyatt of Lindsay came to Picton on Sunday for the funeral of his uncle, the late Walter Adams.

GOLDEN DAY CELEBRATION BY LOCAL FIRM

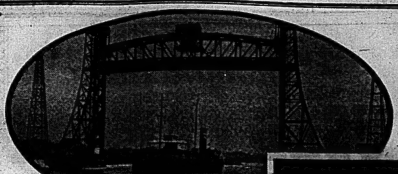
Fifty years is a long time in the life of a person or a business. fifty years is a, relatively time, hence the bright glow of the golden anniversaries which mark the half century mark in the lives of humans and the lives of building enterprises. Today, April 1, 1936, marks the Golden Anniversary of one of Belleville's most progressive and flourishing business firms, The Houston Company, Limited, lime dealers, manufacturers, and dealers in building material of all kind.

Congratulation is due The Houston Company, Limited, on the occasion of passing the half century mark in such robust health and with such a bright and promising future.

Officers of the company are: John Houston, President; Fred E. Houston, First Vice-President and Treasurer; R. R. Houston, Second Vice-President and Secretary; H. C. Marks, Chairman of Directors.

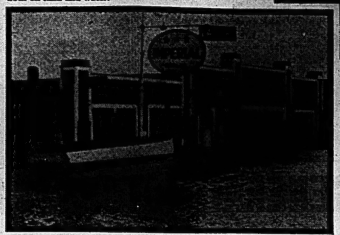


On April 1, 1886, the business was launched in Tweed, the founders being the late Robert E. Houston and A. M. VanDusen. A steam sawmill was purchased by the firm and lumber in various sizes was turned out. In 1899 the partnership was discontinued and for eleven years Mr. Robert F. Houston carried on alone. In 1910 he took his oldest son, John, into partnership, and the firm became R. F. Houston & Son. In 1919 the company was incorporated with the officers as at present.

The traditions and high business principles of the venerable founder are being carried carefully by the sons, and some eight years ago a change was made in order to give better service to the growing trade in South Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Headquarters were removed to Belleville where ten acres of land and six buildings, formerly occupied by the Steel Company of Canada, were secured and equipment installed with the result that the plant is now one of the most complete and modern in Canada.

The Houston Company, Limited, specializes in supplying smaller dealers, contractors, farmers and others, and undertakes no construction work itself whatever, the aim of the firm being to supply the demand for all kinds of building supplies, and give good and prompt service.

The plant of the company covers a large area with a number of buildings, all well-equipped for the purposes of the company and to give the best possible service to patrons.



Starting on its second fifty years as one of the most valued and promising of Belleville's younger industries a bright and prosperous future is predicted for the Houston Company, Limited, under the management of its progressive and able officers.

A VENETIAN EFFECT . . . (below) Warm weather followed heavy snow and then this happened to an Imperial Oil dealer-up near Skve Lake. Where motor cars used to stop, motor boats became the customers—but what matter? Imperial Oil products are favorites both on land and water.

CAREFUL, CAREFUL! . . . (above) Quality is the result of infinite care. Here an Imperial Oil scientist is checking a sample of Marvelube to be sure it measures up to the specifications that make it the ideal lubricant for your car. Wherever you go in Canada you'll see the Imperial Oil oval sign. Day and night thousands of Imperial workers are employed making and distributing high quality products. Most motorists buy at the Imperial Oil sign so that they will be sure of good service, high quality and fair value.

DEATH OF GIRL BLAMED ON BLISS

Tells Police He Did it And Says He Was Drunk at Time

Port William, April 1.—(CP) — Gordon Bliss, 32, remained in jail cells today on an assault charge after a coroner's jury last night found him responsible for the death of Miss Mildred Johnston, 23, a dance acquaintance of less than 24 hours.

The violated body of Miss Johnston was found in the Bliss home, where the couple was said to have gone in the absence of the young woman's parents with a man's neck tie tightly pulled around the neck.

With Dr. J. W. Cook, Coroner, presiding, a jury heard witnesses last night and returned a verdict declaring Miss Johnston came to her death March 28 "by being strangled by Gordon Bliss." Police witnesses said Bliss admitted causing Miss Johnston's death.

The couple met at a dance the night previous said A. C. Harris, brother-in-law of Miss Johnston. Sergeant F. S. Palmer told of the call to the Bliss home and finding the body of Miss Johnston in the parlor after Bliss had met him at the doorway.

Inspector George Marr and Constable John Sims told of remarks made by Bliss in which he admitted strangling Miss Johnston.

"I did it." Constable Sims quoted Bliss as saying. Later when Inspector Marr questioned him, Bliss said "I did it. She resisted me and I struck her."

M.W. Locke Shoes

Designed and approved by

Dr. M. W. Locke of Williamsburg, Ontario

FOREWORD

I HAVE been asked to write a foreword to this booklet —this I willingly do because I have been instrumental in having it also manufactured.

Many years ago I learned from my practice that certain details in footwear were essential to the good health of the feet—particularly those that required treatment —and I have always believed that many ailments of the body arise from unhealthy feet, poor circulation and weak arches, and that many of these ailments would not have occurred if feet were correctly shod and shoes properly fitted.

At one time, to obtain the desired results, I prescribed certain changes to be made by shoe-repair shops in the shoes worn by my patients, always believing that in some way a shoe could be completely manufactured embodying features that would obtain better results.

Eventually I met a shoe manufacturer willing to undertake the task and assume the necessary expense.

The first shoes indicated that many changes and improvements were necessary. I know that time, work and intensive study were spent on many pairs of shoes, but eventually the present M. W. Locke shoe was developed; some details, I believe, being patented by the manufacturer.

I was asked to give my endorsation to these shoes, but withheld this until at least ten thousand pairs were fitted or sold to my patients.

While I cannot expect that every pair of M. W. Locke shoes will be successful in their purpose, I know that they have been helpful to many thousands of my patients and to many who have not attended my clinic.

It is with the fullest faith and hope that the M. W. Locke shoe will be a benefit to many that I now give my endorsation, not only to the shoe, but to its wider distribution.

I am, of course, not a shoe manufacturer, nor have I any stock or shares of any kind in any Company manufacturing this special shoe.

Williamsburg, Ontario.
September, 1932.

A Jealous Tot Knows No Fears

Censures Only Add to His Resentment, Says Miss Grenelle

By LISA GRENELLE

THERE is a little four-year-old boy in Texas who does not mind being punished.

He is a very good child, most of the time, his mother writes me, but when in a contrary mood he is very much the opposite, and threats or unpleasant consequences in no way deter him.

He has a baby sister of two or whom, as a rule, he is very fond. But on occasions he appears to hate her, and will hit her if given the chance.

Baby sisters, or baby brothers—what a problem they are!

I know one little girl whose jealousy of her baby brother was so great that her parents had to give away for fear she would seriously injure him. That, incidentally, was just about the worst thing they could have done, aggravating as it did the child's jealousy, justifying her fear that her small brother had replaced herself in her parents' affections.

If it was fell to be necessary to separate the children, the baby brother should have been removed, temporarily, from the scene. It would not have hurt him, for he was too young to fear desertion or replacement.

But I suppose the parents felt they should punish the little girl for her vicious attacks upon her brother. This idea that a child should be punished for showing jealousy is a very dangerous and common belief among parents. It is immoral, perhaps, in that jealousy, especially among small children, is expressed by an apparently uncalled for slap—a kick, a slap, punch or push—upon the baby of the family.

"But surely," exclaims the shocked parent, "such cowardly actions should not go unchallenged! Should little Willie be allowed to bang little Marion over the head, bully her and push her about?"

Jealousy Habit Bad

Of course not. But don't you see by scolding, or punishing him in front of her, you are only adding to his resentment against her? By comforting her and psychoanalyzing you are aggravating and intensifying his jealousy, once more making him feel less loved than she. It is needless to go into the danger of a child acquiring a jealous habit of mind, how it destroys his happiness and peace of mind, makes him bitter, suspicious and cruel and destroys the foundation of his character.

So many maladjusted men and women, who can get along with no one for long and are never happy, owe their difficulties to a jealous habit of mind, acquired at four; on account of baby sister.

Don't ever give any of your children cause for jealousy. Show no affection to the baby in the elder child's presence that you do not show to him. Do not punish or scold one child in front of another.

Posture Important To Appearance Says Expert

Watch Pose of Hands And Tilt of Your Fingers, Too

PATRICIA ELLIS

Sitting pretty, she knows, is as important as being pretty

(By Helen Pelgett)

Sitting pretty should be a part of every beauty schooling. Since shooting starlets don't sit before Palmer they don't know what unlovely poses they assume. Look around you in any public convergence. You will at least know then how not to sit.

You will see girls toeing in, or their feet will rest upon the outer sides. Knees spread apart are suggestive habits of the yokel. Unless one is born to hold high, there is an ugly fold below the waistline, the head sticks down between the shoulders, the chest is contracted, and the arms thrown forward. That is pure laziness!

When occupying a chair, sit far back. Your shoulders should touch the chair back if the pose is to be vibrant and splendid. Cross the ankles, if you wish, but see that the toes of the shoes point downward. Graceless movements and poses are often due to muscles that have lost tone. Excess weight is back of it.

Watch the pose of the hands, the tilt of the fingers, when the head up...When the head is held beautifully the chest is lifted, arms fall naturally. Posture is an old story, but one that should be told often. It is important to know and has an effect upon the spirits.

Moth patches don't always prove to be permanent guests. They are the half sisters of freckles, often come through exposure to wind or strong sunlight. Women whose hands are covered with them in the summer time will observe that the skin surface is free of these blemishes when winter comes.

Therefore, the cure is found in, protection. Daily hotline freely every night with brisk massage. Wear gloves always when going out of doors. Once or twice a week lave the skin with a mixture of equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide.

An ingrowing toe nail is caused by pressure. Usually shoes too short or too narrow can produce them. The remedy is a shoe or ample dimensions with a tight strap so there is no slipping.

Soak the feet in warm soapy water every night. With an orange wood stick carefully push back any of the dead tissue, apply a few drops of mineral oil. Never use a sharp instrument. There is danger of making a wound, getting an infection.

Fashion Flashes

The whole range of yellow will be seen this spring, as the contrasting color to gray. Gray suits with yellow plaids, yellow polka dot blouses, scarfs and gloves will be widely worn. Pale primrose yellow, orange yellow, carrot yellow and saffron yellow will be among the high-lights.

It seems like yesterday that we were shopping for Summer shoes and here we are again with news of warm weather footgear. One advance model, an open-back strap shoe, has heel and quarter of yellow linen and vamp of imported brown and yellow raffia braid.

Match up accessories this Spring if you would be smart. For instance, one milliner is featuring a very flat beret of blue felt with which she makes a wealth of the same material.

Available too in yellow or red.

Go gay when it comes to hat. A lovely and cheery model is a shallow toque made entirely of green beans with a bunch of white gardenias just off the centre.

Not much green is being shown this spring, but what there is of it is extremely effective. A charming evening frock is of yellow satin in pale green and is simply made with the skirt in three-tiered silhouette. The low-cut sash and shoulder straps are of pale green satin.

At least one suit will be in every wardrobe this spring. Most practical is a suit of novelty checked tweed in brown, white and orange, the long flowy jacket worn over a belted brown flannel jacket.

A native of the Andes in South America, his throat parched by fever, drank from a grateful pool into which the limb of a tree had fallen. Miracle of miracles, the fever was relieved. The tree, later named "cinchona" became the source of Quinine.

For years and years travellers in equatorial countries carried withered full supplies of cinchona bark to ward off tropical maladies. To be without it often meant lingering delirium, fever and death.

By exact chemical processes, quinine is today obtained from cinchona bark, refined and concentrated with a majority of either drug products. The result is that quinine is a concentrated drug, many of our best known and most effective products for allaying and relieving pains and fevers.

Motorist's Hands Burned As Car Bursts into Flame

Charles Johns Seeking Source of Engine Trouble Uses Lantern — Companions Jump Out of Way of Flames to Safety

Stirling, April 1—Fire totally destroyed the Ford coach owned and operated by Mr. Charles Johns of Seymour township when it suddenly burst into flames on the Campbellford road on Monday night. Driving along with two lady companions Miss McMullen of Rawdon and Miss Green of Seymour, Mr. Johns found it necessary to look for an obstruction in the gas line which caused the car to stall near the home of Mr. Leonard Sharp. Searching for the trouble with the aid of a lantern Mr. Johns' hands were badly burned when the entire car suddenly burst into flames. Miss McMullen and Miss Green leaped to safety and apart from getting their hair badly singed, were unhurt. Mr. Johns however, suffered badly burned hands and his hand covered with gasoline became a mass of flames; he leaped into a water-filled ditch and put the fire out in a few minutes but not soon enough to stop the burning of both hands. The victims of the narrow escape were driven to the office of Dr. E. A. Carleton in Stirling where first aid was rendered. The car was a total wreck. Misses Green and McMullen were brought to Stirling by Mr. Burton Sharp.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

"I'll bring your breakfast on a tray, Ant' Nan'ma, says the little pigeon again this morning, Maggie — I mean, Vernon. There was a note of triumph in her voice, you know.

What good did that do when Terry remained silent? Vernon's heart was heavy with disappointment. But she must not let her mother see or suspect.

"I cooked breakfast for your father and myself this morning. I can't stand them, frozen-faced waiters coming in on us with food before I'm dressed." And Mrs. Dyson plumped down on the edge of Vernon's bed and poured out a cup of coffee and two sausages and waffles on Vernon's knees and seated herself on the end of the bed for a talk.

Vernon endured these one-sided conversations. In the past week they had all been to one tea—a Prince Karinoff!

"He's a real gentleman. Nothing pretentious about him. He's an aristocrat."

"Yes, Mother—"—as Vernon absently toyed with her grapefruit.

"My goodness! Aren't you the queer one! Most any girl in the world would be tickled pink about it!"

"About what?"

"The Prince, of course. You aren't that stupid? Can't you see he's interested in you? Can't you see what the end may be if you play your cards right?"

Sadie Dyson's bright, shrewd little eyes gleamed like some small creature of the forest as she added: "You aren't going to tell me that you don't care that a man of such position is after you, Maggie? You wouldn't be such a fool as let him slip through your fingers to some other girl?"

Vernon was silent. No use to argue. She finished her grapefruit, and attacked a little sausage ballistically.

"You're just shamming, that you aren't thrilled, dearie! And him so good-looking, and so liberal. He's so blue-blooded, and all! Mrs. de Bray—I'm calling her Martina, now—says there isn't a woman of any age on Park Avenue that wouldn't simply jump at his title!"

The telephone rang by the bedside. Swift color rose to Vernon's cheeks as she lifted the receiver.

But it wasn't Terry Shannon. It was Nan Hushington. Hope died. Nan wanted her to come over to the apartment and go out to lunch with her somewhere.

"I don't know that I can." But Nan was insistent. She had something very important to discuss with her. "Don't let on to your mother, but the lunch will be a fourpenny affair somehow you like awfully is coming!"

Vernon's breath caught. Nan was a bold, clever little thing—would it be possible that she had fixed this up with Terry Shannon?

Apparently she had. It was a different, an elegant Vernon who bathed and slipped into the beautiful, hand-embroidered underwear of pale pink satin that Mrs. de Bray had helped choose for her.

Mrs. de Bray had taken her to the expensive couturiers, too, who had fashioned the simple, tailored dress spring suit with its coral sweater and pert little green hat touched with coral. She looked exactly right for a day morning in Autumn.

Never had Vernon looked prettier or smarter than when she departed, hope high, for Nan Hushington's home.

X X X

"Darling, of course I called him up! Didn't your mother tell you? He's phoned you, several times and even boarded the houses in her den —that's poor Aunt Sadie!—to take you out to dinner with him!"

"Good heavens, no!" Vernon's eyes were startled, happy pools. Her breath caught. "Mother never said one word to me about it."

"Because she wants to land Prince Karinoff for you. Didn't I tell you she'd be after him, hook, line and sinker!"

"And you called Terry Shannon up? You have his telephone number?"

"Of course, Precious. I got it the night he drove me home from the theatre. I'm no shrinking violet."

"And—you asked him to meet us for lunch today?"

"Certainly I did. It was only fair —after Aunt Sadie's gumming him all up! He was cold-creaming her face before the mirror. She made a distinct move as she added quickly: 'I need you both for an alibi. Dad's given me such a scolding!'"

"What about? And how can we be an alibi?" asked Vernon.

"It's about my darling Sugar. The cats have been mewing to Dad. He says it's absolutely handsoff."

"Hands off Sugar?"

"Yep! It seems the whole town's talking about Winslow Rushington's fair shoe-bill! Lord! How I do hate 'em!"

"Then why on earth do you do it, Nan? After all, the man is married."

"Oh, be your age. Don't be a prude, I'm wild about Sugar."

He is mowing us down! It suddenly struck Vernon that it wasn't for any philanthropic motive in drawing Terry and herself together that Nan had summoned her for luncheon.

"Of course, he is. Dad makes me account for every move now. If I make a kick, the old bear's going to cut off my allowance, he threatens. That's why I sent for you. We're lunching at a new spot called the Goldfish Tavern.

CHAPTER XVII.

Vernon's thoughts were bright like wings as they drove to the tavern in a taxicab.

It was a small brick house in the East Sixties, with a bar to the rear on the ground floor, and a restaurant above.

Sugar Sarrail was waiting for them. The place was fairly full. He was smoking a cigarette in the lobby, and looking rather nervous.

"Let's have a drink. You're late."

Inquisitive Nan brought up the subject immediately. "How did Terry come to visit Sugar's home? Who was the attraction?

"My sister-in-law, young Alma," Sugar lowered his voice to add: "don't say its taste surprises me! She just like Myrtle. They're two of a kind, Sisters."

"But Terry is crazy about Vernon," Nan insisted. Awkward if he didn't show up! She hated threesomes.

Sugar was hungry, it transpired. Also, he didn't fancy waiting in the bar. Leaving word that Shannon was to follow them, he led the way upstairs.

What could be keeping Terry? Vernon wondered restlessly. It couldn't be this Alma person. He had assured her at the Suydams' party that there was nothing whatever between Alma and himself.

Fifteen minutes later, Nan was summoned downstairs to answer a telephone call.

She came back whistling ruefully. "Terry walked out on us. It seems I was wrong about the fair Alma. He's lunching with her at your home, Sugar. He just 'phoned to say he can't come."

"I've changed my mind. I shall have a cocktail, after all," exclaimed Vernon, with an outward show of gaiety, smothering her wretched disappointment over Terry's failure to appear at luncheon in the Goldfish Tavern.

In a way, those boys were twins. They resembled each other strongly, for they were the sons of twin sisters, one of whom had married an Englishman, the other an American. And the boys were attending an exclusive school in England, preparing for an American college.

When their schoolmates began calling them the Tarzan Twins, Dick and Doc decided to live up to their names.

And they scandalized the dignified faculty and their aristocratic school fellows by carrying around in campus treetops, emitting wild, Tarzan yells.

It was not the first. Nan was notified. How dare Sugar's best girl stray from her own fair face?

It should be furious with Terry, were I you, Vernon! He was coming on your account, and now he had brought pressure to bear on him.....

Better try to keep her thoughts on Prince Karinoff—an attitude which would delight her mother! The soul of politeness, the Prince was now leaning over her, saying something impudently. "Do you think I was born yesterday?"

She drained her glass, determined she would put that uncertain quality, Terry Shannon, out of her mind and heart. There must be something more to this Alma business than admitted, when he would wiggle out of a definite engagement to see her, at the last minute. As likely as not, Alma had induced him to change his mind, had brought pressure to bear on him.....

Sugar gave Nan a sharp glance. Then winked impudently. "Do you think I was born yesterday?"

Vernon, thought: "There are hateful undercurrents in New York. I wonder, is anyone really happy?"

The ape-man's invitation to visit him had filled them with pride. Now they fancied themselves jungle-lovers, and that was the cause of their undoing; for they did not realize that the safety of civilization binds the race of men to the sinister forces of the primitive wild!

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Penetrating deeper into the jungle, with no danger apparent, the boys' confidence mounted. The fellows at school didn't call us the Tarzan Twins for nothing," said Doc, swaggering slightly. "But Tarzan is my relative, not yours," Dick reminded with pride.

At first he did not see Vernon. T'd the devil of a time getting away, Didn't go to the office at all this morning. Myrtle wanted me to go through a lot of papers and insurances with her. And then the chap—Terry Shannon dropped in.

Vernon's heart missed a beat. Nan gave a chuckle.

Then Sugar Sarrail saw Vernon and apologized for the omission in the half light. He admired her, His bored face lightened a little."

Vernon declined a cocktail in the bar. She was agog for Terry's arrival.

AMAZING AMERKS DEFEAT TORONTO IN NEW YORK 1-0

Jerwa Fires Winning Goal on Three Way Passing Play

WORTERS UNBEATABLE

Leafs Much the Better But Could Not Beat Mighty Atom

By GEORGE MAGUIRE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, April 1.—(CP)— All Manhattan raved today over New York Americans, that gallant band of hickorymen, who last night overcame Toronto Leafs 1-0 as 14,000 hysterical fans roared their approval.

Amerks started the second clash of the best-of-three Stanley Cup semi-finals distinctly the underdogs according to form, weeding and condition. The men of Manager Marvin "The Red" Dutton nevertheless got the jump on the speedy Blueshirts by scoring in the second frame, then held the battering powerhouse at bay through 30 minutes of shot the most exciting hockey Madison Square Garden has ever seen.

The Leafs were obviously the better team on the night's play. Their three smashing wins topped by the big "Bertha", Charlie Conacher, held an almost unbelievable margin in the play during the last half.

Workers Mighty Atom

But the mighty atom of the gang came, little Roy Worters, 135 pounds of blocking dynamite, about between the American goal posts and frustrated every Toronto effort to notch the equalizer.

Ganging Joe Jerwa, the goalhewer of the Canadian rout, shot Americans in the front at 16:15 of the middle frame. The goal proved, that Coach Roy Reiner and Manager Dutton, the Calgary twins, knew how to outwit superior playing strength on the opposite side of the blue line.

Nels Stewart, veteran centre of the Amerks, and Jack Shill, Leaf wingman, had been penalized for interfering in front of the Toronto net, when Stewart got too persistent in trying to smack passes by by sprightly George Hainsworth, guarding the Blueshirts net.

Fast hockey was expected from the outset, but instead Americans tried to stall.

Leafs Outmaneuvered

The fans didn't like it and clapped and booed. Then the merit of this bit of masterstrategy was recognized, when Leafs were hurried into the American end. Art Chapman, the great passing centre, snared the puck and raced away. Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, leading scorer of the National Hockey League, flanked him, while Jerwa trailed along.

There was only one man to pass, lanky Andy Blair. He played Chapman, who whipped the disc over to Schriner. The latter tore in on Hainsworth, pulled him to one side, then shipped a short pass back to Jerwa, who easily planted the rubber into the open net.

The game was held up for minutes as fans danced, tossed programs, newspapers and a variety of fruit on the ice.

Up to this time the Leafs looked like certain winners. They appeared fresher of the two as they left Amerks, who were without the services of Manager Dutton, but even more so after Jerwa's goal there did not seem to be any doubt Toronto would emerge on top.

Worters Unbeatable

However, that was figuring without taking into consideration mighty Worters. Leafs fired wave after wave of goal-bent puck carriers into the American end and it seemed only a matter of time before the red light would flash for the equalizer. But Worters was not to be beaten. His magnificent saves baffled the fans and again as the game was almost over he won a mighty acclaim when he made a miraculous recovery to deny Hainsworth a counter. A tribute to the little fellow's pluck and brilliant work.

When the game was over, every one stood and for minutes on end shouted their tribute to Worters, the Amerks as a whole and to the Leafs for their gameness in their fruitless efforts.

Leafs won the first clash in Toronto 3-1 and left immediately after the game for the latter city, on their way to the "Thursday night. The winners meet Detroit Redwings, National League champions, in a best-of-five series for the battered old wine-bottle, emblematic of the world's professional championship.

ALL-STAR TEAMS IN I.H.L. PICKED

Syracuse And London Have Two Players Each on First Team

Toronto, April 1.—(CP)—The International Hockey League All-Stars of 1936, chosen for the Canadian Press by sports writers around the minor circuit, features the best defence strength of Detroit Olympics and Buffalo Bisons, and the scoring wallop of Syracuse stars.

On the first and alternate teams announced today were two Detroit and two Buffalo rear guardsmen, including Goalie Alex Wood of the Bisons. Only Goaltender Cardinal failed to place a man on either of the lineups.

The teams are—

Selection of veteran Pete Pellitier of London and Normandin started the chief surprise and one of the chief points of interest. On the basis of early-season play, Gordon Pettinger of Detroit Olympics would have topped all centres easily, but Gordon was promoted to the Red Wings of the National League and Big-Brother Eric proceeded to hit his stride.

After mid-season the London centre was one of the most effective forwards in the League, winning the All-Star berth ahead of Syracuse's brilliant first-string wingmen, Jack Markle and Jack Shill. Markle, leading scorer in the 1934-35 season and fourth in the standing this year, was almost a unanimous choice for right wing.

While the voting was in progress Toronto Maple Leafs recalled the speedy Shill from Syracuse and the right winger helped the Leafs to defeat Boston Bruins in the National League playoffs. Without him the first two games of their series with Detroit, the Syracuse team was eliminated in the I.H.L. playoffs.

Canada's Mittmen Rate High In Rankings of Association

McLarnin, Brouillard, McCoy and Battaglia Are Named

Ypsilanti, Mich., April 1 (CP)—Canada's four leading mittmen — Jimmy McLarnin, Leo Brouillard, Al McCoy and Frankie Battaglia—rated high today in the quarterly rankings of the National Boxing Association.

Brouillard, native of St. Eugene, Que., was named the leading contender for Babe Risko's middleweight crown. It was doubtful, however, he could turn the honor into cash. Colonel Doctors told him he has a calloused condition of the left arm, a disease that has ended many ring careers.

McLarnin, Vancouver's former ruler of the welters, was placed third in the division behind the man who dethroned him, black Barney Ross of Chicago and Jackie Carroll, who recently matched with Ross.

Al McCoy, born Florian Le Brasseur in Quebec's Beauce County, was rated third among the lightheavys, behind titleholder John Henry Lewis and "jittery Jock" Sherman, British champion. McCoy lost a 15-round decision to Lewis a few weeks ago. Previously the Negro had won a 10-round decision over McCoy.

Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg Italian, was rated sixth among the featherweights.

Joe Louis, Detroit destroyer, was named No. one challenger in the heavyweight champion Braddock and Max Baer, Chairman James Brown of the N.B.A. as likely successor. Max Schmeling was omitted but young middleweight Buddy Baer was placed ninth.

Detroit Fans Sure Red Wings Will Take Either Team

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit, April 1.—(CP)— Being purely mercenary in this stage of the game, Detroit's Red Wings, National Hockey League champions, were somewhat impatient today with Toronto Maple Leafs for failing to achieve the Stanley Cup finals in two straight games against New York Americans.

The Wings, who will enter the finals as favorites against either Toronto or Americans, expected the Leafs to upset Red Dutton's gang of demi last night at New York and play the first game of the Stanley Cup finals here Thursday night. Jack Adams and his henchmen were disappointed, when the Leafs failed.

The Leafs" explained Lou Ofelia, manager of Olympia Rink, "are the best box-office attraction in the league at any time, therefore we want them to reach the finals against Red Wings. This rink won't be big enough to hold the crowds, that will come to see that one. They'll sure play the kind of hoc. hey like in this town and it is only necessary that we think they can beat Toronto. What's more, we'll sure fill houses. We aren't worried about either Leafs or Americans as far as winning is concerned. Whichever one they are going now, can beat either of them."

Red Wings Quite Sure

The feeling after last night's 1-0 win for Americans was that Toronto or Americans would be considerably short of reaching Detroit's standard for Sprague's Detroit's standard for Sprague's Detroit's standard for Sprague's

Jury's Plea for Delay To Study Wendel Case Is Granted by Warden

Condemned Man Saved at Last Moment as He Prepares to Die

WENDEL CONFESSION

Hauptmann Takes News Philosophically 'In Stride'

(By Dale Harrison Copyright 1936 By The Associated Press)

Trenton, N.J., April 1—Once more Bruno Richard Hauptmann has dodged his date with death, this time—most dramatically of all—by an unprecedented action which today gave him new chances for life.

While his executioner awaited his coming in the little room of hope in the State prison last night, the man thrice sentenced to die for the Lindbergh baby murder was almost literally snatched from the electric chair.

'At Least 48 Hours'

His respite was for "at least 48 hours." It came from an unexpected source—the Mercer County Grand Jury which convened unexpectedly yesterday to consider charges that another man, the middle-aged Paul Wendel, was the kidnap-killer of the infant son of the Charles A. Lindberg.

It was Col. Mark O. Kimberling, prison warden, "acting entirely on my own responsibility" who cancelled the execution at 8.05 p.m.—five minutes after the hour set.

"The Mercer County Grand Jury" Kimberling said, "has asked me to hold off the execution for 48 hours. There are some interesting new angles in the case that wish to investigate."

"The delay in the execution is for at least 48 hours. It may be Thursday or Friday. I am making a further statement later."

Unparalleled Developments

This combination of developments had never occurred before in New Jersey history.

Col. Kimberling's intervention came after the last legal chance of escape was swept away by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard who, after hearing arguments by Hauptmann's counsel, declined to grant a last minute request for a stay of execution.

The arguments were heard largely upon three "confessions," later repudiated, by Paul Wendel, army Trenchard lawyer and druggist. It was set forth that another man in jail admitted the crime and after having "confessed" to it, the State should not proceed with the Hauptmann execution.

Warden's Action Unusual

Justice Trenchard, thoroughly familiar with the Hauptmann case by reason of having served as the trial judge at Flemington where Hauptmann was convicted early last year, denied the plea and described the "new evidence" as unbelievable and out of harmony with the known facts in the case.

The unprecedented action of the prison warden—the man charged in law with the prisoners execution—and the Grand Jury ripped the astonishing case wide open to new possibilities.

Legal authorities frankly were in a quandary today as to what might happen next.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, said he had no idea what reasons were opened by the delay in the execution. So far as he knew there was no precedent.

Hopes to Extend Stay

In the case of an indictment being returned against Wendel, Fisher felt a way would be found to extend the stay of Hauptmann's execution but whether such a way would be brought a court or into the office of the Governor or the Court of Pardons—which latter has denied Hauptmann clemency — Fisher did not know.

The Mercer County Grand Jurors were in session from early afternoon yesterday until one o'clock this morning, finally recessing until 1.45 p.m. today for further investigation without any indictment being handed up. There was one indication as to how the jurors stood on the question when the recess was taken.

Several witnesses were questioned, some of them more than once. Among them were Wendel's son and daughter. The latter, Mrs. Dorothy Wendel Hutchings, fainted after testifying.

Detective Meets Jury

Ellis Parker, the 63-year-old Burlington County detective, who has worked independently for more than a year in an effort to solve the Lindbergh case and to prove his contention Hauptmann is not guilty of the crime, was closeted with the jury for some time.

Parker is a close associate of Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who has led a strong fight in recent months to save Hauptmann from the electric chair at least until a further investigation could be made of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Parker's Activity

It was Parker who turned Wendel over to Mercer County authorities late last week after obtaining the "confession" which Wendel has since vigorously repudiated. A formal charge of murder was laid against Wendel. The complainant was the Chief of Mercer County Detectives, James G. Kirkham.

So swiftly moved the events of the execution day that the issuance of Governor Hoffman's 30 day reprieve for Charles Zlad, the man who was to have walked the "last mile" with Hauptmann, was almost buried under the avalanche of developments in the case of Hauptmann.

Zlad, a Philadelphia gangster who killed a Camden policeman, had given up all hope, and was resigned to death in the chair—a sharp contrast to Hauptmann who almost to the last had expressed a belief "something" would happen to save him.

'Dying Letter'

But even Hauptmann who has won the sobriquet of "man of steel" because of his steady refusal to flinch during the torturing months that have followed his arrest in September, 1934, broke yesterday and accepted death last night as inevitable.

This was apparent in a letter to Governor Hoffman which Hauptmann wrote while the hour set for execution drew near and which was delivered to the office of the Governor by a prison guard late in the afternoon.

"With my dying breath," and believe at least a dying man" were phrases that stood out in the letter, written by the condemned man which the prosecution charged wrote the Lindbergh ransom notes.

Confession Sought

He scored Dr. John F. Condon the ransom intermediary who identified him as the man to whom the ransom money was paid; Attorney General Wilentz, who prosecuted him; and even had a word of censuring for his "chief lawyer" at the Flemington trial.

"I assure your excellence that I am not guilty of this crime," the German-born carpenter wrote.

"Why did people say on the witness stand they saw me near Hopewell? Up to the present day I have not been there. Although house in Hopewell is located."

The letter, which ran several pages, frequently addressed itself not only to the Governor but to others. In one place Hauptmann wrote:

Claims Innocence

"Mr. Wilentz with my dying breath, I swear by God that you convicted an innocent man. . . . God will be judge between me and you. I beg you, Attorney-General, believe at least a dying man."

The letter concluded:

"In all your efforts to save my life and see that justice is done, I assure your excellencies that your effort was spent to an innocent man. I thank your excellencies from the bottom of my heart, and may God bless you."

Governor Hoffman released copies of the letter without comment.

Earlier in the week he had announced he would not grant a second reprieve to the man he believes was convicted at a trial that "reeked with unfairness, passion and prejudice".

Governor Silent

The Governor, who kept himself available by telephone with the person in the event of any last minute developments that might call for swift action by him, said he had no knowledge of Col. Kimberling's decision to delay the execution until the Warden telephoned him shortly before official announcement was made. He made no comment.

A crowd of at least 2,500 persons was gathered in the neighborhood of the prison as the execution hour neared.

Among them were many women. Small children darted about. In nearby streets, among the entertainment without number in Atlantic City, a crowd of the strangest crime dramas of all history.

The prison area was roped off and only persons having business there were permitted inside the police lines. Through the barred windows of the prison could be heard the shouting of convicts. It was almost that way when a fellow prisoner died.

Drone of Prisoners Heard

The turmoil among the prisoners reached its height an hour before the hour Hauptmann was to die. With half an hour remaining, the clamor died and silence broken only by a sort of drone took its place. Outside the main door of the prison a group of 100 or more persons, many of whom possessed credentials to be within the police lines, stood about. Across the street, directly opposite the prison entrance, were ranged the trucks of the movie men, their big lamps of scintillating brilliance mounted on them.

Lamps Focussed on Door

Further down along the prison wall, other searchlights were focussed upon the door which—following the execution—was to be flung open to permit the newspapermen to race out and across the street to the prison garage which, for the occasion, was turned into a workshop from which the story would speed over hundreds of wires.

In a corridor close to the modest office of the pleasant, soldierly warden, the official witnesses waited. They had gathered at 7:15; but at 8 o'clock, when Hauptmann was to have started his walk to the chair they were still in the corridor—uneasy and uncertain what the delay boded.

Witnesses Searched

Twice while they waited, the witnesses were searched for weapons. Every precaution was being taken to prevent anything that might upset the tragic drama of a man being put to death in the electric chair.

Robert Elliott, the executioner, had gone down to the death chamber to be ready for the execution; and two clergymen were attending the solace of their church to the man whose death had occasioned such unrecanged interest.

To those who waited, tense, in the corridor above, shooting frequent glances at their watches as the execution hour came, there came Albert Hermann, Clerk of the Pardons Court and also a secretary to Governor Hoffman, and said:

"There has been a delay of 48 hours."

Still the witnesses waited. At 8.05 p.m. came Col. Kimberling himself, announcing the stay of execution personally and giving the reason for it.

Fisher Carries News

The news was carried to the condemned man by his counsel, Lloyd Fisher. Hauptmann was with the Rev. D. O. Werner, his former pastor in the Bronx.

He took the news calmly and without at once grasping it, Dr. Werner described it afterward.

It was not until the last moment. He expected to go. He was prepared for death. When the news came he said nothing. He was just happy."

'Didn't I Tell You?'

Fisher said Hauptmann said to him:

"Didn't I tell you at five o'clock that something would happen in my favor? Somehow I feel confident that I won't go to that chair. I feel that good things are ahead."

"When I saw Hauptmann in the morning, he wasn't in good shape at all. (Hauptmann wept for several minutes when visited yesterday morning by the prison warden). There was evidence of grief and concern; but he was back in his old form at five o'clock.

Ate Fair Meal

"He ate part of the meal (dinner) despite reports to the contrary. The moving to a new cell, which is the custom on day of execution, upset him for the first time and brought a realization of the imminence of death. (Hauptmann was moved from cell D to E, which is nearest the death chamber door).

Fisher whose eyes were damp as he left the prison late in the afternoon, when all hope appeared lost was bitter in his expression of opposition to capital punishment.

"The murdered man—dies like that—" and he snapped his fingers. "but the poor devil in the Death House lives in mental anguish for months".

Read 23rd Psalm at Time ..

When news of the stay of execution was carried to the condemned man he was giving his attention to the reading of Scripture. Dr. D. Werner, especially the Psalms 121 and 23—"The Lord is My Shepherd, I shall not want; He Leadeth me—"

The minister hurried from the prison to the hotel where Mrs. Anna Hauptmann—who appeared repeatedly wearing a new black satin dress and who had purchased a mourning veil—waited.

Both the minister and Fisher said Mrs. Hauptmann who has aged in appearance greatly during the months of ordeal which have marked her husband's effort to escape the chair, was composed.

If You Stub Your Toe on April 1, Just Remember That Such Pranks Have Been Fooling Folk for Years

By C. DAVID VORMELKER

Did you stub your toe on a brick lurking under an old derby, or were you embarrassed by reaching for a seemingly well-filled wallet only to see it suddenly whisked away by some urchin hiding behind a convenient fence ?

If you did, or if you called a telephone number and were supposed to ask for Mr. Rhesus and found you were talking to the zoo, comes yourself with the fact that many other persons also were tricked today.

For in nearly all parts of the world there is the custom of some similar to our April Fools' day.

Origin Uncertain

How it all began is a little vague. The early as 1760 a rhyme about fooling persons on April 1 appeared in print but there are many stories concerning its origin that go back even further than that.

One version cited by half a dozen authorities holds that the custom arose from the mistake of sending out the dove from Noah's Ark before the flood waters had abated on the first day of the month which, almost forever, corresponds to our first day of April. The purpose of All Fools' day, according to this story, is to punish those who have forgotten the remarkable circumstances of Noah's experience by sending them upon some foolish or "aleveless" errand. Thus did they celebrate the memory of the deliverance of Noah and his family.

But there are other and more authentic beliefs concerning the origin of this custom.

"An April Fish"

In France a person who is fooled is known as "un poisson d'avril", which, translated literally into English, means "an April fish". The connection here is that the fish, so deceived is like a young fish and therefore easily caught.

Another version of the phrase "poisson d'avril" is a survival of an old pagan offering in the spring to Aphrodite when the constellation of Pisces or fishes was in ascendant influence and under the auspices of Aphrodite. Calendar changes have now made the constellation of Aries in ascendant influence at this time.

The day has also been traced to an old Indian nature feast called the Ancient Feast of the Vernal Equinox, the day of deception coming when the festivities began on March 25, ended on April 1.

The most generally accepted theory concerns France's action in being the first nation to adopt the reformed calendar. In 1564 Charles IX decreed that the year should begin with January 1 rather than April 1. After this decree, the New Year visits and the exchange of New Year's gifts, which formerly had been associated with April 1, became definitely associated with January 1.

Aphoristic is the fact that the "human race objects to change". Thus in 1564 some people objected to the calendar change and these became the victims of others' trickery. They were the recipients of many sniffs and pretended calls of ceremony and some were even invited to mock New Year's celebrations. This custom spread from France to England, but not until 1660 did it become common.

British Humor

In England some of the more popular jokes consisted of sending people to get the history of Eve's grandmother, or a pint of pigeon's milk or stamp oil.

Late in the nineteenth century a large group of people in England went dashing about Tower Hill in vain in order to attend the "annual ceremony of the washing of the white lions". They were supposed to enter at the white gate. Much time elapsed before they became aware that they all had been fooled.

As you turn the pages of this newspaper, dozens of seeds are scattered over your mind. . . . That's a good-looking car . . . . I'd like to have that radio. . . . What a pretty dress. . . . I think I'll try a can of that soup. Some of these advertisements may not interest you at the moment. Others will fall on fertile ground, take root and bear fruit in some wise future purchase.

Speaking of seeds reminds us: Have you bought yours for the garden yet? It isn't too early to plant some of them now. How about the slip covers for the porch chairs? Then there's that new spring hat. And the special soap-sales for your spring cleaning. Look up these items in the advertisements before you buy.

Advertisements help you to weed out waste, both in your time and your money. They draw a straight line between your cash and the correct counter. Cultivate the habit of reading them regularly. They bring you a harvest of much usable information.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Mad Love"

A Horror Tale That Tops Tim All For Chills

Peter Lorre, amazing new personality to the American screen, makes his bow in his first picture in this country in "Mad Love," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's creepy mystery drama, now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

Star of "M" and other European sensations, he brings a bald, calculating murderer to the screen in the person of a famous surgeon in Paris. Creepy thrills, weird surgical experiments, a glimpse of the Grand Guignol horror theatre, the guillotine and other fantastic divertissements surround this gripping drama.

Karl Freund, European director, famous for his direction of "Metropolis," deserves much credit for the deft direction and almost uncanny photography of the new picture.

Beautiful Frances Drake proves herself in actress or poignant interest as a heroine, the heroine, and Colin Clive is compellingly interesting as Orlac, the pianist.

Others in the cast are Henry Kolker as the police head, Ted Healy as the American reporter who helps solve the mystery, Edward Brophy as his assistant, Sarah Haden, Keye Luke, Isabel Jewell, Ernest Hilliard, Ian Wolfe, Charles Trowbridge and Murray Kinnell.

The picture, based on Maurice Renard's novel, "The Hands of Orlac," was adapted by Florence and Guy Endore, author of "Werewolf of Paris," with screen play by John Balderston and P. J. Wolfson.

Second Ace Hit "Fighting Youth"

Did you know that Communistic activities have a very definite influence on college football?

The facts of this amazing situation are dramatically set forth in "Fighting Youth," the Universal gridiron comedy-drama now playing at the Capitol Theatre, starring Charles Farrell and with June Marlel and Andy Devine in featured roles.

Radical students, advancing the claim that football is merely a species of "big business" and that the players are pawns in the hands of those who profit by the game, make a constant effort to disrupt teams by inducing star members of the squad to "lay down" at crucial moments, and their tear down systems which are the means of bringing in what are considered large incomes for the benefit of college.

In this instance, sex appeal is the means used.

In the story Charles Farrell, All-American halfback on the team at State College, is induced to attend a meeting of the so-called "Students' League of Freedom" and his subsequent refusal to play next game to play up to his usual standard is made the basis for his dismissal from the team. The climax of the story comes in the midst of a thrilling game actually played before 75,000 spectators in the famous Coliseum at Los Angeles.

"Fighting Youth" was directed by Hamilton MacFadden, and the large cast appearing with Farrell, Miss Marlel and Devine includes J. Farrel Macdonald, Ann Sheridan and Herman Bing, as well as many noted football stars of the past and present.

AT THE REGENT

"Music Goes Round" is Show of Rhythm, Glee, Mirth, Says Reviewer Dooling's "3 Sisters"

Sparkling comedy, captivating singing, red hot dancing, fine acting, lovely songs . . . put them all together and add a corking romantic story that is as fresh as tomorrow's news, and you have, according to advance reports, Columbia's new musical film, "The Music Goes Round," which opens tomorrow Thursday, for two days at the Belle theatre, with Harry Richman, Rochelle Hudson, Michael Bartlett, Walter Catlett and Edward Farley and Michael Riley and their "round and round music" personally featured.

"It sounds like a large order, but when you consider all the very special ingredients that went into the making of "The Music Goes 'Round" it is easy to believe that it is one of the season's outstanding musical entertainments.

Great Entertainer

Richman has long been considered one of America's premier entertainers. Whether it is in George White's Scandals, on the radio, in night clubs, or in musical comedies, Richman has proved himself "the tops". Now he's in the movies, and the whole country is waiting to see what he does.

Miss Hudson is a young lady whose popularity has grown enormously in the last year or two. "Curley Top" and "Judge Hardy" are a few of her recent successes.

Walter Connolly, outstanding in both stage and screen, turns in another of his excellent characterizations in this film. Somehow, this is one actor who never lets his standards down.

When Michael Bartlett sang with Grace Moore in "Love Me Forever," the whole world was thrilled. He is said to have a lyric tenor voice of the highest calibre.

"Round and 'Round Boys

Extremely interesting is the fact that Farley and Riley, the composers of the stirring title musical song, "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round," will appear in the new picture, singing and playing their song in person. Their version of the song pushed the original values down and subsequently made the music come out on every radio set in the land.

Seven Song Hits

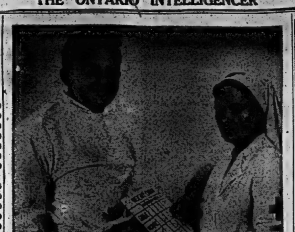
The film's seven song hits, besides "The Music Goes 'Round and Around" were written by Low Brown, Harry Link and Sammy Schertzinger. The numbers include "It's Begin When You're In Love," "Rollin' Along," "Swanana," "Three'll Be No Scotch," and "Let's Go!"

Otto Kruger Returns

The age-old problem faced by a woman whose lover's past threatens to disrupt the consummation of their happiness, is deftly handled in "Two Black Sheep" by Warwick Deeping, starring Otto Kruger and Gertrude Michael, now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Minor Comedell and Robert Warwick, announced as "Bellboy Trouble" and "Scamahan," also appear on the same program. The last named ended show starts nightly at 9.30 p.m.

"The Country Doctor" Leaving

In "The Country Doctor," to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times, the world's five most famous baby girls are making their starring debut in a picture chockfull of drama, suspense, comedy and romance.



They are the Dionne quintuplets, leading an all-star Hollywood cast in a warmly human and gripping story of a doctor in a Canadian Northern centre.

June Lang and Michael Whalen are prominent in the supporting cast, coupled in romantic roles. "The Country Doctor" starts at 7.00 and 9.30 p.m. Three other screen treats will be exhibited on the same program.

Government Biologist to Study Local Waters for Restocking With Game Fish

Information Given to Representative Gathering of Anglers

REPORTS RECEIVED

96 Per Cent of Streams in Southern Ontario Privately Owned

Definite assurance from the Game and Fisheries Department of the Ontario Government, that a government biologist would be sent to this district to study the question of the conservation of game fish in the waters of the Bay of Quinte was announced at the annual spring meeting of the Belleville Anglers Association by President J. E. Shortt before nearly 75 members and their friends, who met at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The re-stocking of local waters with game fish and secured representation of Hastings County waters was also announced by Dr. Van Blaiklee, chairman of re-stocking in the Belleville Anglers' Association. These announcements came after President Shortt had personally made representation to the Game and Fisheries Department recently and presented three paramount questions, that confronted local anglers.

Study Local Waters

The requests made by the local organization, through Mr. Shortt were—The presence of a government biologist to study local waters and endeavour to ascertain if the work of the local anglers was being conducted in the proper channels relative to their re-stocking efforts. The main point in view regarding this matter was whether or not the conditions were adequate for the re-stocking of certain local waters with game fish. The second question presented the government was to ascertain the cause of the depleting of 'lunge' in the Bay of Quinte, especially in Muscote Bay and thirdly the wisdom of allowing net fishing in the bay of Quinte during all spawning seasons. With the announcement, that a government biologist would be sent to this district, it is expected, that answers to all above questions will follow in his report early this summer.

After welcoming the large and representative gathering of locally interested anglers, President Shortt stated, that the Provincial organization was handicapped considerably in their efforts of conservation and the preservation of game fish in the waters of Southern Ontario. "Owing to the fact that nearly 95% of the streams in our districts are privately owned, it handicaps us in the matter of conservation of game fish, as we have no jurisdiction over these privately owned streams or over the streams, that run through private property" explained Mr. Shortt. He pointed out, however, that the sum of $200,000.00 had been paid into the government in 1935 by non-resident fishermen, the bulk of this sum is to be used in the preservation of game fish in Ontario.

Excellent Co-operation

"We are getting excellent co-operation regarding our re-stocking of local waters," added Dr. Blaiklee, chairman of that line as he added—"In 1935 we put in 30 applications for fish for the re-stocking of lakes and streams in Hastings County and all were completed. Already in 1936 we have over 23 applications for the re-stocking of the same waters, and more to come. Speckled trout, lake trout, brown trout, herring, bass, pickerel and 'lunge have all been requisitioned for. In 1936 the fish supplied by the government for re-stocking will all be older than they fry used in other years, thus assuring them of longer life. We expect to re-stock other lakes and streams after we receive the report from the government biologist, who will visit our waters and survey them early this season," concluded Dr. Blaiklee as he urged the members of the club to do their part in the matter of

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1936

40 KILLED, MILLION DAMAGE BY TORNADO

'Open Shop' Conditions Rule C.R.C., Says Head Denying 'Sweatshop'

Compensation Paid Artists Is Withheld From Public At Probe

Ottawa, Apr. 2 (CP)—Contracts between the Canadian Radio Commission and laundries companies were told before the Commons Committee on Radio today but were kept from the press at the request of the committee.

Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Marine, said communication business was highly competitive and the companies had given what he thought to be good reasons why the contract details should be kept private.

Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the Commission, presented a number of orders of radio administration and his examination was resumed by Arthur Slaght (Lib., Parry Sound).

Commission Duty Outlined

Suggestions in the report the Commission be empowered to engage its own technical staff independently of the Civil Service, that it be free to buy, build and sign cheques and be freed from necessity of submitting an annual budget, have been made since the 1934 committee, Mr. Charlesworth said in response to questions.

He would not now make the same suggestions as the report of the commission was on a more systematic basis whereas in 1934 it was just getting under way.

Details of salaries and compensation of artists actually should not be disclosed to the public, the commissioner was told, because of the thing that might be aroused between the talent part by comparison. If each knew what compensation the others were receiving.

"Broadcasting is Business"

"We try to pay as well as our resources will let us," Mr. Charlesworth said. Vincent Dupuis (Lib., Chambly-Vercheres) suggested that might be thrown upon complaints of "closed shop" conditions in the commission.

Mr. Charlesworth said the Commission had no control over salaries paid by independent stations. With respect to instrumentalists the salaries were well controlled by unions. The Commission ran an "open shop" by arrangement with the unions.

The Commission head said he did not discriminate between amateur and professionals. If an amateur showed talent he thought would please the public his chances were as good as a professional's.

Compensation to Artists

Compensation to artists was largely by arrangement with the performer and artists did not send their remuneration made public. Some performers would take part in a program for a very little or nothing, merely to get a chance on the air.

Entering upon detailed examination of the chairman's report on staff and salaries, Mr. Slaght referred to C.R.C.T., official Commission outlet in Toronto. Stanley Mouat was listed as station director at a salary of $4,700 a year. He asked for an outline of his duties.

Mr. Charlesworth went into some detail of the work of a station director in arranging programs, broadcasting public functions.

In addition he often sang on the air without extra remuneration. "I am on full time, "about 18 hours a day," Mr. Charlesworth said. "I do not see any objection to him singing in churches and for aid to the C.P.R. programs which we get free."

The five newcomers to the council are G. H. Bland of Ontario; A. C. Cameron of Belleville, D. M. Chown of Kingston; A. D. Cornish of Smith's Falls; D. G. Creighton of Toronto. The former members who were re-elected are Alexander Longwell of Toronto; J. A. Macdonnell of Ottawa, G. J. Smith of Kingston and Judge M. B. Trow of Brockville.

HUNTING DOG MAY ACCOMPANY 2 HUNTERS

Toronto, Apr. 2 (CP)—Restrictions on the use of dogs in deer hunting are to be relaxed. The new provisions will permit two hunters to use a dog and the number of dogs permitted for larger parties will be increased.

The committee learned also the ordinary .22 gun license will not be sufficient to permit use of a high power rifle during the big game season. If any hunter carries such a gun he must have a big game license.

Man Located Through Story In Local Paper

Once again the wide facilities of the Ontario Intelligencer proved helpful to a local citizen. On Tuesday the attachments of the estate of the late Donald MacLean were requested through the columns of the local paper with the result, then Mr. Forbes MacLeod, son of the late Donald MacLean, of Ida presented himself at the office and made known to the police authorities and was informed he had been named joint executor of the MacLean estate in Quebec.

Mr. Forbes MacLean, who is employed as a locomotive engineer on the Canadian National Railways, resides at 513 Feeley Ave., Montreal, formerly Sydney Mines, N.S. He is a brother of the late Archibald MacLean, and Mrs. Forbes MacLean, both came to Canada many years ago and lived for a number of years in Eastern Canada. Efforts to locate a relative or kindred of the late Donald and John MacLean proved futile until a request for information appeared in the columns of the Ontario-Intelligencer. The aforementioned estate is handled by firm of Glasgow law solicitors in order to formulate a large claim against the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was disclosed today.

MIDWIFE AT BIRTH OF QUINTS, HURT

Mrs. Labelle Sustains Internal Injuries And Condition Serious

Windsor, Ont., April 3—(CP)—Mrs. Mary Jane Labelle of Corbeil, a midwife at the birth of "Quints" to help out the neighbors"—was in critical condition today in hospital here. The 56-year-old woman, who assisted at the birth of the Dionne quintuplets in May, 1934, was injured in an automobile accident late yesterday.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Labelle had an even chance or recovering from the effects of the ditched car, including Mrs. Alexander Dionne, who also assisted in delivering the Dionne babies were not seriously hurt.

Returning from Florida with his wife and daughter and the two famous midwives, Phillip Adams of North Bay turned out to pass a car on the highway near St. Joachim, 20 miles east of here. He said he felt the car skidding and turned the wheel but the drag of a small trailer employed to carry luggage pulled the car towards the ditch. The machine struck a telephone pole and plunged into a 10- foot ditch.

WATERS OF MOIRA RIVER AGAIN ON THE RAMPAGE—So far as Ontario is concerned at least, the spring flood season is not over yet. Mental-Deficient Patients Occupy Over Half of All Hospital Beds

Depression Causative Factor For Large Increase in Hospital Admissions

TOTAL OF 11,000

Probably Just as Many Proportionately Fifty Years Ago

Toronto, Apr. 2 (CP)—More than half the available hospital beds in Ontario are occupied by patients suffering from some mental disease, health department officials revealed today.

Exact figures were last kept in 1923 when there were 17,964 hospital beds in the province. Of these, 11,506 were occupied by patients who could be diagnosed as insanity or mental-deficiency.

Officials said today first admissions to mental hospitals reached their peak in 1932 when 2,250 persons were committed and since then there has been a slight falling off. In 1933 first admissions were 2,186 and in 1934 they were 2,241.

There has been a noticeable increase in cases of dementia praecox (through the years), said a spokesman for a department physician. "The economic factor, however, has been a precipitating factor in all diagnostic groups.

"One thing that probably accounts for part of the increase through the depression is the large number of families that have moved from houses into small flats and apartments.

Smaller Homes Responsible.

"A great many families have one member who is a problem to themselves, aging relative, a defective child or a borderline case of insanity. As long as the family lives in a roomy home, there is no cause for trouble but family life often becomes impossible in smaller quarters.

"Members of the family who could once be safely cared for have to be sent to an institution in such instances.

"The movement from the farms into the larger cities has also had a lot to do with the increase, according to our clinical records. There are many adults and children in rural communities who can be kept at home without getting into trouble but once they get to the city they are in danger of being lost, run over or getting into some other kind of troubles and they have to be sent away.

"There is actually nothing to show there weren't proportionately as many mentally ill people 50 years ago as there are today, but the attitude of the public has changed in that time. Today they will consult an earlier hospitalization."

Child Falls 20 Feet Escaping Injuries

Tumbling backward through the glass of a window of her home while at play yesterday afternoon, and falling a distance of over twenty feet in the yard below little Jacqueline Hesselt, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hesselt, 343 Front Street, escaped unscathed and with only a few bruises to mark her experience. Hurried to the office of Dr. G. S. Creak, the child was found to have no injuries except a few bruises and sprain. The child, playing on the sill of the window had lost her balance.

COUPLE FOUND SLUMPED IN CAR

Carbon Monoxide Fumes Known to be Cause of Death

Moncton, Apr. 2 (CP)—Bodies of a man, tentatively identified as J. L. Roy of Moncton and his stenographer, Miss Ethel Sanson, were found early today slumped on the rear seat of a motor car on the lonely Salisbury Road, about three and a half miles from the city outskirts.

The motor, radio and lights were still on when the car was discovered by a man who was closed and Coroner Dr. R. J. Caldwell said the couple had been dead probably several hours.

He ordered a post mortem for today, the findings to be submitted at an inquest tomorrow.

CORONATION IN MAY

London, Apr. 2 (CP)—Prime Minister Baldwin announced today in the House of Commons the King had approved of arrangements for the coronation ceremony to take place in May, 1937.

It was intimated by Mr. Baldwin representatives of the Dominions, India and the colonies will be invited to attend the ceremony.

GEORGIA HOMES SPLINTERED AS BY DYNAMITE CHARGE

Baseball Stadium is Converted Into Field Hospital

400 INJURED

School Buildings Destroyed But Pupils Not in Classrooms

Cordele, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—Spring wind and rain storms killed 40 persons in the middle Georgia City Monday, John Brown reported, and did more than $1,000,000 property damage with the main forces centred at the South Georgia City.

"At least 33 were killed in Cordele," Brown said, "eight white persons and 25 negroes."

A new baseball stadium was converted into a hospital. Efforts to locate those unable to find room at other Cordele hospitals.

R. L. Dekle, undertaker, said seven bodies had been taken from splintered homes.

Victims Mingled

"Ambulances, trucks and other motor vehicles are being pressed into service to bring in the dead, injured and dying."

From the appearance of the mangled victims, it is amazing the death toll is as low as it has been."

Besides the number estimated by City Manager Brown to have been killed here, others died, were reported as follows:

Lee County, Whitfield County, Terrell County, one each: Wilkes County, two; near Hampton, S.C., one and Ocala, Fla., one.

C. A. Pound of the Cordele Dispatch, after a tour of the flood residential section, said 25 or the best homes had been splintered by the wind, just as if a big charge of dynamite had been exploded in them.

GERMAN REPLY FAVORED IN PART BY BRITISH PRESS

Manchester Guardian Says Issue Which Alarmed Europe Is Avoided

London, Apr. 2 (CP)—The Manchester Guardian today extended qualified welcome to the German reply to the four-power Locarno treaty proposals, noting that it evades the issue which alarmed all Europe.

"These points, however," adds the Guardian, "have been discussed to the point of weariness. More serious, though less unexpected is the refusal of the suggested international force in German territory alone.

"The French and Belgians will say that Germany yields nothing and that Hitler has got away with it. Would it not be possible for France and Belgium to regard the offers as concrete concessions, then consider whether they should not propose a reciprocal action. It is certain that this international commission of control operating in a politically disputed area involves a principle of the utmost importance which we must not let slip. A precedent established now on the German frontier in the west might yet be applied in the east under much more critical conditions.

"We may assume what we will about the sincerity of the proposals and the attempt which they and their presentation obviously make to allay the unrest which has followed the utmost importance which we must not let slip. A precedent established now on the German frontier in the west might yet be applied in the east under much more critical conditions.

"We may assume what we will about the sincerity of the proposals and the attempt which they and their presentation obviously make to allay the unrest which has followed the occupation of the demilitarized zone. But the fact remains that Germany has undertaken a sudden increase. Any such increase is bound to be the appearance of heisted fortresses.

"Just a little ill-timed and not funny joke," said Hon. Peter Heenan, Attorney General of the province, of the affair.

Unfortunately residents of that district lately have been bothered with practical jokes. They may have had the idea that the waterworks department had something to do with it. This, however, is not so.

Whoever it was, had a peculiar sense of humor.

FOUND DEAD IN CABIN

Pembroke, April 2.—(CP)—Lawrence Larochelle, 35, trapper of Stonecliffe, Ont., was found yesterday in the cabin of his trapping line of the settlement, with two gunshot wounds in his body and a rifle lying across his chest.

He was found by a party from Stonecliffe, guided to the cabin by the trapper's dog, which limped into their villages with one of his master's mittens tied around his neck. Larochelle is single. He was native of Pembroke.

An inquest will be opened today.

ILL-TIMED AND NOT FUNNY JOKE

Housewives on East Hill Put to Inconvenience by Prankster

Officials of the local waterworks department are today inquiring into all responsibility and knowledge of the affair of the shutting off of the water supply of Bleecker Avenue, filling assorted pails and pans, bathtubs and other convenient receptacles with tap water in an anticipated shut-off by Tuesday's early morning of the whole district.

Numerous phone during the early part of the day came the adult voice of a resident, informing the householders that the deliberate turning off of the local waterworks system to obtain fresh water, while repairs were being made to a main in that district.

"It's the office of the waterworks calling," residents were informed.

"We just wish to remind you that the water will be shut off on your street, possibly for the whole day. If you don't wish to be inconvenienced you'd better get busy, it would be well to fill all the empty receptacles you have in."

Housewives acted on the telephone tip. Wash boilers and tubs and pails were filled into capacity. Taps flowed freely and water consumption in the neighborhood underwent a sudden increase. By noon, however, there was no appearance of heisted fortresses.

"Just a little ill-timed and not funny joke," said Hon. Peter Heenan, Attorney General of the department labelled it.

Unfortunately residents of that district lately have been bothered with practical jokes. They may have had the idea that the waterworks department had something to do with it. This, however, is not so.

Whoever it was, had a peculiar sense of humor.

N. J. Governor is Called Before Federal Jury; Wilentz May be Heard

Date of Execution Seems Little More Uncertain as Time Passes

FINAL SHOWDOWN

Story at Trenton, N. J. Says Jury May Seek to Hear 'Jafsie'

Trenton, N.J., Apr. 3 (AP)—There is a decided uncertainty in informed circles here that Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted kidnap slayer of the Lindbergh baby, will die in the electric chair tomorrow night, or within the next several weeks.

Hauptmann's electrocution has been fixed, somewhat tentatively, for tomorrow night. Under the law, as now understood, the prisoner seaden must carry out the sentence within this week unless some legal action intervenes.

But there is every indication the final determination or "showdown" as to what will be done will not be reached until Friday or Saturday.

Case In Politics.

The opinion is general if it is decided to grant another stay, a way will be found to accomplish this. And if it becomes necessary for Governor Thomas W. Trenchard, before whom Hauptmann was tried, to pass a new order for the execution, a date must be fixed from four to eight weeks after the signing.

One does not have to be in Trenton to realize how strongly embedded in politics the case has become and the innumerable and incredible ramifications that may develop therefrom.

A high state official said today an arrest was expected shortly of a member of the abandoned car which wrung a "confession" to the Lindbergh baby kidnap from Paul H. Wendel, disbarred Trenton attorney.

The arrest, possibly of one or more of the gang, the official said, was expected to follow quickly, possibly today, on information from the descriptions furnished New York and New Jersey authorities last night by Wendel. Wendel was questioned in his cell in Mercer county penitentiary jail last night by Assistant District Attorney William McGuinness of Hunterdon.

From authoritative sources it was learned New York and New Jersey authorities, with assistance from the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Brooklyn where the arrest was expected to occur.

Wilentz Calls Officials.

Trenton, N.J., Apr. 3 (AP) — The Mercer County Grand Jury, which saved Bruno Richard Hauptmann's life Tuesday night, summoned several officials to testify today.

Attorney Jury investigating charges Paul H. Wendel, rather than Hauptmann, committed the crime of which Hauptmann has been convicted, also arranged to hear Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, the Hauptmann prosecutor, after they were unconfirmed reports Dr. John F. Condon, Bronx, self-named intermediary, also would be called.

BOMB EXPLODES NEAR SHOP DOOR

Toronto Fruit Dealer's Family Shaken From Beds by Blast

Toronto, Apr. 3 (CP)—A bomb, placed in the doorway of a fruit market on Kingston Road, cripped the front of the building and shattering windows in twelve nearby dwellings and building, police said today.

The explosion, heard by the blast which occurred about 3 a.m., rushed to the street or peered through the broken windows. They said it blew smoke smelling like coal gas floating through the air. Sidewalks and roadways about the store were covered with fragments of glass.

A policeman on duty near the fruit shop and a man waiting for a street car heard the blast but saw no one in the vicinity.

FRANK CARSCALLEN

(Yukon Territory)

Kingston, Ont., April 1. (CP)—William Carscallen of Tamworth, 75 miles west of here, received news of the death of his brother, Frank Carscallen, at Mayo, Yukon Territory. The brother was a barrister and solicitor and was formerly of Tamworth. He practiced also at Dawson and Napanee prior to going to Yukon.

In November, 1897, in company with James Cunningham, now of Tamworth, he left for the coast and in the spring of 1898 they hit the Yukon trail on their way to the Klondike gold fields from rush for gold. In 1904 he left Dawson district and went into Mayo Creek country where he resided ever since.

He represented the Mayo district in the Yukon Council and was Speaker of the House. He was unmarried and about 69 years of age.

MUSIC

Made of Old England Presented By Guild In Program at John Street Church

"Ye Islington Fair", a gay revival of song, was presented at John Street United Church last night, by the Young Women's Guild and no happier evening's entertainment has been enjoyed in the city during the past season. It seemed as though someone had waved a magic wand over a Dorothea Story of Merrie England bringing to life such traditional and beloved characters as hunters, minstrels, maids, country folk, peddlers, hawkers, travelling entertainers, and gypsies who danced across the stage singing the delightful songs for which they are famous. In their colorful costumes they made a beautiful picture against the cleverly designed background. And to complete the novel evening a poetic fantasy, "A Moonlight Whimsy" was feelingly enacted.

The first act of the play showed breakfast at the country home of the Squire. Grouped about the table were the hunters in their scarlet coats, surrounded by maids and country folks. The scenes about the stage cleverly represented parallel walls and against these lovely old taran pieces, and old fashioned maids in interesting costumes. Hunting songs and country airs were sung by the gathering.

After an interlude, a scene at the county fair-ground with all manner of fascinating folk, and amusing songs to delight the audience, the Fair is finished with a May Day scene with the visitors and staff taking part at the Fair and the beauty of the lovely old songs splendidly rendered by the choir members was one to captivate all. John Street Guild, assisted by men of the church choir, with all manner of so many fine singers making possible such entertainment.

The last act, a tender little story of the squire's daughter, Clorinda, Patrick and Harlequin, with a shepherd and a country lad and pretty maid, closed the concert. The five characters caught perfectly the charm of the days gone by and the beauty of the lovely old songs splendidly rendered by the choir members was one to captivate all. John Street Guild, assisted by men of the choir, with all manner of so many fine singers making possible such entertainment.

PRESIDENT PAID HONOR BY LODGE

Gala Night at Quintena Rebekah Gathering Wednesday Night

Last night was a notable occasion in the annals of the Order of Rebekah in the City of Belleville. Members came not only from the city, but from the whole surrounding district to do honor to the President of the Provincial Assembly of Ontario, Mrs. Meda Lewis, of Toronto, who was visiting Quinteana Lodge No. 49, I.O.O.F. Hall.

In recognition of this distinguished visitor, about two hundred members of the Order assembled in the spacious lodgeroom of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. Large delegations came from Trenton, Brighton, Frankford, Madoc, Tweed and Thomasburg and a number of others from more distant points. It was a night of renewal of friendship as well as fraternal greeting.

Mrs. Mary Newman, Noble Grand of the Quinteana Lodge, presided in the lodge room. The Rebekah degree was conferred on two candidates by the Quinteana degree team. There were many warm expressions of commendation of the degree work by those who were privileged to witness it. Mrs. Lewis, President of the Assembly, was also complimentary in her address of criticism.

Mrs. Agnes Carter, Past N.G., made a presentation to Mrs. Lewis, the Rebekah President, while was the Rebekah Emblem. The presentation of flowers was also made to Mrs. Lewis, representing the District President, and Mrs. R. R. Millikin, President of Ottawa District. The presentations were made by Mrs. Rigar Rutherford.

A banquet which followed, Bro. R. H. Ketcheson, Past Grand Patriarch of the Patriarchs Militant of Ontario, presided as toastmaster. He warmly complimented the Quinteana degree team upon the precision and excellence of their work.

The toast to the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, was proposed by Mrs. Ella Wilson, P.N.G. Mrs. Lewis, the Provincial President, responded in an address remarkable for its eloquence and inspirational power.

The toast to the Visitors, proposed by Mrs. Emily Neale, brought forth replies from Mrs. Meda Lewis, Thomasburg; Mrs. W. M. Pelton, N.G., Madoc; Mrs. Ida McCann, N.G., Tweed. Miss C. Spry, N.G., Stirling, Mrs. Smith, N.G., Frankford; Mrs. Mabel Smith, N.G., Trenton, and by Mrs. Millikin and Mrs. Bailey, the two District Presidents.

West Ontario Quinteana Lodge will celebrate its twenty-third anniversary. Several charter members were present at the banquet.

The evening's proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Trenton and District

Trenton, April 1—(Special)—During operations were continued today to find the break in the spring water main under the Trenton river. The diver worked beneath the surface for three hours. He inspected thirty feet of the pipe line and has found no break yet. He is working in eighteen feet of water and is proceeding in a westerly direction towards the south shore. The river at this point is about a quarter of a mile wide and should the current resume its swiftness it will take several weeks to complete operations. The diver was only able to stay down a short time at a time as the added weight, which he has on to hold him on the river bed makes him tire rapidly.

New York, April 2 (CP)—Alonzo B. Cox, wealthy elevator operator, declared last night that he had changed his mind on his anti-feminism views which stirred a wide flurry several years ago. He held then that woman's place was in the house and that women's colleges should be burned down.

His change of heart was evidenced at a dinner in his home at which he was host to 13 women and featured in the city's business and politics.

THE MAPLE RUSH

Maple sap, one of the gifts of nature to this part of the world, provides Canada with a fertile field for making money. Vast areas of maples are tapped every spring for that sugary flow which means so much to the Canadian table and the foreign table too the year round as it is used as syrup or sugar.

Next to the coming of the snow and ice, the departure of the snow and ice in the Canadian thinks mostly of the flow of sap as the certain indication of springtime come again. City and town folk conjure up pictures of the activity in the Canadian woods with buckets slung to trees and sheds where the large pans submit to fire underneath in the process of boiling. In those seasons when there remains snow in the section, there are oftentimes gatherings in these sugar bushes, rural festivals which mark in very truth the welcome to spring and the rejoicing that the spell of winter has passed.

In town and city there is always a miniature attempt of young children to go into the sap industry as they tap trees in little woods or on streets. Most boys remember their initiation into the mystery as groups visit maple trees and tap them and collect the juice, most of which is drunk without waiting for any refinement and reduction by fire.

On the farms there are large sugar bushes this is a great industry which requires the attention of a good number of the hands. From the pans in the sheds the scores upon scores of gallons of the heavy rich amber liquid are poured into large milk cans to be taken to market or to be taken into the house and put away for the satisfaction of the family during the coming twelve months. In Belleville district a large amount of syrup and sugar does not come to market but is consumed on the farms. On some farms the entire product which is small stays at home.

This spring there has been a feeling that through the contrariwise behavior of wind and weather the sap flow may not reach the proportions of previous years.

Lindsay Post refers to the maple syrup and sugar industry in these words: "Little wonder that the Maple Leaf has been chosen and is looked upon with pride as the emblem of this fair Dominion. A stately tree that in its yields enjoyment and profit year after year and in death produces the finest timber is worthy of a place in the hearts of all its native sons."

IN AND OUT OF DEBT

Thomas Bradshaw, the noted economist, in speaking on the program of the University of Toronto Extension Course in Public Administration on two recent occasions on the question of the ways in and out of municipal debt, and the problem in management of debt, touched on a multitude of points which should be brought home to every representative of any money-spending body. He called for a halt in expenditure saying that future generations will have difficulty enough with their own tax burdens, without being saddled with a portion of our own extravagances. He pointed to the urgency of the need for a breathing spell during which no new debts will be incurred but existing debt liquidated. He remarked:

"Especially is this the case when we know that real estate assessment, which provides ninety to ninety-five per cent of the tax revenue, is declining rather than increasing and there is practically no new assessment in sight."

Mr. Bradshaw noted again "in business and in private life, expenses are reduced to meet the changed conditions and reduced revenue in order to provide for the obligations undertaken. Unfortunately, in municipal life, there seems to be almost a total absence of effort and endeavor to retrench.

"While no change can be made in existing debt, there can be a control in the contracting of new debt, and it seems to me that if the added burden were clearly exposed to the ratepayers, those in author would have little excuse for the addition of debt not entirely justified."

The hard point to face is that as he figures approximately 33 per cent of the general tax levy is made for debt charges for capital debt now owing. Another fact is thirty-six per cent of the debt incurred produces no revenue and must be met out of taxes. Municipal councils have the most interesting duties of all to perform. They have to decide what is to be accomplished and what is to be left undone, they must try and maintain the tax rate at no higher than its present level and even try to lower it lest they precipitate more properties upon the hands of the municipalities through arrears of taxes. Then emergencies arise occasionally and councils are expected to meet this new situation. They must make it possible for as many persons as possible to be able to pay their taxes, for every lost taxpayer means an added burden on those who remain to bear the debt load.

CONQUERORS

By Thomas Curtis Clark,
In The New Outlook

Of kings and warriors mighty Homer dreamed
Of arms and men rare Virgil sang of old.
Through centuries have warlike lances gleamed;
The earth has crowned its captains stern and bold.
While Alexander, mad with power and fame,
Dreamed vaster dreams—his banners were unfurled
O'er Asian realms—but Death, remorseless, came.
Napoleon, the pet of gods, grew strong
And startled nations with his stubborn might;
But fate forsook him, mountain-piles of wrong
Condemned him, and he sought the night.
One tragic year a Peasant died in shame—
To-day a world of men revere His name.

"BELLEVILLE FOLKS WHO SUMMERED IN THE SOUTH are flitting homeward and home sure looks good to them after more or less artificial life of the great winter resorts. It's good to be just plain folk again and fit into the general routine without having to "dress up" all the time physically and mentally. Yes, it's a grand and glorious feeling to be meeting the folks you have known for years—you know everything about them and still like them, and they feel the same way about you—which is the test of true friendship. All of which proves again the truth of that famous old song "There's No Place Like Home."

"BEVARE OF VIDDERS", that warning of a harrassed soul uttered one hundred years ago by one of the characters created by Charles Dickens in his immortal "Pickwick Papers", springs to mind as Dickens' lovers all over the world are celebrating March 31 as the date when Charles Dickens created Samuel Pickwick and other characters who seem endowed with immortality. We are told by Dickensonian authorities that "Pickwick Papers" were evolved to accompany a series of pictures which a London publishing firm had in mind as illustrating various phases of English life of the times. Charles Dickens, a young author, was selected to provide the text to accompany the pictures and "Pickwick Papers" were astonishingly evolved, with all the weird and interesting characters who have entertained Dickens' readers ever since as well as invading stage and screen, with glimpses of city and country life in England, a view of the austere courts, and the life within a debtors' prison of the day. Celebrations in England of the centenary of "Pickwick Papers" find various famous men taking the various characters and travelling to and fro, some by motor and stage coaches. Imagine portly G. K. Chesterton, the author, portraying "The Fat Boy" in "Pickwick Papers". Name that Charles Dickens has reached the silver screen with "David Copperfield" and others, it is safe to say that another Dickens anniversary celebration will be held one hundred years hence.

ONE MUST KNOW LIFE TO WRITE ABOUT IT ACCURATELY, it has been said, and Charles Dickens knew life, its sorrows and its joys. His father was unsuccessful in business, it is said, and after a series of misfortunes landed in the famous debtor's prison, which Dickens has so well portrayed in "Little Dorrit." After trying to keep the home together and frequent pawning of effects the family finally gave up the struggle and joined the father in debtor's prison. No wonder young Dickens could write about that abomination of abominations with a living and vitrolic pen, the tiny lever which started the movement which ended the debtor's prison in England for ever. It is said that Dickens' home life was never happy, that he who could tip his pen with laughter was always living in the shadow of tears — he that as it may Charles Dickens left behind him a wholesome humor and his stories never grow old, while on the England of his own day he left an indelible impression for good, exposing as he did various faults in the public life which had only to be seen in their true hideousness to be correct. Charles Dickens is dead but his spirit lives in the minds and hearts of thousands of his admirers.

Before and After

The Smiths were quarrelling.

"You women," said Smith contemptuously, "are only happy before a glass."

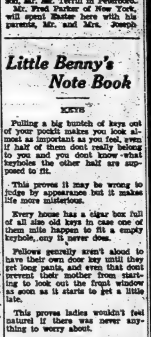
KEYS

Pulling a big bunch of keys out of your pocket makes you look almost as important as you feel, even if most of them don't mean nothing to you and you dont know what keyholes the other half are supposed to fit.

This proves it may be wrong to judge by appearance but it makes life more mistereus.

Every house has a cigar box full of all size old keys in case one of them ever happens to fit a empty keyhole, only it never does.



Fellows generly aren't aloud to have their own door key until they get long pants, and even that dont prevent their Dads from getting up to look out the front window as soon as it starts to get a little late.

This proves ladies wouldn't feel natured if there was never anything to worry about.

If everybody in the world was honest and respectable there wouldn't be any more use for keys to open locks with or for keyholes to look through.

It is less inconvenient to be locked out than what it is to be locked in, on account of there being more places to go.

In the old fashion days of castles and dungeons keys used to be grate big things that couldn't go through a hole in your pockits for the simple reason that they wouldn't even go in your pockit but nowadays on account of science and invention they are little smooth things that are often lost but seldom swallowed.

Stirling and District

The members of St. John's Anglican Men's Club were the guests at the home of their past president, Mr. Earl Morrow on Friday evening, March 27th on the Frankford road. The main feature after entertainment was a Mock Parliament, when two very interesting bills were debated by the members of both parties with one getting through by a close margin and the other getting passed. The first was a resolution that the franchise should not be extended to the women of the nation. Mr. H. F. Ellis was the leader of the Government in this debate and Rev. A. S. McKonzel acted as leader of the opposition. Many fine points were set forth by both parties but the bill was defeated. Dr. W. A. Carleton acted as sergeant-at-arms during the first debate and Mr. Harry Conley, in that capacity for the second discussion. Which dealt with the subject:—"Resolved the Farmers should not be elected to parliament". With Dr. Carleton speaking for the government and Mr. Earl Morrow the leader of the opposition. Public debating is becoming a regular part of the programme of the last group of organizations and debating teams of highest calibre are being developed, many questions of great interest to the general public are being dealt with in a most complete fashion. Mr. Thos. W. Holmes acted as Speaker of the Home throughout the evening. Il was a most interesting program and the program committee are to be congratulated for the fine manner in which it was carried through. At the conclusion of the program a dainty lunch was served and the meeting brought to a close with a period of real social enjoyment.

Unique Program

The program for the St. Andrew's Guild was directed entirely by the men of the organization on Monday evening and took the form of a radio broadcast. Mr. Colin Fox and Mr. Jack Ormiston, local radio experts, very generously gave their assistance in setting up an amplified in the basement, with microphones in the choir vestry from which point the program was transmitted. Nearly one hundred people were present to enjoy the program which was put over in a splendid fashion and various well known artists were impersonated by those taking part. Arthur Duncan was the official announcer for the evening and each of the numbers given was exceptionally well done. Numbers given on the program were as follows; Mr. Fred Houblin, male duet selection; Duncan Montgomery, harmonica solo; a quartette Reg. Clark, Elmer Williams, Ernie Cahill and Jack potter gave a fine example of perfect harmony; violin solo by Reg. Mathews, who was followed by a very clever impersonation of Foster Hewitt in a hockey broadcast given by William Barnaby. The "Harmony Four", gave a fine rendition of the popular Western song "Old Faithful"; Robt. Fairbairn gave a selection on the harmonica and harp which was followed by a guitar number by Jack Cahill. Bill Jones was the next artist to appear and he offered a selection on the ukulele and mouth organ. The bird songs given by Ross Scott were exceptionally well done and appreciated greatly by the audience along with his harmonica playing. A tap dance by Ernie Cahn called for an encore which he gratefully gave. Walter Winzbell was enacted by Dave Lamb who created a great deal of merriment with a long list of humorous local news items. Several hockey items were given in a realistic fashion by Colin Fox. The entire program was carried through after only one rehearsal and displayed a great deal of local talent. Each number was interspersed with an electrical transcription. It is the first time a program of this type has ever been attempted in Stirling and the manner in which it was carried through reflects much credit on the artists who took part and the management of Mr. Fox and Mr. Ormiston. Mr. Fox was in charge of the microphones and the transcriptions while Mr. Ormiston controlled the receiver which is one of his own construction. At the conclusion of the program the ladies served lunch and the meeting was closed with the Mispah Benediction.

The business part of the meeting which preceded the program was presided over by Mr. Duncan Montgomery and included the secretary's report as read by Miss Gena Spry.

STIRLING COUPLE WED 50 YEARS

Mr. And Mrs. George Rosebrugh Receive Congratulations

Stirling, April 2 (Special)—Many friends and relatives called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rosebrugh of Stirling on Monday after noon and evening, to offer their congratulations to the popular Stirling couple who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday. It was a very charming couple, who still enjoy excellent health were united in marriage on the twenty-ninth day of March fifty years ago at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Amos Cummings of Hawdon, with Rev. R. M. Fogg of Mount Pleasant Methodist Church performing the ceremony. After a wedding trip to Toronto they began their domestic adventure on the farm of the groom just east of the village of Stirling. About ten years ago they gave up the farm and built a modern home in Stirling, where they have since resided in retirement.

Studying the economic conditions of today both husband and wife agreed that in days gone by, there were more difficulties for the farmer than now, "the trouble with the farmers today stated Mr. Rosebrugh, they have lost the sense of thrift." "Wives have been less than half of what they are today and farmers made money," he added. Of course there were no cars in those days. But the farmer, who manages his business carefully today is a good independent citizen we have. Mrs. Rosebrugh recalled the days of the building of the railroad between Trenton and Maynooth, for then she was in charge of the section which interested by his Christian name Amasa and has been called Amasa Junction ever since. In those days everyone along the run knew the train engineers and a train could be hailed anywhere it happened to be waiting to catch it.

Bulletin In Science

Mr. Rosebrugh believes in all modern advancements of science particularly in medical science. Four years ago although seventy-five years of age he underwent a serious operation from which he has completely recovered and now at seventy-nine is quite active and anxious for the warm weather so he can work in his garden of which he is fondly proud.

Throughout the afternoon messages of congratulation poured into the home of the honoured couple, who were at home to many friends and relatives, who attended a luncheon served by the ladies during the many lovely gifts received, was a beautiful silver basket filled with flowers and daffodils a gift from nieces and nephews. The presentation was made by Mrs. J. C. Bell of Belleville and an appropriate address by Mrs. Thos. Cherry Emery of Stirling.

The guests were received by Mrs. Frank Ross and conducted from the drawing room to the dining room by Mrs. Arthur Gardiner where the following ladies assisted in serving a very dainty luncheon: Mrs. Donald Donohoe, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. A. Couch, Mrs. Harold Foster and Margaret Rosebrugh Miss C. Ross, Mrs. H. Ross, Mrs. Sid Stirling and Mrs. Fred Wrinett of Rosebrugh, Sask., guests tea.

In the evening the home was the scene of a very delightful gathering of the many friends of the district honoured couple, when Mr. and Mrs. Rosebrugh were tendered a happy event. Guests were present from many distant places, among the latter Mr. and Mrs. Rosebrugh of Stirling, who was the groomsman for his father fifty years ago. Mrs. W. Garrison of Belleville, a niece of the bride was present and able to attend the function. The guests were arranged at tables in the dining room the latter with the following ladies and gentlemen at each table: Mr. and Mrs. Bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here is my problem. . . . We are to deep mourning for our only daughter who passed away during November. No one could mourn any more for a loved one than I do. But some of my in-laws are constantly making remarks about the way I dress. They say I should wear all white house dresses. At the present time my husband is not making very much, and even with the most careful management, I am not able to purchase many new clothes. My house dresses are printed with white backgrounds, with either dots or blue small patterns . . . they are light shades. I have only one black dress, and always wear it when I go out. I keep it fresh by cleaning it and keeping it pressed. I have a dark navy blue dress, which I wear to every funeral because I made the remark that I expect to wear the blue dress at my funeral.

I told my in-laws that it wasn't the clothes that were in mourning . . . but myself. Will you please tell me if I am doing the right thing, or am doing my best.

I am sure no one could mourn one's little daughter more than I am my self. Will you please tell me if I am doing the right thing, or am doing my best.

I am sure no one could mourn one's little daughter more than I am my self. Will you please tell me if I am doing the right thing, or am doing my best.

F.

Your sweet letter touched me so deeply that I find it hard to tell you how deeply. And I'm ashamed to confess that sometimes thoughts I had about these utterly cruel in-laws of yours.

You are thoroughly right in everything you think and do about this question of mourning clothes. And they are not only cruel but ridiculous as well in their point of view. For such a young child, it wouldn't be necessary for you to wear mourning at all. And how right you are, how deeply right, when you say that your heart is ready to mourning, not your clothes. Were the house dresses that you have. While dress for the house are not suitable for street wear, they afford.

It doesn't seem humanly possible, HUMANLY possible, for you to be nasty to your in-laws, are about the clothes you submitted by readers.)

Wear

So superficial, so cold-hearted, so non-understanding . . . it's incredible. How I wish . . . and I'm sure you must, for it is . . . that they would spend their energy in trying to comprehend the terrible depths of your sorrow, the unbearable agony of your suffering in having to part with this young daughter, the "mourning" of your yearning heart and spirit. And added to this, the effort to make both ends meet on your husband's small salary.

If I were you, I'd see these cares as little as possible, but be as gracious as you can when they speak. Never, if you can possibly avoid it, mention the subject of your clothes. If they mention it again, say firmly and as graciously as you can, "If you don't mind I'd rather not talk about my clothes. I'm doing the best I can, and I expect you to respect that fact. All my grief is in my heart . . . my clothes don't count to me in the slightest."

Continue to wear your printed house dresses, wear your black dress when you go out; and plan to wear very blue and white with with. And I pray that God give you peace and comfort, my dear friend.

Lace Tablecloth

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please inform me if it is proper to use a lace tablecloth on a dinner-table? I, in fact, what kind of napkins should one use with it?

S.

1. Indeed it is very lovely and thoroughly proper to use a lace dinner-cloth. We should be very grateful and proud to have one to use! If it is real lace, using such a royal background for our table setting gives a formal air to our dining . . . and there are excellent copies nowadays.

2. Often matching napkins are made with the lace cloth as a set. Usually often the napkins are of sheer linen, with lace edging and perhaps with a medallion insert. If there are no napkins with the dinner-cloth, the best thing to do is to use plain linen napkins, damask or sheer linen ones.

Nagging Wife Drives Husband For Begrudges

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I shave and fix up my graying hair, and go out looking for a job, but I return as I went, with nothing better offered. I make $64 a month. It is were not for that, goodness only knows what would happen to us.

"Apparently my wife blames me for the forwarding. She seems to think I am satisfied to be without a car, a nice home, good clothes and spending money. But being well over 50, I am turned down, and up with blames me for not getting a good salary.

"I close my eyes at night hearing her nagging, nagging. I try to put on a good front and be jolly about the house, but any attempt at merriment is only an extra cause or complaint. A caress is met with something bitter. This practically tells the story of our home life.

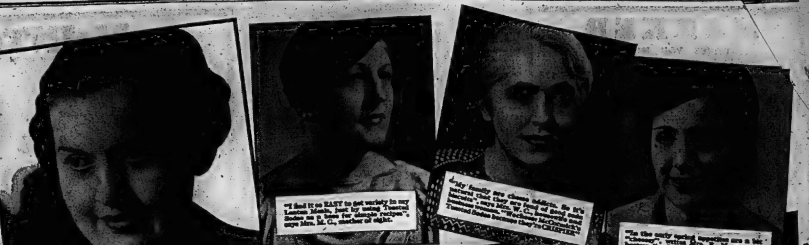
"When I made a good salary it was different. Did you know how things have been the last few years.

"Conditions at home have about broken me. I hardly know what to do. I feel like leaving and never coming back. Only for my boy do I hesitate to do this.

More desperate solutions come to mind but I fear that would be unfair to my son. It might be held against him that his father was cowardly and made away with himself.

"I was reared in a good home, where there was love and peace. Quarrelling and nagging rocked me to something gravel, something beneft of courage.

"But she will not see that this constant belittling of my efforts is the worst way of getting us out of the spot we're in.



"Perhaps my trouble is that I think too much of my wife, and that she is fully aware of this and takes advantage of it. But I am so tired of the nagging, begging! I could write you a life history of what I have been through since the hard times set in, but you have had enough to know how things are with Distressed.

The story of family life, as told by this man, makes one think of a survivor on an ice-floe, drifting in a warm current. Every hour he sees his foot-hold melting. Nothing but super-human effort can save him.

Can you visualize the picture of a man, no longer young, touching up his grey hair, trying to get a better job—returning without one to the incessant nagging? It's a horrible picture to have in mind—brooding on the part of his wife!

If the woman nags because she has lost control of her nerves, why doesn't she go to a clinic and be treated? If she nags because she's a temperamental nagger, why doesn't she reform?

15TH ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

Members of Local L.O.B.A. Mark Foundation of Lodge

Members of the local Orange Lodge turned out in record numbers in this city on Monday evening at the Orange Hall to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association No. 300.

As chairman of the evening Mr. Everett Bell, Past Master of the Black Lodge presided, introducing the various speakers who gave short but interesting addresses on events and matters connected with the local lodge.

Mrs. (Rev.) Marshall proposed the toast to the King, with Mrs. Fred Smith, Past Worthy Mistress, seconding the toast. Mr. Geo. A. Reid, Past Master of Belleville L.O.L. followed with a brief talk on the present situation of the order, Grand Deputy Mistress, Mrs. Caton of Picton also addressed the gathering briefly and Miss Audrey Burgess delighted the audience with a vocal solo, assisted by Miss Phyllis May who played the piano accompaniment.

The toast to the Orange Lodge was proposed by Past Worthy Mistress Mrs. L. Soules, seconded by Worthy Mistress Mrs. J. Bell, and an address on the school question was delivered by Mr. H. R. Peterson, Past Grand Master of the L.O.L. The speaker called upon members to recognize the need of loyalty to Protestantism in blocking attempts to obtain public money for private schools.

A pleasing guitar duet by Miss Harriet and Miss Daisy Turner preceded an interlude, after which brief speeches were given by Rev. A. E. Cees, Grand Chaplain of Ontario East and Mr. Anthony Marshall. Miss Dorothy Newsom concluded the program with a vocal solo.

Mrs. Ethel Turner, Past Worthy Mistress expressed the appreciation of the Association to all who had taken part in the program, and Mrs. Emma Savage, Past Worthy Mistress, seconded the motion with suitable remarks.

Refreshments were served by the committee of the ladies under Mrs. Fred Smith.

Beauty

Complexion Care.

Lucky is the woman who inherited a complexion of good coloring and fine texture. Very lucky is the one who has it and knows how to take care of it. Lucky are all of us because we have emerged from the dark ages—not so long ago—when beautifying was looked upon as a waste of time if not a vain and sinful pursuit of the flesh.

That the complexion shows the result or sensible attentions is plain to any observing eye. These attentions have to do with the general health, keeping the surface healthfully clean, anointed nightly with a soothing agent.

Most important is circulation. The blood streams must be on the go. And that's not all of it. The blood must have nutritive powers. Every small cell must be fed. The blood must be capable of making repairs, building new cells when the old ones are impaired.

To have blood which is sustaining and strengthening it is necessary to eat properly, sticking to a varied diet that includes elements of food that are necessary for well-being. Pimply eaters, those with complexions, nearly always. Heavy eaters have coarse skins from eating too much color. Nibblers are sallow, awry or pale. It is not only for health's sake that one should eat the proper food ,but for the sake of good looks as well.

Unless the body is exercised, unless the lungs are ventilated to their deepest cells, circulation is likely to be sluggish. The girl with fine color is one who loves outdoor life. She who dances all night, sleeps most of the day, never gets out and about it, is bound to have a complexion that is either unsightly with blemishes or of poor texture.

Local treatment of the facial area brings rich rewards.

Complexions have their bad days, even the best of them, as do we all day by thy; give the face a soapy washing, rinse away the suds, dip a thick large wash cloth in warm water as is comfortable to bear, lay it over the skin often, holding it tight with the hands. The hot application will awaken any sluggish cell. Dry, friction lightly with cold cream. While the cream remains use the cold water the same way. The change from hot to cold is stimulating, refreshing.

When tissues lack tone the skin is not at its best. Hence the need of exercising the fibres by light, skilful pinching movements. Treatment of this kind promotes the development of red blood corpuscles. The touch must be light and firm, the pinching smoothing motion done with the palm of the hand are sure to strengthen muscles.

Skin of coarse texture is produced by a too heavy diet that excites the sebaceous and sweat glands. It is known as the best natural complexion conditioners both produce a florid condition, pores that are thus unsightly. So back we go to the matter of healthful, hygienic living the very foundation of beauty and charming appearance.

Charm Essential In the Status Of Beauty

Jacqueline Hutchinson

Her very smile reveals the vitality that is hers

(By Helen Follett)

There's more to this beautiful-ing business than appears on the surface, Rosemarie. One must have charm. What is it? A spark that lights the faces of innocent, maybe, or something that touches the emotions. Is that it? We give up. Yet we all recognize it when we see it.

Attention of the sisters is focused by complexion, lovely outlines, the svelte silhouette, shining-bright finger nails. Yet a woman can possess all these external evidences of beauty and not make the grade. She just doesn't see the works that are inside her head. She must be amiable, have charming manners, be sympathetic and human. She must be a pleasing voice.

Vitality is an important element of charm. The poor eater, the restless sleeper, the girl who is all dragged out isn't up to standard health, never appears at her best. Mamma Nature has laid down certain laws, break them and she takes the shine out of your eyes, the pink carnation bloom from your cheeks, the pepper from your heels.

Beautifying is indeed a business. No woman can make a success of the job if she doesn't keep in top-notch condition, enjoy physical and mental health, mind her manners.

Bust development is possible, but it isn't easy. It takes time—lots of it!

Here is the routine; upon arising in the morning swing the arms in high wide circles, an exercise that builds upon the muscles of the chest; take fifty deep breaths; turn the cold spray on the breasts, bricking briskly but lightly with a coarse mitten.

Every night massage with lanoline or cocoa butter. It doesn't matter which you use. Twice a week have an alcohol rub. But be gentle.

A singing canary is sunshine itself. He brings in full, brimming measure, love, cheerfulness and companionship.

And Dick is so easy to take care of.

BROCK'S BIRD SEED provides the clean, fresh food that keeps Dick healthy, happy and in joyful song. The Treat (with Yeast) in the package is a little tit-bit that rounds out his diet.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Love Blindness May End in Bliss —Or in Disaster

We can't start too long at the glowing face or the sun without being temporarily blind—and one of the primary effects of intense love is that it also dazzles the happy victim to a degree approaching blindness.

Sometimes it is merely an additional delight of love that this blindness exists, as it does greatly the charm of the beloved one. But sometimes the face is brought with sudden shock.

Here, for instance, is the case of Maysie X., who is so madly in love that she seems quite incapable of seeing either the man she loves or her own situation with regard to him.

"I should be the most blissful girl in the world," writes this 19-year-old, "if it weren't for one thing. The man whom I adore, who adores me, and who would know how to make me supremely happy, won't live to marry me. Isn't that a tragic fate?

"We have known each other for three months, and from the very first moment we saw we were made for each other. There was hardly any need to say a word. We simply flowed toward each other. And since then what heavenly hours we have stolen, in order to be alone together!

"But, of course, it had to happen that this wonderful hero of mine, before he ever saw me, had to marry. Now that he loves me so much, he would of course leave his wife and marry me, but there are two children. And he is so conscientious that he hesitates.

"Tell me what you think of all this. You can easily grasp what my heart yearns for. I don't care what my own family do to suffer from my action, but the man I love has first claim on me; don't you think so?

"Indeed, hasn't love, always, the first and most claim?

Only a profoundly love-minded girl could speak of a man's ordinary duties as "things." Well, we all know, may be a perfectly happy one) as a mere detail a setting of circle in the attainment of her own feminine desires.

It may be that this poor child loves with a really great love. But, alas, how unwisely she has bestowed it!

For if it were not for her love-blindness, she could easily see that, since the man she loves is married and expects to stay so, her only conceivable course is to break off with him, short and sharp.

I have, of course, written immediately, hoping that my sympathetic warning may reach Maysie before it is too late.

The casino of love? "In this case they have, of course, no weight what ever, since this love-affair has no reasonable foundation, no right to exist at all.

I cannot blame any girl whom a man, older and stronger, has emotionally swept off her feet and brought to the point of blindness. But I must very greatly blame the married man who has allowed a young girl's ardor to grow to the point where she is considering her life for his sake.

If Maysie can regain her vision and realize the grossly selfish element of the man who has made love to her, I am sure she can recover from her heart wounds and conquer herself, in time, with an honest love.

DUTTON'S MOTTO GIVING AMERKS THE WILL TO WIN

"Keep Punching" is Motto Hung on Dressing Room Wall

WILL THANK DOCTOR

Leafs Not in Good Shape For Battle at The Gardens

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, April 2.—(CP)—Nineteen years ago this month a medical officer bent over a young Canadian private at a dressing station near Maricourt, France, examined his serious wounds and whispered encouragement before he passed on to the next stretcher case. He said: "Keep punching, kid, and you'll make it."

The young soldier never forgot the advice. He used it as a sort of motto through long months in hospital and later when he started getting professional boxers. But he wondered if it no one until he got old... became a hockey manager and walked one needn't be ashamed of having a motto.

Then he used it to inspire rickety veterans and rather callow youths at the Dutton camp to play hockey as no one thought they could. He wrote it in large letters on the York Americans' dressing room wall—"Keep Punching."

So they kept punching, won a game here and there and finally found themselves in Thursday night's game at Maple Leafs, that will decide which of them is to go into the Stanley Cup finals against Detroit Red Wings.

Martin "Stet" Dutton—he was the young soldier, of course—still doesn't know that medical officer's name but if his Americans win tonight he will pause for a moment in the evening room celebration to thank him.

Will To Win

And Dutton, whose will to win has been the largest factor in bringing the Americans this far, had no doubt at all today that his New Yorkers would defeat Leafs. They did it in New York Tuesday and if goaler Roy Worters turns in another good night as he did then, Leafs haven't a chance, he says.

Equally confident were the Leafs, despite their hockey loss and injuries that probably will keep two of their players out of the game. Workers can't be that good in two successive games, they reasoned.

To hear Dick Irvin, Leaf coach, tell it, Leafs are practically in the "we'll breeze in here" mood. Manager Conny Smythe had told Irvin "we'll beat 'em" but when Smythe told him to go home and get some sleep, Irvin knew it was on the job. He isn't sleeping these nights.

Leafs' principal worry is the condition of Joe Primeau, suffering from a charley-horse, and Art Jackson, suffering an ankle injury.

Reports from the American camp today added no new injuries to the list aches and pains. Goaler Workers have picked up in their playoff stride and is confident of stopping Toronto. Eddie Wiseman was marked off the sharp strength after the Tuesday battle with torn knee ligaments.

LAWSON LITTLE JOINS PRO. RANKS

Holds World Record as Amateur Winning 31 Consecutive Matches

(By Alan Gould)

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Augusta, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—While a delegate washed out the first round of the Augusta National tournament, William Lawson Little, Jr., king of the world's amateurs for the past two years, turned pro today as the second notable recruit to the ranks of professional golf.

Making the big jump that took two famous championship predecessors, Robert T. Jones, Jr., and George Von Elm, from the ranks of the Simon-pures six years ago Little ended at the age of only 22 an amateur career that included two consecutive 1934 and 1935.

With a world record streak of 31 consecutive victories to his credit, the San Francisco "slugger" gave up the amateur championship, the British crowns twice in succession. His decision not to defend the Englishmen of both championships, at the peak of his career but not unknown, his chance to capture this year's American Walker Cup team.

He says he was "happy in making the decision that offers the chance to get down to work".

WINDSOR SCORES WIN OVER BISONS

Bernie Brophy Shows Dazzling Speed in Overtime Play

Windsor, Ont., April 2—(CP)—Fleet Bernie Brophy, a hockey cyclone from Collingwood, Ont., Valley never convinced the big league bosses he had sufficient talent, was the host of Windsor today. His broke up an overtime playoff game here last night with a great rush that gave Windsor Bulldogs a 2-1 win over Buffalo Bisons.

Second game of the best-of-three International League semi-finals will be played tonight at Niagara Falls, Ont., temporary home of the Bisons. A third game, should Bisons win tonight, will be played there Saturday night.

One of hockey's speediest skaters, but not a high scorer, Brophy outdone with a dazzling show of speed in the overtime session. He made one rush that failed, but circled Buffalo net and came back in time to break up a Bison attack, then he set out to end the sudden-death proceedings.

He raced through the Buffalo ranks and passed from a corner to Frank Steele. Before the Bison defense could remodel, Steele passed across to Don Smillie, who scored with a backhand shot from straight in front of the net.

After the Bisons scored in the second period, Dick Carroll's Bulldogs put on relentless pressure and for much the better part of the play forced the pass throughout the third period after tying the score in the second, and had a slight edge in the overtime.

FALCONS BLANK MAGEDOMAS 5-0

Third And Deciding Game to be Played on Saturday Afternoon

Toronto, April 2—(CP)—Sudbury Falcons and Brockville Magedomas battled through scoreless Saturday afternoon in their battle for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship and its accompanying place in the Allan Cup finals against Kimberly, British Columbia senior champions.

Falcons, bearing the standard of the Ontario Hockey Association, came through brilliantly last night when they defeated the Ottawa team twice in their battle for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship and its accompanying place in the Allan Cup finals against Kimberly, British Columbia senior champions.

Falcons, bearing the standard of the Ontario Hockey Association, came through brilliantly last night when they defeated the Ottawa team twice in their battle for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship and its accompanying place in the Allan Cup finals against Kimberly, British Columbia senior champions.

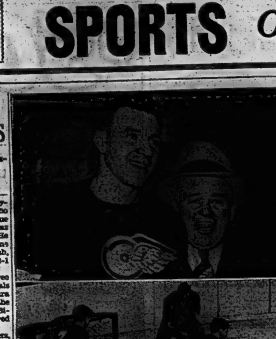
"We've got to do something to keep our boys up to the mark," explained Jack Adams last night, when the Red Wings came back from watching Windsor Bulldogs defeat Buffalo in the first game of the minor league semi-finals. "It looks as though nobody will be ready for us until Sunday."

Adams is just about certain that Red Wings will play the first game of the Stanley Cup finals here Sunday night and the second Tuesday night should Toronto provide the opposition. In that event, the balance of the best-of-five series would be played in Toronto.

But should American beat the Leafs here, Red Wings would play at New York Sunday night and play the remaining games here. Sunday is the final hockey date at Madison Square Garden. A circus moves in next week and Americans have only the one chance to play Stanley Cup hockey in front of New York fans.

Adams Wishes For Leafs

In the event Red Wings have to travel to New York for a Sunday game, the prospect local gate would be called off. It probably will come off in a quiet way tomorrow night if the N.H.L. champions decide to say immediate travelling.



"I only wish we had the Leafs in front of us today at practice," grinned Adams. "The boys were lying down here. They never looked better. But our job is to keep them primed like that until the finals. Remember they haven't played since Sunday night's game against Montreal Maroons."

Olympics are in much the same position, being eliminated from the Stars in three straight games in the I.H.L. series between the group winners. Now they await the outcome of the Windsor-Buffalo semi-finals to decide if a single game will be completed tonight at Niagara Falls in the event of a Windsor victory.

Detroit is ready to pay for its hockey. The Stanley Cup games here are certain to net better than $20,000 each and Olympia rink officials believe the Olympics will draw about 15,000 people, especially if Windsor provides the opposition.

ALLEY RECORD BROKEN

A new Elmer record was put up last night in Recreation Alley for League game by Dawson Boyd of Corbin Hardware in Mayor B.I. League. Dawson hit the pins for 307 for a single. Les Shiels held the record with 290.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit, April 2—(CP)— Should Toronto Maple Leafs qualify for the Stanley Cup finals tonight by defeating New York Americans, Detroit is likely to put on an unofficial city championship contest Friday night between the Red Wings, National League champions and the Olympics, favorites for the International league title.

BOONE RELYING ON PROMISE OF LARRY McPHAIL

By GORDON WALKER

(Toronto Globe)

(Written Especially For The American Leader)

Haines City, Fla., April 2—(AP)—On a promise by Larry McPhail, vice-president and general manager of Cincinnati Reds, Du Boone is relying on his hope of leading Toronto Maple Leafs to a contending position in the 1936 International Baseball League pennant race. The Leafs finished fifth last year.

The Leafs will need plenty of reinforcements if they hope to stay out of the cellar.

With a weak infield two catchers of proven ability, a mixture of veteran and rookie hurlers and a fair outfield brigade, Toronto's prospects would be decidedly gloomy if their supporters could not pin some faith on McPhail's promise to come through with the necessary aid.

Three veteran outfielders, Tom Oliver, Hartin Pool and Manager Boone himself, are expected to supply most of the team's batting punch. They can expect little help in this department however unless it should come from Frank Kalinowick, first baseman, and catcher Jack Crouch.

The rest of the infield is composed of Walter Hohl, at second; Elmar Sorensen, shortstop, and fixer at third. Hohl and Sorensen therefore are filling in until Cincinnati can come to the rescue, when Oliver will move back to the outer gardens.

Cincinnati possibly will send Lee Handley, Eddie Miller and Joe Scarsella to the Leafs to man third, shortstop and first base.

Most likely of Cincinnati's present pitching material to wind up in Toronto are Earl Cook, Peaches Davis and Junie Barnes, all with Toronto last season; Leroy Herrmann, Johnnie and Whitey Wietzert. Already training with the Leafs are Stan Lucas, Jimmy Pallieo, Bobo Nekola, Walter Purvey, Lloyd Stirling and George Murray.

BREAKS RECORD—Breaking three world jumping records in the standard-stroke, Jack Kelsey, above, ace natator of the University of Michigan, made himself a favorite to cop a place on the American Olympic team this year. The 200-yard, 200-metre and 220-yard distances produced his new marks.

"Y" SWIM CLUB TO HOLD NIGHT

Exhibition Will be Given of Races And Rescue Work

The members of the Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club are very busy these days with preparations for their "Tankmite" display being put on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. Practically every evening during the supper hour period, practices are being held under the supervision of physical director Ralph Morden and an interesting and amusing programme of events is being worked up that an hour or more of good entertainment will be afforded the friends and relatives of the swimmers.

In order to afford seating accommodation for the spectators, a section of bleachers will be erected along both sides of the pool and these will in turn be protected by rubber splash curtains. The programme will be composed of swimming races, novelty events, a demonstration of rescue work in life saving and an exhibition of diving. The swimming club which has about twenty active members has about a 50 per cent. representation by members of the girls section of the Y, and the latter are numbered among its most ardent natators. Since the organization of the club the annual programme fifteen members of the Y.M.C.A. have benefited in swimming and Life Saving Programme.

Jack "Red" Doran of Amerks Born in City

Local hockey fans today were given the Sports Department of The Ontario Intelligencer's version by objecting to a sports article appearing in a Buffalo issue of the Toronto Globe.

"Are you going to stand for "Hogtown" stuff," asked Jack "Red" Doran in a Toronto-born boy?

"Where do they get that stuff, Toronto? Why, I was born and raised in Toronto. Yes, I'm a Toronto-born boy."

Doran, who has been a regular with the Amerks for the past two years, is playing defence for the New York Americans, in a Buffalo city and was born in this city. He started with the primary hockey in the local R-T League, graduated to the junior ranks and after a couple of seasons with the Toronto Marlboros, his chance to capture this year's American Walker Cup team.

He says he was "happy in making the decision that offers the chance to get down to work".

DAY BY DAY

The latest release of the Ontario Baseball Association bulletin gives one some conception of where we will find the better class of ball players performing this summer. Some time ago Jim Barclay applied for a transfer from Belleville to Toronto, while the latest bulletin finds Mel Little and Cade McIlroy asking for their transfer also. Yern "Lefty" Bishop has returned to Napanee, where he broke the Belleboard B's to a Provincial title in 1934 and records a change of residence frogs Picton, where he lolled on the mound in 1935, To date there have been no applications coming from Belleville, Kingston or Peterborough, which would lead one to believe those three cities ready to return to the old system of "home and home" and give the fans some real old time ball once again.

All of this leads me up to the Eastern championship of the O. B. A. Authentic stories from the Motor City inform us that immediately after the announcement the General Motors would operate the C. O. I. C. entry in Oshawa and call it the "Chevies", the town was flooded with tickets to see a team that it became alarming. Of course we in no way blame the Oshawa fans for wishing to see a team so naturally welcome the influx of players, even made application to play with Oshawa in the C. O. B. I., but the "Chevies" were no doubt the fielder of the Stratford Nationals, and had the 1934-35 lacrosse champion Jack Tweedie and Jack McCarthy, both of Toronto, arrived in Oshawa to play with the team of the Chevies Turner. It will be remembered that Jack defeated the Detroiters in 1934 and failed to impress.

With this first quartette making application so early in the season it is safe in assuming others will follow and a large number of them will be seen wearing Oshawa uniforms in 1936. Although no applications for transfer have been received as now, it is understood that at least two will be requested from Peterboro and one from Kingston, as the 1935 provincial champions are looking around for a first baseman pitcher even though Jack Williams and Ken Hall are already on the Ponies' 1936 roster.

Only a comparatively few took advantage of the initial night's early morning stroll under the auspices of the Belleville Anglers' Association on Saturday last. That night, but doubtlessly these will be augmented by a larger contingent preceding Wednesday night. In order to clarify our statement regarding the 95% of the streams in the part of the Province being closed to fishing, we quote from the Anglers' meeting of Tuesday night, this is not meant to be the case with all streams, but that 95% of the streams available for game fishing in these parts are closed. What we meant was, that 95% of the streams are on private property, which makes it practically impossible, to govern the matter of the conservation and preservation of game fish in those waters. By this it is not meant the pri-

By MAY CHRISTIE

"I couldn't. Your wife—"

"My dear, that's okay. Don't be unbelievable."

"But Nan—she wouldn't like it either."

Vernon felt irritated with him.

"Why, Nan only looks upon me as a pal. She flirts with all of me but it doesn't mean anything."

"Don't be too sure. Anyway, I think the whole thing's wrong."

He threw a brush, looking at her intently. "How can you say one pretty as you are be such a prude? But come, you're posing."

"I'm not. I can't see what fun there is in going out with a man like Nan, more especially when he is trying with his own wife. All that would come of it would be a lot of talk and criticism."

"My dear, how oddly Victorian!"

"Oh, you think I'm a fool."

"On the contrary, I think you're a beautiful girl who has never answered a Bible too firmly on her shoulders. You're only young, you say; dear, you should loosen up. Grab what you want. All this moralizing about right and wrong can come when you're older."

"You think so?"

"I think," said Sugar Sarrail slowly, and dark eyes burned like twin Vesuvius as he caught her fingers in a tight grasp, "that you're a darned sweet girl. I'd like you to hasten you would come down and just a little five up to the promise in your eyes."

"I think that kind of talk is useless—good-by."

"You don't. You're just stalling. You want to tantalize. It underestand you girls better than you do yourselves."

"Let go of my fingers. Someone will see us."

"Worrying about what people will say? That's Victorian again. I'm ashamed of you."

Vernon drew her hand away from his tight clasp. But the cocktail had aroused him. He was a libation with his Alma.

Her pride was hurt.

But no one should know about it.

So all, why shouldn't she try to get even with Terry by flirting just a little, a mild way, with this good-looking, ardent "Sugar"?

Then, instead of a mild way she shallow, Nan was the type of girl who, aroused by Terry's attitude, was out for every new sensation. She thought it smart to flirt with married men. To stamp the boy stage—Myrtle gave her misses yes, even though Myrtle gave no outward sign of mocking Nan's schemings.

"Let's have another little cocktail," Sugar now suggested. It was the thought that he, Vernon, was where women were concerned, and second Vernon's mood.

"Sugar" with a She smiled dangerously at him.

"Quite again, Beautiful. You have the loveliest smile I've ever seen."

Her heart gave an odd pang in remembering that Terry had used almost those same words to her at the Savoyard party!

They were all flirts, these men-about-town. Why not treat them at their own game?

So Vernon smiled again...playing with fire...amusing herself verbally with the lightly impressionable Sugar.

"You ought not to be married at all." She blew a ring of smoke from her cigaret. "You ought to be syndicated!"

"So that I can shed my sweetness and light over a wide variety of ladies?"

"Or you do that anyway!"

"You think I'm incapable really falling in love?"

"Yes. Like the bee. Flitting from flower to flower and extracting the honey!"

"How unfair of you!"

"And then sitting on, leaving the long trail behind you, you vain creature!"

"I'm only vain when I'm with you. You make me so sad."

"Nonsense. I've heard lots about you, I'm on to you."

"I'm afraid you only make an impression on you. I swear, no other woman would have said that."

"You vainly speaking again! What can women see in me?"

CHAPTER XVIII.

The waiter arrived with their cocktails. "Sugar" had ordered a couple of "old-fashioneds" which are pretty potent. He calculated this would loosen Vernon's tongue and give him the necessary courage to proceed....

She toyed with a piece of pineapple on the end of a tiny wooden stick.

"Let's have a toast," suggested Sugar softly. He lifted his glass, lifted about right and wrong can come when you're older."

"You think so?"

"I think," said "Sugar" Sarrail slowly, and dark eyes burned like twin Vesuvius as he caught her fingers in a tight grasp, "that you're a darned sweet girl. I'd like you would come down and just a little five up to the promise in your eyes."

"I think that kind of talk is useless—good-by."

"Or you do that anyway!"

"You think I'm incapable really falling love?"

"Yes. Like the bee. Flitting from flower to flower and extracting the honey!"

"How unfair of you!"

"Why me? Of course I'm not afraid." Dick replied valiantly.

Doc led the way along the little path that bored into the depths of the forest, then joined a wide, well-beaten trail. Suddenly Dick pointed into the trees. "Look!" he whispered.

"Oh, just a little way," agreed Doc; maybe we'll come to a native village." "Suppose they were cannibals?" "Shucks," scoffed the scientist, but "there aren't any cannibals now. You afraid?"

Doc glanced up and saw a monkey surveying them solemnly. Presently it began to chatter to several others. "My cousin Tarlan would know what they're saying," Dick observed. "Maybe he'll teach us." Doc suggested—"but perhaps it's better we don't know."

As the boys approached, the monkeys retreated, jumping and jabbering. Dick and Doc followed, absorbed by their antics, forgetting time and distance. Thus it was that they failed to notice a branch of the big trail, and several smaller paths that joined it at intervals.

As the jungle gloom threatened, Dick suggested: "We'd better not go in too far." "Oh, just a little way," agreed Doc; maybe we'll come to a native village." "Suppose they were cannibals?" "Shucks," scoffed the scientist, but "there aren't any cannibals now. You afraid?"

at this minute. I hope everyone I know sees me right here with you—holding your hand—like this. Beautiful."

He made as though to raise it to his lips, but Vernon pulled back.

"Are you jealous? Look at those people watching us. Let go of my hand."

"I shan't let go, not till you've promised to dine with me this evening, Beautiful."

"No, I shan't let you go. I'm a persistent man; when I want a thing—and I want you more than I've ever wanted anyone, Sweetest, I'll be waiting for you to-night from seven o'clock on, down in the lobby of your hotel—and if you don't turn up, I'm coming up to your apartment and snatch you from your bed!"

"I hear you, and if you don't release your voice the whole restaurant will hear you—"

"The devil with them! Don't you understand I'm crazy for you?"

Vernon—despite she undeniable ardor of his words—suddenly felt as though a chill wind were blowing on her. She withdrew her hand from Sugar's grasp, just in time to meet the quizzical, hostile stare of Myrtle Sarrail—Sugar's wife—who had entered the little restaurant unseen and stood before them unceasingly.

"Oh, Sugar, how could you?" she said, in a voice of ice to Vernon, there in the small upstairs restaurant of the Goldfish Tavern.

Sugar Sarrail had ignominiously died, after introducing Vernon to his wife. He had mumbled something about promising to telephone his broker and, pale and dazed, departed down the stairs.

Myrtle, her mouth drawn tightly in at the corners, had seated herself in the place just vacated by Sugar. She repeated her question. "Oh, ahead," Vernon replied quietly.

"You're new to New York, are you not? You're a girl whose parents have made money, and you've got plenty of social ambition?"

Vernon bristled herself. She must keep her head. Must deal cautiously with this truculent person.

"Yes, I am new to New York. About having social ambition, as you call it, I'm not at all certain."

"Don't prevaricate. You want to go ahead. You want to make a hit. Probably a big marriage."

"And you're committing a big blunder right at the start. Going to ruin your chances."

Vernon met her gaze directly. She thought: "How to shield Nan? She's came here after her! I must cover it up."

Aloud she answered, gently: "It is kind of you to be interested in me, Mrs. Sarrail, but I'm not a predatory sort of person."

Mrs. Sarrail snapped back angrily: "Yet you come here with a married man? You think that's clever? You think it's going to make you seem smart and fascinating and vampirish?"

"I think nothing of the sort."

"Why, if I'd a mind to, I could ruin you! Don't you understand that, you stupid fool?"

Not even for Nan would she take this. Vernon held her head up proudly.

"I barely know Mr. Sarrail. It was not of my seeking that we met today. He is nothing in the world to me. You can believe it."

Mrs. Sarrail rose. The unpleasant look was still on her face as she said, definitely: "I am giving you fair warning. Continue this sort of thing—kid and abet your cousin Nan in meeting my husband—meet him alone in hide-away corners like this—and I shall set everybody of importance in this town against you. This is no kids threat. I can—and shall—make things extremely hard for you, Miss Tyson."

And with that she disappeared. With burning cheeks, Vernon saw amused glances turned in her direction.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Mad Love"

Peter Lorre Sobrelion in Fantastic "Mad Love"—Noted European Star Gives Role-Making Performance as Mad Doctor Who Performs Blood-Curdling Surgical Feats in Warner's Most Terrifying Mystery Drama.

"Mad Love", Maurice Renard's uncanny novel of strange surgical experimentation, provides the scientific basis for the latest terror-drama of the screen; which brings to American pictures as an all-new mystery personality in Peter Lorre, European star of "M".

The picture, now playing at the Capitol Theatre, shows Lorre as a surgeon gone mad, and using his amazing knowledge to wreck the lives of those whom he envies or covets. Crafting of hands of a murderer to replace those lost in an accident by the pianist; the uncanny surgery where the surgeon, Gogol, attempts a fantastic operation, are but a few of the scenes in this terrifying drama in the audacious pace. A glimpse of Paris' famed Guignol Theatre of horrors is another graphic and bizarre detail of the amazing story.

Lorre brings a new brand of menace to the screen in the calculating malefactor who regards crime as a fine art, and is perfectly unconcerned about it. His strange face, his peculiar delivery of lines and his personality are due to give American picture-goers a new kind of thrill.

Frances Drake is beautiful, and acts the role of his wife with poignant intensity and Colin Clive gives an impressive performance as the pianist, Orlac. Henry Kolker plays the perfect police who, aided by Ted Healy as the reporter, solves the mystery, and Edward Brophy provides an amazing character as Rollo—the murderer, gratification and supposedly brought back to life. Keye Luke is the sinister Oriental assistant to the mad surgeon. Sarah Haden, Isabel Jewell, Murray Kinnell, Harold Huber, Charles Trowbridge and Jan Wolfe are in the cast.

Karl Freund reveals the triumphs he scored with the weird effects of "Metropolis" and other European pictures in the direction of the new play, adapted by himself and Guy Endore from the original novel.

"Fighting Youth"

Football enthusiasm crashes to a tremendous climax in "Fighting Youth", the Universal gridiron picture which is now playing at the Capitol theatre.

The comedy classic of the football field stars Charles Farrell, pretty Jean Muir and Andy Devine in featured roles, and tells an absorbingly interesting story of the invasion of Communistic activities as they affect college athletics.

There are two exciting games during the progress of the story, one covering the climax of the picture and well calculated to raise the audience to a high pitch of eagerness and anxiety. Many famous football players are seen, including Jim Thorpe, Paul Schissler, Nick Lukats, Jim Purvis, Moon Mullins and Dale Van Sickle. As Farrell Macdonald plays the role of a coach, and the assistant coach is the noted All-American star, Jeff Cravath.

Whether you are a football fan or not, you will find "Fighting Youth" a picture filled with rare thrills and entertainment. A young disciple of the millions who love the game—for its own sake, you will find brilliant as you were never dreamed before.

Mullins and Dale Van Sickle of Farrell Macdonald play the role of Kruger fails to inform her of his criminal record and finds herself torn by a mental struggle which brings him finally to the realization that he can fall no lower under false colors.

The picture is distinguished by a moving counterplot which involves a clandestine affair between Minna Gombell appearing as Miss Sleeper's employer, and Ferdinand Munday as a disbarred lawyer. The unfortunate victim of their scheming is the woman's daughter, little Cora Sue Collins, and it is she who finds happiness when she re-united Kruger and Miss Sleeper after the latter has fled from him in horror at the realization of his past. The last complete show starts at 1.00 p.m.

Laurel and Hardy, Saturday — Stars of Laurel and Hardy's recent comedies have been good, others exceptionally good, but "The Bohemian Girl," one of their most ambitious full-length screen features coming to the Belle Saturday, is great! Here is screen entertainment de luxe — an opera, a romantic play and a hilarious fun film all rolled into one to make an enjoyable evening for the entire family.

Another thrilling "Tarzan" adventure is announced for presentation on the same program with the showing of the latest Clarence E. Mulford western, "Call of the Prairie," co-featuring William Boyd and Jimmy Wilcox. Based on the Mulford book, "Rustling Cattle's Protege," it is crammed with suspense, uproarious comedy and tense drama, supplied with hard riding and fast action. Lovely Muriel Evans supplies the romantic interest in the story.

Painful Piles

Can be Quickly Relieved

If you think there is no way to relieve the misery of piles, it's because you don't know of HEM-ROID, an internal medicine, not a prescription written by Dr. Leonhardt, a famous physician. The real cause of piles is in the blood—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel, with local and special veins full of stagnant, impure blood.

Dr. Leonhardt decided the way to relieve piles internally, with a medicine which would ease the congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and help to heal and restore the sore, tender spots. After many tests he wrote the prescription which has been so successful in giving quick relief from the misery, it is now obtainable from druggists on this guarantee: that you have your money back if you are not completely satisfied after using one bottle.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, HEM-ROID must show you in ten quick, clean way to get rid of your pile misery or your money will be given back to you. J. S. McElcheran or any other druggist can assure you with HEM-ROID and will back up this promise.

REFUSES TO PROMISE NOT TO FORTIFY RHINE

Plans Will Not be Used Unless There is Attack Eden Assures Commons

Hitler's Blunt Refusal Delivered to British Government

WHITE PAPER ISSUED

Clement Attlee Suggests League Should be Consulted

London, Apr. 3 (AP)—A published declaration refusal to promise not to fortify the Rhineland temporarily, was delivered to the British Government today.

It happened at the foreign office shortly before Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, went to the House of Commons to announce Great Britain, France and Belgium would act together if attacked by Germany but the British government was anxious to discuss permanent peace proposals with Chancellor Hitler.

It was understood the final answer was delivered in Eden by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's special ambassador, in a five-minute talk that has Hitler's views on the subject to outline the conditions under which Germany would be prepared to confine the soldiers under Hitler's control to their own territory.

The late Mr. Rogers was born at Canning, Nova Scotia, 72 years ago, his parents being of Irish Protestant Loyalist descent. At the age of six years he came with them to Belleville, and consequently all but a few years of his life was passed in this city.

In early years he was attracted to the sport of sailing and it was his life-long hobby. When he was ten years old he was a member of the crew of the yacht Emeline. Other yachts on which he sailed were the Ella Percy, Kathleen and Nora, being mate and boat commander on the latter. Then boating of the racing yacht Hilarity, owned and the leading part it took in Belleville Yacht Club regattas. Many Belleville sailors are members of Hilarity crews returned to by old readers. Mr. Rogers was the last surviving member of the crew of the Atalanta, which won the Fisher Cup at Chicago in the year 1883, defeating the Cora of New York and the Alert of Toronto. He was sailing master for two years on the Atalanta and sailed alongshore on this yacht for four years. He always retained his love of yachting and after all he could to keep the old spirit alive and revive the sport in Canada, which in Belleville and for some time was Captain of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Since his retirement from active work he took a great interest in dinghy racing and acted as starter for the annual held weekly during the season off Victoria Park and at various other places of the South End Athletic and Yachting Club.

In the year 1857 "Ting" Rogers entered the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway here and in due time he became one of the first locomotive engineers in the service of that railway, Northern and later of the Canadian National Railways running out of the Belleville Division. For many years he also he had been living retired.

In religion Mr. Rogers was a member of John Street United Church and fraternally he was a member of Belleville Lodge No. 81, I.O.O.F., and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

In the death of William (Ting) Rogers, 312 Foster Avenue, which occurred at the Belleville General Hospital shortly before six o'clock Thursday evening the city or Belleville has lost a good citizen, one who was well known, public spirited, highly esteemed and popular with many friends and acquaintances to whom his passing will brought deep feelings of regret. SOCIAL CREDIT TO MEET CRISIS IS DOUGLAS IDEA

Proposal Was Made as Long Ago as February Last

LETTERS TABLED

Douglas Plan a Basis He Says for Resumption of Province's Credit

Edmonton, April 3—(CP)—Adoption of a Social Credit plan to meet the financial crisis in Alberta, which the Province defaulted was suggested by Major C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit, in a confidential letter to the Alberta government, tabled in the House as a result of tabling of the correspondence in the Alberta Legislature, between Premier Aberhart and the Social Credit administration of the province, tabled the correspondence yesterday.

The suggestion for the Social Credit plan was made in the confidential letter which the government received from Major Douglas. Later Major Douglas visited his intention of terminating his connection with Alberta affairs owing to the government and negotiations recently between them ended.

Major's Appointment

The correspondence also disclosed in a letter last Feb. 18 to Premier Aberhart, Major Douglas, still objecting to the appointment of H. J. Major of Montreal as financial adviser to the government, when was garbled his contract with the Alberta government having been broken.

While economics his contract should be terminated by mutual consent, Major Douglas said if this vanished, he would be willing to visit Alberta and confer with the government on the financial problems of the province. Under these conditions, he was willing to relinquish any claims under his contract to the remaining portion of the specified fee under his contract.

Expenses For Trip

On the other hand, Major Douglas said the government pay him in advance $2,000 to cover expenses of a trip to Alberta and salary and expenses of a private secretary which on a previous visit had amounted to about $350.

Major Douglas suggested all holdout of more than $500 of the bond issue falling due April 1 should be informed a credit to the amount of the face value of the bonds, plus 15 per cent had been opened with the state treasury in their favor.

He said this would place funds available for the purchase of any proceeds which the Province of Alberta could considerably, he said.

Premier Aberhart yesterday remarked that "you will readily recognize that such a proposal forms a basis for the discussions by the province of its own credit."

New Opportunity Act.

When the relief debate ended, Premier Hepburn obtained second reading of his bill repealing the Optometry Act which had established a Board of Optometry in Ontario. He accused the Board of "chiselling" and said the government would set up its own board of examination and warned other organizations with special powers to watch out.

Attorney-General Roebuck who piloted the Optometry Act through Committee Bill joined the premier in denouncing the organization. Dr. W. J. Roberts (Lib. East Hastings, Mr. Marie) said the principle of the profession was selling a commodity.

Mr. Croll's bill governing hours have received second reading. It requires employers and homeworkers to obtain permits from the provincial inspector to carry on employment in garments and articles of attire and in household articles. The latter gave numerous examples of low wages paid in those home establishments.

Pays With Life the Slaying of Friend

Victoriaville, Que., Apr. 3 (CP)—Gerard Lemay was hanged today at Arthabaska jail for the murder of Joseph Turcotte, 70-year-old farmer, slain and robbed on a lonely road last November.

The youth was taken from his cell and walked the fifty paces to the gallows which he mounted with a steady step. The trap was sprung at eight o'clock, the jailer and the officials declined to reveal details of the execution.

Goulin was convicted in January of killing the 67-year-old farmer as he drove home in a truck from a political meeting.

King's Coronation in May, 1937, Exact Date is Not Yet Determined

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Central Press Staff Writer

London, April 3—(CP Cable)—Choice of the month of May, 1937, for King Edward's coronation has given all round satisfaction here. It is suggested probably the actual date will be May 20, the Thursday after Whit Monday which is a public holiday, or perhaps May 6, the anniversary of King George's accession.

King George was crowned in June. King Edward VII would have been but his serious illness caused a postponement till August. Queen Victoria was also crowned in June. Earlier coronations took place at all times of the year. There was then, however, no London season and swarms of visitors to consider.

An interesting reason for fixing May in the present instance is that the trees plentifully adorning many London streets will not then have reached full leaf, thereby enabling a better view to be obtained by spectators on the stands.

Thursday also offers good opportunity for country visitors to arrive and return between weekends. Moreover it is considered a good day for the movements.

The month of June is probably ruled out, partly because the world Rotary convention is fixed for then involving the provision of accommodation for 10,000 to 15,000 Rotarians.

HOME LABOR BILL GIVEN READING

Homeworkers And Employers Must Obtain Permits

Toronto, Apr. 3 (CP)—Upon the federal administration the Ontario government has placed responsibility for the rest in relief allowances to municipalities that will follow the 15-per cent reduction in the Dominion grant to the province announced in Ottawa Wednesday night by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Meanwhile the provincial government has informed all municipalities that their grant will be cut by April 1. It will not be cut by the full 15 per cent, Welfare Minister Croll told the legislature yesterday, but only by seven and one-half per cent because the province will absorb its half of the 15 per cent reduction.

At the same time the minister, in a caustic denunciation of the Ottawa action during a relief debate that followed the demand of the Liberal leader (C.C.F., Hamilton East) for a province-wide plebiscite, urged the municipalities to bring pressure on their representatives in the House of Commons.

"You will be going home within the next seven days to your constituencies," Mr. Croll said. "I want every member of this House to make it known that this cut is a federal responsibility so that you can tell your constituents."

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST BLISS

Accused of Slaying Chance Companion at a Dance

Fort William, Ont., Apr. 3 (CP)—George Bliss, accused of the slaying of his chance companion at a dance at Chapple, will appear before the assizes of the Supreme Court to face a murder charge.

The 27-year-old Bliss, who police stated admitted strangling Miss Mildred Johnston whom he visited on his advances, was committed for trial yesterday by Magistrate C. D. Lemay.

The Crown alleged Bliss, meeting Miss Johnston at a dance, took her to his home March 25 in the absence of his parents. She was found dead in the parlor of the home the next morning with a man's necktie tightly pulled around her neck. Bliss was in the house.

Amy Mollison Wings Way South

Gravesend, Kent, Apr. 3 (CP)—Amy Johnson Mollison winged her way southward today in an endeavor to set a new flight record to Cape Town.

The famous flier took off from Gravesend Aindrome at 5.30 a.m. (3.30 p.m. E.S.T.). She carried 127 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for a non-stop flight of 2200 miles. The plane has a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour. She plans a return flight in the same machine.

ITALIAN TROOPS REACH LAKE TANA

Mussolini Guarantees Not to Harm British Interests

Rome, Apr. 3 (AP) — The first Italian troops have reached Lake Tana in Ethiopia, source of the Blue Nile and centre of British interests in Ethiopia, an informed source said today.

The Fascist forces rushed on toward Lake Tana, this source said, after occupying Gondar, important Ethiopian city, and the Italian air ministry announced the capture of Debra Tabor.

Rome also emphasized, in connection with the occupation of the Tana sector, that Italy has no designs in that ground, that Premier Mussolini's guarantee not to harm British interests still held good.

AFRICAN PEACE EFFORT PRESAGED

Emperor's Trusted Advisor Leaves Ethiopian Capital

(By Albert W. Wilson)
(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

London, April 3.—Direct Italo-Ethiopian peace negotiations may be presaged, informed sources said today, by departure of Addis Ababa today of Everett A. Colson, Emperor Haile Selassie's trusted friend and most important advisor.

Colson was guardian of Ethiopia's Foreign affairs for six years announced at Addis Ababa.

Addis Ababa only a week after the departure of Francis M. Rickett, Addis Ababa oil promoter who negotiated a concession in Ethiopia, believed backed by the American interests involved.

Colson to Egypt

Rickett, before going to the Ethiopian capital on his latest trip, told friends in Washington he hoped to bring Colson out for a talk with a Standard Oil official, Henry Mitchell in Egypt. Colson is the only man big enough for the job."

Rickett, like Colson, went from Addis Ababa to Egypt. The promoter has been interested in securing peace to Ethiopia so he might prosecute his claims for concession. He saw Premier Mussolini at Rome before going to Addis Ababa.

Addis Ababa, April 3.—(AP)—Everett A. Colson, advisor to Emperor Haile Selassie, left by train for Djibouti, French Somaliland, and, accompanied by Mrs. Colson and Dr. George C. Bergman of Los Angeles.

Colson, asserting he was going to Egypt on "sick leave", said, "during my stay in Alexandria, I will confer with Sir Miles Lampson, British Ambassador."

CONDEMNS ACTION

Toronto, Apr. 3 (CP) — Mayor Samuel McBride today condemned the Dominion government's cutting of relief grants. The city's relief contribution for the next nine months is reduced by $382,000.

"It's just a crime," said the mayor. "We'll have to take the matter up with Ottawa. I can't see how the city can carry on under this reduction."

DENIES O. M. E. A. IS REPRESENTATIVE OF MUNICIPALITIES

McQuesten Tells Why Body Not Consulted in Contracts

POLICY OF SECRECY

Explains to House, The Past, Present And Future of Hydro

Toronto, April 3 (CP)—Highways Minister McQuesten during a Hydro debate today told the Ontario Legislature he did not regard the Ontario Municipal Electric Association as a representative body "either of the municipalities of the Hydro enterprise."

The Minister made the statement in reply to opposition demands he say why the association was not consulted regarding new contracts with the Aluminum Company of Canada, Limited, and why, although the preamble of legislation introducing the contracts had mention said the municipalities were not consulted, when the old contracts were being drafted.

The legislature at its first morning session, on the motion of the government came to power, turned to the Hydro debate. Premier Rose now contracts after giving second reading to the Attorney-General Simpson's measures for establishment of intermediate schools.

Fisher's Message.

Hauptmann's counsel and conviction for the murder were based on the fact the state proved to the satisfaction of the jury that they did during commission of the kidnapping Lindbergh baby.

Fisher, referring to the Lindbergh case, declared: "Their crime record cannot admissibly in Hunterdon County."

He demand that you immediately call the Hunterdon County Grand Jury to consider the Wendel case.

Wendel's Statement.

"Wendel by his own statement involved himself in the crime. Pending investigation by the Hunterdon County Grand Jury, I urge you to join me in requesting a stay of Hauptmann's execution, which end time as the Hunterdon Grand Jury may reach a determination."

"GARAGE NIGHT" AT MASONIC LODGE

Degree Team Composed of Members From Garages

Masonic members of different garages and service stations in the city composed the degree team under the direction of Wor. Bro. J. B. Noyes in celebration of "Garage Night" at The Belleville Lodge on Thursday night. A large number of the members of the lodge and visitors from sister lodges in the district were in attendance, the business meeting of the lodge being presided over by Wor. Bro. W. D. Seabury, Master of the Lodge. The same officer presided at the fourth degree in the banquet hall. The initiatory degree was conferred on a candidate in a most creditable manner and the degree team was complimented by the ruling Master.

A novel feature at the banquet was a film showing the Canadian Rockies and the construction of the motive power of the Canadian National Railway, through the mountains of Old Quebec. The pictures were much appreciated. The toast to the Grand Lodge was responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. H. E. Clarke, who is celebrating his 30th anniversary in Masonry. The toast to the degree team was proposed by Wor. Bro. Clinton McDonald and responded to by Wor. Bro. J. J. Bowen, who in a reminiscent mood recalled the fact, that he was celebrating his 21st masonic birthday. The toast to the visitors was proposed by Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman and the visitors responded thanking The Belleville Lodge for the hospitality always provided. The newly initiated candidate was duly enrolled and the Junior Warden's toast brought a delightful evening to a close.

The films are supplied through the co-operation of Bro. K. M. Dyson of the C.N.R.

To Regulate Wages In Home Workshops

Toronto, April 3.—(CP)—Minister of Welfare Croll, in moving second reading of an amendment to the Factory Act to regulate wages and conditions in home workshops told members of the Ontario Legislature yesterday that "peace and good shop conditions has been going on in Toronto and the government proposes to stop it."

Mr. Croll added he had on record numerous cases of conditions far worse than that it which the cotton pickers of Georgia were subjected to.

"When the N.R.A. did away with Georgia Child Labor they ended up to this country. We find here conditions that are fantamount to slavery. Here is a case of two women who worked for a Sandwich firm paid 45 cents for 12 pairs of babies' bootees. A woman in Jones Avenue was crocheting baby jackets at $1.50 a dozen. The jackets are finished in about 10 hours and a half each.

"This is the kind of thing that is going on in Toronto and other parts of the province," continued Mr. Croll.

The House gave the Bill speedy second reading.

ROLLER SKATING NOW IN VOGUE

Large Parties of Adults Enjoy The Sport During The Evening Hours

Seasonally musical as the spring song of the birds, the whir of roller skates on hard pavement re-echoes through the city at the present time as young and old turn to more speedy forms of locomotion to and fro.

Not all the skates donned are being used by the younger element of the city, however, close observation reveals, while many of roller skaters as well have taken up the reducing sport.

"It's a fad, a fad that seems to be growing", commented one downtown clerk as she wrapped another pair of the skates for an adult purchaser. "The idea is to reduce by skating. While I'm one of the more popular methods from all accounts. The word has spread that weight can be taken off this way and the girls are falling for it hard. My goodness you have to see some of the different kinds of people who are buying skates these days."

On the quieter residential streets the new sport of roller skating has become well established. Skaters from six to thirty have donned the wheels, forming themselves into groups and in the evenings are to be observed skating in unison. Most popular, however, are the skates among the junior element of the city who find that the distance between homes and school can be measurably shortened and enjoyably daily.

Not least among the skaters is numbered a youthful pupil who daily depends on the strong tug of a collie dog's lead has taken to the concrete walks each day to classes.

Mr. F. MacLean Not Related

Mr. Forbes MacLean of 313 Foster Avenue, Belleville, whose name appeared in a recent issue of this paper, stated today that he was not connected with the persons whose names appeared in the report of solicitors in Scotland. As far as he knows he was not connected with the estate.

Mrs. Furlong Grant's father was Donald MacLean, who died in Brockville in 1927 and who was a son of Donald MacLean, son of Thomas MacLean, whose relatives are being sought.

On Monday the newspaper carried a story that the police here were co-operating with Scotland Yard police to investigate as to whether anyone in this city was a relative of persons mentioned in a letter from lawyers in the Old Country. It was in that letter that the late MacLean went to the police. As a result of his inquiry he found that he is as he believes, in no way connected with the persons whose whereabouts are curiously sought.

THEFT CHARGE LAID AND REMAND ORDERED

Joseph Friedlander, Winnipeg translator, was arraigned on a criminal charge of vagrancy on Monday after attempting to sell a gold ring to Constables Constable Fred Izard, appeared in today's town police court on a charge of the theft of the ring. The original charge of vagrancy, laid by the local authorities, was withdrawn and a charge of theft was laid by the Provincial police. The case was remanded until Monday by Magistrate Butler.

Friedlander, who appeared in court with head bowed and did not answer a single question, is alleged to have stolen from Fred Hollowey, the ring in question. He was employed by Mr. Hollowey in the capacity of handyman from his employment last Sunday at which time the ring also was found missing.

POLICE BLOTTER

Charged with the theft of a tire, Gordon Graves and Samuel Way, two local youths, appeared in the local police court held before Magistrate W. J. Butler K.C., today. No plea was accepted as Chief Kidd asked for a remand in the case until Monday.

The youths were arrested following the complaints of Archie Mumm, 181 College Street, who informed the police authorities yesterday, that a tire belonging to him had been stolen. Later Constables Arnold and Izard located the tire, which had been sold to a dealer, and later arrested Graves and Way.

Due to the absence from the city of Crown Attorney R. O. Donnelly, K.C., a number of important cases to have been heard were postponed until a later date. A speeder and a drunk paid the minimum fine.

Both the city and Provincial local police circles proved rather tranquil during the last 24 hours, no arrests being necessary. Only eight transients stopped over in Belleville and requested a night's lodging at the police station last evening.

PREDICTS POLICE RADIO SYSTEM

Hamilton Chief Believes Complete Radio Equipment Will Soon be a Necessity

Coincident with the installation and use of a police radio system in this city and with similar proposals along that line now under way in London, Peterborough and Kingston, visions of a complete radio link throughout the Dominion for the use of police officers has been forecast by Chief of Police Ernest K. Goodman, of Hamilton.

"That's something that may be expected in the future," declared Chief Goodman, referring to the work in that direction being performed at present in Toronto, and the installation of the system in Belleville.

"It will probably come in the future," he added, believing, however, that considerable technical work was necessary before the plan could be made feasible.

The radiolation of police departments throughout Canada is rapidly becoming a necessity, judging from the number of departments installing radio equipment, with Winnipeg, Montreal, Vancouver, Halifax, St. John and Toronto leading the rest of the Dominion in the new way to combat crime, stated Chief Goodman.

WAR-WEARINESS IN ETHIOPIA

The war drags its weary chain along in Ethiopia. It has failed to appeal to the modern Caesars and the Ethiopians.

In old days war was a regular activity. One has to know but little of history of the past 2,500 years to know how migration succeeded migration and steadily changed largely the face of the western portion of Asia and all of Europe and the northern part of Africa. Those nations which now occupy those rich lands which make up Europe of small states and large states, were not then made up of the ancestors of the people who now occupy it. Just before the dawn of European history, those movements started, and were probably the result of the shifting of population about Central Asia. Those forward movements of population were carried on with resistless pressure. In later times the Goths and Vandals swept across Europe and all but conquered Rome. Those tribes fought their way as they had nothing else to do, for they were pressed forward. It was no wonder that war and pillage were the daily occupation of the lives of these races as tribe after tribe moved forward and settled its families on the conquered lands. This is the history of practically all parts of Europe.

Today the world is too well known for that, combinations of powers will not allow the substitution of one race by another. In old days the races thought only of themselves. Today some of them at least admit that others have just as good a right to play their part in the world's theatre and that their racial contribution to international civilization is worth while. Today it costs too much even to indulge a whim of conquest of another people.

Even the Great War was not carried on in the spirit of the ancient times. The greater part of the world fought in defence of their institutions and countries, the Germans being alone blamed for aggressiveness and desire to acquire territory. Gladly all of the nations dropped weapons and hailed peace in 1918.

Man is today not the natural warrior he was when nations were but tribes or organizations of tribes which were a law unto themselves until halted by another force. Even the remnants of ancient tribes and the modern counterparts of the races which fought daily as they ate their daily bread have dropped their warlike arms for war has changed. Old wars were murderous as any war is but they were simple. Today war not only contradicts the conventional morality of the people who think in terms of peace, but it stirs up many forces and complications, indeed as many as make up modern civilization. A war today is a world at war, not tribe against tribe.

Mussolini has found it out. Few cheers are heard during it, as there is no great impelling motive in the East African campaign.

It is no wonder that Italy and Ethiopia tire of fighting. It looks as if it were all that Il Duce can do to keep up the international interest in this war long enough to secure a favorable peace.

Modern wars have learned much of the joys of peace even if peace time does lack some of the impressiveness of conflict.

ALBERTA'S DEBTS

Though the situation of Alberta's finances was known to many, the formal default in meeting the matured bond issues on Wednesday but rivets attention to the necessity which would dominate any difficulties. For long times it is so easy to borrow but at last will come the time when it is not easy to pay and then it is possible to borrow no further. And there is the point whether there be unusual difficulties such as Alberta has faced or not.

Montreal Gazette remarks that if Premier Aberhart has expended the Dominion would not let the Province default, he failed to realize that the Dominion in meeting demand after demand from the provinces would be freeing them from embarrassment at the expense of its own credit and that the process could not go on indefinitely. The Gazette points out that Mr. Aberhart balked at the idea of obtaining his badly needed $3,200,000 from the Dominion, under conditions approximating those contemplated in the Loan Council proposal, "By whatever means Mr. Aberhart may get out of his present difficulty, if he is able to extricate himself at all, the fact remains that the Dominion cannot continue in the role of a fairy god-mother to the province unless under some system which protects the federal credit." The Gazette speaking as above also remarks, "Back of the whole situation loomed the policy of repudiation which Mr. Aberhart proclaimed some little time ago and which he now declares to be more than ever necessary."

The Globe (Toronto), claims that the Premier of Alberta "preferred to default rather than submerge politics and accept the conditions which the federal authorities quite reasonably stipulated must accompany a Dominion loan." The Globe says it is not too late for Alberta to reconsider its stand and accept the Dominion offer. It also points out that this might jeopardize the possibilities of Social Credit, but if that theory ever had a chance of becoming a reality that chance all but disappeared yesterday."

THE FIRST PLOUGHING

The sun shines bright on this fair April morn,
The crow's dark shadow drifts across the lea,
The robin's song, our hearts with it atune—
Falls on the ear—a welcome melody.

The damp, dark mould a mist of incense
flings—
A subtle fragrance on the April air—
The ploughman to the field his horses brings,
No satin sheen can with their coats compare.
With patient step they haul the sturdy plough
And turn the furrows from their winter's dream;
The sky o'ercast — the rain is falling now—
And in the silver rain the furrows gleam.

WE SELDOM THINK OF BLIND PEOPLE because we seldom see a blind person, for blind people are the most self-effacing folks in the world, and in their kingdom of darkness shrink from contact with strangers. However, there are many blind people in Canada, the number swelled by war casualties. Generally speaking blind people although they live in darkness are bright and cheery in spirit, and refuse to be counted out by the affliction. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is doing a grand work, not only in caring for the blind but in prevention work throughout the Dominion, watching the causes that lead to blindness and applying whatever remedies are available. Opportunities to learn a trade and become more or less self-supporting are offered the blind through the National Institute, and from this department broom and whisk factories have evolved where the blind become expert. Basket factories and rubber mat making, also afford employment to the blind, while a number conduct newsstands in various cities. The work of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is supported by government and municipal grants and by voluntary contributions of citizens. It is a worthy philanthropy and well repays the time spent in becoming acquainted with the work for the blind and by the blind.

UNCLE SAM'S PROCESSES OF LAW ARE DEVIOUS and seemingly politics has a strangle hold on every department of crime detection, prevention, and penal. Hauptmann, convicted of the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder of the baby Lindbergh, gets a reprieve just as the parade to the electric chair starts, the penitentiary warden has received a message to delay the execution upon a telephone request from the foreman of the grand jury in session deliberating the case of a man accused in the same case. Looks like the German vote in Jersey has enough influence to keep even "the hot seat" cool for the time being.

LET'S PLAY MARBLES! There's a game!—Member when we used to play, ring on Collins, on the old wooden sidewalks or hard-packed path. Cold weather did not stop us if the calender said Spring, and how our hands used to get chapped and broken from the cold and wet. "Shiners First!" Hully Gee! Ain't we got fun! Trade you a dandy alley for ten marbles —O.K. hand 'em over. Life's a stage and we're but the actors, but that marble playing act was one which we didn't half appreciate at the time. Time's mellowing effect brightens the past in restrospection. "Shiners, First!"

SECESSION WAS A WORD which came to be regarded as the most loathsome word in the northern United States after the Civil War. The South tried to secede from the North and form an independent slave-holding nation of its own, but Abraham Lincoln said that there could not be two such nations within a nation, either the United States must be all slave or all free, and four years of slaughter resulted. Occasionally comes a whisper of secession from parts of Canada, and a Fort William member of the Ontario Legislature is the latest to use the threat that the time may come when Northern Ontario will SECEDE from old Ontario and paddle its own canoe. Fish, and Tush, and a couple of pooh, poohs. These young northern giants get the scent of the pine woods in their nostrils and come to believe they are gods—but they always get over it—the lusty pictures turns out to be only pitch on their pants.

Dead Limbs of Trees a Menace

Editor Ontario Intelligencer—

On nearly every other tree on the east hill are dead limbs, a constant menace to the safety of pedestrians. There is enough good wood in these to keep the unemployed in fuel for a considerable time. The non-removal of this danger to our citizens, who walk along our streets, may place the city in a serious position, as far as possible damage suits may be concerned. The unemployed need work. They need fuel. The city is paying out large sums for relief and fuel. Is there any reason on earth why these things cannot be linked up together for the benefit of all concerned?

No Quorum of Thirteen When Power Heads Com.

Ottawa, Apr. 1 (CP)—Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, was unanimously elected today as chairman of the House of Commons special committee on pensions and returned soldiers' problems.

The committee authorized the chairman to name members of two sub-committees to deal with correspondence and the calling of witnesses respectively. Major Power suggested it would be unnecessary to call a large number of witnesses and the number might be limited to two or three on each subject.

The question of a committee quorum evoked a smile. A member suggested with a committee of 28 the quorum might be 13.

The quorum was placed at 10.

The chairman said the Canadian Legion had signified its readiness to present evidence to the committee and desired to do so before Easter. It was decided to arrange to sit so as to facilitate this.

The committee decided to ask the House for authority to print private bills in sufficient quantity to circulate among branches of the Canadian Legion.

I was around at the firehouse tawking to Mr. Riley the hoseman ladder driver about diffrent subjecks including boxing, and Mr. Riley said, I'll never forgot the time I went to the fire department against Sargent Wawker Kelly of the polesce department. At that time I was known as Knock Out Riley, I suppose you can guess why, he said.

Because you always knocked them all out? I said, and he said, That's the sole and only reason. I had a hooked fist and a stroke like times they practically didn't enjoy it all, because they couldn't get them coming and couldn't remember for them afterwards. Well, the polesce department got up a purse to say I couldn't knock out this Sargent Wawker Kelly, and the fire department got up a equal size purse to say I could, and they hired out the Athaletic Arena and you never saw such a crowd of people as turned out the nite of the fite, Mr. Riley said.

You mean big? I said, and he said, I mean enormous. And early in the first round out flashed my left hook and out followed my right hook and pal Wawker Kelly had a eye as neet as a beatley baby and by cricky, he got nite up again and we kept fighting in his sleep. I mean he was a sleep wawker and had a hooked fist and a stroke nite times they practically didn't enjoy it all, because they couldn't get them coming and couldn't remember for them afterwards. Well, the polesce department got up a purse to say I couldn't knock out this Sargent Wawker Kelly, and the fire department got up a equal size purse to say I could, and they hired out the Athaletic Arena and you never saw such a crowd of people as turned out the nite of the fite, Mr. Riley said.

I mean he was a sleep wawker and in a flash I realized that was why they called him Wawker Kelly. Fighting a drowsy man to sleep and knocking him out is one and the same thing, but not a confirmed sleep wawker like this Wawker Kelly. Every time he woke up I'd put him back to sleep and then he'd pick himself up and file in his sleep again, and so on like perpetual motion till I was almost worn out putting him back to sleep and I'd of proberly lost the fite through exhaustion if by a grate stroke of luck some kid hadn't blew a polesce whistle out in the street and Wawker Kelly almost-ically climbed through the ropes in his sleep and left the ring and I won on a technicality, and now I've got a little polishing to do if you'll excuse me.

Wich I did.

Federal Aid to Provinces is Cut Fifteen Per Cent

CROLL IS SILENT

Aid up to March 31st, 1936 Contingent on Full Federal Aid

Toronto, Apr. 2 (CP)—A cut in the governmental relief contribution to Ontario municipalities following a federal government's 15 per cent. cut in the grant-in-aid to the provinces appeared imminent today although there was no immediate official statement. Pending a conference with his colleagues, Welfare Minister Croll declined to comment.

It was recalled, however, the latter the minister sent municipalities on Feb. 3, memorandum announcing that increases of its grant to 75 per cent of relief costs and establishment of a maximum contribution by larger centres, provided for a decrease if the federal government cut its grant.

ONTARIO CHEESE MOST POPULAR IN GT. BRITAIN

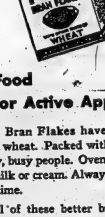
Sells 2.00 Cents Higher Than The New Zealand Product

MATURES BETTER

Dr. J. H. Grisdale Reports on Visit to Old Country to C.O.C.P.A.

Back from Great Britain, where he has been studying market conditions as applied to the cheese industry, Dr. J. H. Grisdale has submitted a comprehensive report to the Central Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association, in which an optimistic note of increased sales and production is observed.

Canadian cheese, though procurable in smaller quantity than the New Zealand product, consistently brings a higher price, the report stated. In 1934 the spread in price amounted to 2.68 cents per pound, while in 1935 the spread was slightly less. Ontario cheese is responsible for the higher price, with the Quebec variety selling at about the same price as the New Zealand product, and sometimes lower, it was stated.



Ontario cheese demands the highest price on the British market on account of its higher quality, Dr. Grisdale informed the Association. New Zealand cheese does not mature or gain flavor, or improve in texture as Ontario cheese does, it was added.

As the British Farm Home cheese is gradually decreasing in quantity, the demand for good, well-matured cheese from Ontario is gradually increasing. This has created considerable optimism among Canadian exporters, stated Dr. Grisdale. Ontario cheese is by far the most favorable English choice on British markets, the only complaint being that the quality is limited to a quantity of 30,000 tons of Canadian cheese reaching the British Isles in 1934, 1935 and 1936 this came from Ontario, the report stated.

N.W.T. ENJOYED A MILD WINTER

Campbellford Resident Receives Interesting Letter From Daughter

While Belleville and the central part of Ontario shivered this winter during one of the sustained cold-wet seasons on record, residents of the North Western Territories enjoyed a comparatively mild winter, it is revealed by a letter received this week by Mr. John A. Anderson, Campbellford, from his daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) L. D. Livingstone, who has spent the last two winters at Chesterfield Inlet, N.W.T.

Among the many interesting items in the communication received was the story of the priest, who had been on the trail and of how a band of natives had formed a search party, followed his tracks and finally found him on the trail in an exhausted condition, many miles off his course. Help arrived not too soon, for the priest had a fair lung blizzard covered the district, obliterating all tracks and changing the entire country setting at short notice. The search party was guided home by high beacon lights consisting of barrels of oil filled with sacks and lighted.

Never Missed Patrol

Month after month Dr. Livingstone makes his endless patrols into the Arctic country. On these patrols he brings medicines and medical aid to the wounded and maimed. Some time ago he visited an Eskimo village and was taken to a little girl who had been torn from head to foot and while he is dressing the wounds he was regaled with an account of how the girl's companion had rushed into the igloo and in an attempt to save her child, the mother had died fighting off the polar bear hanging against the bear. Another patient was brought 150 miles by sled to the home hospital. Under a great pile of furs, Dr. Livingstone found a little girl gasping gun shot wound in his thigh. The lad had shot himself accidentally, while hunting and when the wound refused to heal the witnesses had brought him all these weary miles to the doctor. They told Dr. Livingstone that they had done all they knew to help, which was to repeatedly stab the wound with the boy's own hunting knife. In both these almost hopeless cases the lives of the patients were saved.

The trapping season this year had been a poor one, the communication stated, with only a few blue-white fox being caught.

Dr. and Mrs. Livingstone expect to return to Ontario for a visit in September or October next.

Radio-Equipped Car Helps Correct Mistake

The Belleville police radio station CJR, proved itself efficient in correcting an error during a police investigation early last evening. While on duty Sergeant Arthur Booth received a message from the station St. address to the effect, that disturbances were being caused around 16 Station St.

P. C. Taylor hurried to the scene of the trouble in the radio-equipped police car, but found no signs of disturbance. In the meantime, however, the Station St. resident again called the police station and informed Sergeant Booth he had made a slight mistake, the number was 96 Station St., not 16.

Sergeant Booth immediately switched on the radio transmitter and broadcast this information, which was immediately picked up by P. C. Taylor through the facilities of the police radio. The latter continued to the proper address and completed his investigations.

It was found, however, that community were disturbing the residents by making much noise. The trouble was attended to.

SOLDIER'S TESTAMENT RETURNED AFTER 19 YEARS—Stingeton

Years ago George Clifford Hillman fell at the battle of Vimy Ridge. A few days after the action his body was found on the battlefield, all personal effects having been removed. Even the little pocket edition of the New Testament which had been sent to him by his parents, and which he had always carried, had disappeared. A few days ago Mrs. Hillman of Aylmer, Que., received a letter addressed to her late husband. It came from Mount Pleasant, Pa. The letter was from Thomas Fleming, and he informed Mrs. Hillman that he was in possession of a copy of he New Testament bearing the names of her husband and her son, Clifford. The book had been found by another soldier. After his return from France, Mr. Fleming stored the book away in his home and had forgotten about it. Sometime ago Fleming was hunting through a cupboard. He again found the New Testament. Noticing the names on the fly-leaf, he decided to try and get in touch with the owner's relatives. Mrs. Hillman at once replied to Mr. Fleming's letter and immediately forwarded the little book. To-day it is her most treasured possession. Mrs. Hillman is shown Above with the Testament.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

Trenton Courier-Advocate in this week's issue says:—

A by-law for daylight saving was defeated at the Belleville municipal elections so it is not thought that the Quinte City will do any more about it. However, if Belleville should change its mind in this respect, Trenton will follow suit, but it certainly will not lead in this matter.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Laurel and Hardy a Riot in 'The Bohemian Girl'", Chaplin a Riot in 'Modern'; "Call of the Prairie" a succession of thrills and laughs interspersed through a delightful story that is enthralling. With superb music goes to make the Laurel and Hardy ninety-minute feature length feature, "The Bohemian Girl", one of the new year's best screen offerings to date.

Oldtimers may wonder at the disparity between the original Belle opera and the screen version, as presented at the Belle Wednesday and Thursday matinee daily, but they will enjoy the modern film story for the bounds of its genuine hilarious treatment. Then, too, their misgivings will be appeased by the fact that most of the entrancing music of the original has been retained in the Laurel and Hardy comedy with the added and intriguing romance thrown in for good measure.

Stan and "Ollie" as members of a notorious gypsy band give performances that will long be remembered. More than ever before they resort to pantomime and gags that win them acclaim. The new band of new comedy routines are exceedingly funny. Their sequence with Betty Aylne, whom they "mother", are masterpieces of comedy characterization.

All members of the supporting cast of this Hal Roach production acquit themselves with credit. Antonio Moreno, Jacqueline Wells, Mae Busch, James Finlayson, William B. Davidson and (by far from least) little Darla Hood, who essays the role of Laurel's adopted child, interpret their respective roles in a convincing and entertaining manner.

"Call of the Prairie"

Fourth in a new and exciting . . . of the new series of "Hopalong Cassidy" motion pictures comes to the Belle Tomorrow and Monday as the second feature attraction. It's called "Call of the Prairie", it again features William Boyd and Jimmy Ellison in the principal roles, and it's chock full of action and amusement from start to finish.

Like the "Hopalong" films that have preceded, "Call of the Prairie" is from a Clarence E. Mulford novel. This one was originally known as "Hopalong Cassidy's Protege". Once again William Boyd is "Hopalong" and Jimmy Ellison is "Johnny". Around the story revolves plenty of fast action, drama and suspense than we'll find in half-a-dozen ordinary "western" films. There's hard riding, gun-shooting, and plenty of horse-to-goodness man-to-man stuff that will really stir you. The romantic interest is furnished by Ellison and beautiful Muriel Evans, the latter playing the daughter of one of Ellison's enemies. Comedy relief is supplied by Chester Conklin, Willie Fung and Hank Mann. The further adventures of "Red Rhody" will be revealed at the Saturday matinee performance.

"Modern Hospitality"

Two splendid features will be exhibited at the Belle tonight for the last times in Warwick Deeping's great novel "Sorrell and Son" with Otis Kruger, truly a great actor's greatest picture, featuring little Cora Sue Collins, Minnie Cambell and Marsha Sleeper.

Reading is run tonight on the same program is the mammoth musical extravaganza "The Music Goes 'Round", which has proven most extremely popular with Belleville and vicinity screen fans.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Crusades"—Coming

Lovers of the great outdoors and the doings of the clean, two-fisted men who are close to life in the raw should not miss "The Jaywalker Trail" at the Capitol theatre Saturday only for it is so packed with intense drama, excitement and thrilling situations that you feel almost punch-drunk when it is finished and that really brilliant actor and hard rider, Buck Jones, has come out on top.

Both the writer and director of this film should be complimented, for they have removed this film from the type in which you see a lot of men chasing a lot more men on horses, wide guns ablaze. This is drama. This is a story filled with adventure and romance.

And the scenic background along the colorful Rockies is worth going to see.

The story centres around two rival ranchers, of the Far West, who are also political opponents. One of them is a dirty, pilfering blamer, the other, who really is good. Then Buck Jones arrives. He is the nephew of the second man and, falling in love with daughter of the accuser, finds himself in a fine bally of fix. But he brings into the difficulty as only Buck Jones can and soon has a finger on the guilty man, but as that point the girl is kidnapped. From there on the crimson trail becomes more crimson.

Fantastic mystery and marvels of science are turned to account in the latest mystery film of the season, "Mad Love", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's answer to "Dr." to the wilderment that introduces Peter Lorre, European star of "M", to the American screen.

The picture deals with a great surgeon who, when he covets the wife of a pianist, sets about ruining the other man's life and driving him mad. Played with fantastic shadows and lights, it shows unusual surgical experiments and other amazing details, introducing the Paris Grand Guignol horror theatre, and a romance developed against this background.

"Fighting Youth"

Are you a football fan?

Whether you are or not, you will find much to thrill and interest you in "Fighting Youth," the Universal comedy-drama starring Charles Farrell which plays today for the last time at the Capitol theatre.

June Marlel and Andy Devine play featured roles in this stirring picture, which combines with its football excitement a fine relation of the influence of Communistic students on college athletics. Laying bare a condition which is little realized by the public the story shows just how students of radical tendencies attempt to disrupt the football team by collusion with sympathies of the school's All-American star, played to perfection by Charles Farrell.

The thrilling games are shown during the progress of the story, and the picture really is "football in advanced" lessons. In the fine points of the popular American game, quite aside from its interest from the standpoint of drama and comedy, Andy Devine, the hulking comedian with the spilt voice, and always earnest Farrell open for himself many comic scenes.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Hogan and Crawford by Financial Service.

Sherritt Gold To Be Listed is made in the application of Sherritt Gold Mining Company Limited to list on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange has been approved and the shares will be called for trading on Monday, April 4th. The abbreviation will be SHR.

Sherritt Gold Mines were incorporated under Ontario Companies Act, March 3, 1934, with a capital and capital at 2,500,000 shares of $1 par value, of which 2,450,000 are now issued. The Company has issued 1,500,000 shares for the properties, all of which, including the old Mar., in Mine in the township of Dedham in the northeastern Quebec gold area. The properties are capable of gold of Sloane and to the west of Coniagas.

Underground development is progressing with the drift on the 975 foot level having been extended for a length of 139 feet from the shaft. Levels have been opened at the 150, 225, 300, 450 and 975 feet.

As of January 31 Sherritt Incorporated the Stock Exchange that total ore reserves were 21,000 tons of which 14,000 tons are proven and 5,500 tons were on the dump. Average gold value in the proven reserves is $11.18 a ton, while the total drifting is 2,459 feet of which 2,308 feet is in ore. Development has totalled 766 feet of crosscutting and 11,744 feet of drifting and raising. To date the total cost of development has been $113,086 and the cost per ton developed was $7.48.

The mill has a rated capacity of 125 tons a day and has treated 1,000. First gold brick had a value of $6,000 while the second will be poured shortly. Recently the company informed the Toronto Stock Exchange that in its latest statement, current liabilities of $62,300 have been reduced to $21,, 000, while the cash on hand is $40,000 the banks has been increased to $10,636.

R. C. Nickel has 1,042,500 Tons Ore Indicated—R. C. Nickel Mines Ltd., operating at Choate have an indicated ore reserve of 1,042,500 tons ore averaging 1.41 per cent nickel compared with an estimate of 1,000,000 tons of 1.38 per cent nickel a year ago, it is stated in the annual report just received prior to the annual meeting in Vancouver on April 6th. During the year 2,000,000 tons of 1.28 per cent nickel.

"During the past year, development as the property have proven very gratifying," the manager's report declared. "Work was commenced on developing known ore zones. During the first half of last year, financial matters were to be raised ore zones. During the latter half of the year and the first two months of this year, the program has been chiefly one of raising.

"The raise will soon be complet-ed", the statement reads, "and from these, blocks will be stoped out under the Pride of Emory orebody diamond drilling is at present being carried on.

Evidence of future activity planned for the development division of the company report which states: Goodyear Is Optimistic of the objective of 3,000,000 tons of better than 1.26 per cent nickel ore will be developed and blocked out before operators are now giving their attention to the problem of putting the property on production, on a basis of 500 tons per day. A surface plant will be built at the tramline for transportation or ore to the mill has already been purchased.

Negotiations are in progress with business firms in various countries to sell the nickel concentrates, which will be produced, and marketing products will, at the beginning, be marketed. Metallurgical tests of the concentrates have been made ready by the Department of Mines at Ottawa, which will be of assistance as to the treatment of the ore."

One of the best actors in recent markets has been B. A. Oil. The company has been drilling No. 4 well giving a yield of about 3 1-4%. Production is expected to increase. Dividend is foreseen because earnings have been over $1 a share in Dec., Jan. and Feb. and believed to be 30 to 30 cents a share on U.S. operations. Production is now over 2,000 per in the annual report. The fact that Goodyear has brought in eight producing wells has impressed Oklahoma City shows there will probably be more big increases in revenue. Moreover, there are possibilities of additional wells being brought in. Although the company has not supplied definite information as to its future revenue, belief in revenue from this source should be justified. The company has a stable source of earnings in the Canadian refining and marketing operations.

Tisdale Reflects Position of Nor-ands—The ticker has been somewhat slow to reflect the recent position of Noranda Mines. Here is a company that has a million odd acres through depreciation and depletion, a company reserves that they are almost sufficient to offset entirely property and plant account on the statement. Strewed judges of values are prone to take a condition such as this and that is one of the reasons why Noranda has been consistently bought. Barring something unforeseen the future for this company appears bright.

Jo-Jo Graboski Hopes to Make Big Time Despite Loss of Eye

Polish Flash is Spear-Head of Magedoma' Attack

Toronto, April 3.—(CP)—Kicked about by the Quinty Falcons but far from beaten, Brockville Magedomas today turned to the gallant Jo-Jo Graboski for the spark that will blow the northerners off the Allan Cup trail, whose one eye unless pulling on the ice, is the powerhouse of the Brockville team, which edged out a 5-4 victory over Falcons in the first battle of their Eastern Canada senior final series, the only to drop a 5-0 decision in the second game.

In the Polish flash they have a bruising courageous player, who has conquered adversity by overcoming the loss of his left eye in a hockey accident, and who is next on a big-time hockey career despite the handicap. Saturday's third and deciding struggle here means a lot to Jo-Jo for he visions a place on an Allan Cup team as a step into National League hockey with the Conacher Brothers, Schriners and other great he admires.

"Having one eye is a handicap all right," says he, "but I'm gradually overcoming that and also a tendency to play continually to the player on my good side. Now I can practically feel where the fellow on my left is."

The 170 pounds of determination and hockey ability has one more hurdle to face before he makes the pro jump. It is the National Hockey League Board of Governors. They've already turned down Jo-Jo and the Brockville coaching player fears it was because of the empty eye socket.

Up To Governors

"It's up to the N.H.L. Governors" says Jo-Jo, who suffered the injury one day after a try-out with Chicago Black Hawks at the end of the 1933-34 season. The Hawks had a contract for the dark-haired amateur star but when it came before the Governors, Jo-Jo went scurrying back to the amateur ranks.

It was just another setback and Jo-Jo is almost to the top of the hill again. He's playing better than ever and picking net corners with the one eye in a way that has kept old Joe Ironsides in the Sudbury nag running handsprings.

On Jan. 5, 1933, while practicing as a member of Cobalt Juniors, Jo-Jo was hit by a stick, which caused such damage to his left eye it had to be removed. It was an injury, that would have broken the heart of the best but Graboski was in an Oshawa uniform the next season.

Born in Cobalt, Ont., Graboski was taken as an infant to Timmins and it was in the Northern Ontario mining town Jo-Jo learned the rudiments of hockey playing with the Timmins Juniors for their first year in the Little Boy Workers' failure to clear Bob Davidson's shot gave Jo-Jo the break for their first goal in the 14th minute of the opening session. He got the goal with an ink knees when it happened and it was a hard shot to handle. The puck slipped over to Harvey Jackson who flipped it into the clear net.

Fifty-nine seconds later Old Man Stewart finished off a play that Joe Jerwa and Harry Oliver by scoring the only goal of the night. Jerwa was shot from more then a few feet out. He drove the puck from the right wing and beat George Hainsworth cleanly.

Almost 12 minutes of the final period had been played, when Buzz Boll began away from attacking Amateur Blue line for the winning goal. The Leaf centre coasted in around Jerwa, faked Worters out of position and slipped the puck into the net for what Worters later called the fastest goal scored on him this season.

Clancy, Boll and Thoms broke away from the Americans for the final counter and had no one to stop them. Worters came out in an attempt to smother Thoms and the Leaf centre passed the puck behind his back to Clancy, who had an open net.

Only four penalties were called and none of them had any effect on the outcome. Red Horner drew two in the second period and Charlie Conacher and Jeff Ealls fleisch were given minors in the first.

Schriner, Conacher Hounded

The contest broke up with the greatest of good feeling between the teams and Manager Conny Smythe promising the Americans tickets for the Detroit game here next Thursday. He even called Dalton to the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player to his team and Sweeney Schriner to take the Lady Byng award as the most sportsman-like player.

Schriner, the National League's leading scorer found Leaf checkers hounding him at every stride last night and got only three shots away at Hainsworth.

Conacher, the Leafs' big gun, played 31 minutes and for most of that found Harold Cotton, his room-mate when Cotton played for Leafs, camped on his heels. Cotton had only one job, to silence Conacher and he stuck to him like a leech, paying little attention to the puck unless the big right winger had it. As a result Conacher had only five shots, most of them harried.

Thoms Notches Goal Breaking Deadlock, Leafs Enter Finals For Stanley Cup With Detroit

BOTH TEAMS TIRE

(By A. S. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 3.—(CP)—Toronto's persistent Maple Leafs, almost washed up a week ago, crashed into the Stanley Cup final for the third time hockey because youthful Bill Thoms knew opportunity, when it played a game-winning pack on his stick.

Glorious in defeat, Dutton's "keep punching" boys, the final Americans' team to make the playoffs since 1928 and the first ever to enter the semi-finals, earned a spot in hockey history as one of the gamest, hardest-fighting teams of them all.

Toronto's win sent them into the world series with Detroit Red Wings. They play the first two games or the three-of-five series at Detroit Garden and Tuesday. It will be their third crack at the Cup. They won it in 1934 from New York Rangers in three straights and lost the same way to Montreal Maroons last season.

It was either team's game up to the time Thoms scored. Both had fought under the ever-present threat of a sudden American attack that might have broken the 1-1 tie in the New Yorkers' favor and given them the game

Close Checking

The 24-year-old centre's goal, resembling thunderous acclaim from the 13,218 spectators, provided Toronto with an opportunity for cautious, close-checking hockey in the remaining seven minutes of the final period.

When the New Yorkers went down five skaters in an effort to force scrambles, that might have given them the leeing'hommer, they blanded Frank Clancy the goal, that clinched the game for Toronto.

The goal provided the only real thrill of a game that lacked the dramatic moments playoffs usually provide. It was fast and fairly open hockey for the first 20 minutes. After that the checking was too close to permit brilliance. Little Boy Workers' failure to clear Bob Davidson's shot gave Leafs the break for their first goal in the 14th minute of the opening session. He got the goal with an ink knees when it happened and it was a hard shot to handle. The puck slipped over to Harvey Jackson who flipped it into the clear net.

Only four penalties were called and none of them had any effect on the outcome. Red Horner drew two in the second period and Charlie Conacher and Jeff Ealls fleisch were given minors in the first.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEN OF DUTTON BY CONNY SMYTHE

By CHARLES BEUCK

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Red Dutton blinked back tears last night and said he was "tickled to death the way those boys went out and punished for it." New York Americans, in the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time since 1928, had just been eliminated by the rampaging Toronto Leafs.

"That was the nicest team we ever met in the playoffs," said Connie Smythe, Leaf manager. "At the same time it was just about the toughest." Just then he caught sight of Harold Cotton, sold by the Leafs to Americans before the start of the present season. Cotton did a swell job of bottling up Charlie Conacher.

"Hey, Hal, I sure wish we had you for Sunday night," Smythe called across the liniment-reeking dressing room. Leafs go into the Stanley Cup finals against Detroit on that date, Cotton just grunted.

The dressing room was surged, Dutton and his followers surged into the Leaf precincts to congratulate the winners.

Roy Worters and George Hainsworth, the league's little publicized ring magicians, sat down wearily on a wet bench and resignedly clasped hands for the cameras. Neither had a "a dawn pining to say."

Connie Smythe came out in rah, ah with a great big hope. "The way I see it, they were two good, game teams." He said: "And say I'm one me—I hope "Red" Dutton wins the Hart trophy this year as the most valuable man to his team, and that Sweeney Schriner gets the Lady Byng award as the most sportsmanlike and effective."

Dick Irvin, Leaf coach—"We hung on, and we hung on."

Al Murray—"One swell game."

Andy Blair—"Well, we got the "breaks," I'm sure looking forward to seeing Winnipeg when we go barnstorming."

Joe Jerwa—"Well—"

Buzz Boll—"We'll probably win the cup, but we'll have to do it the hard way."

The only thing Red Dutton was sore about during the whole game was his underwear. Between the first and second periods he took off his uniform and changed to civilian Trainer Tommy Bell—a Toronto boy by the way—had his shore-going uniform laid out inside out. That burned Red up.

WESTONATS DOWN QUEBEC ACES IN REAL FAST GAME

Game Went Overtime But Never Finished Due to Fight

SASKATOON WINS

(By the Canadian Press)

The boys who battle for the Memorial Cup, the peak toward which all junior hockey teams in Canada seek to climb, have reached a new high in their earnestness this season. 'Tis even a little too high for their own safety.

Left for further battling—hockey and otherwise—are two teams in the West and two in the East. Saskatoon Wesleys and Elmwoods Middle Leafs had started their cup semi-final while West Toronto Nationals and Pembroke Little Kings prepared for their opening.

The battling high was reached in Saskatoon last night as West Toronto eliminated Quebec Aces, 6-4 in over time. They never finished the game. The last minutes of the overtime was taken up by a wild fist fight which players, referees and fans all participated.

Police Reserves were called out before order was restored, 10 minutes after the end started. Referees Gord McKay and George Mallison were felled several times as they tried helplessly to restore order amid the swinging sticks and flying fists.

The Wesleys of Saskatoon, making their fourth successive attempt for the Western berth in the Dominion final, scored a 4-3 triumph over Elmwood Millionaires. They can wind up the series with another victory in Winnipeg Saturday night.

Little Pete Lewicki was the leader of the Saskatoon attack. He fired two goals, assisted in one and took most of the punch from the Elmwood offensive, when he cut fall during the second period. Lewicki didn't come back after that.

Steve Iszkoski across the face in a The drive of the classy Toronto team for the Junior Championship reached its next obstacle in Ottawa Saturday night, where Hamilton Little Lumber Kings await.

The Senior playdowns for the Allan Cup remain unhanged as Brockville Maedgomas and Sudbury Falcons rest in preparation of the third, and final, game of the Eastern Canada final in Toronto on Saturday afternoon.

TIGERS FAVORED TO WIN PENNANT

69 of 97 Sport Writers Think Detroit Will Repeat

(By Herbert W. Barker)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 3.—(AP)— As compensation for two years of near-misses, baseball experts participating in the Associated Press' tenth annual pennant poll have given Detroit Tigers a three-to-one vote of confidence for 1936.

Figures results in the American League Poll, announced today, showed the Tigers as far in front of the field there was no contest in the balloting, whatever may happen on the playing field.

So terrific was the rush to grab a seat on the Tiger bandwagon that Mickey Cochrane's crew was the first place selection of 69 of the 97 Sports editors and baseball writers who made ballots. Twenty others rated the Tigers no worse than second and the remaining eight picked them for the third slot.

Three was scattering first-place support for the paying Yankee aggressive Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees, and Chicago White Sox, who led the poll a year ago, but the final tally left these clubs ranked in that order behind the world champions.

DURHAM TAKES SENIOR 'B' TITLE BEATING WHITBY

Score 6-3 Victory in Second Game on Oshawa Ice

RANDLE ABSENTEE

Losers Miss Scoring Punch of Flashy Right Winger

Oshawa, April 3 (CP)—Durham won the O.H.A. intermediate "B" title before 2,000 fans here Thursday night, when they defeated Whitby Red Wings, last year's title holders, 6 to 3 in a hard fought game. Durham won the first game of the best-out-of-three series 5 to 4 in Galt on Monday night.

With Art Randle, their left wing scoring ace out with injuries, Whitby's first string line was held in the scoring sheet for one of the few occasions during the season. The smoother and faster Durham team had a decided edge on the game, however, being worthy champions, although they were hard pressed at times as Whitby, always behind, never gave up trying. Going into the final period three goals down, Whitby banged in two fast counters in a desperate rush but Durham came to life with their lead threatened to again draw away for a well deserved victory.

Durham Starts Fast

Durham took a three-goal lead in the first period when they had a decided advantage on the play with fast passing attacks, while Whitby's defence blocked weakly. At the five-minute mark, Hugh Cassidy started the scoring when he took Joe Raybould's pass to go in fast on a smart play. Hurst dished out of the net to save sensationally a minute later with Rennie, Elvidge and Schultz right in front.

Whitby's most dangerous scoring chance came with Lewis Vipond and Ernie Sleightholm banging instinctively at a loose puck in front of the Durham net. Trusinski tailed Durham's second counter late in the period when Rennie passed to White as he was bodied. Dick Conlin went off for tripping Cassidy and while he was off Durham gauged Raybould scoring after Hurst partially blocked Dean's shot when he sprawled in front of the net.

Both goaltenders stole the action of the middle session as they were forced to save sensationally time after time as both teams went out after goals. Hurst, in particular, was both lucky and brilliant, as he robbed Cassidy and Schultz when they broke in. Luther Vipond banged in Whitby's first counter on a gruesome shot from a hard angle on a pass from Jim Conlin. Moses drew Durham's first penalty in the dying minutes and as Whitby tried to gang, Schultz broke away to pass to Cassidy, who racked up his second counter of the game.

Whitby started the third period in brilliant fashion, Walter Brown rallying with a long shot from near side the defence shortly after the face-off, heartened by the score. Whitby bored in, Duke Sleightholm scoring at the five-minute mark when Schultz fanned on his rolling shot from the blue line.

Hurst Performs Well

Hurst saved Whitby on several occasions. Rennie's shot went across the open goal-mouth as Hurst dived in in attempt to smother his shot. Durham stopped their attacking tactics, Dean taking Cassidy's pass to score with a brilliant drive. Hurst robbed Trusinski and Moses when both were right in on him on scramble occasions. Raybould was penalized with less than three minutes to go but Dean broke away alone from the face-off to rifle one in from a difficult angle. Rennie missed the open net just before the game ended.

The large Durham following went wild, parading around the ice and shaking hands, while the Whitby team were the first to congratulate them.

Although every man tried hard Raybould, Dean and Cassidy were the most promising of the winners, while Hurst, the Sleightholms and Lewis Vipond worked hard throughout for Whitby.

ALLAN CUP FINALS TO START APRIL 9

Edmonton, April 3 (CP)— The Allan Cup finals in Winnipeg have been definitely set for Thursday, April 9, Saturday, April 11 and Monday, April 13, according to an announcement made here by Dr. W. G. Hardy, Vice-President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The dates were definitely decided upon after an exchange of wires with President F. A. Gilroy of Portage La Prairie last night, he said.

Kimberley Dynamiters, Western Canada champions, will meet the winners of the eastern final series now being played between Sudbury and Brockville.

BASEBALL BUDS START TO BLOOM

Di Maggio a "Sensation" is The Opinion Of Experts

New York, April 3 (AP)—Baseball rookies, like flowers, bloom in the spring and die under the suffocating heat rays of the midsummer sun, but sprouting plotlessly in the southland today are five, who give every promise of becoming perennial favorites of the 1936 crop.

Buddy Lewis, 18-year-old prodigy from Houston, has brought joy to Manager Bucky Harris of Washington Senators by the way he has plugged the big third base hole, vacant of Cesar Gutierrez in his heyday. Buddy promises to become one day, Buddy promises to be come one of the finest double play cog men in the game. He turned pro last year.

Two Starry Pitchers

Clarence Lemuel Phillips, 24-year-old right-handed pitcher of the world champion Detroit Tigers, is another promising prospect. Phillips, who won 20 and lost 11 for Beaumont's Texas League's last season, is a rat-headed giant standing six feet four.

In his last ten innings, five against Brooklyn and five against the Boston Bees, "Big Ben" allowed only four scattered singles and one unearned run.

Di Maggio a "Sensation"

Joe Di Maggio, 21-year-old outfielder and slugger, obtained from San Francisco by the New York baboos, has disclosed a weakness for hitting exclusively to left field. Old Yankee fans do not have to worry. Joe can really clout that horse hide. He has shown that during spring training and in the Pacific Coast League.

Lee Elbert Stine, right-handed pitcher, obtained by Cincinnati from St. Paul, promises to be another Wesley Ferrell. Manager Charlie Dressen already has gazetted him as starting pitcher number four.

In addition to the super-five, pitcher Harry Gumbert, Buffalo recruit and Outfielder Jim Ripple from Montreal appear to have a good chance of sticking with New York Giants.

REFEREES JOSTLED TRYING TO PROTECT PLAYERS FROM CROWD

Quebec, April 3—(CP)—One of the rare uncompleted games in hockey playoff history was in the record books today. The second match of the two-of-three series between West Toronto Nationals and Quebec Aces was left uncompleted last night, when spectators jumped on the ice and referee and players were attacked.

The melee came in the 7th minute of overtime with the Ontario juniors leading 6-5. Johnny Crawford and Arthur Theeboy came to blows, the teams joined in a free-for-all and only elements of the crowd surged over the boards.

When order was restored by police reserves, the Toronto squad was declared winner of the game by the 6-4 score standing at the time it was broken up. The remaining three minutes were not played.

Victory gave West Toronto the series by two straight. They had defeated Aces 11-4 at Maple Leaf Gardens on Tuesday. Now they meet Pembroke Lime Lumber Kings, who have been waiting while the O.H.A. declared its champion and met the Quebec Provincial winner.

Referees Knocked Down

Referees "Beef" McKay of Hamilton and George Mailhiout of Montreal were knocked down repeatedly in the fight despite efforts of members of the Senior Aces to protect them from the crowd.

John Rastello, chairman of the Ace A.A.A. issued a statement in which he hoped West Toronto would not lodge any protest over the occurrence. He wished the Toronto lads the best of luck and said he was satisfied the better team won. Rastello declared protection for players and referees at the arena had been inadequate all winter and was particularly so last night, when the two policemen in the house could not control the crowd.

The teams were tied 4-4 at the end of the third period and Crawford and Buster Jennings scored in the overtime before the fight started.

Earlier the lead had changed hands repeatedly in an even battle. Quebec, anxious to tie up the series and force a third game led-at the end of the first and second periods but had to come from behind in the third to tie the count.

CANUCK STEPS NEARER GRAPPLING THRONE FINNING SAVOLDI—Montreal's Yvon Robert, weighing 214 pounds, a crafty and powerful, pinned Joe Savoldi, 202-pound wrestling star and former Notre Dame footballer, to stay one minute and 30 seconds in the feature bout of the evening at Montreal Forum. The melee, which lasted 21 minutes and 30 seconds climaxed when Mona Robert, draped the Italian with an arm-scissors hold which forced Savoldi to surrender. Above is shown a chapter in the brawl when Savoldi was tossed over the ropes as the referee waves Robert away.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

After passing through an era of uncertainty, similar to that which is confronting Belleville Interests today, the senior baseball situation in Peterboro sallied out into clear waters. All of their troubles are over and decks have been cleared for the coming season. Unlike Belleville, however, interested citizens finally put their shoulders to the wheel behind Mayor McDonald and the big push was a success. As Mayor McDonald stated in his opening remarks as chairman: "There is no advertising medium a city can possess that is better than a good baseball team." Doubtlessly Bill Kay and his Raybestos plant is behind the project, but the business men in general accepted office on the executive and they too gave to a splendid start. The general consensus of opinion heard at the meeting in Peterboro was—"We are in favour of a home brew team. No more imports is our slogan." It's too bad, that all of the teams in the league did not fall in line with this idea long ago.

With the Fates all lined up the only two remaining clubs in the O. B. L. not to have selected officers and commenced laying the foundation for the final appearance of season's play are Belleville and Kingston. Down in Pearytown, however, they are faced with a big deficit left over from last year, something like $1,200.00, of which five G's have already been wiped off by generous sportsmen who kicked in with fifty spiece. Rumored that Fenlon will emerge on top and be the man, however, Combs' name given to the local angle things do not look so hot. The directors of the Belleville Kiwanis Club are meeting this evening to consider the matter of sponsoring a senior team in Belleville. As one prominent Kiwanian pointed out to me yesterday—"It is impossible for us to spend any of our finances on a senior ball club in Belleville. It's unconstitutional, the money we accumulate is for charity and minor athletics, not senior baseball. If we do decide to assume the executive of the senior team this year, such team would have to be self-supporting as our club's finances are not available for such projects." This explanation is quite clear, but Belleville is to have a senior team along with the rest the citizens and business men will have to assist the Kiwanis Club, even if they assume the executive and of it.

As one baseball fan remarked today—Perhaps if Belleville was out of the O. B. L. for a year or two it would liven up the citizens somewhat." Who knows, maybe he's right and maybe it's all for the best.

Records are being smashed right and left up at the Recreation Alleys these days. Apparently the "maple knockers" hold little respect for their predecessors. Last week the Christie Cakes' five broke the alley record when they rolled 3784. Not to be out-done and falling in line with the swing of the record-breakers, Dawson Boyd, ace bowler for the Carbine' quintet, broke another alley record on Wednesday night. Dawson rolled a single-alley of 397, eclipsing the previous record of 390 held by Lee Shiels.

If the O. B. A. A. amendment suggested by the executive is accepted and passed at the annual meeting of that organization tomorrow, umpires officiating in future provincial play-downs will labour for ten money in the future. The executive has suggested that in the future umpires will be paid seven cents per mile, instead of the ten cents a mile, one way, as has been the case for these many years past. This will mean a saving of three cents a mile for two umpires in the play-offs, which really means little to the teams, but considerable to the individual officials.

Earl Cook, the Lemonville twister, who has been trying out with the Cincinnati Reds for the past month was turned back to the Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday along with six other Reds, who have been shifted down the river. With the major leaguers breaking training camps and heading north for the opening of the baseball season on the 14th of the month, many a hopeful will find himself slumped back into the minors once again. "It's a tough old racket."

Coming from behind seems to be a habit with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1936 Stanley Cup playdowns. Again last night the Irvin-jed gang staged a third period rally to win over the Americans 3 to 1 last eve. Now the 'hot' Leafs tangle with Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings in the cup finals.

After the Whitby Red Wings downed the Belleville Redmen it was thought they were potential intermediate O.H.A. "B" champions, but the Durham arstelle were unheard of at that time. Instead of repeating the Red Wings fell before the Durham crowd in two straight games, which proves one thing, the western crowd must have a good intermediate team.

ALBANY SENATORS NEED MUCH HELP

Infield, Hurling Staff And Backstopping Dept. Need Bolstering

(By Don Heffernan)

(Albany Evening Times-Union)

(Written especially for The Associated Press)

Winter Garden, Fla., April 3 —(AP)—Help in three departments is sorely needed if the Albany International League Senators are to move up from the regions which they occupied continuously for the first week of the season last year. Aid has been promised from at least two Major League Clubs, however, and thereby lies Albany's 1936 fate.

The outfield is the strength of Al Mamaux' squad as it is made up at present. The former Newark pilot now entering his second year with the Senators has plenty of power in Sonead Jolley, six-footfour, 225 pound lefthanded slugger purchased from the Coast League; Johnny (Red) Marion, fleet centre gardener up from Chattanooga, and Vern (Swede) Johnson, obtained from the Western League by trade. Eddie Boland, formerly with the Phillies, and John Weiss, rookie are extra outfielders. Edwin "Alababa" Pitts trained with the Senators but will play with Harrisburg, the Albany farm club in the N.Y.-Penn League.

The infield, pitching staff and backstopping department, however, would stand much bolstering.

Alan Strange, former Washington and St. Louis Browns' shortstop, is the bulwark around which the upper wall will have to be remodelled. At this stage, Mamaux has Russell Mamay, light-hitting third-baseman from Chattanooga; Sammy Bell, second baseman who broke in with Birmingham last year and two first basemen as the other members of the infield. The first baseman are Regino Otero, 18-year-old Cuban prospect imported early with six others this spring by Joe Cambria, owner of the Albany club.

IN HARNESS AGAIN—Recovering from an ailing knee, Bill Terry, manager and first baseman of the Giants, is in action again

BUFFALO BISONS— WIN BY ODD GOAL

Only Goal Scored by Sammy Godin in Second Period

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 3 (CP) —A late second-period goal by Sammy Godin gave Buffalo Bisons a 1 to 0 victory over Windsor Bulldogs here Thursday night and tied their International Hockey League playoff semi-final series at one victory each.

It was the second game in as many nights for the teams, survivors of the first and third place playoff series, Bulldogs took a 3 to 1 victory in overtime at Windsor Wednesday night and the teams Cohan proposed imported earlier with six others this spring by Joe Cambria, owner of the Albany club.

FLOOD RELIEF DANCE SUCCESS

Responding favourably to the civic cause of flood relief a splendid crowd of dancers attended the Flood Relief dance held at the Armories last night when the sum of $67.50 was realized. Despite the fact the committee in charge had laboured under adverse conditions and other counter attractions a gala night's entertainment resulted with round and square dancing being highly enjoyed.

Some 18 prizes were distributed during the evening, all of which had been donated by merchants and individual citizens. His Worship Mayor Hill officially welcomed the large gathering and personally thanked them for their co-operation in such a worthy enterprise. In a brief reference to the great loss the Empire had suffered in the death of His late Majesty King George the Fifth, Mayor Hill expressed his regrets following which he thanked Col. Geen and C. A. Cameron, M.P. for their co-operation in placing the Armouries at the disposal of the Flood Relief committee.

The dance was under the direction of Fred Smythe, to whom all gave splendid praise for his untiring efforts in making the night a splendid success throughout. "Cam" Hardy acted as master of ceremonies and distributed the 18 prizes. The music for the evening was supplied by the Commodores Orchestra and proved highly satisfactory in rhythm. The Commodores Orchestra of the finest dance bands in Eastern Ontario. The splendid co-operation of the citizens made the dance a financial success in its cause. The committee in charge was—"Cam" Hardy, Jack McLaughlin, Joe Imlah, Jack Fleming, Fire Chief Lynch, Fred Smythe and Howard LePain.

The special five dollar door prize was won by J. Otley of the New Queens Hotel, while the second prize went to Geo. Gibson also of this city. Sixteen other prizes were distributed for spot dances. The following donated prizes to the relief fund—Mayor Beauty Salon; Eaton's Groceteria; Seldon's Drug Store; Lawrence's Barber Shop; Metropolitan Stores; Bert Hall; Bill Cook's Cigars; Harold Barrett; Gunter Furniture Co.; Modern Cleaners; (donators of the $5.00 door prize); Hallinger's Drug Store; Zahra Fruit Market; Odorless Cleaners; Dolan Drugs; George Finch; J. Hibbard; Skinner Barber Shop; Deacon Shirt Co.; Laurie Lewis; Dickenson and Son; Purity Bakery; Lynn's Bakery; Chant & Allen Butchers; Lockins; Lobbee Groceteria; Mrs. Groceteria; Foy & Irwin, soft drinks; Coca-Cola; Whalsley's Wholesale Grocers; Sills, Stationers; Wm. Henderson (coals); Joe Imlah (coals), Mr. Dodge.

Muskrat Causes Dam to Wash Out

A muskrat, whose skin is worth but a couple of dollars on the market at the present time, was the cause of hundreds of dollars' damage to Joseph Dodge's dam on the creek north of Smithfield during the recent floods, says Trenton Courier-Advocate.

The rat had got into the mill-pond and had tunnelled a hole through the heavy banks of the dam. As soon as the flood waters came down through the valley the rat tunnel soon became a mill-race and by the time the waters had subsided a good thirty feet of the dam had been washed away.

Mr. Dodge promises to keep an eye on muskrats in his mill-pond in future and not give them too much freedom.

He will rebuild his dam. Fortunately the flood did not cause any damage to his factory, which is one of the oldest in this part of the country or to the water-wheel which drives the machinery.

BRITAIN BUILDS DEADLY 'PLANE, NOW WORRIES ABOUT DEFENCE AGAINST IT—The aeroplane shown in the layout is the latest thing in instruments of destruction, and illustrates graphically the armament-maker's art. The aeroplane, which is the new R.A.F. "Fairey" bombing aeroplane, is so fast that it makes combat aeroplanes use less. With a speed of over 300 miles per hour, non-breakable glass enclosements for the pilot and gunner, special fighting equipment in addition to bombs, the new aircraft marks a long forward step in the development of attacking aeroplanes. So effective is the machine, however, that British aviation experts are wondering what they can build now to act as a defence against it. Ordinary fighting aeroplanes cannot cope with the speed and manoeuvrability of the "Fairey"; it has retractable undercarriage, three-blade propeller, split wing flaps to reduce landing speed, all-metal airframe except for control surfaces, and a new 12-cylinder Rolls-Royce engine. It has a wing spread of 54 feet and an overall length of 42 feet. Bombs are carried inside the wings.

By MAY CHRISTIE

Oh, it had been baleful of Nan to bring her into this! Baleful of Nan to sneak and join Peggy Hanson! Baleful of Sugar to come out cowardly as he had done, leaving Nan—an innocent intruder—to face the jealous anger of his wife!

She would not wait. She would go at once. She told the waiter to tell the gentleman on his return that she had been called home.

Hot tears in her eyes, and bitter her lip to maintain composure, Vernon hurried down the stairs of the Goldfish Tavern and was just at the door leading into the street when someone touched her on the arm.

She swung round nervously. Was it the infuriated Myrtle? Apologetic Sugar? Reckless Nan?

"I must speak to you. Don't dash off like this, please."

She murmured something about being in a terrible hurry, and having an important appointment.

"My car's at the door. Let me run you to wherever you're going," said Terry.

He was mastertul, like that. Up sat as she was by the scene with Sugar's wife, she couldn't stand here arguing.....

In a few minutes she was in his car with Terry at the wheel, and the grey October air blowing in their faces.

"To the Splendide, please," Vernon said nervously.

The car shot into Park Avenue and turned south.

Immediately Terry said: "I've an apology to make about not turning up for lunch with you, but I promised Nan I'd come."

"That's quite all right. Nan explained you had a previous engagement." She was staring straight ahead, and Terry thought how lovely she was looking in the little green hat tossed with coral, the bright ruddy hair peeping out over each ear.

"I was round at the Sarralls' house, I'd an appointment with Mr. Fairbanks—Sugar's father-in-law—about some business. When Nan telephoned me this morning, I forgot I'd agreed to stay on for lunch afterwards."

"I see. Your old friend Alma! That was it?"

Terry swerved to avoid a parked taxicab. Was it Vernon's fancy, or did he look confused?

"I brought them over to the Goldfish Tavern, hoping to see you —to explain——"

"There wasn't any need. I perfectly understand." She added, with a sudden fire of anger: "Was it your bright idea to send Mrs. Sarrall upstairs after me and her husband?"

Terry swung round, startled. "Good heavens, Sugar was with you?"

"Yes. Nan had invited him."

"But I saw Nan downstairs in the bar, with that chap, Peggy Hanson. What was the big idea leaving you alone?"

Vernon smiled ruefully. "Nan evidently believes in the old saying that two's company and three's horsemen."

"Good Lord! And Myrtle Sarrall found you! She has got the devil of a temper when she's roused. Added to that, I take it she's slightly fed up with the nonchalant ways of her Sugar."

CHAPTER XIX.

"Myrtle insulted me," said Vernon, her lips tightening. "She told me she'd make lots of trouble for me if it wasn't already made—and——"

Terry gave a long, low whistle. "But it wasn't your fault. Didn't you tell her Nan had arranged the luncheon?"

"No. I didn't want to give Nan away. That would only have made bad considerably worse."

He thought: "What a sport, sticking up for that harum-scarum little cousin of hers." Aloud, and ruminatively: "It's perfectly true that Myrtle has quite a bit of influence in this town. Her family's very well known. If you got on the wrong side of her, she might harm you socially."

Vernon frowned angrily. "What do I care? I haven't done anything wrong. I don't care if I never see any of these people again. I loathe the very word society!"

His dark blue eyes widened. "But I thought you liked your mother were crazy about social things. I thought you came to New York to meet people—the right kind of people—your mother told me so herself. I was up in your apartment only the other day, hoping to take you out to dinner, and she told me you were heavily booked with Prince Karimoff."

"You're laughing at us. You're baleful. I wish we'd never met you." Tears of exhilaration were near the surface now.

"My dear little girl, that's the last thing I'd want to do. I was only tipping you off for your own good. I know Myrtle Sarrall and the set she travels with."

"Well, I hope I never see any of them again!"

Terry said shortly: "That doesn't include me, does it? If I really thought so, I wouldn't bother you, no matter how I felt."

She seized on those last words like a drowning person. "No matter how I felt....." Did he, then, really care for her?

She said a little wildly: "No. No, I don't mean you, Terry."

"Then you'll dine with me tonight? I have two tickets for the opening of 'Mad Marriage', a new show at the Lyric. Afterwards we'll go on somewhere—anywhere you like—"

Oh, grab this chance! Don't let it slip away! Vernon said quickly, as the car pulled up outside the Hotel Splendide: "That would be lovely, Terry. I'll meet you at seven o'clock tonight by the cigar stand in the lobby."

She remembered afterwards—and dismissed the thought at once —that that was where Sugar Sarrall had said he would wait for her! What was her mother up to about her meeting Terry? She didn't care. She didn't care that Terry had returned to the Goldfish Tavern to lunch with baleful Myrtle Sarrall and her sister, Alma Fairbanks. Nothing mattered, in view of tonight's wonderful appointment.....!

* * *

"Maggie Tyson, I do declare I could spank you! Don't you know that Prince Karimoff is to dine with us tonight and then we're going to see that Russian film with him, and then we're taking him somewhere to supper after?"

"I don't care, Mother. Tell the Prince I'm sick. Tell him anything you can think of. Be as clever in putting him off as you were in putting Terry Shannon off, those times he telephoned me, and again when he came to call on me in this apartment!"

Under her daughter's love gaze, the little lady Tyson flushed a little.

"So Nan's been telling you! There's ingratitude for you. I did it for your own best interest, Maggie."

"I don't care what you did. It's all right now. I've seen him and it's been explained. I tell you I'm dining tonight with Mr. Shannon and we're going to the theatre together, and then we're going on some place to dance."

"Naughty-naughty! After all I've done for you for twenty years, that's a nice way to speak to your mother!"

"I'm sorry. But I've got to have some life of my own. I'm not a baby any longer. I've got to pick the people I life for my—friends."

Sadie gave her rebellious daughter a sharp, shrewd glance.

"So long as you keep 'em as friends—and don't make the Prince jealous, as Nan has almost——"

"Why do you always throw the Prince up at me, Mother?"

"Land's sakes alive, girl, do you think you'll ever have a chance like this again?"

"It—it sounds so—sort of designing, Mother. I don't like it."

"Of all the con-irary girls, you beat the band, Maggie! What do you think we're spending our money so freely for, and hiring this swell apartment, and putting up a big front—which of course we can afford, but it does seem wicked extravagance if it isn't to land you properly, and get you set in the marriage your money and—and position demands?"

"Position? We haven't any position. I don't want position. I just want to be happy when I marry."

"And why shouldn't you be happy with a handsome fellow like the Prince? Isn't he good-looking, and young, and hasn't he a swell title?"

"He hasn't asked me yet. Time enough when he does to discuss his background."

"Yet!" he exclaimed; "let's turn around. It's almost dinner time. I'll be dark soon. Wonder how far we've come?"

"Oh, not very far." Doc replied but his tone was not so positive. "Anyway," he added, "I'll bet it would be great in here at night." At that moment a sound broke the jungle peace.

It was a terrible sound that started with a coughing noise that grew to a terrific roar. The little monkeys disappeared as if by magic. The boys drew closer together. They were brave boys, but brave men tremble when that awful voice breaks the silence of the African jungle!

When for a long time Dick and Doc had followed the winding game trail—for such it was!—a still small voice seemed to whisper something in Dick's ear. It was the old spoil-sport Conscience. And it said: "Better start back!" Better start back!" He looked at his watch.

"Gee!" he exclaimed; "let's turn around. It's almost dinner time. I'll be dark soon. Wonder how far we've come?"

"Oh, not very far." Doc replied but his tone was not so positive. "Anyway," he added, "I'll bet it would be great in here at night." At that moment a sound broke the jungle peace.

It was a terrible sound that started with a coughing noise that grew to a terrific roar. The little monkeys disappeared as if by magic. The boys drew closer together. They were brave boys, but brave men tremble when that awful voice breaks the silence of the African jungle!

In all Africa there was only one man who was the equal of the King of Beasts. That man was Tarzan. But he was far away, swinging toward the redhead, his mind dwelling lightly on Jane, for amusing his young visitors—while an ironic fate was grooming them for tragedy!

— CHAPTER XIX —

Vernon sighed. These arguments were of daily occurrence. Her mother was a totally different person from the old Sadie Tyson of Pelsdale, Texas.

"So you insist on ditching the Prince tonight? What am I to tell him?"

"Let him dine with you. Ask Merlina de Bray to take my place."

Mrs. Tyson tossed her head. She was annoyed. "I'm not so sure that Merling isn't after the chap."

"Well, do anything you want to." Vernon went into her bedroom and donned a gown of hyacinth blue velvet. Down on her russet locks she pulled a turban which was nothing but a band around the brow, with a cross-piece of the velvet.

It was tremendously becoming, and the glimpse of wavy hair across the top of her head. Her eyes were of blue velvet too, reaching from the knuckles nearly to the shoulders.

"You persist in defying me?" demanded Sadie, who had followed her daughter into the bedroom.

"Oh, don't be melodramatic, Mother. I like Prince Karimoff well enough, but he isn't the only pebble on the beach. So why spoil him?"

Sadie frowned. She was annoyed and considered this quite. After all, maybe it would make the Prince all the keener if they didn't fall for every engagement he made with them.

Vernon hunted for a card. She hoped they were from Terry!

But the spidery handwriting of Prince Karimoff was on the card underneath that was surmounted by the Russian eagle and two crowns. He wrote in French; "To her who is sweeter and lovelier than these"—with my adoring thoughts.

Vernon had to translate this sweet sentiment for her mother. She did so rather reluctantly.

Sadie Tyson was delighted. She pinned them in the bodice of Vernon's evening dress.

"I'll give in, so you this once. Maybe it will make the Prince all the keener. There, they do look beautiful against the blue. I pray heaven he doesn't see you with that other fellow!"

Vernon did not care. Because of her mother's unsympathetic attitude to Terry, she was glad she had arranged to meet him in the lobby. There was no saying what queer remark her mother might let slip! Anyhow, her reception of him would probably be most ungracious.

She was glad this blue velvet gown was so immensely becoming. It had an adorable little waist-length coat, with high collar and deep cuffs of platinum fox fur.

At the conclusion of the presentations, two fine plays were presented by the students under the direction of Mr. G. L. Clute. The final production was the well known Scottish Romance written by Millhaus and Halevy in the year 1877 and for over fifty years staged in all the larger cities of Europe. Its handling by the Stirling dramatic public increases with the passing of time and the pleasing story based on the Indian summer of life, presents great scope for character acting with a mingling of humour brought in cleverly by Madame Lebrun, a part very capably handled by Miss Keitha Stapley. The efforts of the cast were truly appreciated by the large audience which gathered their parts through the entire play.

Cast of Characters

Adrienne,—Miss Jean Munro.
Brigueville,—Reginald Matheson, Noel,—Thomas Bedford.
Madame Lebrun—Miss Keitha Stapley.

During the intermission between these two plays a fine display of gymnastics and handling was given by a picked team of students who had been carefully trained for the purpose under the direction of Mr. H. Scotts. The boys were loudly applauded as they went through difficult feats in a speedy, faultless fashion, demonstrating the fine contrast as the result of long and tedious training. Those on the team were as follows:—

The final number on the program was the presentation of Merrill Denison's famous "Brother in Arms". This very clever play written by a Canadian writer who has since become quite famous, packs into twenty-five minutes every quality that a mixed audience desires with outward comedy and an underlying philosophy of life, followed by those who like to mature in the Canadian back country. The play was produced for the first time in 1931 at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto with the writer himself taking part. Since then it has been presented in all parts of Canada and United States and generally accepted as one of the best short plays. Although the player's in both plays turned in an excellent performance Frank Butler making his first appearance in character won the hearts of the entire audience in his portrayal of Syd White backwoodsman. Both plays were presented in a fine manner and those taking part displayed good taste in action, with no part being "overacted".

Cast of Characters

Altrus Brown,—Desmond Jackman.
Dorothea Browne,—Marion Richardson.
Syd White—Frank Butler.
Charlie Henderson, —Lloyd Rowland.

The plays and musical numbers were directed by Mr. G. L. Clote, and Miss Alice Oakey presided at the piano.

St. Paul's Young People's Union

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union was held in the church parlours on Monday evening with the program for the meeting being directed by a committee under the leadership of Miss Mary Rulth, President, who occupied the chair. The meeting opened with the usual song service which was followed by a prayer by Mrs. S. W. Rowland. The Scripture lesson taken from the 14th Psalm was read by Mrs. Basil Balsworth and the devotional part of the meeting closed with Hymn No. 129.

At this time the gathering was led in some real live community singing by Rev. R. W. Mahlkinson with Mrs. Rowland at the piano. Miss Dorothy Mikora, Pauline Riley,

HAUPTMANN EXECUTED FOR KIDNAP-MURDER

Cambridge Wins Intervarsity Boat-Race by Five Lengths

UNBROKEN, SILENT WALKS TO DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Case Over Four Years' Old Closed by Execution

MYSTERIOUS ALOOFNESS

Reprieve Filled Out on Governor's Desk Laid Aside at Last

(By Dale Harrison)
(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Trenton, N.J., April 4. —"This man is dead."

With those words, spoken by a physician in the crowded prison death house at 8:47:30 last night, was told the end of four years' fight against the convicted Lindbergh baby killer—the end of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

He died as most people thought he would—unspeaking, unshaken, cold, unsmiling.

Wife Unshaken

A mile and a half away, in a hotel, his young wife—his friends now—cried piteously, unconsolably. Oh, God, why did you have to do this?

There was no hysteria, no breakdown, no tears inside the dirty-white four walls where Anna Hauptmann's Bruno Richard sat down to death.

"I am not afraid to die," he had written Gov. Harold G. Hoffman only last Thursday. If he was, he did not show it.

Fifty-five witnesses saw him go; forty-five of them reporters. Some looked, whose steely hard eyes the wheel of the chair could not dim.

LINDBERGHS TRY TO FORGET PAST

Had No Comments to Make And Never Discussed Case

Would, Kent, England, April 4.—Saturday (April 4th) was first April Fool all in five years was falling lightly over the rambling red-roofed house in which the family of Colonel Charles Lindbergh live here when Bruno Richard Hauptmann's life ended.

The Lindberghs—Charles, Ann, and their young son, Jon—were up four hours after night's sleep when Hauptmann paid the death penalty.

To the very end the Lindberghs were true to their resolution never to discuss the Hopewell mystery after the trial at which the German carpenter was convicted. Since that day, close friends of the family say, they have never heard the subject has ever been heard from them.

They had been trying to forget the cruel past in this Kentish village, endeavoring to forge a new life among the simple countryfolk.

Lindbergh was carrying out an agreement with the Newspaper Proprietors' Association, made in an attempt to secure comment from the Lindberghs in connection with the Hopewell trial, whereby although they printed thousands of words describing the last scenes in Trenton.

JURY ACQUITS VERA STRETZ

Elapsed When Verdict "Not Guilty" Was Brought In

New York, April 4.—[AP]—Like a person released from the horrors of a nightmare, Vera Stretz—acquitted of murdering Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, her lover—sought rest and forgetfulness today.

Her father, 70-year-old Frank Stretz, clasping the blond young woman in his arms, said she was "going away for awhile to try to forget."

At the words "not guilty" Miss Stretz collapsed.

She had been on trial for two weeks on charges she killed Dr. Gebhardt because, after many years of intimacies, he failed to marry her.

Dr. Gebhardt, president of a German trade promotion concern, had 2 wife in Germany and was the father of two children.

The young woman pleaded she shot him in protecting herself from a threatened unnatural assault after he, pretending sickness, had lured her to his expensive lower apartment and attacked her last Nov. 13.

BRUNO'S MOTHER BREAKS DOWN

News Told Just After She Puts on Mourning For Brother's Funeral

Kamenz, Germany, April 4 (AP) —The aged Frau Paulina Hauptmann suffered a complete breakdown today when told her son had been put to death for the murder of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby.

Neighbor friends prepared her party for the shock when she awoke, still mourning for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, executed in New Jersey.

"No— No— No—," she protested, when told by a neighbor and close friend to another when they finally told her.

Then, in sudden realization of the grim fact, she cried out sobbingly, "Oh, my God, my God," while tears streamed down her face.

One friend helped her support when the 73 year old mother reached for a chair and feared she about to fall.

There hiding her face in her hands, the white-haired mother sat speechless with despair in the quiet of a small living room overflowing with emotion.

Tremendously, she had put a picture of Hauptmann, her wife and small son on her lap. She looked down on it through her tears.

The news her son had died in the electric chair at Trenton, N.J., reached her just after she had put on a black mourning dress to follow the coffin of her brother to the cemetery today. The brother died two days ago.

TWO MILLION IS COST TO STATE

Smallest Item Was One Cent in Current Used For Execution

Trenton, N.J., April 4.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a petty thug in his native Germany and a criminal dweller in the United States, lived for nearly two years and four months the biggest financial liabilities the state's citizens have ever known.

The total expense to the American people was computed today at more than $2,000,000.

The Federal Government was the heaviest spender. Its estimated expenditures included those for the investigation and prosecution. The Department of Justice of New York City paid the next highest bill, fixed roughly at $250,000.

Hauptmann, charged with the prosecution of Hauptmann and with the grim task of directing the kidnap-murder pursuit, kept no official account of the cost of the murder trial at Flemington which ended last year, at $162,713. But that total does not include the expenses incurred since the Flemington trial, which will be presented for payment any personal expenses Governor Harold Hoffman may have incurred in his private inquiry into the case.

Colonel Lindbergh himself paid a $50,000 ransom for his baby's life and the remainder of which is still unaccounted for, but final settlement of the case. Dr. John F. Condon, who paid the ransom to the kidnaper's agent, has said his own expenses as intermediary and in his own private investigation were at least $6,000.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of Washington, owner of the famous Hope diamond, with its legend of ill luck, paid $100,000 to a boss racism deal that landed Gaston B. Means in the penitentiary.

One member of counsel estimates that about $43,000 was required for Hauptmann's defense.

Newspapers, press associations, newsreel companies and special writers have spent an estimated $365,000, and this, too, is considered a conservative estimate. Telephone, telegraph and cable costs add at least another $200,000.

A reward of $25,000 by the State of New Jersey remains to be paid as soon as Governor Hoffman decides to whom it should go. There are numerous claimants.

The full cost of Bruno Hauptmann, in time and punishment, is nearly as can be estimated, totalled $2,310,713.01.

The smallest cost of all was for the electric current required to execute him—one cent.

French Security Dominant When French Go to Polls

Paris, April 4 (CP-Havas)—With German troops once again poised directly into Strasbourg and across the Rhine and financial defeatists hammering at the franc, France will go to the polls again Sunday, April 26, to vote on both foreign and domestic issues.

While economic and financial questions in the country's interior are seriously attracting the voters' attention. There is little doubt France's security in Europe will dominate the fifth legislative election since the 1918 Armistice.

This is due to the fact for the first time since 1918, the Communists have been standing alone.

All Communists running behind a Socialist on the first ballot will retire in favor of the latter and vice versa.

The Radical-Socialist Party is expected to retain its present large number of deputies to the Chamber.

WM. A. CADMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Halloway Miller Stricken With Heart Seizure While at Work

William A. Cadman miller at Halloway, 12 miles north of this city, died shortly after eight o'clock this morning from a heart seizure while working around the mill. The deceased had taken a hearty breakfast and was in the best apparent health when he left for the mill and soon after his arrival, he was stricken at his desk. An employee, stumped over a bench where he appeared to be sleeping and found he was dead.

The late Mr. Cadman was born in Thurlow township 63 years ago, the son of the late Malcolm Cadman and Elizabeth Bowker, and had resided in the district of Halloway practically all his life. 'DYING INNOCENT' HIS FINAL WORDS

Glad Life Which Was Not Understood, at End

Trenton, April 4—(AP)— Here are Bruno Richard Hauptmann's words as reported by his spiritual advisors, the Revs. D. G. Werner and John Matthiesen.

"I am glad that my life in a world which has not understood me has ended. Soon I will be at home with my Lord. And as I love my Lord so I am dying an innocent man.

"Should however my death serve for the purpose of abolishing capital punishment—such a punishment being arrived at only by circumstantial evidence—I feel that my death has not been in vain.

"I am at peace with God. I repeat that I protest my innocence of the crime for which I was convicted.

"However I do with no malice or hatred in my heart. The Jesus Christ, has filled my soul and I am happy in God."

Evidence That Convicted

Trenton, N.J., Apr. 4.—The Flemington trial testimony that doomed Bruno Richard Hauptmann:

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh (describing the voice of the man who collected the $50,000 ransom): "I heard clearly a voice coming from the cemetery. It said, 'Hey, doctor!' In a foreign accent. That was Hauptmann's voice."

Dr. John F. Condon, ransom negotiator: "'John' is Bruno Richard Hauptmann's device.

Clark Sellers, handwriting expert: "So convincing to my mind is that the Hauptmann wrote each and every one of these ransom notes that I would not hesitate, if asked, to each and every one of them."

Albert S. Osborn, expert: "Those two pieces (tail 16 of the ladder and the floorboard) fit exactly in the four nail-holes which are in the attic floor. Hauptmann's plane was used to plane the ladder."

Joseph A. Perrone, taxi driver, who delivered the ransom note to Condon: "Bruno Richard Hauptmann. That is the man who gave me the note."

Frank J. Wilson, Federal Agent: "Not a single ransom bill has been found in the possession of Hauptmann."

Amandus Hochmuth, Lindbergh neighbor: "Hauptmann glared at me as I left the courtroom. He made a ladder in his car."

Mrs. Ella Ambach, Hauptmann neighbor: "He walked with a limp on the left leg after the kidnapping." (The State claims he injured his leg when the ladder broke.)

Dr. Charles Mitchell, Bruckman, New York Police: "We found this memorandum in Condon's coat pocket in the closet of the Hauptmann home."

Edward F. Marion, timekeeper of the building where Hauptmann worked at the time of the kidnapping: "On April 2, the date the ransom was paid, Bruno Richard Hauptmann did not work. He resigned."

ABUSES, RACKETS TO BE EXPOSED

Employment Commission to Have Wide Powers by Bill

Ottawa, April 4.—(CP)—Abuses and rackets in connection with unemployment relief administration will be exposed by commissioners of the new National Employment Commission Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons last night.

Defending the Government's proposal just before the Bill received its second reading from Parliament vote, Mr. King said, no minister and no department of government could escape investigation by the commission which had grown up. Had one or two incidents developed in connection with as revealed by investigation of the relief-operated here pointed they would have created a sensation which would have shaken the government.

The Prime Minister's speech was chiefly in answer to Conservative Leader, R. B. Bennett, who declared the Commission was a rubber stamp for what a coach and contended the Government was trying to do. Mr. Bennett's amendments could do all the work the Commission could do, and infinitely better, and he would oppose the Bill as the Government had a definite mandate from the people to proceed by way of a commission. He also referred to points to what he considered the weak points of the proposal.

Bill Passed

An Appropriation Bill exceeding $450,000,000 for unemployment relief and providing employment" will be submitted to Parliament by Finance Minister adjournment next Wednesday, Premier King told the House.

Should the provincial municipalities be in a position to make expenditures equal to the amounts for the past, it would mean some $450,000,000 would be spent during the next year on relief undertakings.

The Prime Minister said publicity will be used to combat relief, rackets and abuses. The Commission will be empowered "to attempt, by means of publicity, to bring to light serious abuses, rackets over-lapping and waste, and to aid in bringing about public expenditure in municipalities or any provinces. Only some suggestions the agency of Government would do it properly.

PRICES NOT HIGH SAYS PRESIDENT

Not True That Exorbitant Prices Are Charged For Glasses

Toronto, April 4.—(CP)—Premier Hepburn's charge optometrists are engaged in a "racket" was denied today by R. S. Linde, President of the Optometrists' Association, conferring with the premier's remarks in the Ontario Legislature.

"It is not true that the charge exorbitant prices," said Mr. Linde. "There are no few optometrists paying as $1 for a pair of glasses," he says. That means their income is not high. Three dollars is the limit—never abandoned hope.

Mr. Linde said 8,471 people had been "I'll see you again"—who had been into three years from the limit—never abandoned hope.

Mr. Linde said 8,471 people had been "I'll see you again"—who had been into three years from the limit—never abandoned hope.

"The average price," said Mr. Linde, "is $4.75. Of course, we do charge according to the means of the customer.

"We prescribe 100,000 prescriptions with different curves and they all cost different prices," said Mr. Linde. "How can we set a standard price under conditions like that."

Mr. Hepburn had stated: "They get a certificate."

"That is not true," declared Mr. Linde. "The course is two years and only graduates are issued only to graduates."

OPTIONAL CLAUSE IN LEGISLATION TOBECOMPULSORY

Portion of Corporation Tax Must be Diverted to Separate Schools

PLEADS TOLERANCE

Premier Hepburn Hopes Measure Will Not Provoke Issue

Toronto, Apr. 4 (CP)—The long awaited legislation to give separate schools a larger share of corporation taxes was before Ontario legislators today and they had a week-end to consider the measure before debate on it opens Monday afternoon. They also had a respite from their strenuous duties because the assembly scheduled for today was cancelled by Premier Hepburn because the report of progress made yesterday and Thursday.

In yesterday's long sitting from 11 o'clock in the morning until nearly 11 at night, Premier Hepburn's government for result, the school tax bill was introduced by Premier Hepburn, passed third reading and seven others were given second reading.

Most important of the list to gain second reading were bills validating power contracts with the Maclaren-Quebec and Gatineau Power Companies and giving the government power to reallocate timber limits by order-in-council. Debate on the power bill was brief but the forestry measure occupied the House most of last night.

The school tax bill, amending the Assessment Act, removed the optional clause in existing legislation whereby municipalities may divert a portion of corporation taxes "may" be diverted to separate schools, to "shall" be diverted to separate schools.

His Last Message to Her Said 'I'll be With You in Spirit'

BY MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Trenton, N.J., April 4. (AP) — Mrs. Anna Hauptmann faced the world today of returned to Trenton and claiming the body of her husband who died in the electric chair for the Lindbergh baby murder.

As his "nearest relative," the wife who declared, "he was innocent; I not ashamed—I am proud of him," was expected to arrive some time before noon to perform the last at the New Jersey State Prison.

Attorney John Matthews, Hauptmann's spiritual advisor, said the cremation would be at Fresh Pond Crematory in Queens, N.Y., or in Linden, N.J., where the body of Bruno Richard Hauptmann was cremated.

"I feel not ashamed, but proud of him. I know that he was innocent and that his innocence will come to light.

"They have taken from me my faithful husband and a loving father from my little son, Manfred.

The Rev. Matthiesen, after the execution, brought Anna a message from Bruno, which he said he walked to the chair.

The message was directions for the disposal of his body, expressed the wish she stay "with Manfie" in the Bronx, and said "I shall always be with you in spirit."

13TH CONSECUTIVE WIN REGISTERED BY CAMBRIDGE

Oxford Makes Valiant Stand in Annual Boat Race

AT ONE TIME AHEAD

Cantabs Showed Powerful Crew And Were Not Distressed

Putney-on-Thames, England, April 4.—(CP Cable)—Straight amidship all the way, Cambridge University's crew of Cantabs, their old rivals, Oxford, for the 13th time in succession in the annual inter-varsity boat race.

The light blue Cambridge crew, slight favorites, finished the winning 4 1-4 mile course on the Thames with a comfortable lead of five lengths over the Oxonians. Time: 19 minutes, 23 seconds. Putney Bridge to the finish at Mortlake was 21 minutes, 8 seconds.

Gallant Dad

The dark blue Oxonians made a gallant bid for victory in the early stages of the race but the Cantabs forged ahead in the last half when the two-mile mark and were never headed after that.

Cambridge's time was well over the record mark of 19 minutes, three seconds they set in 1934. The Oxford crew finished in 19:18. The race was run in dull, cloudy weather. A drizzling rain, however, did not deter spectators who lined the 100,000 spectators who lined the banks of the Thames to cheer on the light and dark blues.

Cambridge's 1935 crew was also over 1935 that had not been conceded their best chance in recent years, but they proved victorious at last, when they rowed in 1929. The Cambridge victory made their total wins in the series 47, Oxford has won 39 and one dead heat, 1877 race was a dead-heat.

The Race

The Cantab eight spurted fresh at the finish while all but two of the Oxonians were in good shape after the grind was over. Cambridge's margin of five lengths was the widest since 1929, when they led by seven lengths. Last year the winning margin was four lengths, finishing the race in 19:48.

The Blue Boat crew: (1) 9 a.m. (6 40 B.S.T.) Cambridge eventually defeated at Oxford by the dark blues moved ahead at the boathouses, widened their margin to a quarter-length at Craven Steps and remained in front until they reached the Mile Post through the two-mile mark. There the light blues spurted, crept ahead of rivals and went ahead by a quarter-length. They maintained their advantage, gradually increasing it, all the way to the end.

Oxford put a magnificent spurt as they approached the finish but it was too late to overhaul the Cantabs.

The refrigerator was open when P. C. Evans was called to investigate, while empty milk bottles and cartons were found scattered about the floor. MRS. M. J. ALLEN TWEED, OBSERVES 96TH BIRTHDAY

Has Always Been Interested in Missionary Society Work

Tweed, April 4 (Special) — A few brief years ago, Mr. Samuel Bowers, Tweed's "grand old man," observed his 90th anniversary of his natal day. Today, April 4th, Mrs. Margaret J. Allen, Tweed's "grand old lady," celebrates her 96th birthday at the home of her daughter, the late Mrs. (Dr.) W. R. Mather, and granddaughter, Mrs. (Dr.) A. C. Locke.

Mrs. Allen was born in Demorestville, Prince Edward County, the eldest of a family of thirteen children, born to Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh. She lived for many years in Napanee, and later in Marlbank. She was married in the late "sixties" to John Allen who predeceased her many years ago. Her husband was a successful lumberman engaged in the lumber business in Hastings County, retiring several years prior to his death in 1916.

Long-Lived Family

Mrs. Allen's father lived to the advanced age of 97, while her mother reached the remarkable age of 94, a record which the daughter did fair to surpass.

Mrs. Allen has always been a member of the Methodist and Episcopal churches. She has always been greatly interested in her family of three daughters, and one son. The late daughter Mrs. Mather, was Mother of Tweed, with whom she had made her home for the past 40 years, passing away in July, 1935. The colored always found in Mrs. Allen a friend below who spared no effort to aid in its work. A phase of the work in which Mrs. Allen was especially interested was that of the Missionary Society. She was found an outlet for missionary interest in two Chinese orphan girls in China. These children were supported and educated in an Anglican school in China entirely by Mrs. Allen's financial support. They learned to read and write English and became fine, intelligent young Christian missionaries who minister to their own people. For several years, until her death from tuberculosis, Mrs. Allen was a regular correspondent in English with Mrs. Allen.

Failing Eyesight

Failing eyesight about four years ago forced Mrs. Allen to give up the habit of reading in which she took a great deal of pleasure. Despite a few advanced age Mrs. Allen enjoys remarkably good health and vigor. She was born in the horse-and-buggy days and has been content to abide by the drying of the dishes. This task she performs daily and finds much pleasure in so at while engaged in it. In spite of her numerous years, Mrs. Allen is sewing and mending, an activity in which the speed of youth makes up for poor eyesight.

Two sisters, the youngest member of the family, Mrs. Allen has left and a brother, John Burleigh, living in Tweed. Mrs. Allen's grandson, this remarkably active old lady extended felicitations on this happy occasion.

WHITHER BOUND? ASKS REV. LITTLE OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Bridge Street United Church Mecca For Young People's Convention

Holding forth as an inspirational theme and motto, the "Christian Youth Building a New World", the opening session of the Biennial Convention of the Belleville Presbytery Young People's Union, of the United Church of Canada, marked the beginning of what promises to be one of the most interesting gatherings of its kind held in the district, as it began its opening session in the auditorium of Bridge Street United Church of this city on Friday night, commemorating forty years of Young People's Organization. The day of Spirits Conference and meeting within the walls of the historic church, with the Young People's Conference meet forty years ago, there were many members of true fellowship among the delegates who had come from many of the outlying districts.

At about 8.15 Friday evening, a large number of officials, delegates and friends gathered in the main auditorium of Bridge Street United Church, as prominent members of the Executive took their places on the platform for the opening exercises, which followed a song service of praise and prayer under the leadership of Rev. S. L. Osborne of Stirling.

The opening exercises and devotional period were conducted by Miss Phyllis Gardiner, Christian Fellowship Convener for Prince Edward County, after which other leading members of the executive which included Mr. Baxter were called in prayer. Rev. C. Ferguson of Northport officiated at the piano, Semple, B.A., S.T.B., Th.D.; and Rev. Ernest Little, B.A., minister of Bridge Street Young People's Union.

Rev. L. S. Wright

Rev. L. S. Wright, B.A., B.D., delivered a fine address on the past history of the Conference Executive revealing from old records many interesting and humorous elements of early days.

The speaker, spoke with authority on this branch of church work, having been connected with it since 1886, when he first became interested in it in the town of Trenton and King Street Methodist church. The organization was then known as the "Christian Endeavor Society". Later his work took him to Deseronto, where he continued in the same work, which became known as Epworth League in 1892. St. Mr. Wright was for 12 years in charge of the great Conference held in Bowmanville in 1924, one of the achievements set forth at that early date, according to the speaker, was that challenge. The motto of that conference was keep-rooted: Pray, study, and give to missions and contributions were larger than than at any time before. He also brought the message from the past, from the standpoint of a great and varied experience in the work since 1889.

A summary of the address was read by the present executive was delivered by Mr. Homer Borland, president of the Executive. The executive, who spoke on the extension work, now carried on with the co-operation of additional departments, such as the Recreation Dept., the Leadership Training Dept, and the Dramatic Dept., which were brought into being by the Conference annual. "The latest of them being the Drama Dept., which has already had religious dramatics and it was proving hilariously successful in its measureless influence on the lives of those taking part," stated the speaker. A musical treat was available by a double quartette, of the Bridge Street College Club was greatly enjoyed at this time as they offered two splendid numbers, "Peace, Be Still" and "Beautiful Thrends of Gold".

Rt. Geon Little

The main speaker of the evening was Rev. George Little, D.D., of Toronto, superintendent of Religious Education Division of United Church of Canada, who spoke on the subject of "The Young People's Work of the Church, Past, Present, and Whither Bound?" The history of all humanity is in "Youth Movement" he declared, but it must remain within the church. Youth movements apart from the church had been tried out in Russia, Germany and Italy with the results speaking for themselves. Nothing in the world can be counted in individual value or cost. Everything is collective. One liquor producers are putting forth a collective fund to promote the sale of a million dollars is the annual budget of a British Distillery set aside for advertising alone. The brewers widespread campaign for intemperance getting results because of their collective advertising, and propaganda. The fight for peace on earth and armament makers spread propaganda for war and destruction to fill the pockets. Our economic condition is brought about by collective selfishness. Individually we dislike suffering and starvation but collectively we are inhumanly selfish. Conditions will not be improved until we realize that all humanity is one. To put God in his rightful place first, is the only solution to our manmade ills. This was a most inspiring address delivered in a forceful manner by a keen student

OPTIONAL CLAUSE IN LEGISLATION

Finals Tolerance.

Pleading for tolerance, Premier Hepburn said the bill was long overdue and hoped it would not provoke a religious issue. "It is purely a technical of the national thought and spirit," he said, "and I would urge its consideration in this spirit."

Alberta had similar legislation on its statute books which was never served. Although an anti-Catholic government came to power in Saskatchewan several years ago it left that province's school bill untouched, he said.

The Premier described the bill as "merely the first practical step to equity to the Roman Catholic minority" and considered the government had struck a "fair and just compromise."

In connections where it is possible to determine the number of children attending separate schools, the division is on the ratio of stock held by such persons to the total stock of the corporation. Income of informing the company on the decision must be made according on the shareholder.

In cases where such determination is impossible—large companies with wide distribution of shares, or companies of which 25 per cent of the stock is owned by another corporation—the corporation may have their head office outside the province the dividend tax based on general property assessment.

Division Formula

According to the distribution on general property assessment. If the corporation has its head office in province they were separate school supporters, they would receive 50 per cent of the taxes this corporation paid to the municipality.

The method of distributing the corporation taxes will become effective in the year 1937, and not before 1937.

Conservatives forced a division on Forestry Minister Heenan's forest regulations bill after voicing lengthy criticism of the measure. They felt like the Hydro contracts which provided compensation for Hydro abolition (Cose, Toronto St. David). A bill to amend the Public Utilities commissions was placed at the mercy of the minister, he said.

Leopold Macaulay (Cons., York South) accused the minister of borrowing powers from the days of the "pooh bah" of natural resources. Premier Hepburn and George S. Henry opposed the measure but T. P. Murray (Lib., Renfrew South) and C. H. Millen (Lib., Perth) supported it. "Col. Fraser Hunter (Cons., Victoria) has criticized federal government by order-in-council. He's Conservative to the backbone."

When he introduced the Separate School Bill Premier Hepburn made it plain that he was "for religious and proper recognition of the rights of the minority." Under the present government's action, he continued, we have removed the last trace of religious minority and was a "fair and just, compromise."

"I am not concerned I have no religious bias in my soul," said the Premier.

Further, the Premier said, in the matter of the Separate School Bill the minority had more privileges than the Ontario Catholic minority. "There is a French minority in Canada and then came the British," he continued. "Even the head on the bosom of Abraham decided the issue. Some of few years ago the Legislature was erected to the two larger leaders who lost their lives in that conflict. Wolfe and Montcalm. Both these settled down to live in peace and harmony and after the Great War of 1812 against's a common foe to preserve nationality in public." The action of our pioneers is a challenge to us in meeting a problem of this kind to-day.

"Surely we can extend the same kind of justice to the Roman province of Canada as is extended to the Protestant minority in Quebec."

Mr. Hepburn said the bill gave the public school supporters a great advantage because the onus is on separate school supporters to notify the corporations to which they hold shares that they wish their taxes to go to separate schools.

"It is humorous to see us, pious peace-loving Christians, fighting one ourselves as to the only sure way of going to heaven," he said, summing ourselves as to how we said, there were "many religious creeds represented."

Named Different Faiths.

He named the different faiths. When he reached Welfare Minister Croll the Premier said:

"And Croll was the most popular member in the whole House and he is just even a Christian still."

Premier Hepburn pointed out that Henry, Premier of Nova Scotia, G. Ferguson in 1929 had told Mr. Bellanger, Liberal member of Montreal that if he could persuade the House as to the justice of his cause, as he had done in the past, he would achieve the same successful result. Hon. George S. Henry, Conservative Premier, had given thought to the subject, Mr. Hepburn said, but instead of bringing down legislation he had sought to increase the separate school grant.

The Premier warned that if the Catholic people decided to abolish separate schools it would place a heavy burden on the province and the government would be forced to send separate school children in public schools. He was aware of at least two cities where this would mean a 100 per cent jump in education taxation.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Considerable amusement has been caused locally by the newspaper and radio reports of the "terrible" flood conditions in Tweed. A prominent Tweed resident who was in Toronto for two or three days a few days ago, was accosted thus by a friend in the metropolis, "I don't want to alarm you, but I have just learned that the streets of Tweed are under three or four feet of water".

Of course residents are only thankful that flood conditions locally did not reach alarming proportions. Several places outside of Tweed have said to battle against high water and high flood crests to a depth of several feet. The stretch of road at Black Creek, running between Tweed and Sulphide is under water up to the tops of fence posts. Children attending Tweed High School, unable to make the diffy round trip, are obliged to remain in town for the time being.

No. 7 Highway is under water at several points, the worst condition prevailing near Kaladar at a spot known locally as "The Mink Hole", making motoring on No. 7 decidedly hazardous.

Water Level Lowers

The water in Stoco Lake is rapidly assuming lower levels, a drop of nearly a foot having been noted in the last twenty-four hours. The ice still remains however, in two large sections, flooded by a wide channel cut by the water poured into the lake by the Moira River.

A further lowering of the high water level before the ice breaks up and leaves the lake free, Stoco Rivers is hoped for as it will lessen the pressure on the bridge being damaged as the massive of ice are swept along to pass under the bridge, which is perilously close to the swirling waters.

New Quarters

Tweed Army and Navy Veterans have acquired new quarters for the inauguration of the organization, which hitherto have been held in the Agetian Guild rooms over the Dodson Store. The Veterans have now purchased the building, and expect until a few months ago as a law office by J. J. Morrison, barrister, and carpenters and decorators are busily engaged in making alterations to the interior which will convert it into a club room and auditorium. The ladies' organization is headed by President: O. F. Bowby, and plans are under way to hold a series of interesting meetings and card parties.

The funeral of the late David A. Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Barry, of Tweed, whose tragic and suddenly death occurred from the result of the mine explosion at Manitouwadge, Algoma district recently, was held from the home of his parents with Rev. R. R. Hobbins officiating. Interment in the cemetery. The young man was born in 1912 at Actinolite and was engaged at his work in this community. He was actively identified in Belleville with Reynolds of Tamworth, who, with four small children: Attie, Jean, Shirley May, Raymond Dean and David Howard, survive.

The late David Barry was one of a large family and is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters: Eli, Jr., Tweed; Edward, Roy, George, Laura, Mabel Ada, Mildred and Ruby.

Interment was in Tweed Cemetery. The bearers were: Leonard Jones, Albert Caskey, Kenneth Caskey, Don O'Connell, William Barry and Sam Barry.

Leaves for North

Shannon LaPointaine, who for several years has been in the employ of the Meal branch of the Dominion Stores, Ltd., has severed his connections with the firm and has entered the employ of the Rickard Gold Mine at Northbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beasley, Jr., and Mrs. Jas. Ryan were in Colborne visiting Mr. Mac Ryan, a former Tweed resident, who is seriously ill in the General Hospital of that place following an operation.

A young man belonging to Tweed who had indulged too well in liquid refreshments is now lodged in Belleville jail charged with taking a motor car without the knowledge or the owner, a resident of Tweed. The young man will appear in police court to answer to the charges.

For several months past, Tweed United Church Sunday School has been holding its sessions on Sunday afternoon. It reverted on Sunday April 5th to the hours of 10:00 a. m. for the next few months. Dr. Stobo Elliott of New York City visited his brother, Mr. Lincoln Elliott for a few days recently before leaving for Cambridge, Ohio, where he will undergo a medical practice.

Mrs. Frank B. Coxton who has resided in Prierboro for several years past, has returned to Tweed to take up her residence with her mother Mrs. A. M. Dafoe.

To Play Softball

Local softball fans are pleased to know that Tweed will again enter a team in the Belleville and District League this year, under the name For the past three or four years the local aggregation has gained large crowds of fans with their splendid efforts, twice, in 1934 and again in 1935, reaching the semi-finals with Barrie. The team will again be sponsored by the Gordon Steel Works. They will probably be without the services of Stanton Rollins who "scooped them up" around second base, and Bill Gowsell who shared second duties with Stan Luffman, local hurling star. Gerald Quinn and H. Leal represented Tweed at a district meeting in Belleville earlier in the week. An organization meeting will be held in a few days to select the team for the season.

Thomasburg I. O. O. F. degree team conferred the first degree on a candidate at Tweed Lodge No. 90 I. O. O. F. room on Monday night. The work of the meeting of this lodge was of a very superior nature and called forth expressions of regret from those who were privileged to witness the work. Thomasburg Lodge has made an admirable reputation in conferring degree work, and has visited many other lodges in the district as well as outside for this purpose.

At the conclusion of the meeting a banquet was prepared, also were contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deter with Miss Dorothy Sager as accompanist, Mrs. Stanley Webb of Thomasburg delighted the audience with one of her inimitable readings. A feature of the programme was an address by Rev. M. O. Price of Actinolite who gave a most interesting address on the theme "Spending", discussing the subject from the standpoint of money, time, energy and the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served.

The Young People's Union of the United Church, met in the programme at their last meeting which was in charge of the Christian Culture Group of which Miss Jeanne Richardson is convener. The programme was featured by an address by "Politicans Incorporated" with Miss Margaret McCrae as speaker filling the role of Professor Proper, founder of the organization, with Miss Ruth Hall as secretary. The remainder of the programme was in charge of Miss Dorothy Sager as accompanist, Mrs. Stanley Webb of Thomasburg delighted the audience with one of her inimitable readings. A feature of the programme was an address by Rev. M. O. Price of Actinolite who gave a most interesting address on the theme "Spending", discussing the subject from the standpoint of money, time, energy and the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served.

Stanford Eggleton, Marmora's noted hunter, fisher and man of the woods had an interesting story for the newspapers when he arrived in the week-end at his home after a long sojourn in the woods. Walking from Traynor's Eddy to Burnt Lake Falls in Mac Nab Township of Methuen Township on Thursday of last week, Eggleton found a bear which across no less than twenty-two deer. And I'm sure I didn't count the second one twice", is emphatically declared. When asked what was the largest number of deer he had seen at one time, Nimrod was the prompt reply of the hunter.

A very much enjoyed and interesting social evening, was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Christ C. of St. Andrew's Women's Association. Hill and Miss Winifred Sabine gave a very pleasing pianoforte duet. Allan Smith, M.A., gave some very amusing and interesting excerpts from "Believe It Or Not". Miss Flora Sanderson delighted with vocal selections by vocal numbers. Curtis and Miss Hilda Thompson, the negative side by E. G. Proctor and Allan Smith, M.A. The affirmative side won. CORONATION IN MAY, 1937

From now forward much attention will be paid to the thought of the coronation of His Majesty, King Edward Eighth which is likely to take place a year from the coming May.

Some time ago it was reported in the New York press that the coronation would be marked by a stimulation of trade and styles, fashion leaders saying that gowns for the ceremony more than a year hence in London, England, would affect dress in America greatly. At a style meeting in New York the opinion was expressed that "Great Britain can give this country what we want and need through leadership in the creation of casual clothes."

Making of gowns, resetting of jewels will be part of the preparations and there is not the slightest doubt that the King will continue to be an important style leader.

King Edward since his accession has manifested great solicitude for the people in everything about the court which might affect them, that he gives every proof that he is the true democratic monarch.

The ceremony of coronation is one of those functions and ceremonies which have come down and grown through the ages of British history. There is something soul inspiring in such a ceremony with all the rites which accompany it and the symbolism it enshrines. Britishers feel that in this coronation of their king they have what non-monarchical peoples have not, something which has a message and a lesson for the people as well as for the monarch and for all those in authority. It is a great religious rite.

A DANGEROUS ALLIANCE

An unholy alliance which makes for danger on the highway and is defeating a safety meeting in New York City as a combination of ancient and inadequate highways, automobiles that are too old for safe use and that have been allowed to become old before their time, antiquated and conflicting laws, drivers and pedestrians who do not know, and what is worse who do not care to know how to conduct themselves safely and courteously.

It was pointed out that there is no one single cause for accidents, and no victory for safety is to be won by debating whether the chief hazard of the highways is liquor or excessive speed or carelessness or defective brakes, but rather by recognizing that all of these and many other hazards combine to increase the casualty lists, and that not one of these dangers but all must be done away with.

The interest of all the people in safety must be sustained at all times and every agency, political, newspapers, radio, and every other factor used to keep before the people the requirements of safety, and the individual's accountability for safety.

APPLES 'DELICIOUS' TO BRITISHERS

British Industrial News refers to the delicious quality of Canadian apples and points to the championship and silver Canadian apples at the Imperial Fruit Show at Cardiff, Wales. The Industrial News says—"Canada was awarded the Blue Ribband for the Champion Dessert Apple of the British Empire, at the recent Imperial Fruit Show held at Cardiff, Wales. The winning entry was an exhibit of apples of the 'Delicious' variety submitted by Mr. James Lowe, of Oyama, British Columbia, who has repeatedly tried to win the distinction at past exhibitions. His success is the more gratifying in that it was achieved in the face of the keenest competition ever known at the Fruit Show.

"A Canadian exhibit of 'Jonathan' apples gained very high commendation. Mr. W. B. Gornall, Canadian Fruit Trade Commissioner, stated that Canadian entries in all classes compared over seventy and were of uniformly excellent quality.

"By winning the championship Canada has regained a distinction which it won some years ago when her 'MacIntosh Red' apples swept the board."

ONE NEWSPAPER IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, one of the large cities of Canada has but one newspaper now, the Herald having ceased publication after serving the community for many years. Now the duty of serving that public of a city of great importance devolves solely upon the Spectator, for serve as they will the other newspapers which come into Hamilton, cannot serve so intimately and so entirely the city as the local newspaper. This it is which in the final analysis the community places its dependence upon, for outside papers can spare but a small share of their attention upon even a great city. The Herald has yielded to the heavy financial pressure which is entailed in the production of a modern newspaper which has a more varied outlook than the newspapers of years ago.

Newspapers which go out of circulation are not forgotten as they have given devoted service to the community in the daily chronicling of events as they occur and in their editorial outlook which has left marks on their community.

"A PARTY"

Spring will stage a party,
In my garden soon,
You are all invited
To partake of its perfume.

Meet Mr. Robin Redbreast,
A rather daring host,
Who will sing for you
All his prettiest notes.

Lovely Mrs. Lilac in mauve
Will look her best,
And the Tulip Family
In gay colours will be dressed.

On that day, my Lady Iris
Will order Heaven's blue,
And the Maples in lovely green
Shal crown it all for you.

THOMAS GUTHRIE MARQUIS, noted Canadian author, died this week at his home in Toronto, after completing his last copy, a book review for the Toronto Saturday Night. Tom Marquis was a man of great force and personality. His was always a driving force, whether in studies, in sport, or in his work as a writer which occupied or in his work as a writer which occupied his last days. He wrote a number of books, mostly of an historical nature, his first effort in this line being "Marguerite de Roberval," a story founded upon a legend of early Canada concerning a high born young French lady and her lover, one not to the purple born, who were cast upon an island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and remained there by an irate aristocrat of an uncle. The life of the lovers upon the island forms the text of the story. Thomas Guthrie Marquis contributed two volumes to the "Chronicles of Canada", a rather ambitious work in about forty small volumes, each volume telling a separate chapter in the life of Canada. He also wrote a number of other volumes, mostly historical, and an occasional historical novel. Queen's University graduates of nearly half a century ago will remember big Tom Marquis and his exploits on the football field. Afterwards when principal of the Brockville Collegiate Institute he was a source of strength to the Brockville football team which played in the Quebec Union and was generally in the finals, playing off on one or two occasions for the dominion title. In his varied career Tom Marquis essayed the sweets and sours of newspaper life and for a time was editor of the Ottawa Free Press.

MYSTERIOUS INCIDENT IN A DALLAS DEPARTMENT STORE ELEVATOR is told by our correspondent. The elevator was fairly well filled, when suddenly a well built woman swung a haymaker to the jaw of a man standing near her. The man took it without remark and the passengers were not enlightened as to the cause of the declaration of war. Leaving the elevator a woman passenger spoke to her six-year-old son, "I wonder why that woman slapped that man?" "Aw," said the boy, "I pinched her, and she thought it was the man." Spoke the man is still wondering what he got the poke for.

20 YEARS AGO

At a meeting of the city council considerable discussion took place in reference to a recommendation from the Public Works Committee to the effect that the ratepayers on Front and Bridge Streets should pay the expense of flushing the pavement. By a majority of votes it was decided that the flushing should be done for out of the general tax of the city. A recommendation from the Executive Committee that the city invest $90,000.00 of the sinking fund in Government bonds was unanimously adopted. Mayor H. F. Ketcheson informed the council that Mr. Thos. Ritchie of this city had donated the sum of $15,000.00 for the erection of a Children's Shelter here. The furnishings and the placing of the grounds in proper shape would take about $5,000.00 which the city and County of Hastings will have to provide for. The Children's Aid Society has appointed Messrs. A. R. Bailey and John Elliott as their representatives on the committee and on motion Mayor Ketchesson and the chairman of the Finance Committee, Ald. W. Woodley, were appointed to represent the city.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over after supper and pop and Harvey and Gladdis got into the Riley Shiffsky flie, sither or tnem having saw it but both of them having had enough about it in the papers to argue about it, and then pop, for land sakes can you think of anything more instructive to converse about, has the art of conversation expired?

It must be dead in its tracks, to listen to Gladdis and Harvey and pop said. You wrong us, not to speak of being unfair to the art of conversation, it would be no true basis at all for us to tawk on any number of more highly intellectual topicks, would it, Harvey? he said.

It would be a pretty poor basis, said. Will you begin or shall I? he said, and Gladdis started in. Do you think the Soviet-French pact will have any far reaching results? he said.

Well yes and no, or rather, in the last annalisis, no and yes, Harvey said, I mean although it will hardly affect the worldwide monetary set up or the stabilizing scheme, yet it mite have a repercushion in the Mongolian situation, with naturally brings us to the question of the open door, he said, and pop said, Not to speak of the closed door in Manchuria, and of the encouraging effect the strong proletarian drift, he said.

Are you a Leftist or a Rightist? Harvey said, and pop said, I think I detect a tendency that naturally brings up the deflation problem. Would you say that there is just a sound fiscal program? he said.

Well, I'd say potentially It is hypothetically it isn't, Harvey said. Nationalism versus internationalism is a vital problem today, he said, and Gladdis said, My stars, a vital problem Gladdis is less tawk and a little bridge.

The result being ma got the table and her party soon nobody was glad to learn she is able to be around the house part of time.

RECALLS EARLY RAILROADING DAYS

T. S. Wells, Bloomfield Tells of Hand Brakes and Wood Burning Locomotives

A career of forty-seven years of railroading in this section and in eastern Ontario was culminated yesterday at Bloomfield with the retirement of T. S. Wells, on pension of the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Wells has been station agent at Bloomfield for the past fourteen years and intends to make his home in that village.

Mr. Wells reminisced over early railroading days on his retirement yesterday. When he was appointed station agent at Cano, Ontario, for the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, now part of the C.P.R. in July 1889 there was only one wood burning locomotive. There was also only one sliding with wooden rails, handed on top with iron strips. At that time locomotives were not numbered, but were known by the names of prominent men and were familiarly nicknamed by engineers and passengers after such names as C. W. Flower, G. B. Hinderman, Peter Maclaren and H. C. Roberts were replaced with numbers.

Lots of Hard Work

Mr. Wells also recalled that trainmen were called upon to brake their trains into the stations, and down grades by hand pulling the cord from engine to van for signalling purposes. There were no patent couplers or air brakes on the trains at the time.

During his term as railroader he served in many capacities, including night and day operator, night and day yard master, several agencies night and day baggage man, train dispatcher, relieving car accountant and relieving train master. Mr. Wells worked for the Kingston and Pembroke Railway for 22 years coming to the Canadian Northern Railway line on September 28, 1911 when this line was opened for traffic between Toronto and Trenton, and was stationed at Frighton for 12 years. When that station was closed on the amalgamation of the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk, Mr. Wells was transferred to Orlole, Ont., later coming to Bloomfield.

During his forty-seven years the veteran railroad man worked under thirteen different superintendents and has the record of never being late for duty or to the office for a single misdemeanor of any kind.

FLOODED SECTION HAS LONG HISTORY

More Thickly Populated in Old Days Than Now Says A. Lasier

In direct contrast to previous statements made that the present Murray Ward south of bridge street, scene of one of the most disastrous floods in the history of the city recently was sparsely occupied fifty and more years ago, Mr. Alf Lasier, Coleman street, well known local resident, from old records kept, has produced the names of many old and well-remembered families who lived on the west side of the river below West Bridge street, occupying the territory from that street almost to the big bridge itself.

"That part contained more people and houses then than it does now," stated Mr. Lasier.

Included among the many families who lived in the now-stricken flood area fifty years ago were Mr. "Doc" MacGhie, James Hill, A. Harnden, Henry Sera, the Hon. Billa Flint, the Old Folks' Home (which then was situated about Coleman and Colborne streets), Mrs. Sarah Maybee, W. Langman, W. Reeves, Charles Reeves, William Britton, Thomas McHugh, Robert Bogle, John Rowan, Louis Marlowe, S. French, Capt. Wallace, Harry Day, William Smith, Paul Smith, Fred Andrews, Timothy Somner, W. Hopkins, James Coulson, Patrick Keegan, James Reeves, John Brooks, Robert Baker, Chas. Baker, Mr. Hathaway, Chas. Green, William Gallagher, R. White, Wm. Fahey, J. Wilson, Mr. Yeigmuth, John Cronin, John Shortt, John Landon, Neil Cronin, James MacAulay, Geo. Ellis, "Taffy" Clarke (groom), A. G. Vermilyea, William Black, William Rogers (King Rogers, just deceased).

"They say the worst flood was in 1918, but we had more water in this one, and more damage was caused," stated Mr. Lasier, who was one of the heaviest sufferers in the flood area.

"I had twice as much damage caused by this flood than I had in the one in the year 1918," he added.

EXAMINE BULLET FOUND IN BODY

Dr. Frankish Will Determine if it Was Fired From .32 Rifle

Pembroke, Ont., April 4 (CP)—Dr. R. R. Frankish, Ontario Government medico-legal expert, will be asked to examine a bullet extracted Thursday from the body of Lawrence Larochelle, 35-year-old trapper, whose body was found in his cabin near Stonecliffe, 80 miles west of Pembroke, to determine if the bullet was fired from a .32 calibre rifle which was found across the dead trapper's chest.

Pending receipt of a report from Dr. Frankish and completion of a post-mortem, the inquest, opened yesterday afternoon, has been adjourned.

Two wounds were discovered in the trapper's body, one in the chest and another through the head, but authorities still incline towards the theory constructe Thursday because of the absence of any evidence of a struggle in the cabin or tracks of anyone but Larochelle and his dog in the snow outside.

SALEM

Salem—A very enjoyable evening was spent by Salem Community with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sparrow on March 31, it being occasion of Mr. Sparrow's seventy-sixth birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow were also presented with gifts for their long and faithful service in Salem Sabbath School.

Mr. Sparrow was presented with a Bible on which was engraved in gilt his name, also name of Salem Sabbath School and date 1936. He was also given a pair of Road kid gloves and a box of chocolates. Mrs. Sparrow was presented with a handsome bouquet of satin boudoir blankets.

Both very graciously replied after which Rev. Mr. Clarke spoke very highly of work in Sunday School of Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow and the value of such important work.

Lunch was served and a birthday cake with its accustomed candles which Mr. Sparrow extinguished.

Following is the address:

"Salem Community,
"March 31, 1936.

"Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow,

"Dear Friends,—

"It affords us a great deal of pleasure as neighbours and friends to gather in this home tonight.

"Too often in gatherings of this kind there is a note of sadness when our friends are leaving the community;

"We are glad this not not one of those occasions.

"We had a three-fold purpose for assembling here this evening.

"First.—We came to hold our Community League meeting.

"Second—We wished Mr. Sparrow to have some part in the celebration of your birthday.

"Third—We desired to express in some tangible form our sincere appreciation for the whole-hearted manner in which you both have served our Sabbath School at Salem.

"As neighbours and friends coming in and out of your home for many years past, we always received a hearty welcome.

"Your home has been one where God has been honored and where the worthwhile things of life have been given first place.

"You have both entered heartily into every phase of our community life, with young and old, both socially and spiritually, giving cheerfully of your time talents and means.

"We heartily congratulate you tonight, Mr. Sparrow on being able to celebrate your seventy-sixth birthday in the degree of health and strength which you now enjoy and all join in wishing you many happy years of the future.

"While you have held and are still holding various positions in connection with our church life, we wish particularly to speak of the willing and faithful service you have rendered Salem Sabbath School as Superintendent for the past thirty-six years, Rarely were you absent. Many in the community have grown from childhood into manhood and womanhood knowing no other superintendent and be who helps a child along the pathway of life helps humanity.

"To you Mrs. Sparrow we wish to voice our appreciation for the lengthy efficient service you have and are still giving our Sabbath School as primary class teacher. Your work has ever been with the little ones and what greater service could any one render than that of teaching little children the true principles of Christian living.

"Unitedly your motto seems to have been,

"To labor with zest and give your best

"For the sweetness and joy of the quest.

"To help folks along, with a hand and a song.

"Why! that's the whole sunshine of living."

"Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow, along with our very best wishes for your future happiness, we ask you to accept these gifts hoping that in the use of them they may ever remind you of friends.

"May you long be spared to continue your service in the Master's Vineyard.

"Signed on behalf of community and Salem Sabbath School)—Evelyn Hanna, Leslie McLaren, Mrs. George Badgley, Mrs. Jas. Sills."

AMATEUR HOUR PROGRAM AT O.E.S. REGULAR MEETING

Officers of Belleville Chapter Are Elected For Ensuing Year

At the regular meeting of Belleville Chapter No. 56 O.E.S. held last evening in the Oddfellows' Temple, Front street the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Worthy Matron—Mrs. Pauline Liddle.
Worthy Patron—Mr. Charles Brown.
Associate Matron—Mrs. Grace McEwan.
Associate Patron—Mr. Harry Lee.
Conductress—Mrs. Cynthia Barlow.
Associate Conductress—Mrs. Lillian Lee.
Secretary—Miss Mary Carmichael.
Treasurer—Mrs. Lelya Smith.

A delightful innovation in the entertainment of the evening was a Major Bowes' Amateur Hour held at the close of the Chapter. The capricious wheel of fortune, in the persons of Mrs. Ethel Hamilton as announcer of the NBC "mike" and the gracious Jimmy Wallington, provided all the atmosphere and setting for the feat.

Major Bowes was there in person, introduced and heralded the guest relentlessly, but his gay banter arranged for the appearance of his victims. The hour was well consensed. Mrs. Hamilton's clever technologist finale were rivals for the prize, but winsome Susie, whose ambitions are to sing grand opera sang her way into the hearts of her audience and received the most votes.

On behalf of the Chapter, the Associate Matron, Mrs. Thelma Liddle moved a very hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Harry Lee and to the program. This was seconded by Mrs. Ethel Adams, Worthy Matron.

Peg-leg Delarue

A SHORT STORY
by
MRS. G. H. SPAFFORD

It was in his wild North-country home that Peg-leg Delarue first earned his nickname, when, care-less and barefooted, he was bitten by that most deadly off all Canadian denizens, the puff-adder.

But with a smile and a joke he would demonstrate the wonderful possibilities of an artificial limb, simple though it was—a stout piece of iron-shod hickory, padded to fit into the knee, and strapped firmly to his thigh.

No builder more sure than he in the smaller, when balancing on the unfinished edges of a brick wall.

He cooked in the lumber camps, ran trap-lines and sold furs; and he added odds of no mean size.

Then, late one Winter the fates dealt harshly with him. Sleeping in a camp, he froze the one good foot, and was threatened with the loss of his knee.

The giant river-drivers; French Habitants, men who depended for their lives upon their strength, at last began to show signs of contempt for their less formidable friend.

Many and various were the suggestions offered to Peg-leg to cure the trouble. These finally persuaded him to use skunk-oil of his own manufacture. Insisting "drunk men," they silenced, that night, for ever.

Bets brought about two fortunate results—one, that the terrible odours prevailed them from venturing near to molest him; the other, that by the perversity of fate, it brought back the color to the stricken flesh.

Returning to the old strenuous existence, Peg-leg scored the difference—a touch of malice in the jests played him, a tone of contempt in their banter.

Now the year broke up with a roar. The Jay of Spinks became the scene of endless rafts of logs. The Moon River was full of them from end to end.

These tossing, spinning, current-swept logs; born in tangled heaps; there rushing blindly; were driven, guided, and freed, by the burly lumber-jacks, armed with poles and shod with spikes—jarring log here, steadying one there, seeking the key to every jam, making light as a feather, and swift as a bird on the brink of death.

And above the roar of rushing icy waters, and the rumble of the logs, rose the old French River songs of the Habitants.

Preparations were already being made in Belleville to welcome the drivers of the North. On Front Street shops were barricaded, planks laid down to bear the brunt of many feet, and Mother Cully the chief of the women, ventured on the streets after dark.

Money and liquor flowed like water. The more potent and fiery was the drink the better it was liked. Fists, knives, and cruel spikes were used freely and brawling was the order in the stores, and on the high board walks above the deeply rutted mud in the street.

In the camp at Rossmore, across the Bay, not far from where the Ferry Landed, games were in progress, and Peg-leg Delarue was watching the wrestling matches, from which many a splendid figure of manhood emerged with pride crushed, and features stamped out of all recognition.

LaPine, a giant Frenchman, eyed Peg-leg for a few moments, then called out You one dam fine specimen of a man, no? Ha! Ha!"

"I'm game, if you can do it" answered Delarue.

A roar of laughter greeted the challenge.

"Bien! Bien, goddem, you mak' fun of me!"

"I defy you, said the undaunted Peg-leg in his precise English, "to throw me—straight wrestling—no tricks barred."

Again the Camp roared applause. "By gar, you think you know me, eh?"

"No, but you can't throw me, either."

In a trice LaPine's coat was off, and the challenge was accepted with shouts.

Peg-leg himself was a bundle of whipcord. But the crowd jeered openly, laughed, anticipating cruel sport.

LaPine came at him with a bellow of rage, his small eyes blazing set, driving his wooden leg firmly into the ground, crouched low suddenly, and catching both his legs below him heavily to the surprise and joy of the audience.

"Oh la Peg-leg" they called, as LaPine charged again, and tried once to crush the smaller man in his embrace. He failed completely as his victim sank below his guard and tripped him once more.

Beside himself with anger, after another attempt, he caught Peg-leg about the shoulders and threw him with all his force.

Striking around on his wooden leg, still firmly planted, Peg-leg wrenched his hands to the ground and sprang once like a steel spring-ing, and again the same thing happened, and then the exhausted LaPine, suddenly aware of the trick the little man had played him, threw back his head in a hearty laugh at his own expense.

The whole Camp rocked with mirth, and finally LaPine's voice was heard, as he shook hands with the triumphant Delarue, "After dis I bets all ma monnie on you, bein'

Green Room Club Completes Season With One Act Plays at Collegiate

Completing a particularly successful season in dramatic work, the Green Room Club of the Belleville Collegiate presented a program of three one-act plays in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening which introduced the newer members of the organization who will carry the torch next year. These junior actors gave promise of careers before the footlights of the school stage that will carry on the tradition of fine acting at the Collegiate.

The plays, "Fantastic Flight," "Little Glass Houses" and "The Poison Party" were ably directed by Miss Nellie Merry, Miss Mary Hooton and Miss Rose Lazier, and added interest in the evening's entertainment was the interlude of dancing by pupils of Miss Mary Forster.

"Fantastic Flight"

The variety of appeal in the plays was manifold. The first was a look into the future when a second Noah hoped to give mad mad to the world by a fantastic scheme of saving one individual in each of the entire population of the globe had been destroyed by poison gas liberated by enemies in a new world war. The young actors gave an understanding characterization of the various roles. Each possessed a splendid speaking voice and their interpretation of the visionary and worldly characters was fine indeed. In the latter part of the play the stage setting and the lighting mean a great deal to the success of the performance and the perfect timing of darkness and light was a contribution to the stage management.

"Little Glass Houses"

The second play "Little Glass Houses" was a witty comedy in the manner of the early nineties. Distinguished feminine visitors at a Health Resort, the popularity of an enchanting opera star, One of their number discovers that she is the former nursemaid and the ladies of quality plan to have her expelled from the resort. The prima donna cleverly turns the tables on them by using to their attention certain regrettable incidents in their family history. The stage plays and the ladies go. The bevy of girls who took part in this play were exceeding indeed and captured the artificial spirit of this "Gilbert and Sullivan" old-world costumes worn with such distinction made the scene very beautiful, and the striking appearance of the intriguing Madame Rossigrol was a fitting climax to the play. The cast included: Madame Rossigrol, Vera Wallbridge; Lady Tibberington, Lillian Mercer; Mrs. Carruthers, Phyllis Archibald; Mrs. Orpington, Janet Adams; Jane Orpington, Miss Adams.

"The Poison Party"

The last play of the evening was one that has been very popular on the programs of the Dramatic Festivals throughout Canada this season. "The Poison Party" takes place on the famous queenly plotters of mediaeval days. The scene is a palace ball to rid herself of two undesirable characters she has invited by her guests to a social gathering at the royal entertainment is under the direction of Bianca all are on the point of death. The poisoned cup is the favorite but the cut short by the announcement that a pet rabbit has drunk from the cup in which they presented the play with many jokes. The rabbit proved the list of "regulars" next season. The Players were: Bianca, Dorothy Hogg; Servant, Donald Grant; Cardigal, Tom Carruthers; Duke, Walter Fryer; Duchess, Rose Beaujolla, Margaret Forster; Monsieur Montgrave, Gordon Wills.

The stage settings in each case were remarkably fine, and the lighting effects in keeping with the periods portrayed. The dancers who delighted the audience between acts gave skilful and graceful performances. Their numbers were: Tap dance, Mary Campbell, tap number, Sally Johnson and Lola Wood, acrobatic, Eunice Reid.

The director of each play who was introduced 15 the large audience by Douglas Newby, president of the Literary Society in a brief outline of the particular feature of which she was in charge and announced the names of the cast. At the close of the evening it announced that an hour's dancing had been arranged.

THOMASBURG W. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Thomasburg W. A. met as the home of Mrs. Ed. Wray, with Mrs. with the president, Mrs. Ed Way, in the chair. The meeting opened by singing hymn, 405 followed by reading the Lord's prayer in unison. Nine ladies present answered roll call by a verse of Scripture containing the name of a flower. Minutes of last one on hand of $53.39 was shown by the treasurer's report. After the discussion of business Mrs. Wray and Mrs. R. Bateman took charge of the program by singing duet, "Sweet Peace." Adams offered prayer. Mrs. L. Fox read the Scripture lesson Matt. 6. Mrs. M. English gave a reading. A series of readings which were most interesting were given by Mrs. F. McTaggart, Mrs. J. R. Bateman and Mrs. F. Porter. A hymn followed. Mrs. Adams gave a reading. It was decided that roll call for next meeting would be a currents event. The president closed the meeting by the Mizpah Benediction.

COURAGE

A STORY BY
MRS. GERALD N. SPAFFORD

To Legends of Ye Hidden Treasure of Mussanagh. Where Yet Let No Man Dare to Set Spade to Soil by Light of Sun Lest Torment Come Him by Night and Haunt Him by Day.

Four Good men and true' tramped down a lonely country road. They had expected a moon, but she lay behind the clouds and left the world in eerie darkness.

Each man carried a lantern, only one of which was burning, for the rest were old, and either a pick or a shovel.

Their nicknames aptly described them—'Lanky' Wilson, with sixteen grey eyes in a lean commissariat; 'Half-Pint' Jackson, whose sparkling black eyes peered out from a real skeleton; and 'Bull' Lafferty, real aristocrat; and with a 'Touch of the Irish' and a build and features suggesting the pugilist.

They had left behind them the lights of the bay bridge, which connected the island with the shores of Ontario and their path wound between dark fields and dense woodlands, to a spit of land looking out upon more open waters.

Hallowmas, banned by the indians, had once thrilled to the stirring drums of native powwows, but the hopes had given way to a large and thriving hotel, a busy dock, and a merry-go-round, which was now fallen in ruins, decaying with time, once booming fairground, was as silent as the grave.

Only a few men followed the deserted path between the silent trees smoke from the camp fires curled up the Bay, curled up in a whitish cloud into the darkness overhead.

"Last time we came here," said 'Lanky' Wilson, "was during the daytime but didn't none of us care to go against the old 'Spook of the Bay' overnight. A bottle of gin, and took a swig before we began digging, and I'll be a son of a gun if digging, till we was all so tired we could scarcely stand. The man leans over and shouts, "I'm hit something." Another one shouts back, "I'm hit." The third one fell in pick and all, and yells out, "The skin's afire!" Sure enough there was smoke coming out of it and the men ran for all they were worth and never came back."

"You mighta struck oil," grunted 'Half-pint.'

"Well, if we do that, we needn't worry if we can't get a job," exclaimed the delighted Half-pint.

And Bull laughed, "You guys had too much licker in you—you was just 'seeing things'.

Down a lonely road came the other's point of view. It was good, they argued much in his own mind, to have Lanky's company. Otto was too sold a fellow to the stand-offish. Half-pint was too starved and business-like. But Bull Lafferty was their rock steadies. They all knew how he had fought in the trenches, and seeing his pal struck down at his side by a sniper's bullet, had made his way through the mud to his Sergeant. "Give me a bag of bombs and a good slug of gin, and I'll get the man that killed my Buddy." With the one under his belt and the other over, he had crept across a barbarroved 'No-Man's Land', and, bearing by voices, had peered down a steep ladder into an enormous bomb-proof shelter. Telling out "Take that, you Huns" He had thrown his bombs with devastating effect, and when nothing remained to him but his rifle and bayonet, called on the occupants to come up and surrender.

Gaining bitterly, he had driven them, fourteen in all, single-handed into his own trench.

On this night courages they depended more than they were aware, for they knew they all had it!

Working frantically, they pried and wrestled impatiently at the iron-bound boards, and at last the last rocks that wedged it moved slightly—then, with a final effort, removed it.

The suddenness of the explosion that resulted drew the cags from their beach as much from fright as curiosity. Much of the debris and earthing wind that followed struck them, but Bull was the first to scramble to the top, and with a shout of triumph, completely blocked the hole again, as they made the fastest time back to their bed over Mount in their lives.

Exciting Novel to Appear on Screen, Story of International Spies Made Into Picture

"The House of a Thousand Candles" was a popular Meredith Nicholson novel during the exciting days of the early World War. For the Republic picture, its vivid and thrilling story of international spies has been retained, while H. W. Hanemann and Paul Perez, noted scenarist; Andre Bohem, and Mrs. Wallace Reid, who collaborated on the screen play, have modernized the story by using the newspaper as a background for the love scenes.

Mae Clarke and Phillips Holmes are presented in the romantic roles of "The House of a Thousand Candles" which will open at the Capitol Theatre on Monday for a two day run. Ruth Warren, fiery Spanish dancer; Irving Pichel, one of the most polished villains of the screen, and Fred Walton, noted English comedian, are also in the supporting cast.

The current interest in war activities and world-wide threats of war are capitalized upon the Republic picture, in the story of which reveals scores of British intrigue within the United States, and other foreign powers maintain their political hegemony in this country. At the same time it wins audience sympathy for the attitude of the United States in its desire to maintain their political hegemony in this country. At the same time it wins audience sympathy for the attitude of the United States in its desire to maintain their political hegemony in this country. At the same time it wins audience sympathy for the attitude of the United States in its desire to maintain their political hegemony in this country.

Pichel plays the dominant character of "Sebastian," master spy; Miss Moreno, as "Raquel," is the beautiful adventuress in his pleasure resort and also his alluring accomplice; Miss Clarke as "Carol," daughter of "Tony" (Holmes), who against his will becomes a spy ring leader in his dangerous mission as an English spy carrying a message to Sir Henry which Britain hopes to avert a war threatened to break in forty-eight hours. Holmes plays "Jill," cockney valet to Tony, who not only provides comic relief but brings rescuing aid at crucial moments.

Sebastian's pleasure resort, the title name, is patronized by the elite of London, while in the master spy provides an atmosphere of great luxury. Here he holds secret conferences. The current Italo-Ethiopian war is forty-eight newest innovation in modern pictures—the use of radio in making it possible for Sebastian broadcasting coded messages to his confederates in all parts of the world. "The Bowery Boy Girl"

Laurel and Hardy Offer a Mixture Laugh Tonic—"Call of the Prairie" Gripping

Laurel and Hardy are themselves again in "The Bowery Boy Girl," a version of Hall's famous light opera which was produced by the Belleville Operatic Society, the gay buffoons, despite their colorful surroundings, remain true to their original comedy characters and the Stan and "Ollie" the public has come to know and love for the past two years for several months.

Whoever was responsible for Belleville Operatic Society's musical classic as a background for Laurel and Hardy's antics has done a splendid job. The music, sometimes illuminating and again pleading, is altogether delightful. The story of the original story of "The Bohemian Girl" used in the Laurel and Hardy version is sufficient to form the peg upon which a quick-paced and fast moving story is hung. You will enjoy "The Bohemian Girl" from beginning to end as a result of Laurel and Hardy's supporting cast.

It would spoil the pleasure of those who have not seen this delightful 61-0-M feature comedy to reveal the story here. Suffice to say that it is a story of gypsies and the band of gypsies of which Laurel and Hardy are members. Romantic interest is sustained by Antonio Moreno, of whom Miss Busch, "Ollie's" nagging wife, is enamored.

Jacqueline Wells is seen in the role of Arline, the fair young gypsy lady while four-year-old Darla Hood is the same character as a child. Others who take principals in the cast, all of whom give creditable performances are Charles Finlayson and William F. Carleton.

"Call of the Prairie"

The second which greeted their initial screen debut in western roles in "Rainbow Ranger" series in 1935 and Jimmy Ellison in the latest Charles "Buck" Jones-Jack Alcott "Cheyenne" adventure, "Call of the Prairie", announced as the second Rainbow Ranger on the same program.

Red-blooded, fearless, happy-go-lucky, quick-on-the-draw, hard-riding "pals" of the plains, these two prototypes of the famous Mulford western fiction characters, "Hop-Along Cassidy" and Johnny Nelson, bring to the screen stirring performances that ring with sincerity. Capably directed by Howard Bretherton, "Call of the Prairie" is the screen adaptation of Mulford's book, "Hop-Along Cassidy's Protege." It is a stirring comedy-drama that you will enjoy from start to finish. Two complete shows will be presented tonight (Saturday), the first starting at 7.00 p.m. and the second complete show at

Is it fair to the child to make him take a laxative that nauseates him?

Common-sense says No. Doctors say it can be dangerous. For the revulsion a child feels when given a harsh laxative may upset his entire system. And usually leave him worse off than before.

The sensible thing is to give him a laxative made especially for children—a laxative with a pleasant taste—a laxative that millions of mothers the world over depend upon faithfully—Castoria.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Blagar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Falconbridge Nickel—Concluding a very complete and interesting story of Falconbridge Nickel Mines. The Mining Analyst writes:

With demand for nickel-copper especially remarkably strong, and moderately improvement in general business conditions, Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited, during 1935, has been displaying a considerable degree of earning efficiency. Furthermore of the upturn in both revenues and earnings has been finished ahead of the rest.

Explanation for the unusually favorable showing being made by Falconbridge Nickel Mines is small part with benefits deriving from an aggressive policy of property expansion and development undertaken throughout depression years. Not only has sharp increase in ore reserves served materially to enhance its position among leading producers of nickel-copper ore, but also extension of its representation in the sales field has resulted in materially widened its sources of income. Last year's departure into the field of nickel-copper refining products metals, each for separate marketing purposes, is also of a mined concentrate—began in 1935, to yield marketable products. While as yet this practice more than offsets above a tie-up of values in process. It will not be long before the normal flow reaches the marketing stage, a procedure which should of itself, add substantially low-cost operating basis. And an improving statistical position throughout the entire metal trade combines with continued expansion in demand from the automotive industry, to indicate considerable further extension of earnings gains from here out.

The company currently omits per share dividends on which are being paid at quarterly intervals—is in a position of taking care of a considerable portion of its requirements for these sums from current earnings. Such a policy would seem to be the most desirable type mining equities for those seeking combination of capital appreciation incident to a rising general business momentum.

The advance in Nevada to a new high is attracting attention. Assuming that the copper stocks will follow the trend of metals there is considerable basis for the long range buying of Nevada Consolidated. The statistical position of the metal is as good as it has been for years, as any time since the war, and some countries are using copper at the rate of 1929 and 1930. Meaning that the foreign situation will at least simmer down so that consumption of this metal will grow in various European countries, there is considerable basis for belief of steadily increasing use of copper, with higher prices in the next few years.

Dominion Bridge to Get Good Share—Control is understood unofficially that, during the past month, substantial purchases have been made whereby the Dominion Bridge Company Limited will be interested in the construction of the $5000 tons of steel or about $600,000 worth of business involved. Anyone who are spending nearly $10,000,000 on a new paper mill during the next two years.

Will The Next Upward Swing Be The Most Spectacular?—"Dollar Diplomacy" Stocks?—In order to have a great big bull market the basis must be laid by a period of earnings, advancing dividends, split-ups, increasingly active trade, all of which are the thought in mind the stage is being set for the next big upward swing, which will be the most spectacular in history.

UNBROKEN, SILENT WALKS TO DEATH

Keeper Does Not Look

"There was another man there," she said, military warden, Col. Mark O. Checkley—it was he accompanied the prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., of Hunterdon County—the man, who was active in the prosecution of her husband—refused flatly to join in any request to save Bruno Hauptmann.

A constable came to Trenton late in the day from Flemington and demanded Wendel be turned over to him under Mrs. Hauptmann's compulsion.

When his demand was refused, he left a detainer. It was still there today. Most probably it will never be exercised. Reason for it no longer exists.

Warden Gives "Break"

It was Wendel's removal to Flemington from Hauptmann's cell-block that signalled the current he turned on. Bob Lee heard was heard at when the voice struck. He looked up only when the prison physician followed.

"His pulse is dead".

They made very sure of it, too. Six doctors, one at a time, stepped forward, listened for the throb of the heart of a man who the jury had said could kidnap and kill a little baby, then stepped back. Twice they did this.

2000 Volts Used

Then, as though still not sure the lightning's flash of 2,000 volts had done their work, the doctors conferred around the chair in which the body sagged against the weight of the restraining straps.

Hauptmann was dead when Sheriff and Wesler announced it. Col. Checkley raised his hand. The men were pointed at a large clock which a guard had been holding aloft throughout the dead house drama.

"It is 8.47 and one-half," he said.

That will go down as the official time that the 36-year-old, German born carpenter died. But he must have died long before that moment, he died that night in Flemington, February 13, 1935, when a jury of country folk—eight men and four women—found him guilty of having murdered the Lindbergh baby. It, not then, he must surely have died when the court of Errors and Appeals turned a deaf ear to his plea for a new trial, when the United States Supreme Court wrote a terse "denied" to his appeal, when the Court of Pardons twice refused to grant him mercy.

Almshouse Preserved

Never, though, was his armor of iron nerves pierced. There were times during the 32 months that extended between his arrest in the Bronx, New York, and his death in Trenton that he wept, but he never broke.

Then the chief there remained something of the aloofness that marked his months as a prisoner in the big stone almshouse at Hunterdon when the current—21½ horsepower of electricity—struck.

But not afterward did the body slump.

It appeared to the witnesses to hold itself erect as though even in death the iron, the steel, the cold law itself had plagued them so long.

Hoped To Be Spared

They say Hauptmann had hoped to the very last moment they came to take him to the death room, that he would be spared once more, as Governor Harold G. Hoffman was the power he believed would save him—Governor Hoffman, who had saved him last January with a 30-day reprieve.

There was reason for his hope. The Governor had on the desk in his executive privately filled out. He had wanted to sign it, not because he believed Hauptmann innocent of the century's most infamous crime, but because he believed there were many hidden mysteries of the case still unexplored.

It wasn't until half an hour before the time fixed for Hauptmann's execution that Governor Hoffman laid the reprieve aside—unsigned. His reluctant decision not to sign it was announced after a long conference with Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

Irony of Case

With another touch of the sinister irony that has never seemed to leave the Lindbergh case until it reached Hauptmann's legal nemesis, who offered a road of escape to the Governor.

"If the Governor should issue an order of respite," the Attorney-General told Warden Kimberling five hours before the execution time, "I shall obey it."

Thus the door to escape for Hauptmann was closed until the end. Soon, who had ascertained him as "public enemy number one of the world" at the Lindbergh trial, it needed only the key in the hand of Gov. Hoffman to open it; yet it remained closed.

"I don't power to grant a further stay", the Governor said.

Wilentz Unwilling

If the Attorney-General had agreed to accept the reprieve, it is most likely the Governor would have granted one; but he said on the occasion of his first respite order that he would not interfere again unless the Attorney-General was willing.

Wilentz wasn't; so Hauptmann died.

There was another last-minute hope, that went glimmering when Bruno Hauptmann dashed to Flemington by motor in mid-afternoon and signed a statement that chief of the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped by Paul H. Wendel.

She hoped in that way to have Wendel, now held in jail here on a formal murder complaint based on a new specification, withdrawn that he kidnapped the Lindbergh child, brought within the jurisdiction of Hunterdon (Flemington) County; and she hoped thus to create a new situation, which might provide a cause for a court's staying her husband's execution pending investigation of her charges against Wendel.

Futile Effort

It was a brave effort, but futile. Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., of Hunterdon County—the man, who was active in the prosecution of her husband—refused flatly to join in any request to save Bruno Hauptmann.

A constable came to Trenton late in the day from Flemington and demanded Wendel be turned over to him under Mrs. Hauptmann's compulsion.

When his demand was refused, he left a detainer. It was still there today. Most probably it will never be exercised. Reason for it no longer exists.

Warden Gives "Break"

It was Wendel's removal to Flemington from Hauptmann's cell-block that signalled the current he turned on. Bob Lee heard was heard at when the voice struck. He looked up only when the prison physician followed.

"His pulse is dead".

They made very sure of it, too. Six doctors, one at a time, stepped forward, listened for the throb of the heart of a man who the jury had said could kidnap and kill a little baby, then stepped back. Twice they did this.

2000 Volts Used

Then, as though still not sure the lightning's flash of 2,000 volts had done their work, the doctors conferred around the chair in which the body sagged against the weight of the restraining straps.

Hauptmann was dead when Sheriff and Wesler announced it. Col. Checkley raised his hand. The men were pointed at a large clock which a guard had been holding aloft throughout the dead house drama.

"It is 8.47 and one-half," he said.

That will go down as the official time that the 36-year-old, German born carpenter died. But he must have died long before that moment, he died that night in Flemington, February 13, 1935, when a jury of country folk—eight men and four women—found him guilty of having murdered the Lindbergh baby. It, not then, he must surely have died when the court of Errors and Appeals turned a deaf ear to his plea for a new trial, when the United States Supreme Court wrote a terse "denied" to his appeal, when the Court of Pardons twice refused to grant him mercy.

Almshouse Preserved

Never, though, was his armor of iron nerves pierced. There were times during the 32 months that extended between his arrest in the Bronx, New York, and his death in Trenton that he wept, but he never broke.

Then the chief there remained something of the aloofness that marked his months as a prisoner in the big stone almshouse at Hunterdon when the current—21½ horsepower of electricity—struck.

But not afterward did the body slump.

It appeared to the witnesses to hold itself erect as though even in death the iron, the steel, the cold law itself had plagued them so long.

Hoped To Be Spared

They say Hauptmann had hoped to the very last moment they came to take him to the death room, that he would be spared once more, as Governor Harold G. Hoffman was the power he believed would save him—Governor Hoffman, who had saved him last January with a 30-day reprieve.

There was reason for his hope. The Governor had on the desk in his executive, privately filled out. He had wanted to sign it, not because he believed Hauptmann innocent of the century's most infamous crime, but because he believed there were many hidden mysteries of the case still unexplored.

It wasn't until half an hour before the time fixed for Hauptmann's execution that Governor Hoffman laid the reprieve aside—unsigned. His reluctant decision not to sign it was announced after a long conference with Attorney-General David T. Wilentz.

Irony of Case

With another touch of the sinister irony that has never seemed to leave the Lindbergh case until it reached Hauptmann's legal nemesis, who offered a road of escape to the Governor.

"If the Governor should issue an order of respite," the Attorney-General told Warden Kimberling five hours before the execution time, "I shall obey it."

Thus the door to escape for Hauptmann was closed until the end. Soon, who had ascertained him as "public enemy number one of the world" at the Lindbergh trial, it needed only the key in the hand of Gov. Hoffman to open it; yet it remained closed.

13TH CONSECUTIVE WIN REGISTERED

Cambridge led slightly at the start, both sights stroking at 30 to the minute, but Oxford drew ahead at the boathouses and maintained a slight lead at Beverley Brook and Fulham Football ground.

Even at Mile Post

Oxford's powerful stroking gained them a lead of a quarter-length at Craven Steps but Cambridge pulled of them back almost level at the mile post, both stroking 32.

The dark blues spurted to take a lead of half a length at Harrods, stroking 34. Cambridge were stroking 33.

At Rennemeinith Bridge Oxford still led by half a length and they increased their margin to three-quarters of a length at the lead mills, both eights stroking 31.

Cambridge spurted but Oxford still led at the two-mile mark. Cambridge passed the dark blues and took a lead of a quarter-length at the Doves but the latter hung on doggedly and retrieved the lost at the Mall. Both were going splendidly. Cambridge were especially good and were a quarter-length ahead at Chiswick Steps.

Lead Reduced

At Chiswick Steps the light blues were still in front, by a half-length. They spurted brilliantly to the finish and led at three miles by 1¼ lengths. Oxford were striking 33.

Oxford reduced the Cantab lead by half a length at Devonshire Meadows but Cambridge, moving powerfully and smoothly, could not put any excitement, steadily drew away and increased their lead at Barnes Bridge. Both were stroking 36 then.

At White-Hart the light blues led by 1¼ lengths and they had increased it to four lengths at Mortlake Brewery.

As the boats came into sight of the finishing line, Cambridge went all out, striking 38. Oxford spurted magnificently but Cambridge won by a great style.

None of the Cantabs appeared to be in distress at the end of the race. The Oxford eight, aided by J. C. Cherry, No. 7, and L. V. Garside, No. 5, sat up manfully after the grind was over. Cherry and Garside appeared exhausted.

TWO KILLED BY C. P. R. FREIGHT

Inquest Ordered

Dr. H. C. Beadle, Coroner for the district, was also called with the Provincial Police and after a preliminary investigation decided an inquest necessary and ordered the removal of the bodies to Brintnell's Funeral Home. Where the accident occurred, the C.P.R. failed to obstruct the view of a driver of a car approaching the track. It is understood the driver did not see the approach of the C.P.R. train, his attention being attracted by the C.N.R. that was approaching at about the same time. The Windsor train due for Trenton to conduct some Easter shopping and return in the evening, before returning home. Their place of residence is just one mile from the scene of the tragedy. It opened and after turning onto Prince Edward County Road 2 proceeded to Wooister saw the wig-wag working for the C.N.R. train.

In order to reach the C.N.R. station it is necessary to cross the C.P.R. track approaching from the south. It is believed, that Woolston failed to hear the freight horn down upon them travelling east and struck their car in the centre making a hurtling down the tracks with its human cargo. Residents claim the train sounded the whistle and rushed from their homes only to realize that a fatality had occurred. Alarm was quickly given but two of the occupants were beyond aid and died on the scene. Identification of Mrs. Woolston, who although conscious was dazed and breathing.

The Woolstons have been residents of Brighton for some years, moving there from England and it is understood they have no relatives in this country. They were members of the Anglican Church.

DETROIT FAVORED TO WIN SERIES FROM THE LEAFS

Redwings Have Had Long Rest Since Winning N. H. L. Title

TORONTO READY

Play in Detroit on Sunday And Tuesday

Detroit, Apr. 4 (CP)—The odds were 7 to 5 today, and there was all the money you wanted at that figure, that Detroit Red Wings would defeat Toronto Maple Leafs in the Stanley Cup series that opens here Sunday night. It was the old story. The National Hockey League champions have always been the favorites.

Each and every spring for the last five years it has been estimated by the betting men and also by otherwise sensible hockey perceptives, the team fresh from the N.H.L. throals should win the Stanley Cup. Unfortunately for the experts, the N. H.L. champions have seldom been fresh. They have been beaten.

This record of mistaken odds goes back to the spring of 1931 when Lester Patrick, in the great days of his New York Rangers, found the odds were too much for his National League champions. The Maple Leafs trounced the Rangers that year in three straight having come through two strenuous play for the title series.

Red Wings Favored

The very next season Toronto won the N.H.L. title in a bruising five game series with Boston Bruins, yet Rangers, dopped the Leafs in the cup series. In 1934 Detroit won the league championship and took in the Stanley Cup finals to Chicago Black Hawks. Last year Toronto couldn't get past Montreal Maroons after winning the league title.

Yet the Red Wings, N.H.L. champions are favored to win this time. Odds of 7 to 5 odds on Jack Adams' team are better justified than they would be under normal conditions. This isn't a normal year because the Wings are far from tired. Leafs, on the other hand, played five games to reach the finals and not one of them was easy.

Stake their defeated Maroons for the third straight time last Sunday, the Wings have been idle. Every player is in top condition. Not a major injury mars the chances of Detroit to pot across the first hockey "double" since Montreal Canadiens turned the trick in 1931.

Adams sent his club against Detroit Olympics, challengers for the International League title, in a preseason yesterday and observers noted the Red Wings seemed in prime condition. They skated fast, checked well and apparently had their passing plays perfectly timed.

Players Confident

"All I am worrying about is that the boys may have let down since the Maroon series," said Adams, "and I don't think they have. They looked hot out there today and I never saw a bunch of athletes more eager to win. They are confident they will take the Leafs."

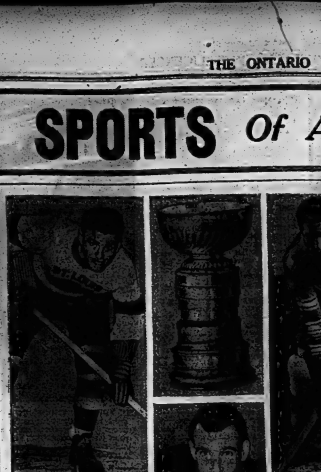
PRESIDENT HURLS — President Cliff Oakley of the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club takes a personal hand in the team's training exercises. Here is the president, who by the way is the youngest executive in the International League, throwing a few up to the plate. Perhaps he's showing some of the would-be Dizzy Deans how it should be done.



RICKEY INJURED—Vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals and manager of the Rochester extensive chain of farm clubs, Branch Rickey was reported critically injured in an auto accident in Georgia, Tiny Parker, National League umpire, was also in the same crash. Here is Rickey in smiling mood.

liminary series, the Leafs were to reach here today. They will rest again tomorrow night when they face the Red Wings before a crowd of 14,000 at Olympia. The rink was sold out for the first two games of the best-of-five series. The second will be played Tuesday night.

The teams will go to Toronto for the third game Thursday night and the fourth, if it is necessary, will be played in Toronto Saturday night.

While injuries may cause the Leafs to be short of full strength tomorrow night, the Red Wings will send out their strongest lineup with Dennis Smith in goal; Eddie Goodfellow, Doug Young, Sucko McDonald and Scotty Bowman on the fence and ten forwards ready for action.

The first-string Red Wing line of Larry Aurie, Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis is one of hockey's greatest, but there is no assurance that the Detroit camp that such brilliant Toronto attackers as Conacher, Jimmy Ross, Buzz Boll, Harvey Jackson and King Clancy can be held in check.

TORONTO CLASHES WITH DETROIT IN STANLEY CUP FINALS—Two of hockey's most colorful teams, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Redwings, clash in the final series for the historic Stanley Cup, emblem of world's professional hockey championship. Two of the hard-checking defencemen who cross sticks in this series are shown flanking the basic oval mug, with Ralph "Scotty" Bowman, Detroit defender, on the left, and Clarence "Hap" Day, Toronto's attacking ram, right. Johnny Sorrell, sharp-shooting Redwing frontliner, is the centre man, below and "Buzz" Boll, Leaf sniper lines up his sights to the brilliant Detroit net-guardian, whose stellar work carried Wings through the series with Montreal Leafs qualified by eliminating Boston and then Americans in the earlier rounds.

DAY BY DAY

Senior baseball advanced one more step towards realization last night when the executive of the local Kiwanis Club agreed to embrace the pastime with their financial, moral and executive assistance. The directors of the Kiwanis Club did not feel inclined to burden the entire responsibility of sponsoring a senior team in Belleville, however, as such a project does not exactly come under their club jurisdiction. The Kiwanis directors agreed to elect two or three members to a proposed baseball committee, that would include a similar number from other local service clubs such as the Rotary, Kinsmen and Y's Men. The Kiwanians felt that senior baseball should not be dropped in Belleville, but they were in no position to take on the entire responsibility of operating a team.

President Frank Domenico and his fellow Kiwanians have made a splendid move in the right direction and all that is needed now is the hearty co-operation of the other local clubs. Baseball in Belleville is of a good team and an executive that commands the respect of the citizens in general. The team is to be known as the Belleville Baseball Club, and the proposal is accepted by the other three sister clubs. The Kiwanians probed deeply into the financial end of the operation of a senior team and came to the conclusion that it would take approximately $2,000.00 to operate a team in the O.B.B.A. in 1936. This should cover all expenses. Unfortunately the books of last year's team were not available for examination to discover where savings could be made, despite the fact the Kiwanians asked to see them in order to endeavor to ascertain where possible expenses entailed last year might be improved upon. With a five team league and sixteen home games this would mean that it would be necessary to accumulate over one hundred dollars at each home game if no preseason grants were made.

With an executive composed of members of the four local service clubs at the helm of the local C. O. B. I., entry, however, it is safe to assume such a body would be able to realize at least one-half of the entire season's out-lay before the turnstiles were opened on May 24. There are the usual baseball program, season tickets and donations from interested fans to boom the pot and diminish the season's financial obligation to a figure whereby it would only be necessary to take approximately fifty or sixty dollars each home game to keep out of the red.

The Kiwanis Club will invite the other three service clubs to send two or three representatives to a meeting to be held next Wednesday night, at which time all angles pertaining to the sponsoring of a senior baseball team in Belleville will be thoroughly discussed. President Domenico and his executive have sent out very splendid estimates regarding the financing of a senior team, all of which they can place at the disposal of this proposed baseball executive composed of local service club members. The Kiwanians were very fair in their dealings with the subject as we know. They feel the same as many other interested citizens, who do not want senior baseball to drop from local sport annals. Of course we must point out there is no senior team in Belleville today and unless the proposal suggested by the Kiwanians is accepted by their sister-clubs, there is very grave doubt as to the success and continuance of O.B.B.A. baseball in Belleville. As pointed out last evening, there is plenty of material for the senior team available along with the equipment and club paraphernalia, so now we'll have to wait until next Wednesday for the final decision.

In the death of William "King" Rogers, the local aquatic activities of Belleville has a champion. "King" Rogers lived for one thing, his love for the water and a stiff breeze before the mast. A veteran and one of the first school and a lover of aquatic sports, the local punt sailors lost a true friend in "King" Rogers, who never missed a yacht racing or sailing came back in Belleville a few years ago. The sport of sailing was his life-long hobby of which he possessed a world of knowledge. To his family we express our deepest sympathy in their loss. Mr. Rogers was a friend to the sports department who will be sadly missed.

While attending the annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. in Toronto today we expect to slip over to the Queensbury A. C. and hold a short gab-fest with Jack Corcoran regarding wrestling. We understand the local promoters are angling about with Mr. Corcoran in hopes of persuading him to include Belleville on his wrestling circuit. At any rate we expect to have some authentic news on the matter next week.

Physical Instructor Ralph Morden has been carrying on swimming classes in the Y.M.C.A. pool all winter and is climaxing the indoor season with a gala "aquatic" aquade display in the "Y" pool on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week. There are to be swimming races for both men and female contestants interspersed with fancy diving and life saving exhibitions. Belleville boasts of some splendid women "splashers" who can propel themselves through the aqua pure with remarkable rapidity. Last year the aquatic meet was held in the Albert College pool with more than the average success.

PLAYDOWNS ARE NEARLY COMPLETE

Amateur in Action on Three Fronts Over Week-end

Another step towards conclusion of the Canadian amateur hockey season will be taken on a three-way front today with Saskatoon Wesleys and Sudbury Falcons favored to end their respective series.

Wesleys, gunning for the eastern hockey championship of Western Canada and its accompanying place in the Memorial Cup finals, hold a one-goal margin as they tackle the Elmwood Maple Leafs in Winnipeg.

Victors in the first game by 4-3, Wesleys fade a weakened Elmwood line-up. Maple Leafs have lost Steve Latoski around whom their attack was built, from injuries suffered in the first clash.

Sudbury move against Smithville Magodeans in Toronto with the teams possessing one victory each. Falcons were given the edge on the strength of a 5-0 triumph after dropping a 5-4 count in the first of the best-of-three series.

Ellner Mags or Falcons will capture the Eastern Canada senior crown and qualify to meet Kitchener-Waterloo Dynamiters in the finals series for the Allan Cup.

It Ottawa, Pembroke Little Lumber Kings take the prestige of the Ottawa Valley championship and victory over the Maritime titlists against West Toronto Nationals in the start of a best-of-three battle for the junior eastern crown.

Little Boy Gleskerchi, sharp-shooting Pembroke centre, will lead the Kings against the Ontario champions. Nationals will play without two regulars, Johnny Crawford and Carl Gamble and with the rest of the squad slightly battered from their victorious clash against the Quebec Aces.

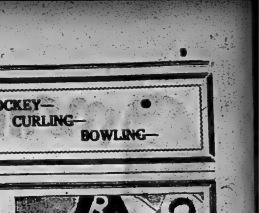
Windsor, Ont., Apr. 4 (CP)—Frank Daley of Cleveland Falcons, a right winger who established himself as the team's leading play-maker, won the International Hockey League scoring championship with a total of 53 points, according to official figures released here today.

Daley finished two points ahead of Jack Markie of Syracuse Stars, also a right winger and champion scorer last season. Markie scored three weeks with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League. Otherwise he probably would have become the first player on record to lead the I. H. L. marksmen for two consecutive years.



Daley's total was made up of 17 goals and 36 assists, while Markie bagged 27 goals and was credited with 24 assists for a total of 51. Ken Doraty of Cleveland placed third with 28-20—48, while two other Falcons, Bud Cook and Vic Ripley, tied for fourth with 46 points. Cook scored 27 gals and Ripley 144.

The tiny Doraty, noted pinch-hitter when he played for Toronto, led all goal-getters with 36. Markie and Cook were next with 27 while Whitey Farrant of Rochester Cardinals, playing his first season in professional hockey, amassed 26 and placed sixth in the list of point-collectors.

The league's "bad man" was Dave Trowbridge of Windsor Bulldogs, fiery right winger who spent 97 minutes on his penalty bench. A series of misconduct penalties brought up his total. Reg Hamilton, Syracuse defenceman, was second with 86 minutes and Ernie Kenny of Buffalo, also a defenceman, was third with 83.

MAIDEN VOYAGE

BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

Antoinette Taft is delighted with her job as society editor of the San Francisco Call. She lives with her older sister Rhoda, her brothers Cliff and Bruce, and Aunt Meg. On the Call staff is a blonde named Bess Cutler who gets a large salary and has an expensive apartment at which Frank Fitch, the managing editor, is a frequent visitor. When Bess invites Tony to a dinner party there, Tony sees the advice of her friend Barney Kerr. This privilege pleases a proposal, the last thing Tony wants. She meets a man named Bellamy and is thrilled to find that her husband is Larry Ann's boy, handsome young editor of the Journal who had once been Tony's wife hunting. Ruth Bellamy is a frail woman, no years older than Larry. Larry Ann's father became fast friends. Tony, a guest of the Bellamys at Sands, Ill., says, is being driven home by Larry when a blow-out occurs. He is thrown from the car, badly hurt and she bears him say, "Tony, my darling, my darling." Tony's memory is swayed with the Call but he is no longer Larry's wife. Some time before the marriage of Bruce, an old friend, Alvin Atwater of Monterey. She goes to Larry's office about a dinner engagement with Ruth, his fiancee's cousin and she bursts into tear, sobbing "If you don't love me anymore."

She goes home with a feeling of hopelessness. Telephoning Ruth and the next day they are lunching together when Larry enters with Ruth. Ruth's brother-in-law Dr. Joseph Vandervell who has come on temporarily to take charge of biologic research for the Hochenberger Foundation.

Tony liked him. He was unusually nice to like him; she was amazed to have him greet her quite naturally again; as he and she walked to the restaurant where Ruth and Larry had got to his feet and said "Ho do I," when Tony said she had to go back to the office. She had been thinking all night that she would never see him again, and that she never could look him in the face again, and now here they were having lunch together. It was not going to be awkward at all.

"Joe!" said Larry. "He's an old friend—"

"We've met," said Joe, with a bow.

"And you be it. He did plan, general things in college. He took a fellowship in Europe and that's where he met Ruth, and studied Oxford, wrote a paper that excited quite Cheshire Cheese in the States and there and hastened to 'am in Germany."

He couldn't. He doesn't look more than twenty-two with that round face and boyish hair.

"He's nearly as old as I am, three or four years younger. He's a darned important person. He'll be in charge of the Hochenberger office here, everybody thinks he's a ball of fire."

"Larry has hardly believe it he's so giddy," Tony murmured as they seated at the luncheon table. "Larry, He mind was not on the words; she caught suddenly at Larry's eyes. She began a little. Giddy. "About yesterday—"

His mind had been on that, too. Then. He did not speak.

"I'm sorry," he said. "I'm terribly sorry." Tony stumbled on, she stood close beside him in the dark doorway in the hallway. "Larry, I've depleted myself ever since—she hastened to say, to give anything, anything in this world not to have done that, not to have said that!"

"That suppose we consider as not having happened. We having been done, Tony?" the man suggested almost after a little pause.

"All right then. It didn't happen," he said. And he went on up to the city office in a very vertigo of joy, as Tony's car left him at the wrecked yesterday. Two or three times, while she was plowing the lastly through the assembled notes and pages that would somehow frame themselves into the splendid social page of Madame la Duchesse next Sunday, she stopped to rest her elbows on the desk and her face into her hands, in utter ecstasy.

She had no trouble getting her Sunday photographs now; it was all back work. Now and then she had to stay very late for one cause or another; day after one of the men had drifted away at midnight, until Fred Fitch's office was dark and only two or three of the city room reporters remained, and faithful Ingersoll was at his desk beside Fran desk, and drunken Coldberg was the night editor. Tony always found this experience thrilling; it was a wonderful thing to be a part of the old paper and have one's name appear in print.

In and out of the big hotels, meeting architects and acclimated on their way to and from the Orient, and writers and actresses and film folk; in and out of the city hall getting to know the men presiding the governor, known to the presidents of the clubs, Miss Taft went her tireless and busy way. All June was busy with commencement dances and the latter half of December was filled with Yuletide parties. Youngsters were coming home from various schools every club had a dinner or a tree. Tony, violets on her shoulder, her cheeks rosy in the cold air, played her own part in all these fetes.

"You're so sure of yourself!" Barney Kerr, bachelorly, more different. I hardly know you, Tony."

"You've never see of yourself in the newspaper game, Barney. Anyone is sure of himself, or pretends he is, that's a moment's notice."

"Tony, are you sorry?" Brenda said in fond pride. She stood with her back to the microscope table, her head reduced to immaculate cleanness, and smiled at Tony.

A bankers' convention was meeting at the Del Monte hotel in Monterey, and Tony had been sent down to cover the feminine interest in the conference. Brenda and Alvin could be together for long quiet hours, and Tony was glad to have so busy times for Tony were in the late afternoon and evening, when the bankers came in from meetings or golf, and social activities began.

Brenda's small laboratory was one of the least expensive apartments in the house, with its cheap wrought-iron beds. But Tony somehow found little Brenda's humor touching and charming.

For one thing Brenda loved every minute of it; she had a passionate devotion. Her idolatry of Alvin included everything connected with him; quite simply and without affectation Tony felt Brenda's love above all other considerations and obligations. Aunt Meg was not to receive down, for Brenda's sake; Tony dear, he says old ladies get set in their ways." Brenda was not going to a hospital in July. "Oh, it is cool enough, and I don't want to have nurses, and then, yeah, and I can get some good old Mexican down to do things." Brenda without a slightest trouble here. Alvin worshiped her, Brenda knew it, and I don't want this baby of mine to begin by being spoiled.

"We'll all adore it!" Tony said and Brenda, smiling at her with a look that Tony could not fathom, said: "Ah, I love you for saying that, Tony."

In these days Tony felt much older than Brenda. Her life moved in wider channels than the peaceful ones that Brenda knew now; the ones that Tony had lived in her self-centered girlhood. Her self-confidence, built on a dominant personality, was developed by her work. She was a power in the city, and everybody thinks her a ball of fire.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XX.

Terry's eyes fell on the violets with the tax-rose in the centre. Without sparkling he seemed questioning her.

Vernon said archly: "From Prince Karimof—with the most flattering message. Aren't their prices?"

"I do believe you had a date with him tonight." And he took her arm possessively as they passed through the long lobby to the exit.

"And you thought I broke that date for you? Maybe I did. But aren't you man consoled?"

"I am humbled before you. You look glorious, Vernon."

He helped her into his car. He tucked a rug about her, for the night was chilly.

They dined in the Round Restaurant of the Ritz-Carnoud. Everything was perfect. They sat on the balcony. Four waiters hung about their table. Vernon was conscious that, among all those beautifully-gowned women, she was looking lovely. And the food was excellent.

She was proud to be seen with Terry Shannon. In his evening clothes he was extremely good-looking. Once or twice she felt a silly little pang of jealousy go through her as more than one pretty woman bowed and smiled to him.

But he didn't appear the least bit interested in anyone but the girl he was escorting.

Her fresh enjoyment of the occasion stimulated him. "I thought you would be bored, going out every night as you do."

"But not alone like this, with someone you enjoy," Vernon answered naively.

Terry gave her head a little squeeze. He smiled, but with a flash of white in his sunburned face. "We must do this often."

"Rain me!"

"How about your heavy date, Prince Karimof?"

To her dismay, Vernon found herself blushing hotly. What would he think? Why did she have to tell him that there were the Prince's flowers she was wearing? Why had she boasted of the Prince's message?

There at their balcony table in the Ritz-Ormond a perfect imp made Vernon inquire of Terry: "Don't you think the Prince is very attractive?"

The corner of Terry's finely cut lips curled. "He seems so to you, women. A man's idea might be different."

"You don't like him?" Was Terry jealous? She fervently hoped he was. That would prove that those wonderful kisses had meant something to him.....

"Not particularly. Just being smooth and suave and a great hand-kisser isn't everything."

"Don't you think that nice manners mean anything?"

"To you girls, yes. More often than not they blind you."

"To what?"

"To the real man underneath the flattery."

"Is that so? Wasn't it Shakespeare who wrote: 'Manners maketh the man'?"

"Sometimes they unmake the recipient."

"Well, of all queer things to say!" She cupped her chin in her hands and regarded him derisively. "You think I've lost my head to the Prince just because of a few compliments and these violets?"

"I hope," said Terry Shannon slowly, "that you have not been so foolish."

Vernon was nettled. "You think he's handsome? You think he has some particular axe to grind in everything he does?"

"Since you force me to reply, I should say it was pretty obvious."

She flooded her cheeks. Illbred though it sounded, she heard herself say, in a stilted tone: "So you think he's after me for my money?"

Terry raised his brows. His shoulder shrugged imperceptibly.

"Why make our time discussing some one who does not interest me?"

This was too much. "But he interests me! Don't be so presumptuous, Terry." Tears. His face was rather like a mask. "Shall we get along to the theatre? We're late, hah."

Their seats were in the fifth row of the orchestra, in the centre. They were just in time for the rise of the curtain.

The first act of "Mad Marriage" was fulsighting. The daughter of very rich parents had eloped with a struggling artist. When the curtain fell on the first act it was obvious before the curtain fell that it would not run until the end.

Seats filtered people poured up the aisles and out into the foyer. Vernon looked at the end of the first act. Vernon felt proud of being seen with handsome Terry Shannon, though his remarks as to Prince Karimof's motives still rankled.

Quite a number of people greeted Terry. They met Vernon and Vernon.

She was asked when they were back in their seats, and she had him to herself again.

The second act of the play was thrilling. But the third disappointing. "Mad Marriage" finished with the bride forsaking her impecunious husband and going back to her own comfortable life.

"Let's go to the Desert Oasis. The music is lovely, but too noise overpowering. We can talk there, and get a bite to eat," Terry said, as they went in search of the car. After the last act of the curtain.

They rode in silence. Vernon thought: were on the play. They had just witnessed. She would get Terry to discuss it. She wondered if she was trying to annoy his reaction to it.

X X X

The Desert Oasis was one of the loveliest and most romantic places in the whole of Cairo. The walls were painted with great and realistically painted with great stretches of desert, and long caravans winding their way over them. On one side were the Pyramids and sphinx, with ruined temples on the other.

Real palms divided the little tables that were set close to the walls, giving a certain degree of privacy in a thick moonlight. On the upper canvas of the walls was painted a deep blue sky, pierced by innumerable stars that glowed realistically, lit from the back.

There was the cool splash of fountains, and in order to reach their table Vernon and Terry had to traverse a little bridge over a blue lagoon. A palm with artificial cocoanuts tied to it dropped over them as they passed there, and in the air was the throbbing whine of desert music—the kind that comes from primitive wooden instruments and gourds and drums.

"I rest as if I were a million miles from New York tonight!" exclaimed Vernon.

A waiter dressed as an Arab, in a flowing white gown and turban, approached them and Terry gave his order.

"Lobster and champagne. I'm taking a chance on your not having a nightmare!" Terry's eyes twinkled at her.

Vernon breathed: "This is a heavenly dream. Look—at that moon—the last pitched in the desert for the night——"

"Romantic child! You are glamour in everything, don't you?" But Terry look pleased as her enjoyment.

The champagne and the music and the surroundings loosed their tongues.

"See that tent over there," said Vernon again. "Pretend it isn't painted on the wall, but real! How wonderful to sleep, to dream in it!"

Terry said hoarsely, caught by her mood: "Mayn't I come, too? Would you leave me all by myself out on the sands of the desert?"

She blushed and laughed. "Would you behave?"

He caught her hand. "With that music in the air—those stars—and you! I'll would be difficult, Vernon."

Her heart thrilled. She dared to murmur, half below her breath: "What a wonderful place—for a honeymoon!"

He held her hand through a long and throbbing silence. Vernon thought: "He loves me. He feels as I do. Now—he'll speak——"

The queer Arab music rose and fell. There was longing in it, and heartbreak.

"Could you be happy, Vernon," said the voice beside her, low and vibrant, "could you be really happy, roughing it in the wilds—with someone you loved—beside all this life behind you?"

"Yes," she breathed softly, so low he barely caught it, "provided I loved him."

She hoped he would say to that: "Do you love me?" At this moment she wanted more than anything in the world to hear it.

But suddenly the lights flared up and a sun shone in the brick sky on the walls, and the whining, fascinating music of the desert was replaced by the latest thing in jazz.

Couples popped out from behind the sheltering palms. Terry asked Vernon if she would care to dance?

In his arms she was stiff again. He danced well, she effortlessly. They moved in perfect rhythm.

She told him so. So attuned were they, she felt, that Terry—this wonderful Terry—must know every thought in her mind, as she knew his! Every inch of her slim, beautiful body felt vibrant and alive. That was the effect he had upon her. She told herself that it would always be like this.

It was queer that Terry's mood seemed to have changed when they returned to their table. She thought: "Have I given myself away? Been too 'easy' with him a second time?"

She steered the conversation to lonlights. "Mad Marriage."

"The third act was awfully disappointing, don't you think?"

"It was psychologically correct. It is a cipride for her, point of his own and watched the smoke circle. "There aren't many girls with the money who'll throw up all their comforts and settle down happily with a poor man," he added reflectively.

With flushed cheeks Vernon looked forward. "That's cynical of you. What does money matter when people are have been married for love?"

"Hand-over-heels suggests a distance that a woman, when she sets her two feet solidly on the ground, find it also lower truly."

"But to 'thinking' people, love can be controlled. If one feels oneself getting to the danger point, there are a number of safe courses to pursue."

"I thought you were Sir Galahad—now you talk like Socrates or some stuffy old professor." Terry Shannon laughed shrilly.

She said at her. There was something whimsical in his smile. "Why not like me to that other ancient Greek philosopher—the one who tried to extract the maximum of sweetness from each flying minute?"

"Minutes like this? You enjoy them for the time being, and then wisely forget all about them, like a canny bachelor. Is that it?"

It was spoken like a challenge. What would Terry say in answer to it?

CHAPTER XXI.

Sealed in that fashionable night spot, the Desert Oasis, and looking at Vernon's flushed and lovely face, that—despite her efforts at badinage—had a hurt disappointment on it, Terry said gently: Back in the wilds of New Mexico, this night in the Desert Oasis, with you, will be like an oasis in my memory.

She flashed: "That's much too glib. It sounds like something out of a silly novel."

"I stand corrected. I grant you I'm a poor hand at making pretty speeches."

"No one's requiring you to make pretty speeches." She was angry now. Evidently he despised women in his heart. She would take the hint from him. What had he said? Something about withdrawing immediately one felt oneself "at the danger point"——that "love could be controlled.....

"I'm sorry if I've offended you, my dear. Living the last few years in the back of beyond has made me stupid in—what shall I say?—the social amenities."

She had unfastened the bunch of violets from her gown before she had danced with Terry. She raised them to her face now, delicately sniffing their fragrance.

It still maintain that the girl in the play tonight was terribly selfish. How if you had been in the man's shoes——

She was terribly afraid that he would answer: "But I should never have been in the man's place. I should never marry a girl with so much money——"

He did nothing of the sort. He thought briefly, then he said: "I should never be carried away by a merely pretty face. Before I got to the marrying point I would satisfy myself as to her real character. That's the trouble with American marriages today. They're based on what you girls call 'sex appeal' only. That's perfectly crazy. They don't last. How can they? The girls marry with the firm determination that if it isn't a go, they'll step right out of it and take another man. There's nothing sacred in their point of view. They think a marriage that lasts is old-fashioned."

"Not all girls," Vernon ventured to remark.

"The girls in the crowd you're going with all do. They marry merely as an experiment. Get all they can out of it while the going's good. Sacrifice nothing. Marriage gives them a certain freedom that an unmarried girl is not supposed to have—safety in pursuing other affairs. Don't look so startled little country girl. It's as well to have your eyes open to what's going on around you."

She thought: "The married women have disgusted him, running after him, because he's so charming and good-looking." Aloud she said, her breath catching: "Why do you mean ever marry, then?"

Seriously, we're all for a streak of conventionality in us, and it's considered the thing for men and women to marry. Of the two, the man is invariably the more sentimental. But as I said before, here in America he doesn't stop to analyse the girl. He falls for her sex-appeal—and when that goes, what has he?"

"Although it pays! But isn't it his fault as much as hers?".

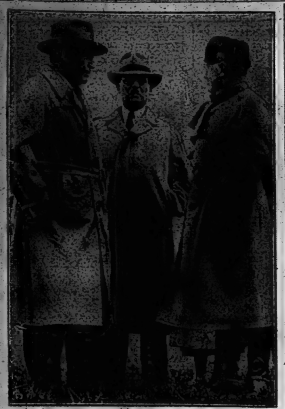
THE TARZAN TWINS



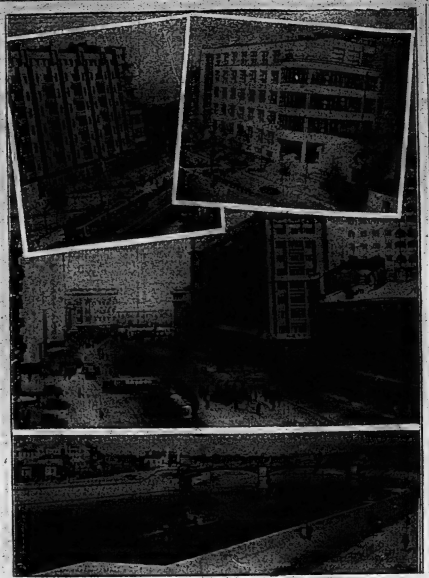
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan was hungry. But the Jungle Lord did not have to employ the complicated processes by which civilized men satisfy their daintily appetites. With silent tread he stalked a keen-eared antelope. A swift arrow whirred through the languid air. The antelope fell. And thereupon Tarzan ate his dinner.

The man-beast feasted on some of the raw flesh, then he buried the rest as a food cache for the return journey. Like the animals, Tarzan killed only to eat, and he carefully refrained from wasting food. He smiled as he pictured Dick and Doc as a dinner of raw meat . . .

At that instant Dick and Doc themselves were in danger of becoming a meal for savage Numa, the lion. When they recovered from the consternation which followed that frightful cry, they fled in the direction from which they had come, toward the safety of the railway.

But when they reached a crk in the trail which they had passed heedlessly a short time before, they hesitated bewilderedly for a moment, then dashed down the wrong path! And behind them on padded feet, moved fierce Numa, the scent of prey in his quivering nostrils!

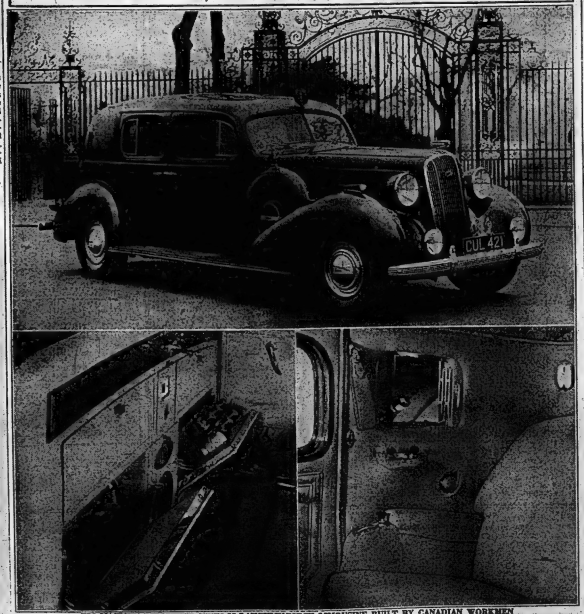


ITALY, AUSTRIA, HUNGARY GET TOGETHER—Despite the hostile feelings in other parts of Europe, all seems peaceful and friendly in the section comprising Austria, Hungary and Italy. It is quite a common occurrence for the leaders of these three countries to get together for a chat. In this particular instance they are together for the Danuba conference in Rome. From LEFT to RIGHT are Premier Julius Gombos (also minister of war) of Hungary; Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy.

TRAGIC SCENE AS MOTHER STANDS TRIAL—A tragic scene was enacted in a Los Angeles courtroom when Mrs. Grave Van Alstyne du Bois, aged 60, stood trial for the murder of her son, Dr. Charles du Bois. Another son testified against his mother, saying that she had become convinced that present-day economic conditions had caused the degradation of the name Du Bois, and that she was determined to wipe out the entire family. The scene was intensely dramatic as the son was forced to testify against his mother; he said in the witness stand that he was "the unhappiest man in the world". Mrs. du Bois, shown ABOVE, contends that her son was shot accidentally by a friend who was cleaning a gun. The jury has found Mrs. du Bois sane.

WEST HAM GOAL-KEEPER ROBS THE SPURS—Tottenham Hotspur had a league football engagement with West Ham United on the Tottenham club's grounds so a photographer jogged around to share the fun. Here is what he got. Cooway, the West Ham goalie is punching clear as a Spurs forward makes a gallant attempt to head into the net. It's robbery, that's what it is.

CITY OF MOSCOW UNDERGOES RADICAL CHANGES—During the past five or six years the city of Moscow, once burned to prevent occupation by Napoleon, has undergone a "facial". The layout shows across from the new city, TOP, two of the many modern workers' apartments. CENTRE, Okhotny Ryad or "Hunters' Row". Until recently it was a short wide street in the centre of Moscow, lined with shabby shops trading in meat, feathers, down and fish. By a decision of the government, the old section was razed and new buildings were erected. On the LEFT is the building of the Council of People's Commissars, and at the RIGHT is Hotel Moscow. BELOW, the Moscow river with its recently completed granite quay. In the new ten-year plan of re-building, it is interesting to note that the government has decreed that the population will be limited to 5,000,000. It is now a million short of that number.



FREIGHT CARS DROP 40 FEET FROM BRIDGE; NONE HURT—Though damage was extensive, no one was injured when 23 cars of a C.N.R. freight train were derailed and 12 dropped to the highway 40 feet below at Breslau, near Kitchener, Ontario. A view of the wreckage is shown.

MAYBE F. D. R. IS TELLING OF THE SMALLEST FISH HE CAUGHT—Rarely does an ardent fisherman indicate how "small" was the catch he made. The picture was made when the president's yacht, Potomac dropped anchor for a visit at Nassau, capital of the B. W. I. [illegible]

The storm centered its greatest fury on Tupelo, Miss., city of 10,000, the first town to unlike mosts shocks power. Fire added to the horror of the twisted ruins.

Booneville, Miss., was next to be struck.

From there the storm rushed northeastward to Red Bay, Ala., then moved into the Arkansas Mines, Marian Mines and Cross Bridge villages in Tennessee's Hills near Columbia.

J. P. Nanny, mayor of Tupelo, said dead and injured were being taken to the hospitals, to the homes for hours and it was feared many yet unreached were trapped and helpless in the ruins.

Scores of the Tupelo injured were carried to the hospitals in Memphis, Tenn., Amory, Miss., Pontotoc, Miss., and Corinth, Miss., for treatment.

Noise Deafening Eye - Witness of Tornado States

Tupelo, Miss. Apr. 6 (AP)—I was repairing a telephone line in the western part of town when the sky in the west filling with black masses of clouds. It was a little after eight o'clock. I saw at once those clouds were turned into a huge black funnel with a small tip on the ground. I knew what it meant and I ducked for shelter.

The cloud, or funnel, traveled fast, and although it was quite dark, I could see big objects lifted off the ground and sent whirling upward and around. It was a terrifying thing to watch. It struck Tupelo apparently in the middle and seemed to be coming directly from the west.

It tore into the houses at the western part of the city and shattered them like they were bits of kindling or piles of leaves. It continued its course straight through the centre of town, ploughing a path about three blocks wide. Every house it touched seemed to crumble and collapse into a pile of jagged and splintered lumber.

Cries Wrench Heart.

I heard people shouting and screaming. I heard groans and cries that wrenched the heart. But those in the houses outside the storm's path couldn't help me. The terrific winds died down. No man could have stood on his feet in that storm.

The racket was simply deafening. It was all over in 10 or 15 minutes and those who passed through safely went out to help those in the storm's path.

This morning I went through the area and figured that 500 homes and small business buildings had been destroyed or damaged.

The loss will certainly reach several million dollars.

Even after the city temporary shelters were prepared for the treatment of the injured, and the dead were laid out in rows. Churches, theatres and courthouse benches were made into temporary hospitals.

CHAMBERLAIN MAY BECOME PREMIER

Believe Baldwin Handicapped by Growing Deafness

London, Apr. 6 (CP)—The government marshalled its forces today for a vote of confidence in the House of Commons which will be followed by Parliament's Easter recess.

Opposition leaders believe Premier Baldwin would resign after Whitsuntide, in the early part of May.

A three-line whip was sent out to all government supporters, calling upon them to attend today's session. The vote of confidence will be on the subject of rearmament by Britain and women civil servants. The government was expected to be defeated by a narrow vote Wednesday on this question.

No doubt was entertained Mr. Baldwin would resign because of infirmity but opposition papers regard the week's debate as a test case to be conceded by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Explorers Practise Feats of Magic To Awe Head Hunters of Amazon

New York, Apr. 6 (AP)—Andre Roosevelt, strapping, six-foot cousin of the president of the United States and his bearded colleague, Cyril von Baumann, practiced parlor tricks today in preparation for a headhunting expedition at the headwaters of the Amazon.

The Daily Mail's Independent Conservative, forecasts a complete reconstruction of the government after Whitsuntide. It says Premier Baldwin has decided to resign the premiership and predicts he will be succeeded by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"Have you ever seen this one?" Von Baumann asked, slipping the middle digit of his right hand into a fake finger of flesh-tinted tin.

He sniffed a small flag into the end of the finger then show it to Roosevelt, who looked then produce the flag."

"We both do parlor tricks," he said, adding the explanation they hope thereby to awe possibly hostile natives of the unexplored reaches of Ecuador. "Of course," he went on, "we will have our firearms and a supply of hand grenades but they would only be used for a last resort."

The explorers expect to sail for South America April 16—now that the ice floes which have been blocking the St. Lawrence River have cleared.

U.S. ARMY BOMBER CRASHES IN FOG KILLING FIVE MEN

Machine Bursts Into Flames Burning Occupants Beyond Recognition

ON WEEK END TRIP

Would Have Avoided Crashing Into Hillside Had it Been 250 Feet Higher

Fredericksburg, Pa., Apr. 6 (AP)—Smashed against the steep wooded side of Blue Ridge Mountains at the twisted flame-swept wreckage of a big United States army bombing plane gave up the bodies of five pilots and crew today for identification today.

Tossed far off its course by storms and apparently flying blind in a heavy fog, the twin-motored bomber crashed into the mountain last night and burst into flames before its crew of five had a chance to escape the trap.

For hours, the head of the fire kept reasserting itself. When they finally managed to approach, the bodies were charred beyond identification.

At Washington, the War Department tentatively identified four of the men as Lieutenant Preston Hotchkiss, Lieutenant Ernest Dorn and Privates Metz and Yost but would not let light on the name of the fifth man.

The men were in an army bomber that took off from Langley Field, Va., Saturday for a week-end trip to Cleveland.

If this was the plane that crashed and is supposed, literally, it was off its course nearly fifty miles.

The crash would have been avoided if the plane had been 250 feet higher. A State Highway Patrolman who saw it in its approach to the fire in trouble as it approached the mountain ridge 1,500 feet above sea level, vainly shouted a warning.

It blew a wide path through the heavy timber as it struck, then dashed nose first into a steep cliff, where the mountain falls away nearly at a 75-foot drop.

Harvey Field, Va., Apr. 6 (AP)— Army officers said today the army bombing plane which crashed in Pennsylvania last night was positively identified today as a plane which was in service at Langley Field from a week-end trip to Cleveland.

Men Herd Up Before Feminine Onslaught

Rifle, Colo., April 6 (AP)—Last minute pleas to the voters were made today by women who think they should have the municipal town better than the men.

The "petticoat" ticket comprises the women's independent tickets, are arrayed against seven men in opposition to the Public Affairs Ministerial Baldwin would resign after Whitsuntide, in the early part of May.

"No personal grudges to satisfy, no personal ambitions to gratify, no axes to grind," reads the women's platform.

Should the men didn't take the petticoat movement very seriously when it was launched, they undoubtedly did after two political parties to form a united front against the women.

EMPLOYEES WALK OUT

Brockville, Ont., April 6—(CP)— Some 60 employees of the felt products plant operated by the Stetson Co., (Canada) Limited walked out today in protest pending against a reported cut of from 20 to 40 per cent in their wages.

Union officials are expected to negotiate with the company after holding a meeting.

Young Boy Saved From Mill Flame

Kinmount, Ont., April 6.—(CP)— While playing with a chum near J. Austin and Sons mill, Friday, Garnet Collins, nine years old, slipped and fell into the flume of the mill.

The boy could not swim. He clung desperately to the comb of the flume while his chum Douglas Minto tried vainly to pull him from the fast water. Boyd Austin rushed to the scene just in time to save the boy from drowning. He is recovering.

Kinmount is 30 miles north of Lindsay.

The faces of these old people shine with joy as they receive "laundry money" from the King Edward VIII personally performing this ceremony on April 9, the second time the British monarch has acted in the last 300 years.

Mrs. Mailata succumbed to her burns Saturday, a few hours after she attempted to rescue her two-year-old baby Andre, who was burned to death. Mr. Mailata's brother-in-law Charles David. Lise died late Saturday night.

The coroner has decided no inquest will be needed into the tragedy that shocked this northwestern Quebec town. Flames broke out, spread swiftly and by the time a neighbor, M. Bilodeau saw the flames and roused the Mailats family and their border they were trapped.

CHEESE BONUS FAILS TO REACH VOTE IN HOUSE

Luncheon Adjournment Prevents Decision on Resolution

MARSHALL AGAINST

School Debate Slated For Afternoon Session

Toronto, Apr. 6 (CP)—The Ontario legislature, embarking today on what was hoped to be the final week of the session, heard a lengthy debate on a resolution by T. A. Kidd, Conservative member for Kingston, urging the Liberal government to continue the cheese bonus of one and one-half cents a pound, passed last year.

Agriculture Minister Marshall opposed the resolution and introduced an amendment providing the federal administration should make its own decision on the matter. Premier Hepburn also opposed the bonus.

Luncheon adjournment prevented a vote on the motion and the debate was adjourned by Opposition Leader Henry.

Mr. Henry at the afternoon session criticized Premier Hepburn's bill granting separate schools a larger share of corporation taxes and it is possible Attorney-General Roebuck will follow for the government.

"I am not in favor of the legislature giving a demand of the federal government to continue this bonus during the present year," said Mr. Marshall.

POISON GAS USED IN AFRICAN WAR

British Government Has Received "Indisputable Evidence"

(By George Hambleton)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 6.—(CP Cable)— The British Government has now received "undoubted" evidence that Italy is using poison gas in Ethiopia in violation of International engagements.

Sir Hoare Slaston, British minister to Addis Ababa, forwarded a few days ago reports alleging the Italians were using mustard gas. These since have been supplemented by evidence collected from Red Cross and other officials which, it is stated, leave no doubt that gas bombs and projectiles have been used.

Italy signed the Geneva protocol under which the signatories agree not to use poison gas.

The Daily Herald today demands the immediate application of all sanctions, including a boycott against Italy and financial assistance for Ethiopia. If these measures fail, the Sass Canal must be closed, it says.

"Horror and anger", the Herald as the full story of Italian brutality and frightfulness is revealed was revealed and confirmed. The destruction of pitiful homes and unfortified towns with high-explosive, incendiary bombs, and use of poison gas in the field against unmasked, half-armed Ethiopians. The spraying of liquid gas upon women, children and babies—these are hellish things. And they must stop."

Racing Cars Proved Costly to Couple

Hamilton, Ont., April 6—(CP)— Starting a race in their cars for a honeymoon, the bride ate only sandwiches and coffee, Gordon Lee and Lorne Kennedy gave police a four mile 60-mile-an-hour chase before apprehended at Burlington on the Dundas-Hamilton highway. Their sentences were suspended for six months as an additional penalty imposed by Magistrate Burridge.

Peace by Force of Arms Under Nations League Suggested by Flandin

Unite Europe's Forces Against War is French Plan

'EQUALITY FOR ALL'

Scheme Would Refuse to Allow Rhine to be Fortified

Paris, Apr. 6 (CP)—French Foreign Minister Flandin advanced a program for peace by force if through a European army under the League of Nations at a cabinet session today.

Reliable sources reported that the French plan to unite Europe's forces against war contained three suggestions:

1. A detailed denial of Germany's contention that France's encirclement policy including the Franco-Soviet Mutual Assistance Pact justifies Chancellor Hitler's demunciation of the Locarno Treaty.

2. A refusal to let Germany fortify the Rhineland.

3. A proposal to "organize on the basis of equality" the "air force by means of regional mutual assistance pacts and creation of a permanent international army to enforce League decisions.

Some quarters suggested the League powers maintain motorized and mechanized troops designated to answer calls from the League. Russia would be included in the collective mutual assistance linup but Asia and Africa would be disregarded, these avoiding the difficulty of sending troops outside of Europe.

SCHOOL TAX BILL IS MAIN ITEM

Government Hopes That Prorogation Can Take Place Thursday

Toronto, April 6.—(CP)—Ontario legislators returned from week end adjournment today to attend the present government took office and had hopes of winding up the business so prorogation can take place Thursday afternoon.

The Separate School tax bill, giving Separate Schools a larger share of corporation taxes, is the main item of business facing the House this week and debate on it opens this afternoon. Attitude of the Opposition to the measure will determine if the hoped-for prorogation can take place before Saturday.

While the House is in session the Public Accounts Committee continues its investigation of the purchase by the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. When the committee's bill concludes its affairs it cannot be determined since it has still to finish its inquiry into the purchase of wood by the Department of Northern Development. House committees have practically finished their business.

In addition to the Separate Schools bill, several other measures await second reading. Among them are Premier Hepburn's Minister Simpson's bill establishing intermediate schools and Attorney-General's amendment to the Liquor Control Act, making provision for beer in connection with beverage rooms.

Schoolboy Very Ill By Taking Poison

Toronto, April 6.—(CP)—Ronald Fielding, fifteen-year-old birthday Wednesday, was in a critical condition in the hospital today because he did not want to go to school. Ronald thought if he were sick he would not have to attend classes, so he took poison.

"I didn't want to be that sick," he sobbed to his mother as she sat anxiously beside his hospital cot.

Howe Islanders Isolated, Road is Closed from Ferry

Kingston, Ont., Apr. 6 (CP)—Residents of Howe Island, a municipality of here, are practically isolated today as a result closing of the roadway leading from the ferry, serving as the Mc'Redds Road.

Some time ago the council for the township of Howe Island was notified by W. F. Nickle, solicitor for the Kingston, Portsmouth Bridge Co. that the ferry was going to be closed to the public but they did not realize it was the intention of Mrs. McRedden to have the floating toll bridge removed.

Motorship on Fire Races to Honolulu

San Francisco, Apr. 6 (AP)—The Norwegian motorship Tricolor, a fire in her hold raged toward Honolulu today after the transfer of sixteen passengers to the British tanker Yarraville.

Latest advices relayed to Globe Wireless, Ltd. by the liner Independent Grani said the blaze was "no better and no worse" but since her crew of 40 remained aboard, marine men suggested the situation could not be perilous.

The Tricolor was 1,000 miles from Yokohama and 1,500 from Honolulu when the passengers—eight women, six children and three men—were placed aboard the Yarraville.

Kemptville Retains Eastern Dairy School

The Ontario government will make no change in its stated intention to remove the Eastern Dairy School from Kingston to Kemptville in spite of the deluge of protests regarding the move. It is stated by the Hon. Duncan Marshall, in a communication received by George Bawden, secretary, Kingston.

"I will be glad to see a delegation from Kingston and district at any time," the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, wrote to Col. Bawden, "but so far as the removal of the Dairy School to Kemptville is concerned there will be no change in the decision made. The Government made the decision after careful consideration of the interests of agriculture in Eastern Ontario, and while I will be glad to see a delegation, we have gone too far to change our plans now. There is no provision in the estimates for carrying on the Dairy School at Kingston after this year. We intend that data it will be closed," pointed out Mr. Marshall.

A delegation of those connected with the cheese from the Kingston district is being prepared to wait upon the Minister on Thursday to urge the retention of the school. In view of the letter received, however, Mr. J. M. Hughes of the Kingston Board of Commerce has just announced that the trip would probably be abandoned.

In connection with Dairy School Mr. Hughes has received a communication from Mr. H. N. Carr, the member for Northumberland, in which it was stated that, while the school is being moved to Kemptville it is not the intention to close it, but to carry on as usual.

Jesus Christ Incomparable, International, Says Dr. McLeod

Formosa Missionary Tells United Church Congregations

A WEEK OF SERVICE

Rev. Duncan McLeod, D.D., noted missionary to Formosa, who has been called a "second Stanley Jones" opened a week's mission service under the auspices of the United Church congregations of Belleville at a joint service at Bridge Street Church Sunday evening. A member of the United Church of Canada, Dr. McLeod has been serving in Formosa whither he was sent by the Presbyterian Church in England.

Dr. McLeod took the Gospel story of the woman at Jacob's well and on the basis of this called for an appeal for a new view of Christ. His message was an analysis of the revelation of Jesus as the Messiah through a process of progressive revelation.

The preacher said that John the Baptist musing over the words of the prophet about the Messiah who was to come, had a presentiment of what the Messiah would be. He was the one who was mentioned of old. "Behold the Lamb of God," he said, declaring his name would be Jesus. Next day two men kept following Jesus at a distance as if anxious to keep Him in sight. Jesus explained that these men were not sure what was in their minds and turned and asked them whom they sought. They said they were looking for Him. He asked them if they knew Him. "There was no second hand religion about Jesus," remarked Dr. McLeod.

Jesus by a process of progressive revelation was at last revealed before the woman of Samaria as the Christ. "We must look upon the world through the eyes of Christ," he declared.

Returning to the story of the Baptist, Dr. McLeod pointed out that John's disciples realized that the people did not see the difference between himself and Jesus. Jesus, he said, was the Messiah and John could not be compared to any other. Comparative religion was impossible. Buddha, Confucius, Zoroaster and Mohammed, but compared to Jesus they lily flats then up and lowers Jesus. This is one of the cancers of the western world today. Again and again Dr. McLeod said we look back on Calvary from the perspective of two thousand years, and see what Christ has meant to the world.

Jesus is incomparable in His birth, life, death, resurrection and His life among men.

"In comparison with Him men like Buddha and Zoroaster have long been bankrupt.

"Jesus, the international, never nationalistic," he said. "Every true prophets were nationalists but Jesus Christ was International.

"Hagwa, nationalist of Japan, has become the greatest internationalist. He has given his life to work for Christ.

"Jesus was a God-consumed, God-intoxicated man. God was everywhere to Him, in the clouds, in the birds, in the grass. Everywhere His Father was talking to Him.

"Jesus was the open book, the book of God, the book of psychology with man and the book of conversation, the human heart in all its workings: the book of nature, the book of the Holy Scripture.

"He was in tune with the Infinite every day of His life. He went to sleep in the bosom of the Father. He awoke with God with Him. Before He ate He called Him 'Father.' He was taught man the prayer 'Our Father.'

"Jesus could go into His Father's presence at any time, but man has to go confessing sins.

"This was that Jesus was able to bear His burden.

"The woman at the well began to see in Him the Messiah incarnate. She saw Him first as a Jew, His race was not important. Then she asked for a drink of water from a Samaritan, assuming no Jew would ask for a drink from a woman, something no one would have done in His day.

"This woman knew He was pure. He was not a man was not. I am not, you are not.

"She saw she saw Jesus as prophet and He admitted it."

Dr. McLeod appealed for a fresh view of Christ, the incomparable, the international.

Members of the four churches, Rev. I. B. Naylor, Rev. R. Hall, Rev. N. E. Newman, and Rev. Dr. J. Ferguson took part in the service. The choir was composed of members of Bridge Street and Holloway Street choirs. Mr. V. P. Hunt and Mr. C. Templer were organists.

Chairman Reid of Belleville Hydro Commission Attacks Statement

Chairman G. A. Reid at the meeting of the Belleville Hydro Commissioners today referred to the statement of the Hon. T. B. McQuesten, last week in regard to the O.M.E.A. in which he is credited with saying that he did not regard the O.M.E.A. as representative of the Hydro enterprise or of the municipalities.

"I do not know whether the commission wishes to make any comment but I would like to say something," remarked Mr. Reid.

"I cannot understand Mr. McQuesten making the statement that we are not representative of the people and that we do not pay our fees. No one can be a member of the O.M.E.A. unless his fees are paid," said Mr. Reid.

The Belleville chairman declared in his opinion "it is a dangerous statement for anyone to make. His statement is absolutely incorrect. We are representative of the people and we pay our fees. We have not only mouthpiece we have of expressing our views on Hydro matters."

It was pointed out that Belleville Hydro pays $1,000 annually.

Commissioners at the meeting today discussed the matter of a location for the site of the summer convention of the O.M.E.A. which is May 20th and 21st. Belleville has already decided on another site.

Commissioner Ellsworth, in the suggestion of the Canadian Hydro of carrying on another electric range campaign this summer suggested it decided the advice to advertise the campaign in the papers. The Board decided to meet on Thursday morning to go into the question of expenditure on the suggested scheme of range sale.

Afternoon Session

The opening exercises and devotional period were conducted by Rev. Worth Hastings Christian fellowship under the leadership of Mr. Grant Mehlejohn of Foxboro Union. Carefully chosen hymns, the Scripture lesson from the 10th chapter of Matthew and the quartet musical number offered by Miss Laura Foley and Miss Ruth Rogers, a vocal duet, "Dear Lord and Father" with Rev. R. L. Osborne at the piano, served to provide an impressive of sanctity within the gathering as they continued their activities for the day.

At the time the gathering divided into groups, each being led by a convener for discussion on problems faced by the various departments as they gathered in different parts of the church. Re-assembling in the main auditorium at 3.45, the delegates were led in an open forum on the question, "How can my Church become a more vital part of the community," by "Rev. George Little, D.D. Matters pertaining to the special program for Young People's Week, as prepared by the governing body of the Young people themselves. The matter of systematic contributions to missions was also dealt with in a constructive way. It was a most interesting forum and many original and constructive suggestions were put forth by the visiting delegates who entered into the discussion freely.

Guests at Local Y.M.C.A.

At 4.30 the session was dismissed to re-gather at the Belleville Y.M. C.A. for a brief period of recreation and fellowship in this department by the convener of this branch of activity. All the delegates were grateful for the opportunity to visit the Belleville Y.M.C.A. to take advantage of their modern equipment for physical training and recreation. They were conducted on a tour of inspection of the establishment by those in charge.

Banquet at Albert Coy

At 5.45 p.m. arrangements were made for transportation for the entire gathering to Albert College, where a special banquet was tendered the delegates. The guests were received in the rotunda of the school building by a special committee of students who conducted them to the banquet hall, where a sumptuous meal was provided through the co-operation of those in charge. The menu specially adopted for the occasion provided a wide array of tasty dishes. Between courses Rev. R. L. Osborne led in lively community singing. Following the dinner Rev. George Little, D.D., of Toronto, delivered his farewell address to the gathering which he had so greatly influenced by his presence. Dr. Little, who is famous from coast to coast for his ability in the pulpit, proved himself to be the possessor of all the qualities desired in an after dinner speaker; his versatility and charming personality won the hearts of the young people as he led them in their convention. He dispelled all formality at the banquet with a flashing of delicious good humor behind which there lingered a wealth of sound Christian thinking. From his most humorous story is to be found a lesson aimed at his listeners for the furthering of God's Kingdom on earth. Never does he lose sight of his duty. Speaking in a light vein he sweeps his audience away in laughter and merriment and with lightning rapidity brings them back to the business of living and endeavors so to spur them into numerous tales Christian teaching and philosophy. His fifteen minutes address, however, seemed much shorter to his listeners contained as it was a series of rapid fire stories interspersed with convictive sentences or more,"Leaving the hall to catch his train for Trenton, Rev. Little heard the strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" sung by the gathering as he made his way down the corridor.

Closing Session

The final and closing session of this splendid convention commenced at 7.30 p.m. Organized in the King of Quinte Conference and being held in the Methodist Bridge Street, where the first of such services were held forty years ago, began at 7.45 on Sunday evening with the opening exercises and devotional period being conducted by the Rev. Connor and Addington Christian Fellowship and led by Mrs. Fred Davies. Miss Jean Denyes offered as a soprano solo "Have Thine Own Way Lord" with Rev. L. S. Osborne at the organ. The report of the resolutions committee as submitted by Mr. Donald Baxter included expression of appreciation to the pastor and Board of Bridge Street Church, Chaplain Dr. Little, D.D., Rev. L. S. Wight, Albert College Glee Club, Mr. Homer Borland, the Eldorado Dramatic Group, Dr. Duncan McLeod, and all others who had given time and their co-operation throughout the convention.

The next feature on the program was the installation of officers which was conducted in a very impressive manner by Rev. James Semple. President elect Mr. Joseph Vrooman of Odessa took over the chairman and addressed the gathering briefly.

Dr. Duncan McLeod of Fermoss

The speaker of the evening was introduced by Rev. James Semple of Fermoss and delivered a most inspiring message of real value. Challenging the present day youth to review the past and fearlessly observe how we have measured up. "Youth of today have greater privileges and opportunities than those of forty years ago," he said recalling that the Church of God comes into the life of young man under twenty-four years of age to take the "Sacrament." Youth needs a revision of opinion regarding Christianity. Complete surrender to fill the will of God is the assurance of real happiness, not captivity, as it has been quoted upon.

"Christianity must reach forth into all phases of life," he declared. "Take Christian Youth out of the Social structure and there remains only corruption." There is an earnest need for the re-valuation of privileges an opportunities in the life of our youth. With the machinery Canadian youth have to work with, there should be a great power in the building of a new order that will abound in joy and happiness for all men, for all in privileged few. Those who would have church stay out of social and political spheres have no vision. The Church of God covers the whole area or life. Sweatshops and want and starvation must not exist and the criminal eye of Canada must be its abolishment.

Then let us survey the past forty years of activity and reach out and grasp the faith of our fathers, the men who brought us thus far. In closing Dr. McLeod told a story of nurses in a Toronto hospital stooping to wash the sores of some eighty leper patients there. Truly said the Dr. in seeing those hands I beheld the hands of Jesus.

The entire gathering was greatly benefited by the very instructive address and the Convention was brought to a close as the entire gathering formed the links in a chain of friendship around the auditorium and sang the closing Convention hymn, "God be with you till we meet again."

"VIMY DAY" IS COMMEMORATED

United Veterans Attend Divine Service in Army Citadel

With each "Last Post", which marks the close of commemoration of another "Vimy Day, veterans are drawn closer together in a common bond of friendship. On Sunday United Veterans of this city and district attended Divine Service in the Salvation Army Citadel. More than 150 lined up at the assembly and led by the Salvation Army Band paraded through the Front Street to the Citadel and after the service took another route back to the place of beginning where they were dismissed. The company was addressed by Envoy Thomas Wallen of Toronto with Major Jordan, in charge of the local Corps directing the proceedings.

Opening the service "The King" was played and then followed that old familiar hymn "Rock of Ages" sung by the choristers of the Salvation Army under the baton of Mr. Green. During the singing of the hymn, Mrs. George Wardle passed in pure white and carrying a simple wreath walked to the memorial, accompanied by little Misses June Ward and Rose Ayling and placed it lovingly on the cross. Following two minutes period of silence was observed for those, who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Last Post was sounded by Bugler Wadden. The whole assembly joined in the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers and then followed the reading of the Scripture by Mrs. Jordan.

Envoy Wallen Speaks

Taking his text from the 13th chapter of Exodus, 18th verse, "And one shall say unto Him, what are these wounds in Thine hands? Then he shall answer; those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends." Envoy Wallen in his address remembered his part in the Great War as an army chaplain. "After was only a small part", said the speaker, "but I did my best with the boys and I sent three of my sons to the front. The youngest was only 20, when he arrived in France, my second son spend his 18th birthday in the trenches and my youngest boy was 18, when he enlisted and did we not pray hard for he sent them all back." The speaker stated he joined the army of occupation and marched into German territory, Jugnet to show the casualties of the Great War as at Passchendale and Vimy were given, the British Army 60,000 men and the Canadians more than 17,000 in the two major battles in which the Canadians took part. "60,000 will never come back", continued the speaker and before we left the boat at Halifax, I told a group of men, that I was proud of three things, first that they had been over, secondly, that they had been spared to come back and thirdly of the responsibility that devolves in the years to come. I am not sure, which is the greatest responsibility of carrying out the principles for which the war was fought, that we must keep alive and that resting on the living, but I am of the opinion the greatest responsibility lies with the living and I am convinced, that veterans are trying each day to live up to it." The world, that peace, that was sought, must be kept at any price.

The speaker was convinced that the greatest sufferers in the world was the mental and not the physical. Christ died on the cross a broken heart on the cross and not from the physical pain that He endured because He knew that it was not our enemy, that betrayed Him but one of His friends and He suffered for all, that He died for us on the Cross.

SERVING THE BLIND

In the near future a campaign in the interest of the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, will be launched in Belleville, one of the most worthy causes in which the general public is requested to co-operate.

Few in this city realize that there are approximately twenty persons in Belleville who are classified as blind, that is those with ten per cent vision or less. The institute is serving those people in various ways. Two of them are being employed directly by the institute and are self-supporting. One of the bright things which so pleas the hearts of men and women is to know how such persons have been helped by the association. In Belleville one blind woman has read nearly one thousand volumes under the Institute library service in the past ten years. Home teachers have been sent here by the institute to teach the blind.

This is what Belleville is getting back from the institute for those citizens who have been deprived of sight. There is no citizen who will not admit the nobility of the aims behind this organization.

Belleville Board to aid in this campaign was established three years ago and through its co-operation has increased the efficiency of the society and added untold benefits to those who are benefited by the Institute.

For the protection of the local public in various ways and forms the canvassing is all done by local canvassers.

"SALT OF THE EARTH"

The latest issue of the Trenton Courier-Advocate says—

"It is probably not too late yet to tell you that the pictures of the Belleville flood which appeared in this paper recently were used through the kindness and generosity of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer, of whose staff from office boy to general manager we have a mighty high opinion. Good neighbors are the salt of the earth. And now that we mention it, we might define Trenton as a promising newspaper town surrounded by good neighbors in the publishing business. We would want better friends than the publishers in Brighton, Stirling, Picton, Belleville and Deseronto!"

The Ontario Intelligencer would again refer to the kindness and courtesy shown the management at the time of the recent flood and express appreciation of the offers of co-operation made by Mr. Galloway of the Trenton Quinte Sun, Mr. Alloway of the Oshawa Times, Mr. Harry Moore of the Trenton Courier Advocate and Messrs Rupert Davies and Mr. Harry Muir of the Kingston Whig-Standard. The Ontario Intelligencer was able to carry on without the loss of a single issue during that time with this assistance.

What the Trenton Courier Advocate proprietor and publisher says of the good neighbors in the publishing business, the Ontario Intelligencer gladly repeats for such it has found the publishers and staffs of the newspapers of this district.

CONDEMNED PREFER BULLETS

As Canada is studying the question of method of execution of those unfortunate social enemies condemned for murder, with special attention to the lethal chamber method, and as recently reference was made to the barbarity of hanging, it is interesting to note that Utah allows the condemned to choose between the firing squad and hanging. The Utah condemned prefer bullets to nooses. Only one man in thirty chose to be hanged.

Especially in western states ignominy attaches to hanging, as it was the way out of life practised on horse thieves at the hands of vigilantes with lariats and convenient trees. The past may explain why shooting was preferred. It is looked upon as a gentlemen's death.

A state prison official says that he has never discussed the question with a condemned man but that others have told him that they know what a gun will do but know nothing of the experience of hanging. Many men have had experience with animals which have been shot.

The only man who chose hanging did so in 1918 because when he heard that it would mean that a scaffold had to be erected. He chose hanging so as to put the state to expense. But by a perversity of fate the condemned man's father built the scaffold free of charge.

Utah has not had an execution since 1926.

THE WINDING WAY

Oh! little child on the winding way
Where the flowers grow and the love-light shines,
The wonder of all things is full on you now
When you come from God to the winding way.

Travel on joyously, boy or girl,
Out in the freedom and beauty of youth,
Hold out your hands for the great things of life,
Which God will give on the winding way.

Soon you will come to the forks of the road,
There all alone you will tarry and wait,
Companions to meet and decisions to make,
With God watching over the winding way.

Drink of the streams of life, crystal and pure,
Bask in the sunshine, and weather the storms,
Draw well from the years ere they pass out of reach;
Never fear, God is near to the winding way.

Than when the stress and the quakes and the flashes
Threaten the very foundations to shake,
Know that, though in air, your footsteps are sure,
Because God is under the winding way.

Though the foot be worn, the spirit is fleet,
And the soul expands with abounding life
When you go to God from the winding way.

BLACK SQUIRREL, DOMICILED ON EAST HILL, came out of winter retirement Saturday morning, apparently approved the sunshine but shivered in the cold wind, despite his black coat. His glossy black was faded, and he looked more like a grey squirrel than a black one. However, he made the round of near-by trees and engaged in a game of tag with an aggressive starling who seemed to have something against his squirrelship and attacked on all fronts but was not quick enough to get in any effective bits. The squirrel looked as if there had been no scarcity of food during the winter, having that plump and well-fed appearance which characterizes the appearance of those citizens who flit south every fall before the cold weather and return here after Old Boreas has ceased his severest blasts. Not far away the squirrel, in search of food, argument a yellow cat was trying to coax some sparrows to come within duelling distance but the sparrows could not see it that way and the little grey cat, with green eyes, swaggering around, were apparently not to the liking of the feline game hunter.

HAMILTON HERALD HAS FOLDED UP after nearly fifty years daily publication. The owners could not stand the strain of a loss of over $100,000 a year. In these days when so much is demanded by the public of newspapers, when a newspaper press may cost from twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars installed in the smaller cities, teletype charges run into thousands of dollars each year, typesetting machinery, Linotypes, and what not, the days of starting or running a newspaper, daily or weekly, on a shoestring are past and gone. It costs big money to run a newspaper and it takes constant watchfulness and ability to keep the red out of the profit and loss account.

CHINESE IN CANADA NUMBER 48,000, according to a summary made by the editor of Lindsay Post. There are only 3,500 females, 1,900 boys and 1,800 girls under the age of fifteen. British Columbia claims 27,000 Chinese population and most of the children are in that province. Chinese doctors number 6,400, with about the same number engaged in laundry work, 3,500 cafe and tavern owners, 125 hairdressers, 18 musicians, 14 clergymen eight journalists, seven actors and four police, the rest being divided among various occupations, such as salmon fishing, gold mining, etc. Chinese in Canada have a certain dignity and pride and will do most anything rather than lose face, hence as far as known relief rolls have yet to contain a Chinese name. Chinese unemployed in Canada are looked after by the Chinese employed, which may or may not have a moral for other races.

LACK OF VITAMIN 'D' IN DIET CAUSE OF POOR HEALTH

Experiments on Rats Show That The Deficiency Has Bad Effect on Intestinal Tract

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor)

Cambridge, Mass., April 6 (AP)—Experiments which mgnal an unexpected human value to be derived from Vitamin D were made public today at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The findings were derived from 1,000 X-ray photographs of rats which had been fed diets containing more or less Vitamin D, comparable to the diets of human beings. The photographs were taken after a buttermilk-barium drink, like that given human subjects previous to X-ray examination.

The investigators found rod-shaped were retained a long time in the intestinal tract after a previous diet deficient in Vitamin D as compared with retention from a diet in which this vitamin is plentiful.

The nutritional reactions of the rat are so often similar to those of man that it can be assumed the results of this feeding experiment may be applied to human beings. The work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology was done by Professor Robert S. Harris and Professor John W. M. Bunker.

"A diet deficient in Vitamin D," they stated, "produces a definite abnormality (abnormality of all parts of the gastrointestinal tract of Albino rats. This is in agreement with the constipation which is generally expected in the conditions of rickets in rats or children."

Lack of the vitamin delayed emptying of the stomach and intestines by as much as 15 hours. Addition of Vitamin D to diets which had been so lacking in it that cause rickets not only cured this condition but actually relieved the intestinal sluggishness.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

by R. J. SCOTT

HOFFMAN PRESSES INVESTIGATION

Trenton, N.J., Apr. 6 (AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman, target of political censure for the death of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, took the offensive against his critics today with the announcement he would press his own investigation for the "complete truth" of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder.

In his first formal statement since Hauptmann's execution on Friday night, the governor, who once reprieved Hauptmann and who was prevented by law from doing so again, said there was ground for doubt Hauptmann was not guilty alone and perhaps not guilty at all.

Meanwhile, a man who claimed to have "bought" $6,000 of "Lindbergh ransom", money was claimed to be "somewhere in the east", probably in a search for the money, which he said he hid in a safe deposit box.

The man, Stephen Spitz of Chicago, started on a secret mission in company with an attorney, Bernard J. Finnigan last Wednesday. Mrs. Finnigan said a telegram from her husband, "somewhere in the east" advised her the case was "progressing nicely".

Spitz was freed from Chicago's Bridewell prison through payment of $993, the remaining portion of a fine. The money was provided in a telegraph money order from Governor Hoffman.

Plans to Meet Governor

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the Chicago Crime Commission said Spitz' plan was to meet Governor Hoffman in New York.

The governor said he was convinced the Lindbergh kidnap-murder was not a one-man job and expressed belief "somewhere in the world" there are persons breathing "deep relief"—"we got away with that".

"If, instead of Hauptmann not-being guilty alone, he was not guilty at all, there is another common danger to be considered," the governor said. "This is the danger any citizen may walk around a street corner into a set of circumstances which will bring the hand of the law upon his shoulder and hurry him to prison or death, upon circumstantial evidence, for a crime he has not committed.

"There is ground for both doubts in the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. There are contradictions, impossibilities and inconsistencies in the evidence upon which he was convicted. Already there is the growth of a legend he was not guilty and that he died unjustly. Such a legend a state may work great injury to the law and public safety."

Hoffman Will Fight.

Kingston, Ont., Apr. 6 (CP)—Mrs. Carol Hamm of Kingston, who wrote Governor Hoffman of New Jersey, commending him on his efforts to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann, executed for the murder of Lindbergh baby, has received personal letter from Governor Hoffman in which he states he did everything in his power for the condemned man.

The letter, under date of April 2, before the execution, said in part: "I have fought with every resource at my command, to secure simple and complete justice in this matter and regardless of the outcome, I intend to continue my investigation of this case until every possible channel of inquiry is exhausted."

The finer safety of the car didn't just "happen" with the introduction of closed bodies and four-wheel brakes (both of which McLAUGHLIN-BUICK popularized)—but grew over the years from deep-set roots of sound designing, responsible engineering and the conscience that craftmanship fosters. . . . Weddings

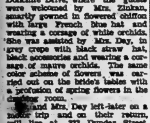
DAY—ZINKAN

Toronto—An interesting wedding took place at three o'clock Saturday afternoon in Wycliffe College Chapel, when Algeo Alicia (Portia), daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Zinkan, became the bride of Mr. Norman H. Day, son of Mrs. Day and the late Mr. W. F. Day. The flowers in the chapel were carried out in the shades of blue, white and mauve, with snapdragons, lily and stocks, and a background of ferns. Rev. W. R. Taylor performed the ceremony and Miss Scott played the wedding music.



The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a striking gown of stiff white satin fashioned with a panel's sleeves, a long train, high folded cowl neckline and finished at the waistline with a girdle of pearl pearls. Her long, filmy tulle veil fell from a bandeau of white flowers and she carried a bouquet of lily of the valley and sweetheart roses.

Miss Jean Hiller, as maid of honor, was lovely in a fitted gown of pink lace with short, matching jacket, matching pink hat trimmed with blue flowers, pink accessories and carried Talisman roses and blue cornflowers.

Mr. Wilson Tugman was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Rivard (Teddy) Zinkan, brother of the bride, and Mr. Walter Lambera.

The reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Zinkan on Doncliffe Drive, where the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Zinkan, smartly gowned in flowered chiffon with large French rose hat and wearing a corsage of white orchids. She was assisted by Mrs. Day, in grey crepe with black straw hat, black accessories and wearing a corsage of mauve orchids. The same color scheme of flowers was carried out on the bride's tables with a profusion of spring flowers in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Day left later on a honor trip and on their return will live at 323 Dundas Street, Belleville. For travelling the bride wore a smart green silk frock with scarf, hat and accessories to match and a beige coat.

The very instructive course was followed with interest by the classes this winter and those attending found the weekly meetings most enjoyable as well as helpful.

Arrangements for the classes were in charge of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, convener, who spared no effort to make the course a success.

Retreat Opens At St. Michael's

These devotions will be repeated in the evening at seven-thirty.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Margaret Sullavan, Randolph Scott in "So Red the Rose"—Wheeler and Woolsey, "Silly Billies"

Although it has been the custom in the past for directors to make three or four "takes" on certain scenes before the camera, King Vidor, director of Paramount's romance, "So Red the Rose", coming to the Bells tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee daily, essentially "shoots" a scene but once, a method that considerably shaves down production costs.

The average scene, in the opinion of Mr. Vidor, should be thoroughly rehearsed, before the camera begins to grind. If this practice is followed but one "take" will be needed.

Vidor also explained that the three-strip-tint "take" system was inaugurated many years ago when camera and film imperfections made multiple "takes" necessary for protection against flaws.

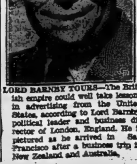
"So Red the Rose", featuring Margaret Sullavan, Walter Connolly, Randolph Scott, Elizabeth Patterson, Janet Beecher, and Harry Eliezbe, is the screen version of Stark Young's novel of the Old South before and after the War between the States.

Wheeler and Woolsey, Screamer

Perhaps the funniest, and certainly the most original, of all Wheeler and Woolsey's screen offerings is "Silly Billies", their newest feature-reel screamer, and announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

The two comedy clowns lap a virgin field in using the plot of the covered-wagon era as a setting for their riotous nonsense. In the roles of a pair of crack dentists they set forth to pull all the teeth in the wild and woolly town of Gopher, naturally they find themselves involved in brought to their necks in trouble.

They rent an office in a ghost-town; save a wagon-train from an Indian attack; narrowly escape lynching, drowning in a quicksand, burning at the stake and other fates. These episodes come thick and fast throughout the plot, and have been deftly handled to maintain the laughter level of the film at a high point.



Petite Dorothy Lee, who has played the feminine lead in nearly all the famous mirthmakers' pictures, again supplies the love interest as a young cowboy's sweetheart on her way to the California gold fields.

Hundreds of Indians and cowboys participate in the wagon train scenes, and the realistic atmosphere offers plenty of real thrills as a contrast to the antics of the two funsters.

The Bells Latest World News Events will be exhibited on the same program.

Grand Show Tonight

A grand show of exceptionally fine entertainment will be exhibited at the Bells tonight for the last time in Laurel and Hardy in the Bohemian Girl" offering ninety most merry moments of uproarious entertainment and Clarence Mulford's "Call of the Prairie," featuring William Boyd and Jimmy Ellison.

LORD BARNBY TOURS—The British empire could well take lessons in advertising from the United States, according to Lord Barnby, political leader and business director of London, England. He is pictured as he arrived in San Francisco after a business trip in New Zealand and Australia.

AT THE CAPITOL

Spy-Ring Picture With Holmes Is Hit

One of the most closely-knit and absorbing revelations of the sinister operations of European spies will hold audiences spellbound when "The House of a Thousand Candles" opens a two-day run at the Capitol Theatre today.

Phillips Holmes, as a young British secret agent on a hazardous mission, gives what critics declare is the most impressive performance of his thirty-odd pictures. The picture is a thrilling adaptation of the mystery novel of the same name by Meredith Nicholson.

The glamorous, foreign atmosphere of "The House of a Thousand Candles," an Alpine peasant resort of the European alps, provides a thrilling setting. Virginia Field, one of the stage and screen's most brilliant actors, is disclosed as the grandly smiling hostess. Hostile Aleyce is the fiery Spanish dancer featured in the entertainment.

A quick transition to England shows Holmes, by devious and dark ways, getting his orders for a dangerous mission to Geneva. The fact is emphasized that the foreign agent is "easy" to give advance knowledge of every move by which British hopes to avert a European war in the short space of forty-eight hours.

Lovely Miss Clarke, admirer of Holmes, much to his chagrin, insists on sticking by his side and succeeds despite his many attempts to ditch her. The Spanish dancer, sent to intercept Holmes on the train, becomes aware of his coded smoke-written message.

Thereafter follow in swift succession the many scenes in which the resort host is disclosed as the master spy, operating by means of coded messages to his secret over an apparently innocent radio advertising broadcast.

How the featured leads match their wits against the spy and carry out their mission provides rapid-fire and gripping entertainment for an entire evening.

Hauptmann's Widow and Son Hauptmann's Mother

DEATH TAKES HAUPTMANN BUT THE MYSTERY LINGERS ON—Bruno Richard Hauptmann is dead, but the Lindbergh murder case lingers on—to millions of people unsolved. The kidnapping and murder of baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh has become the most famous in the crime annals of the world; it has brought suffering and tragedy into the hearts of many. Those who lost most heavily, however, are Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, who lost a son; and Mrs. Hauptmann and her son Manfried, who lost a husband and a father. To the Lindberghs, the crime has been avenged; to the Hauptmanns, the state has taken the life of an innocent man. Probably never will the truth of the whole tragic case be known.

Another PROSPECT

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers in 1935 — a law of business. This loss must be replaced or his business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the danger point, can find them again and increase his turnover by good merchandising linked with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

Mothers Run "Business" Alone

But They Also Should Have "Conferences" Like Their Hubbies

By LISA GRENELLE

IN PHOENIXVILLE, Virginia, a brave and intelligent woman is attempting to organize a "cure for the Child Ills" or a "Mothers' Aid Society" wrote asking my advice, which I gave, with my blessing.

It's funny how hard it is to get mothers together. A few desultory complaints and a little bragging pass between them, but do they ever ask each other for an honest opinion, a frank suggestion? Do they ever compare child behavior in an intelligent impersonal manner? Well, hardly ever.

And yet, how much they could learn, if they only would, how much tragedy and heartbreak might they save themselves, how much worry and perhaps, the loss of their children's affections!

But mothers are too proud or too confident of their own infallible instinct. Or they are too jealous of their own superiority and the superiority of their children and their methods to consult with other mothers. Wrigh! am Mrs. — teach me how to do that symbol bred of hate? She could, perhaps, teach you what to avoid. Personally, I've never talked with a mother so foolish that he or she didn't have something to teach me, for my own children, if was never properly educated until they took a hand.

They Seek Advice

The most successful business men have been having "conferences" until business conferences have become material for jokes. Some of the success of any method. No executive would think of conducting his affairs without regular and frequent interviews, discussions and conventions with his partners, colleagues and other like rivals. He wants and needs the advice, the frank opinion and the personal points of view of all others and in his particular line of business. He wants their suggestions. He wants to know their methods, he wants to compare his own with theirs in order to improve himself, and he does do it to find over his superiority. If one is successful he wants to find out why and adopt his method.

Mothers, too, find it necessary and profitable to meet regularly in order to discuss their pupils and methods of handling in order to exchange point of views.

Bigger Business

Only mother seems to feel adequate to run her business alone, without consulting anyone, solely on her own judgment. Only she does not find it necessary to discuss, to compare methods, profits, results or expenses, with other members of her profession.

Yet to be a mother, a good one, is far more difficult than running any business. It requires more special knowledge, more quick, important decisions and more immediate results than any business or method we have intricate. A wrong decision can have many more serious consequences.

Of course, "instinct" may help. It never helped me, but you may be different. Books help a little, but not much. The greatest help you can get, aside from employing your own common sense, is from the other mothers. Mothers of children the same age as yours, living in the neighborhood, under the same conditions. Perhaps she is a fool, perhaps a cat, perhaps common or uncommonplace. Nevertheless, if she is a mother, she has something to learn from her, if it is only her mistakes.

Fashion Flashes

NOT ALL will be slim and tall-ored in the days to come. The boxy, flowy silhouette is attracting a great deal of attention. A typical suit has a three-quarter length jacket with a flowing back and a fingertip hem and Rosebud length skirt.

RAGGY TIMES mean lovely evening frocks. A nice model is of white tulle over a slip satin foundation with bias folds of the same fabric with bias folds of the same fabric with bias folds of the same fabric bordering the full skirt. Puffed sleeves and a deep, slit V neck are other details.

SCANDINAVIAN INFLUENCE is seen in the trend toward bright colors and added a happy note. Out in the snow one will have a white jacket trimmed with red and blue in the collar and in the pockets. Trousers may be of navy blue and sweater of white. The white hat had navy blue ornamentation.

BUILD UP your dinner suit around one item. For instance, with a lovely satin sheer white blouse one can add, with pleated ruffle, bow tie and pearl buttons there is formed a high-waisted dinner skirt, a white Ottoman silk bolero and a red silk cummerbund.

THE SMART ACCENT for Florida costumes is neatness. A neat white blouse of linen, piqua in white has a flat collarless neckline and a low V in back. A set bone emblem is worn with a red silk handkerchief and a red silk cummerbund.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

FUTURE MOTHER-IN-LAW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am an engaged very soon and as my fiance's mother lives in a distant city, I have never had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with her. I will not have an opportunity to meet her until quite some time after our marriage.

As my fiance has just written telling her of our coming marriage, I feel that I would like to write to her and introduce myself in some way. Would it be proper for me to do this? If so, should I write now, or wait until after I am married? Please give me an idea of what one should say in such a letter?

Since your fiance has just written his mother telling of your engagement, you will undoubtedly have a letter from her welcoming you into the family and telling of her happiness at the news. This is the usual custom.

On the other hand, it is perfectly proper for you to write her a letter, "introducing" yourself, telling her of your happiness, of your hopes for her, and of your anticipation of meeting her, and other appropriate matters of mutual interest. The more complete your letter and your news of yourself and of your plans for your marriage, the more delightful you will be. Tell yourself in best phrase and realize what easy you would be to have a friendly, warm-hearted letter of appreciation. Don't be "chilly" about your gracious friendliness and don't ask her if she would like a sweet — tea-cake, layer cake, fruit cake, or even ice-cream.

Since men usually don't like to post letters, why with propriety ask her if she would "like to do the honors"? You can, of course, leave the serving of the tea to the waiter, but you may prefer to serve her yourself.

TEA HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have invited a young lady to tea. But I am not sure how to carry out the problems confronting me. In this city it is seldom that my friends serve tea, while the young lady lives in a town where tea suppers are more frequent and popular. Please tell me how I should go about ordering what I should wear, and if I should send her flowers?

Henry.

I'd like to have you send the young lady flowers for her to wear when she goes to eating with you. It would be gallant and generous of you—and she'd be delighted, of course. Two or three gardenias (two if she's a small gal), always make a charming and welcome corsage and "go with" all kinds of costumes and colors. And one or two camellias (white, if possible) are very elegant.

Wear your business suit.

When you have taken your seats in the restaurant, the waiter will bring you the tea-menu. There are usually two "courses" as tea-time the bread course, and the sweet course. Do you might say, "What kind of tea will you have.....and will you also be in the mood for cream?".....And would you like toast, perhaps cinnamon toast.....or what do you see in the menu that you would prefer?" After this conversation you might ask her if she would like a sweet — tea-cake, layer cake, fruit cake, or even ice-cream.

Since men usually don't like to post letters, why with propriety ask her if she would "like to do the honors"? You can, of course, leave the serving of the tea to the waiter, but you may prefer to serve her yourself.

Dear Marjorie and Gerald:—

As a small body of young people, we wish to express our appreciation and respect which we truly hold for you two.

We wish to thank Marjorie for her musical talent which she so kindly has bestowed upon us, time after time, and for her loving straight forward manner which attracted and achieved. We hope Marjorie will continue to lead and work throughout our community. We thank Gerald for his good fellowship and respect. He has led our Young People's Union over trying times with his calm personality and fine work. He bestowed more than we can give thanks for. We hope that you both and Gerald will accept our small token and forgive us for not paying for the whole thing ourselves. Best wishes, Young People.

Both Marjorie and Gerald responded in a fitting manner to these addresses and expressed their deep appreciation of the sentiment expressed in the many lovely gifts, and extended a hearty welcome to all their friends to visit them in their home.

The gathering then rose and sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." The ladies then served lunch and the evening was spent in a social manner.

LATTA

Latta—Several of the ladies from here called to see Mrs. B. Camplin on the 25th anniversary that she left for her home in Renfrew. She will be remembered by Mrs. R. and W. I. in both of which she took an active part. We hope she may enjoy good health and happiness.

$25,751 ANNUAL SAVING IN HYDRO UNDER NEW RATE

New Discount Rate of 15 Per Cent 'Domestic' In Belleville

POWER RATE CUT

Belleville Commission Today Authorize Immediate Changes

Annual saving of $25,751.72 in the electric consumers of Belleville is estimated as the result of the change in rates and discounts established by the Belleville Hydro Commissioners today on advice from the Ontario Commission. The change goes into effect at once. Bills sent out will bear the new rates and new discounts.

Domestic $11,408.76
Commercial 8,788.23
Power 3,851.16
Municipal 743.37
Street Lighting 260.00

Total estimated saving $25,751.72

The basic domestic rates are unchanged but something new in the line of discounts and local discount has been established. This is in addition to the 10 per cent prompt payment discount.

On commercial lighting, after the first three cents per hour's load the rate per month per kilowatt hour of demand drops to 1.5 cents which means half a cent a Kilowatt. Commercial lighting there is a local discount of ten per cent.

In power the first and second brackets, that is for fifty hours use of load per kilowatt hour of demand, drop from 1.5 to 1.5 cents and the second from 1.0 to 1.3 cents and the next two brackets unchanged. But the local discount for power drops from 15 to 10 per cent. The basic rate of per H.P. per year is given as $18 as against $20 last year. Mr. Scott, manager, explained to the board that the reduction of the rate in the first two brackets of power was for the purpose of providing a basis for rates. Waterworks will save $745.27 in use of electricity.

Street lighting costs are quite substantially cut to net an estimated saving of $260.

The entire board, G. A. Reid, chairman, M. F. Duff and Mayor Hill attended the meeting.

Manager and Secretary Scott, presented the following statement for comparison of the old and new rates and discounts which have become effective April 1.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, April 6—(AP)—Despite considerable profit taking, stocks generally moved forward ahead in today's stock market.

A number of the leaders went to new high ground for five years or longer with advances of fractions to a few points.

U.S. Steel and General Motors led the upturn, both getting up to around 71, nearing the final hour other outstanding advances were scored by Chrysler, Chrysler, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Union Carbide, United Carbon, Case, Anaconda, Kennecott, Deere and American Telephone.

In power issues were backward for awhile but North American and Columbia Gas moved to the front later for gains of about a point each. There were a few losers, including Auburn, Studebaker, Maytag, Manville, American Can and Distillers Seagram.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, April 6.—(CP)—Opening trade was well up in the Toronto Industrial Market today but the pace was not maintained and the session advanced. The morning sale included 10 lots of one share and these were holding gains of 3-8 to a point this afternoon while Ford A had a half and Brazilian Traction and C.P.R. were unchanged at 7½ and 13½ respectively.

Steel issues were strong. Pressed Metals jumped 1 1-4 points and A Dominion Bridge 4 at 93 1-4 had a gain of a full point.

After Friday's higher Distillers-Seagrams slumped to 24 3-4, down 1 1-4 and Walkers common and Industrial Alcohol A were unchanged.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, April 6 (CP)—Narrow gains and losses were chalked up on Toronto mining market today while the Senior and Junior field fairly sizzled. Bralorne, Dome, Little Long Lac, Sherritt Gordon, Perron higher and Buffalo-Ankerite, Siscoe, Lamaque and McWatters fractionally off. Base metal stocks displayed considerable activity with Noranda expert for Noranda, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay and Sudbury Basin. Hard Rock, Bidgood Kirkland and Centremon in the silver group.

Gold bull of the week opened in Red Lake Gold Shore for a rise of a few points and Pickle Crow and Dome 75. Cody Lake rebounded about 10. Chemical issues on the board today, selling around 70c.

J. FRIEDLANDER GIVEN 6 MONTHS

Joseph Friedlander, 30-year-old Winnipeg transient, was sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory with a further indeterminate period of two months, by magistrate this morning, in the Ontario Reformatory after he had pleaded guilty to the charge of theft of $1,000 from the police court held before Magistrate J. F. Jones.

Friedlander, who was arrested by local police on a charge of suspicion shortly last week, was identified with the theft of a gold ring from Mrs. Sybilla Sparks, the ring was discovered missing also. It was found in Friedlander's possession after he had unsuccessfully tried to sell it to Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard.

Prior to the passing of sentence, Friedlander's counsel was read to the court by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C. It was then discovered that he had been convicted eight times on various counts of theft throughout Canada and received jail terms and sentences on all counts. Friedlander's personality attracted much attention on his own behalf, assuring His Worship he had quit "the racket" after serving the last sentence "straight". "I made a sincere effort, but unforseen circumstances prevented me from doing so", he explained.

"You have a very bad record and apparently prestige jail sentences have done no good to set you on the right track. Not less than six months nor more than two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory and costs of $2.50 in this court," concluded His Worship as Friedlander took his seat with bowed head.

Board Room Gossip

Central Patricia

Addition to mill put into effect on March 1st last and is now treating 180 tons daily. Mining and production expected to run between $60,000 and $100,000 monthly.

Malrobie

Meeting of shareholders called for April 8 to approve agreement by which company takes an interest in certain leasehold property in Warm Springs Creek district, Idaho.

Harry Hindson

A new rich gold find almost in the town of Matheson is reported by Dr. E. H. Greene, who optioned the property last December and carried on surface investigation through the winter.

A moderate resumption of the upward movement was noted in last week's trading, with several issues advancing into new high territory. Trading, however, did not increase to any appreciable extent indication that the public is still more or less doubtful of the strength in Wall Street was not entirely reflected in Canadian markets.

The fundamentals which were responsible for the 1935 advance in stock prices have not changed in important respect, and there appears no reason for revision of general investment views at this time. Threats of monetary inflation have faded, it is true, but the ultimate effect of credit inflation is now greater than ever before. Corporate earnings promise to continue their upward trend and, in addition, the elimination of the riding tide of dividend disbursements is indicated. These are the factors on which stock price improvement feeds.

A further market "breathing spell" in the several weeks ahead is one we would not be surprising, but this affords no reason for alarm in the soundly situated issues. So far as investment grade bonds are concerned, little room for appreciable gains may be seen in average prices but occasional individual issues rate promise to be with us for some time to come, and thus the importance of quality in interest bearing issues seems currently in prospect.

Harrington & Co. are a share on Distillers-Seagram in the first six months of its fiscal year indicates annual income in excess of $3.25. In this connection it is interesting to point out that the company is currently selling at approximately 8 times earnings, a ratio that is not high when compared to other securities.

Imperial Oil

Before long Canadian shareholders of Imperial Oil Limited will have before them the annual financial statement of the company for the year 1935. It will make excellent reading. Once again it will show that the bulk of its net income has come from its subsidiary, the International Petroleum Company.

In 1935, for instance all but 13 per cent of the profit of Imperial Oil $1.36 that was paid out to shareholders came from the latter source than operations in Canada. There seems to be little doubt but that the present dividend of $1.25 a share of this will be disbursed to stockholders for a long while to come.

Therefore, the investor buying shares of Imperial at the present time secures a yield of 5.5 per cent of the investment. Prior to this return appears to be very high when the steadily declined record of this company is considered to say nothing about the outlook, which is for further improvement in business.

The main reason why Imperial has not participated to any extent in the improvement in the price list is due to the fact that peculation selling has been coming from one quarter, the United States where that such liquidation was just about over. It is now generally agreed to better account of itself, as much of the buying that has been and is coming from quarters close to Standard Oil in New York.

Hollinger

Hollinger Consolidated has established ore reserves of close to $50,000,000 and is conducting operations on a basis which assures a further long and profitable life.

Noranda

Confidence in the future as expressed by President Murdoch of Noranda Mines, Limited, to the shareholders at the annual meeting has undoubtedly attracted investors of this issue. With the result that the shares have moved into new high ground. Fresh evidence of this sort go a long way toward assisting buyers of securities to clear up the prospects of any company.

During recent years, the company has tangibly demonstrated its ability to carry on during low copper prices. With a increase in the flexible nature of the company's ore, which promises treating ore high in gold content during periods of low copper prices. Because of the large tonnage in copper, any increase in the price of the metal has a marked effect on the company's earnings, and there are indications at the present time that low copper price point has been passed.

First Period Offensive Helps Redwings Defeat Leafs 3-1 In First Stanley Cup Game

Detroit Made Leafs Carry The Play to Them

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit, April 6—(CP)— Intent upon winning hockey's two championships, and doing it with the least possible delay, Detroit Redwings prepared confidently today for the second game of the Stanley Cup series against Toronto Maple Leafs. The Wings were almost ready to believe that Detroit can't be beaten just now.

They humbled the Leafs here last night 3-1 in the first game of the best-of-five series, staggering the fighting henchmen of Conn Smythe with two goals early in the first period. It was a clean-cut victory. After taking the lead the Wings checked effectively and gave Toronto few scoring chances.

Fresh from a week's layoff, apparently tuned up despite the idle stretch, Detroit's Big Line and the team, that seemed somewhat tired, having played Wednesday night's 10-11 days to quality for the finals, The Leafs lagged at times, but the Wings were there.

In position to become the first twin-title winners in five years, Red Wings will face Leafs for the second time here tomorrow night. Then the rivals move to Toronto for the third and fourth games, though Wings need but one more victory taking three straight. If a fifth is necessary, it will be played in Detroit.

Nay, Beaten At Playoffs

The Wings have yet to be beaten in the playoffs. They won the National League championship in three straight from Montreal Maroons. They allowed Maroons only a single goal in four games to annex the title.

And they figure they won't be beaten in an adds, they predict Detroit Olympics to win the International League title from Windsor Bulldogs. The baseballing Tigers, the footballing Lions, the boxing Joe Louis of the heavyweights —they're all winners for Detroit. It's a habit.

The Red Wing machine functioned smoothly and swiftly last night before a crowd of 12,000, that absorbed all its thrills in the first period. It was a tight-checking affair thereafter with Wings breaking away for occasional dangerous rushes and the Leaf driving in, always gunning, to reduce a two-goal deficit.

Aurie Loses Temper

Larry Aurie, veteran right winger, lost his temper in the first period and thats how it came about, that set his team won. A break for the Leafs backfired.

Aurie went down on a rush and was stopped by Red Horner, bad boy of the Toronto defence, when he objected the Aurie neck none too gently. Aurie claimed Red bit neither of the officials, Bill Stewart nor Ag Smith, figured Horner meant anything serious. They'll were not penalized.

A minute later Horner charged down with the puck and Aurie went after him, angrily cutting his feet from under him. There was nothing to do but penalize the Detroit winger, and that's what they did for the game's first general assault. They waded in on the attack.

Buzzy McDonald broke away for the first Detroit goal, slopping clear of Toronto rushers. Andy Blair and Charlie Conacher chased him but while Blair managed to make a stab at the puck, McDonald, in perfect control and scored with a hard shot, that went over goalie George Hainsworth's left shoulder. The Aurie penalty had back-fired.

Score From Gang Play

As Aurie got out of the box, Doug Young slashed Marty Barry with his scudder gang attack and Syd Howe skated down the score. Howe flipped Blair out of position on the way down. His shot caught the near side of the net as Hainsworth moved to cover the open side.

Seven minutes later, when both teams were at full strength, Brunetteau passed to Wally Kilrea for the third Red Wing goal, Kilrea skated right up to Hainsworth and coolly addressed the puck to cagey at times before shooting low to a far corner of the cage. The Leaf defence had been busy checking Brunetteau.

Bill Thoms and Buzz Boll erased this counter in 10 seconds, speeding down from the face-off after Charlie Conacher got the play started. Thoms passed to the Buzzer at the defence and Boll tripped a drive between the legs of Goalie Normie

ANOTHER GREENSBURG—Another Jack Greenberg family with Detroit Tigers baseball team, is in the making. Greenberg and wife attended to training camp duties while brother Hank was a holdout. Brother Joe may still stick with the club. Here he is going up after a high one.

Smith.

In the second period Detroit continued to look for scoring chances, sending down two-man excursions. They maintained a good margin over the Leafs. Bob'ris the third frame they tightened the defensive and Toronto began to let the Leafs come to them. Weary from forcing the pace, the Leafs made only a few real scoring opportunities.

WESTONATS WIN OVER PEMBROKE WESLEYS ARE IN

SASKATOON WINS

Wesleys Are Western Champs by Defeating Elmwood of Winnipeg

By The Canadian Press

They rolled back the curtains of the Allan and Memorial Cup stage today and opened for the entry of Kimberley Dynamiters and Sudbury Falcons in the senior series and Saskatoon Wesleys and West Toronto Nationals in the junior.

West Toronto had not yet obtained a definite part in the Memorial Cup play but were expected to take their place tomorrow night after meeting Pembroke Little Lumber Kings in the second act of the Eastern Canada final.

Kimberley and Sudbury open before a Winnipeg audience Thursday night in the first game of a best-of-five series for Canada's highest award to an amateur hockey team. They play every other night after that until a successor to Halifax Wolverines is crowned.

Saskatoon, champions of Western Canada, start tth Memorial final in Toronto next Saturday afternoon.

The slowly-fading season moved towards conclusion Saturday as Saskatoon beat Winnipeg Elmwood 4-3 in overtime, Sudbury defeated Brockville Maroons 5-4 and West Toronto scored by 8-3 over the Little Lumber Kings. It was the second straight for Wesleys in the same score.

The Falcons of Sudbury captured the eastern senior title with a convincing display of speed that had Maroons Magdalens baffled throughout, Tied 3-3 at the end of the second period, Sudbury got four goals in the final period.

They had dropped the first game 5-4 and won this game 5-3.

The Falcons came back to Sudbury yesterday to a populace that could talk nothing but hockey. The citizens had the word of coach Sammy Rechichi that "the boys were looking better each time out and were sure to give a good account of themselves."

The eastern champions will leave here Tuesday morning every player in good condition. "Stinky" Bellinger, regular forward, who was out of the Brockville series with a dislocated shoulder will move back into the lineup against Dynamiters.

Falcons beat the Magsdomas with a brilliant display of speed that had a 3-0 margin midway through the second period. A brief lapse on the part of Joe Irvanicoe allowed Brockville to tie the score by the end of the period but Wilbur Hiller fired two goals and Len Cook and Art Stuart one each in the final period.

DETROIT O'S AND BULLDOGS MEET

Teams Will Play Five Game Series For I.H.L. Title

Windsor, Ont., April 6—(CP) The battle for the International Hockey League championship will be staged on the ice of the Detroit River with Windsor Bulldogs arrayed against Detroit Olympics, considered one of the finest squads in minor league hockey.

Olympics and Bulldogs open the I.H.L. clashs in Detroit Wednesday night, then move across the river Friars in the first game playoff, are for the second game Friday night. Olympics, victors over Syracuse top-heavy betting favorites.

Bulldogs advanced into the final with a 3-0 victory over Buffalo Bisons at Niagara Falls Saturday night. It gave them a game edge in the best-of-three series after they had won by 3-1 and dropped a 1-0 decision.

Ronnie King and Joe Rivoto fired the deciding goals for Windsor and Bisons never could break through a stubborn Bulldogs defence, that gave Goalie Mac Robertson ample protection.

Desperate after two-goal setback, Bisons paid no attention to defensive work in the last two periods and kept on the attack with seven and five forwards. Tenacious checking by Sandy Bowman and Edwards and effective defence work held Bisons off.

RAIN HALTS WORK

SUDBURY FALCONS EASTERN CHAMPS

Play in Winnipeg For Allan Cup By Defeating Magsdomas

Sudbury, Ont., April 6—(CP) — Sudbury Falcons, eastern Canada Senior Hockey champions, rested here today and prepared for their invasion of Winnipeg where they meet Kimberley Dynamiters, champions of the west, in the Allan Cup final starting Thursday night.

Falcons, eliminated once and got another chance when Hamilton Tigers defaulted, earned the eastern title with a 6-2 triumph over Brockville Magsdomas in Toronto Saturday in the third game of the series.

O.B.A.A. Derive New Income By Increasing Entry Fees; Umpire Fees are Cut Down

Players Transferring to Another Club Must Pay $2.00

SET PLAYOFF DATES

Motion to Divide Junior Series Defeated by Delegates

Toronto, April 6 (CP)—A new source of income to help fill the depleting coffers of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association was written into the rule books today. It was decided at the 18th annual meeting of the association here Saturday players moving from one point to another must pay a $2 transfer fee, providing the transfer is passed before they can play baseball with an association team.

A motion senior and intermediate teams' entry fees be increased from $10 to $15 was approved by the delegates. It was decided to cut umps' travelling expenses from $1.00 a mile, one way, for 12 players, to $1.00 a mile. Umpire fees were slashed from $10 to $8 a game in the senior section and from $7.00 to $6.00 for intermediate officials. Umpire's travelling expenses were also lowered.

Motion by the Bruce County and Grey County leagues to divide Junior series into "A" and "B" sections so as to separate weak and strong teams was defeated.

Demand of the Inter-County Baseball Association for a larger reason was withdrawn after much debate. The Inter-County suggested four leagues for senior and intermediate "A" sections be declared the second Saturday in September. The last Saturday in August is the present date for these in the major series to be ready for playoffs.

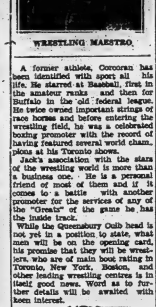
A motion by the Inter-County Association urging adoption of a provision under which senior teams in Metropolitan areas would be empowered to designate up to 15 players was withdrawn after considerable discussion. The idea being that these 15 players could not be signed by an intermediate club and the league was to strengthen senior teams.

Inter-County to Try Indoor Ball
The idea will be tried out in the Inter-County league this year and a report will be given at the next annual meeting.

Provision was made, under a motion by Guelph minor league, amending dates on which league champions must play off with the minor series. Junior, juvenile and bantam championships will be decided by the first Saturday in August instead of a week later as the previous rule called for.

Another suggestion by the Guelph minor league that minor two-of-three playoff series be completed within six days was defeated. It proposed the O.B.A.A. executive define clearly whether a senior and intermediate semi-final series be two-of-three or three-of-five games was carried.

A. J. Walsh of Toronto was named President, when W.A. Smith of Oak, President for the last two years, withdrew and gave his ballot to Walsh, only other nominee. Reports of Treasurer A. Billmer, Guelph and W. J. Snyder, Hamilton, were adopted and the two will occupy their positions for another year.



Treasurer Billmer reported an actual deficit of $67.24 for the year, largely offset, however, by a $500 grant from the Ontario Athletic Commission. A bank balance of $1,674.50 was shown.

J. CORCORAN TO SPONSOR BOUTS

City and District to be Treated With Best Wrestling Possible

Canada's most noted sports promoter—Jack Corcoran, of course—has been persuaded to come to Belleville and stage a series of all-star, all-heavyweight, wrestling shows. He has consented to do so after due deliberation and in accepting the invitation, he promises that the men brought here will be the same dashing, crashing mat experts he features at Maple Leaf Gardens, before one of the largest crowds last year.

Corcoran, who probably is better known than any other sports promoter, past or present, is the man who is leading four wrestling impresarios on the continent and the cream of the grappling talent is at his disposal. That, he promise of a list of championship contenders for local shows is one he will be well able to make good.

WRESTLING MAESTRO.

A former athlete, Corcoran has been identified with sport all his life, having been baseball, football and the amateur ranks and then for Buffalo in the old federal league. He later owned important strings of race horses and before entering the wrestling field, he was a celebrated boxing promoter with the record of having featured several world champions at his Toronto shows.

Jack's association with the stars of the wrestling world is more than a business one. He is a personal friend of most of them and if he comes to a battle with other promoter for the services of any of the "name" boys, he usually gets the inside track.

While the Queensbury Club head is not yet in a position to state, what men will be on the opening card, his promise that they will be wrestlers, who are of main bout rating in Toronto, New York, Montreal or other leading wrestling centres is in itself good news. Word as to furniture details is also awaited with keen interest.

GOLF

By Kenneth Gregory, Associated Press Sports Writer

Augusta, Ga., April 6 (AP)—The rain-harassed Augusta National invitation golf tournament resumed today with the mud-running professionals in front of "Light Horse Harry" Cooper of Chicago who started the final 36 holes with a five-stroke margin over the master field.

Former Bobby Jones, retired champion of the golfing world and professional favorite, failed disastrously in his third crack against the professional's brilliant Cooper led the field into the second half of the 72-hole competition with a 70-68—138, five strokes under par.

Horace Drudzinski of Richmond, Ind., "Wee Scot" who lost to Jones in a playoff for the United States Open crown in 1934, was knotted with Denny Shute of Boston, the Tamer British champion, behind Cooper with even par 144's at the half way point.

It was plainly evident Jones could not match strokes with the "money players" in meeting ranking professionals once a year. His showing in the first 36 holes was his weakest since he started this favorite field of the annual tournament in 1934. He had rounds of 76-72, 13 over par, and was 36th in the field.

Finding themselves faced with a drastic reduction in the annual bank balance, the O.B.A.A. voted to raise their affiliation fee one dollar per club in the senior and intermediate series. In years past the leagues have only paid $30.00 for senior and ten for intermediate associations so to how many teams composed each league. By assessing each senior and intermediate club one dollar each the association will derive approximately $235.00 or more, which should be sufficient to assist them in operating without a loss in 1936. The delegates from Toronto and Western Ontario were dead against an increase and it was not until after B. A. Elliott, Delora, arose to the occasion and in his usual true form showed the delegates how the setting was. Mr. Elliott seems to have the happy faculty of being able to rise to heights and champion any cause or movement, that might be for the betterment of the association. Actually the new O.B.A.A. assessment means each senior and intermediate club must pay the parent body one dollar.

Congratulations were due to Joe Walsh at the 18th annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. in Toronto on Saturday. Joe has been a great baseball booster since the inauguration of the association in 1918, having acted as secretary, treasurer and executive member before being elected as president in 1934. Congratulations are also in order to G. Ernie Gibbard of Napanee, who received a large vote to be elected as vice-president for 1936. Ernie Gibbard has been keenly interested in the shrouding of the O.B.A.A. since his connection with the amateur baseball moguls only about eight years ago. Gibbard has done much for baseball in the east and was awarded on Saturday for his services. Next we congratulate Max Devenport, Petrboro, who was returned to the association's executive as a member.

One of the best motions we have heard in some time was passed on Saturday at the suggestion of R. A. Elliott, It will act as a deterrent to over zealous coaches. The motion was: "that all cash or applicable for transfer must pay the sum of two dollars", This will be slightly a touch on Cobourg this year, having five or six to present. The passing of players appearing for Belleville is one of the items, which became numerous executive meetings have had to deal with since the inception of the association, an at the suggestion of Mr. Elliott the secretary was instructed to write the individual player or club pay two dollars for each transfer.

During the O.B.A.A. annual luncheon on Saturday a mask for Ontario was paid for the championship of the meeting of the late Lou B. Marsh, Frank Elmer and Paul Power. McFarlane all four baseball writers who have passed to the great beyond. A minute's silence was observed.

A feature that is worth noting was that Lou Marsh's name in baseball circles was a ball player of the old school, was the principal speaker at the gathering. He championed the cause for good clean sport and keen competition.

Now that the annual meeting of the association has passed into the state of history, the fans and baseball followers usually can be depended upon to start talking about the old ball game once again. Although baseball seems to be in a fairly good way in this city, it is hoped something may come of the meeting suggested by the Kiwanis Club, at which representatives from Rotary, Lions, Kinsmen and Y's Men are invited to meet on a common level to talk over the sponsoring of a team in Belleville for 1936. This meeting has been suggested for Wednesday.

Today's announcement that Jack Corcoran, Toronto promoter, will promote big time wrestling in Belleville did not surprise us to any great degree as Jack always liked Belleville and local sport fans. While visiting Belleville on Saturday we visited Jack in his office. "We're going to pay Belleville with some good wrestlers this season. Just how well I open I'm not certain, but it will be either the 14th or the 21st of April at the Arena Gardens in Belleville. At the present time we don't know what wrestling material is available, but I'll guarantee a good show regardless as to who we have to sign for this opening show.

Our key-pounding contemporary Cec. Perdue of the Peterboro' Examiner is holidaying in Detroit this week. Cec always had a warm spot in his heart for the Motor City, where he was employed some years ago.

When the O.B.A.A. decided to assess a two dollar tax on all players requiring transfers, there were many red faces seen among the Cobourg delegation. "Let's see, two bucks a head, that's going to run the Cobourg squad into quite a little pre-season bill".

The Toronto Maple Leafs ran into an absent spell in Detroit last night when the Red Wings ran away during three quick goals in the first period of the Stanley Cup finals last night. The Adams-led boys then coasted in to a 3 to 1 victory and are one game up.

By MAY CHRISTIE

"I'm. For being so short-sighted, He doesn't stop to study her qualities, or lack of them. His one desire is to possess her. At she's clever, she holds off. It's the altar or nothing. So there's quite a grand and empty parade of bridesmaids—lilies—satin—tulle. Knowing him, the whole thing will end. It's more comic than sacred."

How cynical he was! Vernon's heart said.

Such you do take an exaggerated view."

"When I marry," said Terry, half closing his eyes as he watched the smoke from his cigarette circle in lazy air, "it won't be any secret. Definitely nor yet anyone else's affair. She won't be any little cook-and-bottle-garden the expression—for have run around with Vron, Dick and Harry Park Avenue, now have been pawed over. With my marriage is for keeps. I don't believe in divorce. I believe one should look thoroughly before one leaps—one's wife should be a helpmate and an honest-to-goodness real girl!"

Vernon could have shouted: "Are you blind? Terry's love!

But the unfortunate imp that tangles up our fates made him hide her true opinion of all his viewpoint as she airily answered: "You demand a lot, Terry. Can't you even have had one little flirtation? You must sail through the Straits of Corsair of these, and consider yourself seamless. But if our wings are singed just the heediest little bit then—according to what you've just said—we're not suitable for you!"

Terry stared at her. There was a queer, questioning look in his fine blue eyes, as though they tried to reach down to the very soul of her.

Why had she said things like that, thing? What doubt was in his mind about her?

Then, a dreadful thing happened at this impossible moment. Terry and Vernon both heard it. The music had ceased, and from the next table that was heavily screened from them by a palm came the shrill voice of a woman. "Darling, an-oil Tyson girl from Texas is here. Lily-Ann knows—heehee—she's making a great play for Prince Karinoff!"

"King Cophetua and the Beggar Maid reversed!" A man's effeminate laugh. "My dear, she's positively making with money!"

Prince Ivan Karinoff strolled leisurely down Park Avenue at noon, as was his daily custom in fine weather. He didn't believe in rising till the day was thoroughly aired. A man must get his sleep after dancing till all hours with lots of ladies, bless 'em!

He hoped to be able to bless them considerably more, if things went the way he wanted. The signs were favorable.

Despite the sunshine, the early November wind blew chillingly through his camel-hair overcoat. He shivered, and curbed a little.

But if all went well, he told himself he would shortly be able to afford a sable-lined overcoat. He smiled at his own svelte reflection in a passing shop window, trifling his cane—gain the well-known "man about town" manner.

Millions they had. The little girl was quite a peach. Decent, respectable people with a strong strain of the bourgeois. That meant they wouldn't let their scandal tear its fair breath to touch the reputation of their beloved daughter.

It wasn't difficult to live comfortably if one were a presentable female in this town, versed in the psychology of women! There was a real shortage of attractive, well-born, unattached men — and the women were desperate for escorts to their parties—for sweet speeches for attention.

Really, all that one required to be Society (save the word!) was a tuxedo jacket and a cultivated voice ....he told himself he had many more assets.

American men had no leisure for the woman, mad as they were on money-making. That released scores of charming ladies up and down Park Avenue and its environs, looking for companionship.

CHAPTER XXII

Memories of all the little confidences that had been poured into his ear by rich matrons flitted across the Prince's mind as he strolled. He smiled happily. It wasn't difficult to remember them, in that he made a nightly practice—so rather how late he might retire—of jotting down in his private diary an account of the day's doings, including conversations with these ladies.

Viewed superficially, this might seem a childish and effeminate trait in him. But there was method in his madness.

Many a disgruntled ex-husband during the heavy alimony he could ill afford might well be interested in what was now locked away in the Prince's little note-book. He was even starting a filing system.

A man must live. A smooth tongue, a knowledge of psychology, and an aristocratic appearance could carry one far. One didn't even have to talk—one only had to listen—sympathetically, attentively — at the same time concentrating on the confidences, so they could be duly recorded in that priceless little volume.

It was only a step further to follow up certain clues—to garner a mine of useful information about these rich women. It was a sporting hobby with the Prince. Nay, more, it was like money in the bank, steadily accumulating!

But at the moment all these things were secondary considerations as his feet here him lightly but surely towards the Royal Splendide. He smiled as he thought of Vernon Tyson's charm, her fresh beauty, her spirit. That boon would be but one end to the affair he never for a second doubted.

The family were at home. Mrs. Tyson was recovering from a cold she greeted him warmly. He had had the forethought to purchase six white gardenias from a street vendor at ten cents apiece, to present to her. She was quite girlish in her enthusiastic reception of them—and him....!

Mrs. Mortimer de Bray had gotten a magnificent bargain for the Tysons in a gorgeously appointed foreign limousine which a millionaire friend of hers who had gone broke wished to sell.

It was upholstered in golden suede, and was full of gilt bottles and gadgets.

According to Mertina, they had got it for a song!—for one-fifth of its value.

But Jake Tyson had ribbed at her pride. He had not looked upon it as a bargain. But his wife had overruled him. She had ordered the Tyson crest to be painted on its doors, and had hired a smart chauffeur.

Solicitous for her cold, and remarking that Miss Vernon was looking much too pale and tired, Prince Karinoff suggested a trip to Hot Springs for the party.

"The best people are there just now. I have many charming friends whom I could introduce to you, Madame."

Sadie fell for that. Vernon was looking peaked. A change would set them up. They would go down by car at once. Prince Karinoff—that charming man who would open every social door—must accompany them!

What could Mrs. Tyson do but include Mertina? The latter would be useful at Hot Springs, too. Mertina knew everybody.

They set off early next morning. Mrs. Tyson and Mertina in the roomy back seat, and the Prince and Vernon comfortably ensconced on little padded chairs in the middle of the car. Terry Vernon had insisted on this arrangement, putting Jake amicably with the chauffeur.

Never in all his life had Prince Karinoff exerted himself more to please. Despite herself, Vernon's bright laugh rang out many times.

It would do Terry good to telephone and find she was away, she told herself over and over. Absence would make the heart grow fonder. She was sure that Terry was strongly attracted to her.

Prince Karinoff expressed himself as delighted with the new limousine. He refrained from saying that he had been the go-between in the transaction. Mertina and he splitting the commission of one thousand dollars between them.

Vernon rode homeback with the Prince at Hot Springs, and danced with the Prince, and strolled through the woods with the Prince. Fleeing from the awful roar, Dick and Do: made good use indeed of the athletic training which had hardened their muscles and expanded their lungs. But soon they slowed down, for each was thinking the same doubt. "I didn't think we'd come this far," Dick frowned.

"It's beginning to look like we've missed the trail back to the railway," Dick agreed: "but you said it would be great to spend a night in here." "It is," said Do: "I don't want the train to leave us. You know that noise we heard sounded to me like a lion!"

"Why didn't you wait and see?" his cousin chided. "You and this morning on the train you'd have to see a real lion." "I didn't see you waiting." Dick said back: "I never saw lions before in my life." "I had to," the other boy replied, "to keep up with you."

Vernon was to wonder further! about this through something else that occurred. On the fifth evening of their stay—which was to be the last, as the following night Vernon was to take part in a big charity Pageant in New York—the girl happened to come in the lobby of the hotel to the office, to inquire for letters, and Mrs. de Bray accompanied her.

There were new arrivals at the desk, signing the hotel register. One of them was a stout lady in the fifties, who swung around, stared at Mrs. de Bray hard, and then came up to her, exclaiming: "My goodness! Isn't the world small! Imagine meeting you here, Madame Manchaval!"

Staring at the newcomer as though she were a ghost, Mrs. de Bray had looked utterly taken aback for a moment. Then, controlling a mechanical smile, she held out her aside, without introducing Vernon to her. They had talked for a few minutes.

"That was a woman I used to know in Europe, before I married my last husband," Martina had explained later. "She's no one of the slightest importance. I shan't bother with her."

There were no letters at the desk for Vernon. She felt depressed. Surely Terry might have sent a line—a note? The Society columns of all the New York papers had included the Tysons in their list of "fashionables" at this smart Hot Springs hotel. Even if Terry hadn't seen the notices, he could have written her through the Hotel Splendide, knowing their mail would be forwarded!

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTIES FORM A 'WONT' GET MARRIED UNTIL' CLUB—Some of Hollywood's decidedly marriageable movie stars have made up their minds that their careers must come before any matrimonial venture. This is most unusual in a colony where marriage and careers seem to go hand in hand. Some of those who have formed the Spinster Club are shown in the above layout. UPPER LEFT, Olivia de Haviland; CENTER, Joan Bennett, RIGHT, Anita Louise. LOWER LEFT, Margaret Lindsay. LOWER RIGHT, Patricia Ellis. It remains to be seen how many of these young ladies will carve their careers before they succumb to Dan Cupid.

BRITISH ARTILLERY RAISE DESERT DUST NEAR LIBYAN BORDER—The firm surface of the desert in this spot makes an ideal training ground for B battery of the Royal Horse Artillery stationed at Ab bassia, Egypt. The battery is galloping into action over the desert with dry dust flying from the wheels of the modern war chariots. The g uns are drawn by three pairs of horses with a man astride to handle each pair. When the sands are shifting and loose they retard pro gress to such an extent that motorized manoeuvres are practically impossible. Across the border from Egypt is Libya, belonging to Italy.

BY HERCULEAN EFFORT PITTSBURG GETS BACK TO NORMAL—There are bright lights in downtown Pittsburg to-night. There are gay women, there's music—and dancing and theatre crowds. But just two weeks ago there was mud four inches deep over the Golden Triangle, and around the billion-dollar heart of mighty Pittsburg, then a stricken city on the verge of panic, there was a tight cordon of khaki-clad guardsmen, bayonets fixed. There were no gay women, just men in hip boots. Through the streets moved boats, boats floating past second-story windows and seeking flood-marooned citizens —or looters. Higher and higher went the water. A day passed. Then the waters receded, ran back into the rivers. Pittsburg counted her dead: 69. Her injured: 532. Her hungry: 100,000 and more. Her damage $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 in Allegheny county. Then Pittsburg went to work. Human needs were first, then private and government organizations started the tremendous task of cleaning up. In 13 days Pittsburg's Golden Triangle was open for business as the ABOVE layout indicates.

hospitals for the injured. The Tupelo City Hospital was destroyed by the storm.

A heavy rain helped firemen to extinguish the storm-generated blazes. The downpour was fortunate because the city's water tank had been blown down.

T.V.A. workmen from Pickwith Dam at Corinth and other nearby sections were rushed to Tupelo to aid in relieving the emergency.

The tornado struck Tupelo at 5.17 p.m., virtually demolishing Willis Heights, a mile west of the city proper.

Taken Without Warning

Its residents were taken without warning. J. Fred Price, publisher of the Tupelo Daily News, whose home was demolished said the tornado roared in all of a sudden like "a line of fast freight trains."

The negro section about Park Lake, to the north of the city, was demolished, a number of the colleges occupied by negroes were blown into the Lake and it was feared some of the occupants drowned.

At least 10 victims were pulled from the water alive.

Tupelo was isolated for several hours by the blow, but after a single line of communication had been established news of the disaster was conveyed to Meridian, Miss., and a special unit of the Red Cross was rushed here.

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION FOLLOW GEORGIA TORNADO—Destruction and a high death toll rode the wake of a tornado which lashed across five southern states, with Cordele, Ga., hardest hit, when the tornado had passed Cordele counted 18 dead, 230 injured and $1,250,000 in property damage. Photo shows what the tornado did in Cordele, with TOP, the high school almost completely demolished and BELOW, the wreckage of a large brick store with national guardsmen on duty in the devastated area.

Tupelo, Miss., April 6 (AP) —A good portion of this city lay in ruins today in the wake of a devastating tornado that left scores dead, hundreds injured and most of the population in a state of terror.

City officials estimated the dead between 100 and 125, while they placed the injured list at near 500. They said bodies would be uncovered in the partially burned debris throughout Monday.

No one slept in Tupelo. Those uninjured searched the ruins throughout the night for their dead and dying. The victims were planned beneath timbers, some dead—others injured.

Thirty-three bodies lay in the city hall, turned into a morgue. Other bodies were being brought there, where, in many instances identity was soon established.

Churches, hotels and other places were converted into hospitals.

Houses Piled in Streets

One-third of the city's houses were piled up in the streets. Most of the business district escaped but plate glasses and fixtures were blown into the streets.

Communication in the area was disrupted with all local telephones out of order. The city reservoir was destroyed and fresh water for the stricken city became at once a serious problem.

A travelling man from Memphis, who said he was driving into Tupelo when he saw the tornado coming, reported he abandoned his auto in the street and crawled into a ditch. He said houses were blowing over his head and when the worst of the blow was over, his auto was nowhere to be found.

A search was being made at Park Lake, in the residential section, following reports that at least 10 persons had been blown into the water.

STORM-SWEPT STATES ARE WARNED OF FLOOD

175,000 French Troops Retained Under Colors Till Crisis is Settled

Men's Term of Service Would Ordinarily End April 15

STATIONED AT BORDER

Half of Peace Time Army Guard Eastern Frontier

Paris, Apr. 6. (CP)—The French government today ordered 175,000 troops—almost half of the country's peace-time army—to remain under the colors until further notice instead of being released as is usually the case this Rhineland crisis.

The order announced in a decree signed by War Minister Gen. Louis Felix Maurin, applies to troops whose term of service would end ordinarily end April 15.

Many of them are stationed in the steel-and-concrete Maginot fortifications on the eastern border of France, facing Germany, and Premier Sarraut's armed stride into the Rhineland. France's peace time army is about 375,000 men.

It was stated the Maginot line can only be considered fully effective when it is manned by the troops by brigade strength. Reservists are reported before the men become distributed among the various military intricacies of the subterranean maze that forms the defence bastion.

Troops To Rest Frontier Towns.

The large number of French troops were immediately dispatched to the eastern frontier because of the situation following the Rhineland coup. Thirteen divisions would have been rendered ineffectious by the withdrawal of 175,000 troops April 15 military experts say.

The move, it was said is designed to satisfy French public opinion, and to uphold France's prestige before Europe during the Locarno negotiations.

Paris, 2—(AP)—Premier Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior Franklin, ready to sail Britain she join reprsenive action against Germany in the event of a "breach of faith" during the course of negotiations", turned to Geneva today with Frances proposals in the Rhineland crisis.

Official quarters said the French regarded the Mar. 19 London agreement of the Locarno powers, providing for military aid in the event of a German attack and for measures to "meet the new situation" created by the trump card.

France's delegates to Geneva would insist such measures take the form of sanctions or other punitive action, officials said, if they encountered an "obstinate refusal by Adolf Hitler to make any reparation for his Locarno violation.

Plan Trip to Geneva.

Flandin carried to Geneva a three point plan to meet the situation caused by Germany's unilateral abrogation of the Rhineland March 7 and simultaneous signature of the Locarno Pact.

Informed sources said the program, which Premier Sarraut's cabinet approved yesterday and which Flandin intended to submit to the League of Nations Council, include:

1. A pronouncement by Locarno powers—Great Britain, Belgium and Italy—declaring against the Reich under the League Covenant.

2. A refusal to accept any modification of the Rhineland border-ing on France and Belgium, which was deliberately violated in the demilitarized zone of Versailles and Locarno.

3. An absolute rejection of Hitler's proposal for four-month negotiation of new separate treaties, to be submitted by France's policy of a collective security system.

BANNISTERS TO HANG ON JUNE 20 FOR MAN'S DEATH

Mother of Boys Sentenced to Serve 3½ Years in Prison

FREED ON 2 COUNTS

Recommendation For Mercy in Daniel Bannister's Conviction

Brockville, N.B., Apr. 7. (CP)—Trials arising out of New Brunswick's weird backwoods murder-kidnapping case came to an end today with two youths sentenced to the gallows and the mother condemned to 3½ years in penitentiary.

Chief Justice H. Harry Grimmer pronounced Arthur William Bannister, 18, and Daniel Robert Bannister, 19, to be hanged simultaneously o'clock in the morning and noon on the death watch cell block in the corridor of Philip Lake, Mrs. May Bannister, told by the judge she was "a cruel woman" in not having been found guilty of a more serious charge, was committed to the Lake's infant daughter.

The trial, which took almost seven hours in Westmorland County Circuit Court resulted in the conviction of Daniel of Lake's murder. They finally rendered verdict with a recommendation for mercy which the Chief Justice stated would be referred to the Governor-General-in-Council that would deal with it as soon as the Executive Council met.

Arthur and Mrs. Bannister had been convicted earlier but their sentences were deferred until Daniel's case was concluded.

Cases Are Closed.

The crown closed the Bannister cases at noon and appeal, for exactly three months to the day after the charred body of Philip Lake was found in the ruins of his squatter's cabin in Pacific Junction, a hamlet 15 miles from the Bannister home in the township of Salisbury, (Sling) Lake and Mrs. Bannister, the boys' mother were discovered on the moor covered road leading to a neighbor's house. Mrs. Lake's skull was fractured. A great circle of blood stained the snow underfoot.

One member of the Bannister family was still in doubt. No decision had been reached concerning the cases against Mrs. Who was the crown's star witness against her mother and brothers. Until then it was how she had gone with her brothers to Pacific Junction on Jan. 5 to obtain the liniment Philip Lake's mother has been held as a material witness.

"I have my own opinion but I remains in my mind," said the "It" girl, "whether I am to be punished or understand how or upon what principle the jury failed to convict me. But what is done cannot be undone," as he sentenced Mrs. Bannister.

She had been indicted on two counts, charging her husband and Lake child and conspiracy to kidnap but was acquitted on both. The jury found Lake guilty on the second count.

TATTERED MEN WAIT AT DOORS

Transients More Numerous in Railway Section of City

The tattered transient with his muttered plea for back-door handouts is no longer a common occasional request for a regular meal at the householders' table is increasing in numbers in the city according to housewives, especially in the railway track section where they are more numerous.

One such caller on last week's Dundas Street resident stated that four tickets were made up for apparently hungry applicants. There were all described as mere youths. Applications are also noticed daily on the grab irons of freight trains passing through the city, although as the result of activity of police in and about the city, the number "riding" on the trains on west side have been practically eliminated, and the old method of "mulligan" prepared on the spot.

CROSSING STOPS DERAILS

Desperate Stand Taken by Emperor Haile Selassie to Resist Forward Drive of Italian War Machine

Addis Ababa, Apr. 7 (CP) — All Ethiopians called to the colors under an imperial decree read in the palace here today.

Unofficially the decree was interpreted to mean Ethiopia's fighting strength had determined to resist to the utmost the Italian invasion of Africa.

Ancient Italian victories appeared to be repeated until the northern Ethiopian forces.

The government also issued a proclamation urging the population "not to listen to Italian boasting" and declaring Addis Ababa was bombproof. It would prove "Italian troops unable to defeat the Ethiopian troops".

BODY OF BRUNO CREMATED IN N.Y.

Widow Says His Name Will Some Day Be Cleared

New York, April 7 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's body was given to a crematory's flames Monday, but evening grieving friends attended to his wife in the Lindbergh baby's murder continued unabated.

The widow, Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, stood before the opened coffin and vowed to make someone "pay" for his death.

Gov. Harold Hoffman of New Jersey was pictured by Lieut. Robert Stiehl, criminal investigator, with him in the last weeks of the executive's campaign to "reveal the case as being determined to locate possible accomplices of the sinold Bruno carpenter.

Fred Pasley, author-publicist Paul H. Wendel told of being kidnapped in February and beaten to yield a confession that Hauptmann was implicated into a plot opening the Lindbergh crime which he said four men had him prisoner.

It was a strange funeral they gave Hauptmann in the stone crematory building overlooking a Lutheran cemetery. Only neighbors and children pressed excitedly against the windows as a score of police pushed them back from locked gates.

Mrs. Hauptmann spent an hour alone with the body.

Afterward, one day your name will be cleared and those responsible will be punished, Hauptmann ordered —you, my Richard," she said softly.

A few minutes later there was a brief service, and then the coffin was borne on rollers of the crematory building. The Rev. John Matthias and Dr. Paul Werner, prayed in German.

Mrs. Hauptmann wept throughout the German and English eulogies. At the end she broke completely and was led awfully to - car.

There were many flowers, some from German admirers in the Bronx with German words lettered on the pieces.

Officials of the Fresh Pond crematory, where the body was taken, said they did not know where the ashes would be sent. Temporarily, they said, they would be put in a bronze urn and stored under lock and key in a concrete vault.

'PIRATING' OF NEWS

Canadian Press Offers Free Service of Radio News

Ottawa, Apr. 7 (CP)—To offset the news broadcasts from certain United States stations, adequate Canadian news services on the air in the Dominion, the parliamentary committee on radio was urged today to increase the facilities for three or four news broadcasts a day over a Dominion net-work.

The delegation representing The Canadian Press offered to provide free of cost, simultaneously to all stations in Canada, material for a service of five additional news broadcasts to supplement the single broadcast which is now carried each evening.

W. H. Preston, publisher of the Brantford Expositor and president of The Canadian Press, and J. F. B. Livesay, general manager, explained views of the publishers.

Mr. Preston explained that the Canadian Press and Associated Press of the United States had made it possible for the Canadian Radio Commission to secure the news broadcasts. The Canadian Press asked that it be provided with the same facilities for daytime bulletins.

Publishers and editors were being compelled to meet the competition by telephone to correct misleading information on Abyssinia by August Keenleyside, Smith said.

Senator Bertrand (Lib., Laurier-Montreal) asked the delegation to be more specific with respect to objections to the broadcasts originating from outside. He would not want the broadcasts cut out. He said the foreign news broadcasts were bad.

Mr. Preston said there would be no objection to broadcasts originating from outside, provided the news was presented in the Canadian way. Canadians were not interested in the news of the United States continued to mount as additional facilities were dragged from the ruins here and at Tupelo, Miss.

The known two cities alone almost 350 bodies had been discovered by workmen and rescue crews searched through the night.

Tupelo's total stood temporarily at 207. Gainesville's at 115. Red cross and other southern communities less hard stricken added to the others, bringing the total dead to 385.

The injured numbered at least 2,000 many of them so badly or badly hurt it was likely they would die.

Scores of injured from the two storms lay in hospitals of Memphis, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., where beds were attended as conditions grew worse. Supply trains had improvised havens near the spots, where they were struck down.

The property loss in Tupelo was estimated at $8,000,000; here city officials said the loss would be at least $15,000,000 and the; at least 10 years would be needed for full recovery.

Thousands of persons, many of them homeless and penniless, began their own dead, yet searched wearily, doggedly through the debris for other victims.

The tornadoes, following by only a few days the storms, that devastated parts of Cordele, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., in a similar career of destruction, left death behind also at Lacrosse, Ark.; Columbia, Tenn.; Red Bay, Ala.; Decatur, Miss., Columbia, Clifton, McNairy and Lincoln, Tenn., and Red Bay and Elkwood, Ala.

Rains, Fire Adds to Misery

Rain and fire added to the misery of the situation. Time and again firemen had to move hose to care for a new outbreak of flames.

Near that, today's search would send the Gainesville dead to 200. That was expressed by C. J. Anderson, superintendent of the Cooper Manufacturing Company, whose cotton factory was one of the chief places hit.

Fire followed the wind's destruction. Here the silvery Spanish moss 45 bodies, mostly those of women, were removed from the smouldering ruins yesterday. Anderson said, however, that of the workers, who checked in every morning only three had been found to be counted for.

Authorities said several of the business structures probably would be condemned today. Many hours after the storm it was impossible only to seek out places where most bodied be found.

Firemen with apparatus from as far away as Atlanta, 89 miles to the southwest, fought sporadic outbreaks of flame in the destroyed area throughout the day and night.

During last night Atlanta policemen also on guard duty arrested three University of Georgia students and two local boys for looting.

Tupelo, Miss., April 7 (AP)—Tupelo, Miss., April 7 (AP)—Tupelo by any is dead—187 victims already identified and stacked in rows in improvised mortuaries while the grim task of seeking additional bodies continued.

Hundreds more injured when the tornado cut a path of destruction a mile wide and four miles long through the residential section were treated in temporary shelters.

Property loss, while estimated the property damage at about $8,-000,000.

"It is difficult to believe that anyone in the section visited by the storm could ever live it down.

"First our duty is to bury the dead—then we will think about rebuilding."

Between 150 and 1,000 of the town's finest homes were levelled and there were many homeless sorrowing.

Hilltop Looking

Minor looting was reported in Tupelo yesterday but General John C. Scott, Mississippi National Guard commander, said the 350 militiamen on hand had the situation well under control.

Estimates of the Tupelo injured ranged from 1,000 to 2,000, those critically injured numbered 275. At least 300 were given treatment today and another 650 were given treatment and released yesterday.

It was feared Park Lake, located in the northeastern edge of the community, would overflow its banks today.

Night bodies had been retrieved from the lake and authorities were preparing to dynamite the dam to drain the sixty-acre body of water to determine if others had been swept "down the stream."

General O'Keefe ordered sanitation crews to work immediately. This was done, he said, to avert an epidemic.

Floods in South States Loom as Menace to Area Devastated by Tornado

Rain Drenched Debris at Gainesville, Ga., Feared

TOTAL DEAD IS 500

Sweeping Fires Also Add to Horror of Realdents

Washington, April 7.—(AP)—A warning of grave flood danger was served on sections of the storm-born Southern United States today as the Red Cross counted 500 persons dead from tornadoes in that region and redoubled efforts to raise relief funds.

The weather bureau reported rivers in South Carolina were above flood stage, and predicted they would reach the highest levels since their disastrous rampage of 1908. Floods in some sections of North Carolina also were predicted.

The Red Cross, estimating that 500 or more had been killed in southern states, said 2,000 were injured, and 630 bodies already had been recovered.

Rehabilitation Started

Gainesville, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—Tornado-stricken Gainesville set about today the gigantic task of rehabilitation and relief, while rain drenched debris, fearful the storm would cause floods.

Workers were rushed to the task of rehabilitation and relief, while the sun smothered many after arrival and physicians said the condition of a few others were critical.

Convicts, firemen and national guardsmen worked shoulder to shoulder in clearing the streets of debris and removing the remains of dead from the shattered ruins of the Lula-Sarratt hardware store, swept by fire in the wake of the Tornado yesterday.

Gainesville, Ga., April 7.—Unappealing death toll of tornadic winds, that bripped a macabre mess from across the corner of the United States continued to mount today as additional bodies were dragged from the ruins here and at Tupelo, Miss.

The known two cities alone almost 350 bodies had been discovered by workmen and rescue crews searched through the night.

Tupelo's total stood temporarily at 207. Gainesville's at 115. Red cross and other southern communities less hard stricken added to the others, bringing the total dead to 385.

The injured numbered at least 2,000 many of them so badly or badly hurt it was likely they would die.

Scores of injured from the two storms lay in hospitals of Memphis, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., where beds were attended as conditions grew worse. Supply trains had improvised havens near the spots, where they were struck down.

The property loss in Tupelo was estimated at $8,000,000; here city officials said the loss would be at least $15,000,000 and the; at least 10 years would be needed for full recovery.

Thousands of persons, many of them homeless and penniless, began their own dead, yet searched wearily, doggedly through the debris for other victims.

The tornadoes, following by only a few days the storms, that devastated parts of Cordele, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., in a similar career of destruction, left death behind also at Lacrosse, Ark.; Columbia, Tenn.; Red Bay, Ala.; Decatur, Miss., Columbia, Clifton, McNairy and Lincoln, Tenn., and Red Bay and Elkwood, Ala.

Rains, Fire Adds to Misery

Rain and fire added to the misery of the situation. Time and again firemen had to move hose to care for a new outbreak of flames.

Near that, today's search would send the Gainesville dead to 200. That was expressed by C. J. Anderson, superintendent of the Cooper Manufacturing Company, whose cotton factory was one of the chief places hit.

Fire followed the wind's destruction. Here the silvery Spanish moss 45 bodies, mostly those of women, were removed from the smouldering ruins yesterday. Anderson said, however, that of the workers, who checked in every morning only three had been found to be counted for.

Authorities said several of the business structures probably would be condemned today. Many hours after the storm it was

SOCIAL JUSTICE AS FOIL TO REDS

Failure of Communism in Russia Theme of A. B. Collins, K.C.

"Social Justice Through Co-operation between Capital and Labor vs. Communism," was the subject of an interesting address delivered before the Belleville Rotary Club Monday by Bernard Collins, K.C., City Solicitor. Canada is a fertile field at present for the spread of communistic ideas on account of widespread unemployment, and conditions where weak years is ugly bored in the midst of plenty, according to the speaker who stated that there was ample evidence to show that Russia, breeding ground of communism, was determined to spread the doctrine over all the earth and endeavor to bring all nations under the communistic banner. Social Justice practised by both capital and labor can go much to destroy the threat of communism for Canada, and the speaker, Capital should be fair to labor and pay living wages under satisfactory conditions and labor should act fair and above-board with capital. Nearly a million men and women in Canada depending upon relief is not a pleasant picture and contains possibilities not pleasant to contemplate. People disheartened and discouraged by a long struggle with living conditions turn to anything that promises betterment. Communism holds out bright and alluring promises but the fulfillment is something entirely different as is shown in communistic Russia today.

Russia, ruled by a dictator and communistic regime, was described by Mr. Collins, who quoted several authorities to prove his contention that conditions in Russia under communism were deplorable for the mass of the people. British correspondents of reputable publications who went to Russia rather sympathetic toward the Soviet regime, after independent investigation found conditions the reverse of those painted by the Stalin propagandists. In the attempt to drive God out of Russia and make a mockery of church and religion the Soviet are attempting to build a nation on unstable foundation. Famine stalks through Russia, and starvation is more often than not the lot of the peasants, but news of this is carefully suppressed. Communism with its collective system destroyer of the home and initiative is a sinister monster which not only exists in Russia but on the rest of the world, for recent investigation in the United States revealed that Russia was behind communistic activities in that country. Will Canada be spared? Conditions in Russia were gone into in detail by the speaker who cited authority on each point, and urged the necessity of meeting communistic propaganda in Canada with social justice for capital and labor and a vigorous attempt to make existing conditions so much better that the communistic seed will fall upon stony ground.

Mr. Collins was introduced by Joe Shorti, while Rotary appreciation was expressed by Charlie Dolan and President Bert Bryan.

POLICE BLOTTER

Following the investigation of a motor accident, that happened at the intersection of Bridge and Pinnacle St., yesterday, local police allege both parties to have in some measure violated sections of the Traffic Act.

P. C. Thomson arrived at the intersection to find two motor cars badly damaged along the pavement and running boards. Mr. Francis Toepah, Yorker, assured the officer he had been driving north on Pinnacle St., when another motor car, driven by Thomas Jury, R.R. 1, Belleville, failed to stop as he was driving north on Pinnacle, resulting in the collision. Constable Thomson, after due deliberation, reported that Jury was driving his motor car without displaying the proper lights after sundown, while the officer also disclosed that Toepah admitted his failing to stop at the designated stop street.

Charges in both cases are pending, police today revealed. No person was injured.

Local police yesterday located a Pekinese dog, the property of Mr. W. Martin, Church St. The canine had wandered from home, but was soon recovered by the authorities, its disappearance was noted.

An even dozen transients were given bed, with no board, as the police station last night. A decrease in transients stopping in Belleville was noted over the week end, however.

Britain is Best Governed Nation

A. G. Partridge Describes English Impressions to Empire Club

Toronto, April 7.—"I feel that today Great Britain is the best governed country in the world," said Arthur G. Partridge, President of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada, addressing the Empire Club here this day. "They are keeping their feet on the ground and facing their efforts in the most important job at hand in any country—getting their people back in work. They are patiently looking for an easy way out, nor trying to introduce too many reforms which, however desirable they sound, no country can afford to introduce under present chaotic conditions. In a few short years, Great Britain has changed from a free trade country to the one which is using tariffs the most intelligently and effectively of all, and is further demonstrating now, by the old proven methods instead of by experimenting with theoretical panaceas and quack remedies, the world can really start back on the road to recovery."

Mr. Partridge, who spent seven years in Great Britain as general manager of the Goodyear Company there before coming to Canada a year ago, said that he found the English not at all hard to get acquainted with. As an American, he met with the most cordial welcome, and when he had got used to the variations in idiom, found it a pleasant change to the provincial standing.

Characteristics of English life were respect for law, jealousy of personal liberties and the small amount of state regulation. Hours of business started later, but they generally worked a little later than we do. Less time is wasted in trying out schemes which do not definitely show that they are along constructive lines, a spirit of compromise prevailed, disagreements being usually settled by compromise between the parties concerned or the selection of a referee. He noted also the English disregard of inclement weather, which was never allowed to interfere with sport or pleasure and which made for health; also the traditional holidays, and belief in the curative effect of a few days at the seaside.

Courage and calm demeanor and helpfulness of the police, and the support given to their authority were also noticeable to the newcomer.

Public duties were taken seriously in England, said Mr. Partridge, and it was considered an honor to serve in any public way. The civil service offered a fine career to university graduates, which made for intelligent, honest and efficient government, regardless of the party in power. Newspapers were more responsible for what they printed, and there was less yellow journalism. Wages were not less highly paid than United States wages, and formed a lower living standard, was yet the highest paid in Europe, and the cost of living less. Also there were unemployment, health and old age insurance, with employer and employee contributing. Trades unions were materially stronger, but more responsible, than in America. There existed no labor racketeering, irresponsible labor leaders stirring up trouble, and labor determining illegal picketing and other union activities were well enforced. Manufacturers had desks also graduate under union laws to protect their interests.

Mr. Partridge referred to the boom of 1928, and the depression that followed. Unemployment was met by formation of a national government and the sinking of political differences. England "slid off" the gold standard, abandoned her free trade policy, organized relief and taxation on a business basis, obtain clearance and bonding plans give immediate employment in many lines.

"I hope to make my permanent home in Canada," said Mr. Partridge, "and I believe that with our small population, our immense territory, our natural wealth, the opportunities are greater to-day than in any other country—if we all work together, thinking straight and refusing to be led up blind alleys by the theorists and experimentalists, many of whom have nothing to lose and who by attempting to use their agitation idea are contributing the issue and retarding recovery."

INDIANS INCREASE IN NUMBER

Indians of Canada are becoming more numerous and their health is improving, states the report of the Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of the Interior and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs. As against a total of 104,894 twelve years ago the Indian population is now given as over 112,500. It is but a short time ago there were not more than 100,000 Indians on the reserves in Canada.

Those in authority have taken care of their wards in a commendable manner, and their efforts are bringing fruit. Five hundred doctors and dentists work for the department and serve part or whole time. There are several hospitals and a field nursing service. Indians are maintained when ill, in over two hundred public hospitals. This service is being modernized, nursing has been established. The babies among the Indians are not succumbing as they used to do in many cases.

The Indian has a very valuable contribution to make to the life of Canada and it is a good sign to see them increasing in population.

There have been fears expressed that the Indian people would ultimately disappear as a race but the report indicates that surrounded by such treatment and conditions as whites, the Indians manage to grow in numbers and in health.

VIEWS ON INTERMEDIATE SCHOOLS

Sudbury Star referring to the plan of Intermediate schools as planned by Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson says: "If the policy can be brought into force without additional burdens to the taxpayer, all well and good, but if it places an even larger financial load on shoulders already bowed down by taxation, for educational and other purposes, the average citizen of Ontario will not be enthusiastic.

"The intermediate school system will be introduced into rural sections as in town and cities. Pupils who have completed form three of the public school course will enter the intermediate schools, and will remain there for four years, or in the case of specially gifted pupils, for three years. In these intermediate schools there will be an obligatory course of studies for all pupils. It will consist of English, history, civics and citizenship, geography and physiography, mathematics and some branches of elementary science or agriculture, physical training and hygiene. In addition there will be optional courses in commercial subjects, manual training, farm mechanics and general shop practice, cooking and sewing and home economics and foreign languages.

"Thus, students will have the opportunity of beginning subjects which are now regarded as high school subjects a year earlier than at present. For exceptionally smart pupils this will mean the saving of an entire year at school. Another point is that in the intermediate schools there will be a segregation of adolescents which psychologists claim will be of advantage.

"The intermediate school plan provides that those pupils who through necessity or otherwise stop school when they reach the age where they are no lotger compelled to attend school will be able to leave with a certificate of graduation. According to estimates, more than 60 per cent of students who enroll in secondary schools leave within two years. Up to the present this large percentage of pupils have had no certificate available showing the stage which they have reached in their education.

"Through introduction of the new scheme it is claimed the high schools will benefit by being relieved of this large number of pupils who never intend to go through high school and are only in them as a matter of course, because they must attend school until they reach the age limit of compulsory education. The high schools will thus have a more select group of students and more advanced courses will be possible.

"It is also argued that the intermediate schools will lessen the cost of education, by limiting the numbers in the secondary and high schools, which cost more to run. The plan will not involve, it is said, the setting up of new or separate buildings.

"The new system, at first glance, does seem to have some advantages over the present one. Interest, of course, will centre largely around the expense factor, but as it will be possible to bring the changes into practice all over the province at once there should be opportunity to test it out in different localities."

THE CROCUS

Left here and there, since yesterday
The drifts in silver crept away
Beneath the sun's insistent glow,
The crocus lifts its cup to hold
A little of this morning's gold.

And drawn by such a lovely thing,
Are little rainbows winking through
The cup's design so fresh and new—
As if this were the only Spring
We saw the lifted cup and, wise
With love, looked in each other's eyes.

WOMEN CANNOT KEEP A SECRET according to a legend which has been repeated so often that even some women may have been tempted to believe it. Now the legend that women cannot keep a secret has been dealt a deadly blow by no less a person than Stanley Baldwin, British Prime Minister. Says the Prime Minister: "Many women in the government service have been to me valuable information. I have never known a leakage of information due to a woman, but I have known leakage through men who should have known a great deal better." And so in the last analysis we find that while it may be true (soft pedal) that women like to gossip, said gossip concerns trivial affairs, and when they have some real big information they guard it jealously. G. K. Chesterton, the author, said many years ago that women will defend the interests of their employer with the same ferocious loyalty that they bring to their husbands and their children. And so another ghost is laid—all in favor says aye.

BEHIND THE SHOUTING AND THE TUMULT OF THE PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY PLAYOFFS is a man unknown to the fans but who has a big interest in the game, one James Norris, a prosperous grain merchant of Chicago, who according to Time Magazine has five fingers in five hockey pies. According to Time Mr. Norris owns the Detroit Red Wings, the minor league Detroit Olympics, and controls the team which Detroit plays. He was one of the original syndicate which built the $6,500,000 Chicago Stadium in 1929. Last year he acquired controlling interest in the Stadium, so stands to profit from the flights of the Black Hawks. He also owns a sizable block of stock in Madison Square Garden Corporation which gives him a finger in the pie of the New York Rangers. Mr. Norris is also said to have loaned the sum of $35,000 to buy a new bunch of players for the New York Americans, which carried an option to buy the team for $200,000. Delighted at the success of his stable of hockey teams, says the writer in Time, Owner Norris, who lives in Lake Forest, and summers on Long Island, raises spaniels, plays golf, and racquets, rarely drinks and never smokes, last week put a stop to an incipient scandal about "syndicated hockey" by denying that he had any intention of taking up his option on the New York Americans or buying any more hockey teams.

EASTER SEASON IS AT HAND, always a joyful season, with all that it signifies to the world. One aspect of Easter that is always pleasing is the fashion parade, when women and men like to appear in new clothes, the very latest decrees of Dame Fashion. This custom besides being pleasing to the eye, giving a happy feeling of well being to those who can parade in new clothes, helps business, keeps factories busy, pays wages and helps to keep the economic machine in high gear. There is no better spring topic than a complete outfit of new clothes for man or woman — good clothes certainly inspire confidence and courage in the wearer and respect in the onlopker. For those who cannot afford a complete new outfit all at once, a new hat, coat or shoes, with appropriate gloves have approximately the same effect—AND SO, let's all get something new for Easter. It might be mentioned in passing that Belleville stores have complete assortments of the finest in Easter apparel, and every want of the Easter shopper can be satisfied as well or better right in Belleville than elsewhere.

The regular meeting of the Belleville Lodge No. 123, A.F. and A.M. last night was a memorable one and many members of the fraternity were present. It was termed a khaki or military night owing to the fact that many members of the order now wearing the King's uniform were present. At the conclusion of the business of the lodge a banquet was served. The function was presided over by Wor. Bro. R. A. Jackins, W. M. of The Belleville Lodge and he performed his duties in an able and affable manner. The toast to the King was properly observed. The Grand Lodge of Canada, was proposed by V. Wr. Bro. A. R. George A. Anson, cigar manufacturer of this city, has a fine thoroughbred Gordon setter. It was imported from England and is claimed to be the best bred dog of its kind in this country. It is one year old.

Mr. Duncan Clarke is home from Dental College, Toronto, to spend the Easter vacation.

Mr. Frank Frost, teacher in the Demorestville Public School, is home to spend the Easter vacation.

Mr. W. W. Power is home for the Easter vacation.

Mr. George Thompson of Napanee spent Sunday at his home here.

50 YEARS AGO

April 7th, 1886.

Mr. Wallbridge's saw mill at Shannonville was seriously damaged by the flood in the Salmon River a few days ago.

One of the heartiest wind storms for some time was that which visited the city yesterday afternoon and last night. The wind blew briskly from the north east during the forenoon and at noon it stiffened and a sleet began to fall which was driven fiercely before the gale. There was no cessation of the storm until near morning. The hail storm turned to snow and before the fall ceased about as large a quantity of snow had fallen as we had at any time during the past winter. The snow was piled in huge drifts upon streets and lawns and was removed from the walks after much shovelling. The temperature was mild the thermometer registering 36 degrees. In many cases window shutters were blown from their hinges. A large tree upon St. Thomas' Church grounds near the Bridge Street entrance was broken off near the ground by the force of the gale. Two gas lamps which surrounded stone pillars at the entrance to the church grounds were smashed.

IN PREDICAMENT—Premier Julius Gombocs of Hungary is in a difficult quandary. He has been challenged to a duel by Dr. Tibor Eckhardt, leader of the opposition. As premier he finds it unlawful to duel, but as a general in the army he is bound to the military code of honor to accept. Eckhardt and Gombocs have been enemies for years.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the crossword puzzle partly out loud and pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and I was laying on the floor thinking about starting to begin my homework, and ma said, Benny, if you're suppose to be doing your lessons, they're not up on the ceiling.

Well O, ma, I was just thinking of a grate idea for a invention, I said, and she said, Yes, in other words of one syllable you're frittering your time away like the grasshopper and the ant.

Many a famous scheme has been hatched out of school, so to speak, pop said. Perhaps he's really on the track of something, who can tell? he said, and ma said, I can tell.

Meaning she doubted it, and pop said, Every original idea has had to battle its way through a horde of skeptics. What's the pondering about, Benny? he said, and I said, Well I can give you a general idea of the general idea.

That sounds like a start, pop said, and I said, The general idea is that most people dont feel good in the morning till they get up and take a cold shower, but the trouble is they have to get up to take it, so the result is they just keep on laying there feeling lousy instead of they was up and had their cold shower.

Absolutely, you've painted a picture of an important universal problem, and now what's the next step? pop said, and I said, The next step is to find out some way to take your cold shower without having to get out of bed first, and that's what I been trying to figure out.

Now my lands did anybody ever hear anything more impracticle? ma said, and pop said, He's searching for an ideal, and I fear the ideal is always impossible to find in your homework, Benny, he said.

Which I did feeling partly better.

"SALADA" TEA

A Matter of Business

By DAPHNE A. McVICKER

"Where," Lenore paused as her high heels came to rest from clattering down the stairs, she smiled up at the tall broad shouldered youth who was leaning impatiently against the letters Eggleyows' Emporium. "Why, Wade, Mr. Wade Ida. It I didn't have a new red coat to look forward to and that house party Saturday to spend, I think I'd try out our new front fourth story window."

She pushed a coaxing hand against the man's shoulder. "I know you hate window shopping, Gary. But just one more look at the coat?"

It was red. The deep, soft crimson of the inside of a fiame in a burning log. It had a tall upstanding collar of gray fur that lapped back into a series of attractive curves. Gary could see the effect of a small hat perched into that fur. A head as sleek and black as the wing of a bird. The very head, in fact, that was pressing its forehead against the pane.

"I can just do it Saturday with my discount," Lenore gloated. "And then you'll have the most beauchecus girl at the house party, my lad."

"I always have the most beauchecus girl everywhere," Gary said sternly. Lenore's lips parted and she looked up at him. Was he — was he just going to say the words that she had waited owering to hear?

"What a job!. Word had gone out about our big sale and I had to interview the prize class greeuhsaled from the imbecille asylum. Who'd be so mad as to buy anything from me? I asked one old man the regular question: 'How old did you go to school? And he said 'Five miles.'"

Gary's laugh was brusque. "Just as I expected of you." he asked. "Don't you fall for their hard luck stories."

She laughed . "Oh Sir Soft Heart, you're honestly believe you worry about my willingness to turn people down for jobs. Why, As if I cared a fig. It's the store's dolng, not mine."

She nodded. But he was still troubled. It worried him after he went back to his office. It annoyed him a bit. He'd been a fool to ask a penniless job for a young girl. He kept thinking of his Cousin Anne, that bit of bored fluff, who wept for hours if she heard of anybody's misfortune. A family failing evidently which Lenore did not share.

Gary thought for a long time. Then he reached for the telephone and presently his Cousin Anne was saying: "I think it would be great sport, Gary. Of course I'll call for you."

On Friday evening two people, Gary and Lenore on the city, writing letters. One chewed on the stem of a pipe and frowned at his desk blotter and pondered. One ruffled sleek black hair into criss-cross lines and pondered the width of a too thick or two that fell.

Gary got up early at his office. He looked unbelievingly at the letter from Lenore. So sorry Some other engagement. Will see him on the town. She must spend the week-end with her mother. She wouldn't be able to go to the house party.

"Bother! Bother! she scolded "Mother's furious. You see I gave the right address. I couldn't think of anything else. Now she thinks things up offhand."

Gary descended the steps four at a time. The mail wouldn't have been delivered yet at Lenore's apartment. He could walk inside for the letter carrier. And he had a passkey to the door.

He was carrying a large pasteboard box. He was accompanying Lenore's postman and assured him that he would carry up Lenore's mail. He was glad to get it. It would avoid a climb up steep steps. He paused at Lenore's door and Gary took a sigh of relief was tearing up a letter.

"May I ask," an icy voice said, "if you mind that that's a penitentiary offense?"

"Oh, hello, Lenore," he stammered. "I'm not reading it. It's not a nice letter. You wouldn't want a old letter."

"Give me my letter."

"No," he said, as they entered the hall "Please. He ripped at the strings of the box and took out a pasteboard one. Here, Lenore, I've signed the check. Now, please, I'm in a hurry."

Lenore, darling! I've been wondering what on earth to tell you—and I have an inspiration. You remember Mrs. Kinnear—her the blond nitwit who interrupted you in the parlor. Tie one with the hard luck story. She has my cousin Anne—and I thought if you happened to mention the sad story, you had a heart of flint and I couldn't help it. I'm to the house party—and marry you—and everything. Please, please, darling dear and I vote to break the date."

Then her Aunts told me you sent a big basket and a check out to Mrs. Kinnear. I'm so touched. And you went without the coat. Sir Soft Heart, you're impossible. Sir Soft Heart, because I just began to realize that Lenore is in business with your employer's money and softness outside are two entirely different things. Bother the coat, will you, dear?"

Lenore's dimples were enchanting. After all, he had never known Lenore without all her money went for charity. Heavy on the coat. Then she slipped into the red enchantment.

"Sir Soft Heart," she said "I'm—and as Eggleyn's."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"So Red The Rose"

Wheeler and Woolsey in "Silly Billies." Perfectly Balanced

Double Screen Program

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey who have firmly established themselves as the outstanding comedy team of the screen, probably top all their previous vehicles with "Silly Billies" their newest laugh jamboree.

This side-splitter, now at the Belle until Wednesday evening's matinee daily, is considered by critics and showmen everywhere, as one of the funniest comedies in many months. Crammed with new and original gags, situations of which the two funsters take full advantage, and laid in the picturesque setting of the Indian territory during the hectic begins of '49, the film is a roaring delight from start to finish.

If you can imagine Wheeler and Woolsey as a pair of quack dentists who set out to pull all the teeth in the Wild West and who successively encounter a stage-coach hold-up and a real-estate promoter, save a wagon-train from an Indian attack, get captured by redskins, are nearly drowned in a cyclone and tortured at the stake, and narrowly escape being lynched, you can get a faint idea of their experiences.

Departing from the customary farce treatment of feature comedies "Silly Billies", builds up these splitting into thrilling realistic scenes which by contrast make the stars' antics all the funnier.

This method of alternating legitimate thrills with comedy has been deftly followed by Director Fred Guiol, Dorothy Lee makes a delightful pioneer heroine.

"So Red the Rose", Gripping

"So Red the Rose", Paramount's romantic spectacle of the South before and after the War is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program and is a most faithful and exciting dramatization of Stark Young's popular novel, and features Margaret Sullavan, Randolph Scott, Walter Connolly, Elizabeth Patterson, Janet Beecher and Harry Ellerbe.

Directed by King Vidor, one of Hollywood's most successful directors, and produced by Dan Kroon by Lawrence Stalling, a director and adapter responsible for "The Big Parade", a sensational screen vehicle of silent days. "So Red the Rose" is the poignant story of a proud plantation owner (Walter Connolly) and his family when war clouds gathered, precipitating a conflict that engulfs a peace-loving people.

Against this war background is played the problems of family life; of a girl in love with a man who refuses to fight for his own people; of a boy who goes off to fight his family and plantation to follow the call to duty.

Margaret Sullavan as the heroine of the picture gives a distinguished performance. Randolph Scott as her pacifist rebel-lover does well in a very difficult role. Walter Connolly, Janet Beecher and Harry Ellerbe are also effective in excellent parts. And Elizabeth Patterson supplies much humor by her interpretation of Mary Cherry, the crusty relative who takes it upon herself to rule the destinies of everyone with whom she comes in contact.

Erwin G. Hill, the Managing Director

AT THE CAPITOL

Jessie Matthews comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow in "First A Girl", and a Matthews picture means a dancing picture, for Jessie is the girl who does everything . . . and has everything for the dances she sings, she mimics and imitates and she has charm, personality, magnetism, piquant beauty and legs that have described as the single exclamation marks after the word beautiful!

"First A Girl" has been given a lavishing mounting by GB, presenting six new jig and whistle tunes by Maurice Sigler, Al Goodhart and Al Hoffman, composers of "I Saw Stars" and other tuneful hits, five spectacular ballet numbers and a cabaret-night parade that shows what the smartly dressed woman should wear.

Sonnie Hale, Griffith Jones and Anna Lee give Miss Matthews fine-toned support in a story that is concerned with a stage struck girl who gets the best chances when a female impersonator catches cold and loses his voice, Jessie deputizing for him and is such a success that the impersonator impersonates a boy impersonating a girl . . . and impersonates herself into a harp of tangles when she falls in love with a handsome young man and doesn't dare tell him she's a girl and she'd rather be a sweetheart than a pal.

"First a Girl" was written for Miss Matthews by Victor Saville. It has London, Paris and the Riviera for its glamorous background.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THANK-YOU NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Would tell me how to write a thank-you note for gifts received for a very dear baby? Several of these notes are going to business people.

2. Also is it necessary to send them to close relatives and friends whom we have thanked personally?

J.

1. A note thanking for a gift to a new baby may be properly worded something like this:

Dear Mrs. Allen,

You were very kind to my new daughter and to me, and I thank you many, many times for your goodness and generous thought. And I'm sure that my new Dorothy's thanks will be added to mine when she is old enough to write a note herself.

The bonnet is a beauty, and I'm sure that my daughter will look sweet in it and be very proud when she wears it "out into the wide, wide world"; that social world of which you and I are such a lovely pastel image.... It's a masterpiece of friendship.

I appreciate it so much, Mrs. Allen, and do appreciate it more than I can tell you for your sweet thought.

Dearest wishes to you, and I do hope that I am to have the pleasure of seeing you soon with the baby.

Most sincerely yours.

In writing these notes you would of course, adapt them to suit in the degree of friendship you have with the person to whom you are writing.

And the form of your signature is important too. Let's say that one of those business people of whom you speak, you may know very little, and perhaps the person does not know your formal name. Then your signature to the note would be:

Yours very sincerely,

Mary Smith Brown.

(Mrs. John Jay Brown.)

3. When you have already thanked by telephone, a note is unnecessary, especially for the gifts, especially relatives and close friends. It would not be necessary for you to write notes of appreciation, but it wouldn't, indeed, be improper to do this....and the givers would love your additional words of thanks.

PHOTOGRAPH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I spent a wonderful time in November out of town. While there I met a young man and he took me out several times during that week end. Also he took me out during the holidays when I was in town. Now why you shouldn't grant his request to him. If you don't know about it what you write on the photograph.....It can do no harm to it. It's better not to write anything on it. But if you do, write simply, "I'm on. Tom, from Boston."

TELEPHONE ETIQUETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me regarding the proper way to answer the telephone to whom I may be speaking to? Is it necessary to say, "May I be talking? I am a nurse and a masseuse.

I have a very exclusive clientele and I have always said, "This is Mrs. Smith speaking." Several days ago one of my patients asked me why I did not say announcing your self on the telephone.

Reader.

You're correct in the way you have been giving your name on the telephone. These calls of yours are business calls, and "This is Mrs. Smith speaking" is the correct form at the time of announcing your self on the telephone.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

His Mother Doesn't Realize He Is Grown Up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the last eight or nine months I have been going with a fine, clean girl and a couple of years younger than I am. She is a real pal and friend in every way. We have common tastes and we both find of sports and the out-of-doors. I neglected to say, I'm 23 and a college student.

My mother now wants me to give up this girl as she says I'm too young to keep my own mind or habits. She has nothing against the girl, and just disapproves of my going with a girl on general principles.

Jack.

It's pretty hard for some women to realize that the time inevitably comes in a boy's life when the skates and express wagons, and even the football, are not enough. With college girl age, there are girls to be taken into consideration. And if a mother is really wise, she would be glad that the favored girl is fine and clean-cut, such as you describe this one to be, and fond of sports and the out-of-doors.

Your mother is concerned, I suppose, with the thought that your attentions to this girl will keep you from your studies. And you want to take this angle of the case into consideration first.

It costs heaps of money to go to college.

She Despises College

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Although I am fortunate enough to have a nice home and well-to-do parents, I despise school. After graduating from high school I went to something useful and pleasant, a business college.

A boy friend tells me if a girl studies school she is good, but she'll feel badly about it later. And I've heard the expression: "What a waste of time going to school and becoming." and I'm wondering if this is true in my case.

Ambitionless.

The trouble with youngsters like you, who despise school and then expect to face life is that you're like horses built without foundation—handsome enough, but you don't have to earn your own living. You may marry a man who is not ambitionless as you describe yourself to be, and seriously handicap him by your lack of education and culture. Better take what you can in the way of education, while the going is good, and be thankful.

Proper Place to Meet the Boy Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it proper to meet your boy friend at the front door or not? My sister says her boy friend comes so often he ought to know the way in, but I say that's all wrong.

B. F.

There isn't any hard and fast rule about where one should meet the boy friend. Whoever answers a visitor's ring—a maid or member of the family—will probably invite him into the living-room. If you mean, should he walk in without knocking —certainly not.

Honeymoon Handicap

By E. F. O'BRYAN

"All right," says Gracie, giving Bert a withering look. "Go right ahead, duckie, if that's the way you feel. Shoot the piece."

"Aiden, my darling—" Bert's words dripped honey. But who wouldn't with a gal like Gracie for a bride? "Why, darling, spring fever."

"Thyprion is still my choice," Gracie says indifferently. "I'm putting my money on him."

"Thyprion, my eye," Bert says disgustedly. "I'm getting sick and tired of hearing you say, 'Thyprion, Thyprion.' Either of them can't lose a pair another fly in the ointment of happiness.

Gracie was the instigator of every row between them. If a woman, married a good sport like the jaw Gracie was doing just that, only Bert wasn't built to stand for nothing before the ink was dry on the license. She'd lost a lot of money betting on the nags, and was riding desperately to win some of it back. "Thyprion, my eye," Bert bet and bet that much and no more. Either of them could pull a sucker. No winner, I trust. Fair enough?"

"O. K.," Bert says. "All right by me anyway, my horse is running in that race."

Gracie looks at her program. "Thyprion, 100 to 1. Not a chance. I'm on. Let's make it fifty dollars."

That settled it—temporarily. Things were beautifully for a while. Then the storm broke all over again. Bert was foolish in thinking that Gracie was a pal on the Spring Dance. She hadn't thought of him at all. She was all spring. "How take Thyprion—"

"Shut up, Jackrabbit!" Bert says in disgust. "You're not going to take, sweetheart. Any other horse but him."

It finally got around to the last day. Bert and Gracie were away by themself and came back in about five minutes stuffing something in their pockets and looking very sad. When he came back he was busting with joy. Gracie had lost her roll. They had made their bets.

Bert was the first one to the city and Mr. Winters was not recalled at once. He had been in charge of military activities ever since and joined the Canadian Legion and was never absent from Legion functions. Born in Marmora Township and Dec. 11th 1857, a son of the late U. E. L. stock. His grandmother was a member of the Loyal Dorland family whose names are to be found among those who signed the long trek into Canada following the American War of Independence. They settled at Tyendinaga. Mr. Winters' grandfather came out from Ireland with an Irish regiment in 1812 and fought at the Battle of Queenston Heights. His Sarah Dowmard at the age of 16, with her sister left Ireland to join her parents who had immigrated to Canada two years earlier and settled in Prince Edward County. Miss Dowmard met and married John Winters, son of a British army soldier and the daughter of the Longwells. This couple were the parents of the late Silas Winters. Due to the early death of his father, Silas was thrown on his own resources at an early age but his sturdy independence led him to seek his fortune as a youth so he struck out on his own at the age of fourteen. He first took up painting and interior decorating which became his life work. He was married on May 5th, 1886, at Port Hope, to Miss Annabelle Hall, a direct descendant of Sir David Kirk who captured Quebec in 1629 from Champlain. Seven sons and children of the marriage, Lieutenant A. M. Winters, killed in action, June 22nd, 1918; Eva May (Mrs. W. H. Craig, Canmore) and Olive who died in childhood of diphtheria. One sister survives, Mrs. E. Murphy, New Westminster, B.C. Mr. and Mrs. Silas Winters were Captain J. W. Winters, Winnipeg, who is a member of the Halifax Rifles, the Boer War and the Great War. The late Mr. Winters was a first cousin of Mrs. Ross and John Dowmard of Marmora Township and Mrs. Wm. Burns of Marmora village.

Increase Confidence Of a Sensitive Child

Writer Says Humiliation or Fear May be the Cause If School Progress Is Slow

By LISA GRENELLA

FROM NORTH CAROLINA a distressed mother writes of her little girl, who can't, or won't, get more than A B O's although before she went to school she knew them well enough.

At three she could read nursery pieces with mother's help, spell her own name, and run joyfully through the alphabet, but at eight she is still in the first grade, because she didn't seem to know her A B O's.

The doctor says she has a good, strong mind.

Did you know that when thoroughly frightened it is impossible to think or remember? This isn't a theory or a sentimentality, but a physical law, also that you cannot do the simplest act unless you believe you can.

I get so many letters from parents whose children, suddenly going to pieces at school, forget what they have already learned, cannot, or will not, concentrate on the day's lesson.

I, myself, have a boy who went through the same experience. When he started going to school he could read, but after a year of school he couldn't read a word.

The cause was fear. It is the same reason that is back of most of these problems. It is usually lack of self-confidence, a belief that he could not and a fear that he would not succeed. Fear is the greatest enemy man has; a consciousness that he was not quite as good as his own group, inferior to his classmates.

Various Fears

In many private schools now, they have a psychologist into section, called by the mechanical speed of recognizing of the children's minds. It is explained that the child with a slow mind is not necessarily an inferior child, but one who cannot keep pace with the class. Children are temperamentally equal speed, they do not feel inferior.

Fear of the teacher is another very common handicap that some sensitive children seem unable to overcome. It possesses them so completely and to such an extent that the brain is temporarily paralyzed. It is impossible for the child to speak, focus his attention, think or even to listen or speak, much less remember.

This fear of the teacher is not always the teacher's fault either, at least not consciously. The child may have received no ill treatment from her, no exceptional reproofs as. Nevertheless her manner frightens him, her expression, or the sudden way she questions him. Maybe she has used sarcasm on him, a thing children seem to fear more than anything else; I suppose, because it makes them feel foolish. At any rate, she has destroyed his self-confidence, made him feel that he cannot, and therefore he cannot, not in her presence, at any rate.

Small School Best

Another thing that children fear in recitation is the laughter of their classmates. They fear being made conspicuous, having their mistakes held up to the attention of the class. Sometimes a child cannot learn in school because his mind is paralyzed by dread of ridicule, when the other children, or some bully, pick on him, or him, for a time, and bully him.

Sympathetic children like our little friend in North Carolina belong in small schools with patient, understanding teachers, for a few years, they should be taught at home, until they have confidence and strength.

And it must be understood by both parent and teacher that this type of child fails, not because he will not, but because he cannot. He must not be punished, scolded or ridiculed. He needs love and care. But everything must be done to build his self-confidence; to lead him to associate learning with pleasure and success, and not be-

In the annual financial statement for the year ended December 31st, 1935, the Company gives a list of shares in other companies held on that date:

2,000,000 shares McWatters Gold Mines Ltd., 250,000 shares Dumbell Rouyn Mines Ltd. (subject to share subscription payable at 20c per share). 400,794 shares Pacific Gold Mines Ltd. 2,625 shares Lake Lauzon Collieries Ltd. 100,000 shares Dore Mines Limited.

In addition to the Company's properties in Rose Lake and Sudbury, Prospectors Airways Co. Ltd. also owns a group of claims in the Kenora River area, Central Ont. and several groups of claims in Chibougamau, Quebec, 1000 Rose Lake, Sesnerville and Joanne, all in the Province of Quebec.

Wayside

According to an official report, the mill handled 1,000 tons of ore in the three months ended March 1st; recovery was 91.5% and total milling operations started December 11 and during that month, 1050 tons were handled and in January this figure was stepped up to 2,000 tons, 1750 tons being through in February. The new mill produced 1,000 fine oz. of bullion in March and still gave $33,933. In January the mill ran 100 per cent of its rated capacity while in February the cold weather resulted in the water line pipe corrivices and the mill only turned over at 60 percent.

Mine development to date consist of work on five levels and the sinking of extension of the winze. This was entered the ore zone below No. 5 level towards the latter end of February, and it was only after entering this zone that any ore from the mine went direct to the mill.

The paper stocks and the oils predominated in the trading activity yesterday, a number of the issues in both groups advancing to new year's high territory. It will be recalled that Financial Service has on several occasions in the past called attention to the improved prospects for the newsprint producers.

With reference to the strength in the Canadian oil stocks, several factors have contributed to bring about a wide public demand. Prize, B. A. Oil in addition to paying over $1.00 on its Canadian refining and distributing business, is reported to be showing very excellent earnings from its American subsidiary. The impression is, therefore, that shareholders in the company can look forward to an increase in the dividend from the prevailing rate of 80 cents annually.

In the case of Imperial Oil, New York has been a heavy buyer of the security. The strength in Standard Oil of New Jersey has reflected attention to the Canadian subsidiaries, chief of which is Imperial Oil, which in turn controls International Petroleum. With the United States Government in an effort to cover budget deficiencies, intending to heavily tax the large corporations, something constructive is believed to be pending for consideration.

In a few weeks' time the matter of dividends on both Imperial Oil and International Petroleum will be under consideration. These issues are payable share for share on the present time. The rate on Imperial is $1.25 annually and on "Peia" $2.50 annually.

Foundation Company is selling at a new high since 1929. In that year the stock touched 35. The earnings for the building industry is promising, particularly in view of the Government's intention to spend $100,000,000 on public works. Foundations Company has a sufficient work on hand to keep it busy for several years and prospects look fair, in that period should closely follow the business cycle, so it would not be surprising if the directors saw their way clear to declare an initial dividend payment.

JESUIT PRIEST IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Rev. Charles O'Brien, S. J. of the American Province of the Jesuit Order, who opened a Retreat at St. Michael's Church on Sunday was stricken with a severe heart attack yesterday and is in a serious condition. Although resting easier today, he is still dangerously ill.

Montreal, April 7.—New lows for spring downturns were recorded on the Montreal egg market yesterday. Receipts were not too heavy but demand was dull, dealers apparently being well supplied. The butter market was quiet, and prices steady at last week-end's slight upturn. The potato market was firmer at 10-1b. and 90-lb. sacks, with other lines unchanged. Cheese and poultry ruled about steady. Receipts for the day, local consumption and trade figures at the Bank of Trade as 823 cases of eggs, 75 boxes of butter and no cheese.

On the egg market graded shipments in cartons or L.C. lots were ranging from 19c to 20c for A-large, 17½c to 18½c for A-medium, 12c-15c for B, and 18c-19c for C or C-pullets.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK.

TOBACCO GROWING

TOBACCO FARM OWNER: "Henry, you and the other men are doing fine work and I hope you know I appreciate it."

TOBACCO FARM WORKER: "Thank you; I figure you know that we appreciate our steady jobs and good pay, too."

OWNER: "Oh, well, Henry, I don't deserve all the credit. I never could have sunned or carried on this business properly, without the assistance of my bank, the Bank of Montreal. Like hundreds of other tobacco growers, I have borrowed every year from the Bank to pay for plants, fertilizer and labour; and soon after I began the Bank loaned me money I needed for barns and other equipment. Of course, I've kept up my end by paying off the loans when I sold my crop. There's nothing like good banking credit for making a sound business, regular profits—and giving employment."

WORKER: "So it's been said, too! I think most of my friends in this district keep their savings at the same bank. Some of us have safety deposit boxes there, too."

In the development of the tobacco industry, as in other new and old Canadian industries, the Bank of Montreal has played an important part. From the time the tobacco plants are put out, purchased in the spring and on through the growing season when money is needed for labour, equipment and buildings, the Bank's loaning facilities are at the disposal of its hundreds of tobacco-growing customers.

Leafs Expect Even Split On Detroit Ice and End Series in Their Home Rink

Respect Ability of Red Wings Believing Them "Hot"

NO CHANGES

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Detroit, April 7 (CP)—Threatened disaster hovered Toronto's Maple Leafs scarcely at all today as they, awaiting the call to the second game of the Stanley Cup Series against Detroit Red Wings tonight, Leafs have had a glimpse of two of disaster just lately and nothing serious had happened.

They were one game down to the Red Wings in the best-of-five series but if what was anything to worry about the Leafs failed to take note. The Leafs were not so optimistic that they expected to win both games on Detroit ice. They figured on winning one of the two, then carrying the fight to Detroit in Toronto.

Sunday night's 3-1 defeat from a tuned-up force of National Hockey League champions left the Leafs confident they would come back and square the series tonight. There won't be any changes in the lineup. The boss strategists, Conn Smythe and Dick Irvin, needed no convincing. The Leafs are good enough to turn back the Wings.

Wings Are Favorites

While the Flying Red Wings are top-heavy favorites to win the biggest prize in hockey, having gone undefeated in four play-off games after winning the American Section, they expect to meet a greatly improved Toronto team tonight. They know the Leafs by reputation.

They remember that the Leafs took a 3-0 beating from Boston Bruins in the first game of their total-goals series and that Toronto was the same team in a 3-1 win at Detroit uprising in years. These facts have encouraged the Red Wings in a vein of confidence.

When Smythe met Manager Jack Adams of the Wings yesterday, the Toronto maestro held out his hand and said: "Congratulations, Jack."

"What," snapped Adams, "are you shaking hands until we have won the series?" Smythe grinned.

"It's just trying to make you think we're good," growled Adams. "If Conny ever got that one across, his team would go out there and fight and make suckers out of us."

Believes in Leafs

Smythe believes, however, the Leafs will stage another rally and stop the Wings, regardless of the mental attitude of the Adams machine. Toronto has proven its ability by fight from behind to Smythe's complete satisfaction.

If there is to be any change in tactics, the Toronto boss wasn't keeping it secret. Sunday night the Leafs attacked from the outset and were still driving in at the finish. They paid scant attention to defence as King Clancy, Happy Day and Andy Blair, in particular, rushed at every opportunity.

Twice the Wings broke away from these savage rushes to score, Hooky McDonald and Doug Bowie fooling Goalie George Hainsworth from close range. Neither time was there the semblance of a protective barrier for Hainsworth. Almost the same state of affairs held, when Wally Kilrea bagged the third Wing goal.

Always Good For Goals

But that is for you the Leafs play hockey—shooting for goals always. If they get the jump on Detroit tonight with the first goal, every Red Wing supporter knows how difficult it will be for the N.H.L. champions to catch up.

Charlie Conacher, held potential and impotent by Marshe Lewis in the first game, hopes to break away from his check and get away some of his blazing shots at Normie Smith. The bomber, however, will again be accompanied by Lewis, whose orders are to string along with Conacher.

Another sell-out crowd of 13,000 will watch the game tonight. It may be Detroit's last home game of the season, because either team could end the series on Toronto ice.

SUDBURY FALCONS ON WAY TO 'PEG FOR CUP FINALS

One of The Lightest Clubs to Ever Represent East in Cup Play

AVERAGE AGE 22

Joe Ironstone in Goal is Only Veteran of The Squad

Sudbury, April 7.—(CP)—Sudbury Falcons, Eastern Canada Senior Hockey Champions, left for Winnipeg today confident they would bring the Allan Cup to Ontario's Nickel belt for the first time. The Northerners will meet another rushing aggregation, Kimberly Dynamiters, in a best-of-five series for the Dominion title.

One of the lightest clubs ever to represent the East in the inter-Sectional playoffs, Falcons were announced fit for the first contest with the British Columbians thursday. Coach Sammy Rothschild will have 13 players from which to select his starting line-up.

A young club, averaging 22 years of age, the Falcons carried a weight average of only 155 pounds a player. Joe Ironstone, re-instated professional formerly with the Ottawa Senators, National League Club is the only veteran.

Veteran Players

Thumbnail sketches of the Eastern champions follow:

Sam Rothschild, coach, played with Montreal Maroons Stanley Cup winners in 1926 and coached Sudbury Juniors to the Dominion championship in 1932.

Joe Ironstone, goal, re-entered amateur hockey last season in the Nickel Belt League following his former re-instatement. Joe won't tell his age but admits it was while playing for the fans can't guess it.

Dave Kemp, 20, top goalie, former Niagara Falls Junior, played with Sudbury Cub Wolves last year, when they beat Winnipeg Monarchs in the Dominion finals.

Shafiq Nagy, Kingston, 21, a heavy-hitting defenceman of Kitchener, played with Kingston Minos last year. He has the hardest shot in the league, uses the team and is hard to pass in his own territory.

Red Cook, 25 learned his hockey in Western Canada, starting in Lacombe, Alta., Juniors and Weyburn, Sask., seniors before coming east. Thinks he's the best team in the league, a long reach gives him an effective poke check.

Don Crowe, 20, defence, just a few days over junior age limit played during the Nickel Belt schedule as centre ice and was moved to defence at the end. He is from Sault Ste. Marie product, he is a brilliant stickhandler.

Real Fhay Maker

William "Bibbs" Bellinger, 22, centre, was developed as a junior maker this year. He has a burst of speed and if he can find room with his two fast wings, Bellinger playmaker in the Nickel Belt League.

Hal Cooper, 23, right wing captain of the Club played the best hockey of his career this winter. Born in New Liskeard, Cooper is a northerner but adopted junior in Hamilton.

Art Smart, 20, left wing, started his career in Massey Falls as a junior when only 13. He was second highest scorer in the Nickel Belt League this season and ret the single-game scoring record.

Charlie Marshall, 31, right wing, has established himself in the playoffs as a prolific scorer. Graduate of junior ranks, he is an able partner of Steve Conick.

Gordon Hiller, 20, left wing, Kitchener Junior, was given a tryout with Montreal Canadiens of the National League last fall. Troubled with injuries at the start of the season. Hiller hit his stride later in the end of the League schedule.

Al Cowan, 20, defence, played with Sudbury Juniors this winter and was brought up to Falcons for the eastern final series against Stratford. Last season he played with Oshawa Juniors. He is rugged and aggressive.

Advisor to Morenz Dies in Stratford

Stratford, April 7 (CP)—Charles A. Down, who coached "Howie" Morenz when he played amateur hockey here and who helped make Stratford "flash" to turn pro, died this afternoon at the age of 70. He had been ill for some time.

Mr. Down, always a keen follower of all sport, was a member of the first organized hockey team in Stratford, He was a fine lacrosse player in his day, and of later years indulged in bowling and golf.

For 26 years he was associated with Matthew Fleming in the furniture and undertaking business, but for the past three years he had handed over the undertaking business of his own! Mr. Down was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church and served on the board of managers.

MONTREAL ROYALS HAVE TO REBUILD THE HURLING CORPS

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 6 (CP)—The International Baseball League pennant, that so seldom flutters on the Canadian side of the line isn't going to be lowered easily from its mast in the Montreal Stadium.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy has to rebuild two-thirds of his formidable "big three" pitching staff if his Royals are to go places. Pete Appleton, Chad Kimsey and Harry Smythe, his three ace hurlers, won close to 60 games last season to swipe a large share of credit to Royals' pennant drive. Now Smythe only one of the three left, winner of 22 games, is the man Shag must build his pitching staff around. Appleton and Kimsey were claimed by the Majors.

At Orlando, Fla., where Royals are in spring training, Shaughnessy is wondering how much pitchers Don French and Johnny Mercer will accomplish in the way of replacing Appleton, gone to Washington, and Kimsey, with Detroit.

French, a side-arm righthander, has been obtained from Detroit Tigers. Mercer is a former International Leaguer with Jersey City. Another Smythe, Shaughnessy has George Granger, Leon Chagnon, and Mythyangas from last year's group.

Gap in Outfield

Chagnon, who joined Royals late in 1935, should be able to fill one of the spots vacated by Kimsey and Appleton. Ray Pritz, another leading pitcher, has been recalled by Detroit Tigers but Shag counts on other reinforcements including American "Polly" Polli veteran with Milwaukee in 1933 and George Smith, a semi-pro last season.

But off-season trade by the Montreal team, selling of Jim Ripple to New York Giants for a reported $35,000 left them with a gap in the outfield. Bob Beall will support for duty in the left pasture and Billy Rhiel and Gus Dugas will likely alternate at right but as for Ripple's centrefield berth that is not filled, although much is expected of Hubert Bates, also obtained from Detroit in the Kimsey deal.

The infield is practically intact. Del Bissonnette, batting star of the last International League playoffs, will be back at first base while speedy Ben Sankey, a fast-fielder, will return to shortstop, Captain Fresco Thompson and Hal King appear reasonably safe of holding down the two other infield places, Thompson at third and King at second base.

"JOPLIN GHOST" WINS TOURNAMENT

Horton Smith Overcomes Cooper's Long Lead on Last Round

(By Kenneth Gregory)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Augusta, Ga., April 7. —(AP)— The sensational finish of Horton Smith, the "Joplin Ghost", in coming from far back to overtake the All Star field in the Third Augusta National Invitation Golf Tournament gave the baby Missouri professional a gouo hoost today along the money-winning trail of 1936.

By triumphing over leading challengers in a rousing rally down the home stretch of the 72-hole medal race, the diminutive curly-haired shocker of 28 years added $1,500 to previous earnings.

Playing in a windy cloudburst that caught most of the professionals on the last 18 holes and as flooded the courses some protested conditions, Smith, winner of the inaugural tournament in 1934 caught up with "Light Horse Harry" Cooper, the Chicago Texan, veteran of two Ryder Cup matches and overhauled him in a scorching drive.

The former world golf champion, Bobby Jones, failed to find his "touch" attempt, finishing with an aggregate of 306, his worst showing in any tournament and with his 311 in the United States open at Oakmont a few years ago. He was 21 strokes back of the triumphant Champion by the end.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, New York, blew his chances when he took 76 on the last round for a total of par 70 for the morning round and finished with 294 to tie Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., for fourth place with 295.

They received $450 each of the prize distribution.

ROCHESTER RELIES ON FINE HURLING TO CARRY TEAM

Rochester, N.Y., April 7 (AP)—A sweeping new deal that started with a new manager and spread through the entire roster has given the Red Wings promise to vindicate the choice of the International League club's directors which picked Rochester Red Wings as the ranking team on pre-season dope.

Although the Wings finished second a couple of times they have not taken a baseball pennant since the four straight from 1928-31, and President Frank C. Giles figures it's about his turn again.

Ray Blades, former Cardinal outfielder, makes his debut as an International League pilot when the Blades has surrounded himself with a well-balanced cast, with just enough kick in the batting order and the younger fellows' feet on the ground.

Plenty of Pitching

Pitching, rather than power, appears to be the Red Wings' forte. Bob Weiland, whose earned-run average was third best in the loop last year, is considered the No. one flinger.

Tex Carleton, obtained in a deal with Brooklyn, Ray Harrell, Norbert Brunswick and Jim Mahoney comprise the first-string group. Tony Kaufmann, Johnny Michaels and Ward Cross figure not far behind. Kaufmann acts as assistant manager and the player's aspect is kept at pitching.

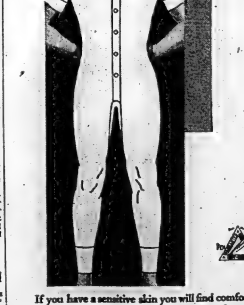
Skeets Rynes this saff good for between 20 and 100 victories, which would assure a high place in the race had it not been for injuries.

The gaping hole at first base was filled recently with the acquisition of Larry Baxton from Columbus. Barton has had two previous trials with the Reds and although his hitting was highly satisfactory, his fielding was not. Baxton is known always a fine hitter in leagues of lower classification, claims an injury held him back last year.

Wilmer Allison Sure U.S. Can Lift Cup

Houston, Tex., April 7 (AP)—The American team that will represent head Englund's great Fred Perry in the United States championships last year, is bunch his mates and will regain the Davis cup.

"The team is quite ready to start to regain the cup," lanky Wilmer Allison observed as he rested after a gold workout with Frank Parker, his doubles partner, and two friends.



A brief wind which possessed the finals of the Ryder Cup golf tournament gave him a chance to map strategy today for his team's combat with Mexico in the opening round of Davis cup competition.

Allison, United States number one ranking player in 1935, is captain of the squad which will meet Mexico here Friday, and the famed Sunday Midgets in 1908. Today we find a lad named Royle playing for the Stanley Juniors. Maybe Stanley Cup finalists to come out of the

Just what it is all about we cannot say as there seems to be an air of secrecy about the whole baseball set-up in Belleville today. President Frank Domenico and his fellow-Rivanians started the ball rolling late last week, when they agreed to sink a sum of money into the sponsoring of a senior club in Belleville and also to provide two members to a proposed baseball committee, the remainder of which to be made up of members of the local Rotary, Kinsmen and Y's Men's clubs. With the diagnosed situation looking anything but bright President Frank Domenico championed the cause until he got action and if his idea is accepted, tc there is baseball in Belleville, to Frank Domenico goes the lion's share of its future success. The latest rumours on the street seems to lean slightly more in an optimistic direction today, however. Whether there is any truth to them or not we of course cannot state at this time, but doubtlessly tomorrow night will bring out information of a more concrete nature.

Of course the situation really is as bad in Belleville as one would at first assume. There are a couple of new faces in the city, both proven hitters. Then again there are a couple of players who were recently stationed at the R.C.A.F. available also. We understand the player's name is Laird and he played senior ball in Niagara Falls. We understand he is recently all that talk about the R.C. A.F. entering the O.B.J. league. Let this pressure, so say bal players who may have been moved by the department from Camp Borden would automatically be eligible to play for a Belleville team. Before they go much further, however, the local ball magnates should investigate themselves of such information, which might assist in assuring a team worthy of the support delegates meet on Wednesday.

Just what is all about we cannot say, but there is a possibility young Royle may be a son of Leon Koyle, who starred for the Lindsay Midgets of years ago.

"I guess you'll have to count us out of softball this summer," stated Mr. Clem Bowler, manager of the local Ashcan Club softball team today. Clem had previously entered a team in the local senior softball loop, but today finds it practically impossible to continue with that club for the sport. Two reasons were given by the gentleman for their quitting softball, the lack of daylight after work and second, the cost of operating a team. Incidentally we know of two local senior softball clubs that are available and ready to step on the field, if they could procure a commercial firm to back them in the purchase of uniforms and the initial layout of equipment and playing paraphernalia. At present the local senior softballers only have three clubs ready to face the 1936 barrier — Tweed, Continental Can and the College Hill squad, with the latter being uncertain starters.

Decks have been cleared and everything is in readiness for Kenora's gala "tamarite" at the Y.M.C.A. All kinds of sports events have been included in the program, races, diving exhibitions and life saving.

Montreal Power is being recommended in some quarters as a constructive investment affording a good return in these days of low yield. The stock is selling to yield slightly better than 4 1-2 percent.

Eddie Rimac, sports editor of the Mail and Empire, hands down the following yarn—"Arthur Slagel tells the following very good story in the Boston Traveler: When Eddie Shore goes west to Canada he brought a letter of introduction to George V. Brown, of the Boston rink, from a mutual friend in Western Canada. Brown took an interest in Eddie, who was by spectacular style of his deeds and his misdeeds. One day Brown stopped Shore at the rink and asked him: "Eddie, you're a farmer in Western Canada, aren't you?" "Yes, Mr. Brown" replied Shore.

"Well," continued Brown, "I see you doing great things out there on the ice and then you go into a rage, and I'm told one of your cows that gives 20 quarts of milk and then steps into the pail."

Shore contained the analogy and laughed. A week ago when news of Shore's outburst in the Toronto game that cost the Bruins their championship chances was flashed to Brown, he remarked: "Eddie still seems to be the 20-quart cow."

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

Mrs. de Bray went up to her room, and shortly afterwards telephoned Vernon to come up.

"My dear, I've just had a telegram—most urgent business—I shall have to catch the night train for New York—"

"But you're motoring up tomorrow—"

"I tell you I can't wait. I have to be at my lawyer's office at nine in the morning."

The queer thing was that Prince Karinoff absolutely insisted on accompanying Mordant.

X X I X

As ill luck would have it, the next morning Mrs. Tyson had one of her periodic bilious attacks. A long journey by motor was unthinkable. The little woman, who had eaten not wisely but too well in Palm Springs, was prostrate.

"You'll have to go up by train by yourself this morning, Vernon. You've got to show up at that Pageant tonight, after your Pa and me spending close on $1,500 on that golden gown for you! Besides, I'm suspicious of Mordant, with the Prince! It didn't look good to me, the way she spoke of you being dragging him with her! Women of that age get desperate. For all her smooth talk, why wouldn't she want to get that title away from you?"

If her mother had but known the afternoon, she and "Pa" would follow Vernon to New York in the car. After Vernon had gone, she so she was, Mrs. Tyson contrived, unknown to Jack, to send a telegram to Prince Karinoff, asking him to meet Vernon at the Pennsylvania Station.

The Prince on taking her to tea after her luggage had been deposited at the Ritz-Carlton in Paris was a wire from her father awaiting her. Although her mother was still too indisposed to travel, but surely they would return by car like Schevening.

During tea, the Prince told Vernon of the wonderful old family necklace belonging to him that he had deposited at Drozet's jewelry store on Fifth Avenue. "You will be beautiful tonight as Catherine of Russia in the Pageant—but you would be even more like a Queen if you would consent to wear my historic necklace!"

Vernon's eyes widened as she glanced that some other than Great Catherine herself had once possessed this prized object.

"But why is it at Drozet's?" she said tactlessly.

The Prince sighed. "I am a poor man. The Bolsheviks ruined me. All I have are my oil properties in the Caucasus which now I cannot touch—and these jewels of my family, Drozet's knows the value of my necklace. They keep it in their safe, awaiting a good offer to sell. And I confess to you—I was financially embarrassed—they let me have $5,000 on it in the meantime—you understand—you are so simpatico." He sighed again.

"And tonight you'd really let me wear the necklace?"

Oh! what a feather in her cap, not only to be splendidly arrayed as Queen Catherine with Russia, but to have the royal lady's authentic jewels round her slim throat!

"I will lend it you with pleasure, dear Vernon, if you would but marry me. I would give it to you as a gift—a wedding gift!" the Prince pleaded.

CHAPTER XXIII.

At the Pirtoprpal, Vernon flushed—thrilled—despite her lack of real feeling for him. To be a real Princess! If only she hadn't fallen in love with Terry, maybe she could have given in. Him she well enough—enough to have that fascinating bauble in her manner. They went round to Drozet's, and for a few minutes the Prince was closeted alone with the manager. He made his request. He was perfectly businesslike about it.

They are ver-ree rich people. Their fortune at the lowest is two million dollars. You will telephone the credit manager of their hotel, and he will verify their financial position. The young lady is the only child, and if she likes this necklace—this beautiful thing—her parents they buy it for her. That is why I make my appointment—why I bring her here to you."

The manager looked dubious. "But to let it out of our hands—unpaid for?"

"I assure you we shall soon make a sale to them at our top price. Meantime, the young lady will assume full responsibility for the necklace. People will notice it tonight. All the richest people in New York—possible customers themselves—will be present at the Pageant." Here the Prince lowered his voice to add: "I tell you in confidence—it is not yet announced, but her mother begs us to announce their young lady and I are engaged to be married!"

So the manager came out of his private office, and met Vernon. He instructed one of his men to show her the necklace with which she was delighted. Then he telephoned the Hotel Splendide, and learned that the Tyson family had engaged the expensive suite there for the winter and were occupying it.

"I myself will bring the necklace round in a taxi cab—one never from now," he informed Vernon. He would have a chat with the manager of the Splendide and get him to come up to the suite on some pretext or other, and identify this girl quietly as the young heiress the Prince had painted her to be.

The Prince's credentials in the first instance had been perfectly in order. Before taking the necklace into his keeping, the jeweler and his assistant had met the Prince's personal papers, and had satisfied themselve that this was indeed an historic and most valuable piece of jewelry.

Rich customers, too, were scarce in these days of depression. Out of a $50,000 sale, the firm of Drozet's deducting the $6,000 already advanced to the Prince, would receive a lavish commission.

Arrived at the Splendide, from the general manager and credit manager he learned that the Tyson family were certainly good for the price of the necklace, and then some! On the pretext of inquiring when her parents would return to town from Hot Springs, the manager accompanied the Prince to Suite 37B, in the Tower, and identified Vernon as the billionaire's daughter, without her, of course, realizing the precaution that was being taken.

The jeweler himself securely fastened the valuable gems about Vernon's throat.

Vernon looked lovely at the Pageant that night. In her glittering golden gown she received many congratulations. In the vestibule of Madison Square Garden, it was impossible to see if Terry Shannon were among the audience, but she was sure he could come up to speak to her after the show, and probably take her somewhere to supper.

He did come up. Climbing coquettishly to his seat on Miss Pan Bumbington!

"I've been making hay with your handsome beau while you were away, old thing!" Pan winked impudently. She had been unable to afford a gown for this affair. Aunt Sadie might have had the decency to buy one for her, considering all she had done for the "family and for Vernon!

Her eye lit on the glittering necklace Vernon wore. She shrieked: "Heavens! That cost a fortune! Real diamonds!"

"Hush!" Prince Karinoff gave her a reproachful look. "It is a secret."

"She got them from you. I've heard about that necklace! It was in your family for generations! Oh, Prince—do tell me—are you and she engaged?" she squeaked, skipping up and down with excitement.

Terry heard this. Vernon wished that the necklace of the Karinoffs was at the bottom of the ocean!

"It is for the lady to say." The Prince bowed elegantly, striking a romantic pose.

Nan chortled loudly: "My cousin, the Princess!"

"Be silent, Nan!" Vernon was scarlet.

"All right, all right. Don't get panicky. I just wanted to be the first to congratulate you. When it comes to diamonds, one does expect some announcement to follow. Doesn't one, Terry?"

Following that, Nan insisted that they all go up to a "cute spot" called the Cyprus Pavilion, for supper.

A long black velvet coat covering her golden gown, the diamonds hidden under a scarf, Vernon and the Prince, with Nan and Terry, set off together. Nan claimed Terry as her escort, and clung to him at closely that Vernon had no chance for a word alone with him.

Moreover, Nan never ceased to "kid" her cousin about a reported romance that had appeared a day or two previously in a New York paper, about Vernon and the Prince at Hot Springs . . . she showed no tact whatever.

There was simply no stopping Nan. She had looked upon the wine when it was red. She was in ecstatic spirits.

She flirted openly with Terry and with a gasp—Vernon saw, he did not seem averse to it.

"And what?" Dick interrupted. "Ah! they put their tail between their legs and beat it!" "An umbrella's a good thing to frighten a lion with," Dick offered. But now Doc's attention was elsewhere. "That big rock; we didn't pass that. That means for sure we're on the wrong road!"

The boys decided to retrace their steps back to the other fork, certain that it must lead to the railway. At the point where they turned, the trail ran straight for a hundred yards. And there, just at the end of the stretch, a great black-maned lion emerged into full view!

Dick and Doc stood frozen in their tracks. The lion stopped too, and surveyed them. He was aroused by the sight of such young and tender prey. Baring his fangs, the great fierce beast opened his mouth in a terrific, earth-shaking roar—then moved toward his quarry!

"You are awake? I tried so hard to arouse you last night, but to no avail!"

"Why did you bring me here?" gasped Vernon, sitting up on the couch, her cloak held tight about her. "It was horrible of you! If anyone should know—I ll go immediately!"

On the mantelpiece a clock solemnly pealed nine times.

"But breakfast is ready," protested the Prince. "Surely you would not deny me the pleasure of your company after having been my guest all night?"

Conservative Filibuster Against School Tax Bill May Lengthen Session

Henry Called Premier Contemptible Cur But Withdraws Remark

DEBATE BITTER

No Parallel Between School Laws in Quebec and Ontario Says Hoskin

Toronto, April 7.— (CP)—All hope of Easter prorogation of the Ontario Legislature appeared dissipated today with a Conservative filibuster against the Government's Separate School Tax Bill definitely under way. It will be the first time in years the House had to sit after Easter.

Debate on Premier Hepburn's measure to grant Separate schools a larger share of Corporation taxes adjourned at 2.35 o'clock today after a stormy wind-up in which Opposition Leader Henry had clashed at Premier Hepburn the declaration: "You contemptible cur", his later withdrew the remark, made in an argument over adjournment. The debate will resume at tonight's session with Gerrdian Belanger (Lib., Russell), first speaker.

Since 11.00 o'clock last night T. A. Kidd (Conservative, Kingston), had taken up the burden of the Opposition attack in a debate where government and Opposition matched speaker for speaker. Last of four speakers to participate since the debate of nearly 11½ hours began opened at 2 o'clock yesterday by Mr. Henry, the Kingston member spent most of the time reading resolutions against tax exemption.

Submission of the School Tax question to the Privy Council was urged by Mr. Henry. Education Minister Simpson said he believed the fairness of the measure "with all my heart". A. R. Nesbitt (Con., Toronto Bracondale), said the legislation "was decided on the price one paid for support in an election."

Speaker Asks Co-operation

Attorney-General Roebuck, reviewing the history of Separate Schools since their inception in 1841, declared that "a compromise in the Catholics without offending the Protestants". The Speaker appealed to Mr. Henry before the 1934 election to submit the question to the Privy Council.

Search of departmental files, he said, disclosed "not a single scratch of the pen" to show the questions of grievance had been framed. Mr. Henry's speech yesterday "has done more to set the fires of religious discord burning than anything we have done or ever will do," he declared.

At 2.05 o'clock, Speaker N. O. Rowe asked co-operation of members in sticking to the question and this brought from Premier Hepburn the declaration he had been ten years in Parliament and in the course of last year's Hydro filibuster never experienced "such an exhibition of perverse digging". Kidd's speech.

After the Premier charged lack of co-operation, the Opposition Leader replied to the Premier.: "I throw this remark back in his teeth." Mr. Henry said the Attorney-General in his speech, made no reference to the "whole has not been seen in this House".

Col. Kidd's motion to adjourn the debate was refused by the Premier and Mr. Henry said Mr. Hepburn had undertaken to adjourn the House at 5 o'clock. Whereupon the Premier denied this Mr. Henry replied: "I'll call all my members back and we'll talk it out finally."

Withdrawal Demanded

"That's just what we want," the Premier returned.

A statement by Premier Hepburn, that the Opposition leader was not mad-blooded, drew from the latter the exclamation: "You contemptible cur." The Chairman was forced to intervene and the few spectators remaining in the galleries were cleared from the lobbies. Col. F. Fraser Hunter (Lib., Toronto St. Patrick) joined Mr. Hepburn.

"I am unalterably opposed to the bill," Mr. Henry said, "and I have to spoken strongly today. "But I want this House to know there is no rancour in my soul with regard to any church." The legislation condravened the principle of the British Act guaranteeing Separate Schools their rights and he appealed in advance to the Privy Council to determine if Ontario Catholics lived up to the obligations of the 1863 Act.

Mr. Henry criticized the Government for bringing down the legislation so late in the session and said until it was definitely established the province was not living up to the 1863 legislation there was no need for the present Act.

Dealing with another aspect Assumption all corporation taxes were being divided or the basis of general property assessment, Mr. Henson said except for Ottawa, North Bay and Windsor, no municipality would be required to increase its public school tax rate by more than half a mill.

Few Cities Exceed 30 P.C.

"Only in relatively few cases does the total assessment of persons who use public school supporters," he said. "These are the cities of Kitchener, North Bay, Ottawa and Windsor, in Brantford, London, Oshawa, Owen Sound, St. Thomas, Barrie, Trenton and Woodstock the ratio is less than 30 per cent.

"Possibly to a large number of cities much of the property would fall under the other system of division whereby shareholders would estimate their taxes go to Separate Schools. In that case the school differences in the Public School rate would be slight.

Comparing Quebec and Ontario school systems, Mr. Hoskin said there was no parallel between the school laws in the two provinces. "Since Confederation," he said, "the school law has been amended time and time again and always in favor of Separate Schools. Since Confederation not one cent has been granted to Protestant schools of Quebec."

Incorporated by corporations existed in 1863 when the Separate School legislation was passed, Mr. Hoskin declared, but with the growth of a diversified business combination a considerable portion of the nation's wealth passed into company control. Taxes from this property went entirely at one time and still continued to go in a large part to the support of "Public Schools."

"Only Mild Measure", Roebuck

A few years ago the Legislature amended the law by permitting corporations to require the whole or any portion of their assessment to be rated for Separate School purposes. It proved impossible to frame new corporations gave notice.

Mr. Roebuck said the law imposed no action because boys and girls in Separate Schools were entitled to the equal chance which a few dollars would give them. The present bill was "a middle course", he said, and necessary "for our national well-being."

The Attorney-General challenged Mr. Henry to declare whether his party, if returned to power, would continue or repeal this Act. The challenge came during a stormy period in mid-evening. After Mr. Henry had demanded Mr. Roebuck withdraw a declaration the former Premier had misquoted.

"You look after yourself and I'll look after myself," was Mr. Henry's reply to the challenge.

"I invite the people to choose between the forthright action of this government in solving the question and the pussyfooting method of concealment across the way," Mr. Roebuck said.

No Departure From Original

There was no departure in the present legislation from the original School Law of 1863, said Mr. Roebuck.

Separate schools in Upper Canada arose out of the popular demand for religious instruction in the schools and the inability of the Protestants and Roman Catholic populations to agree upon any common formula, said the Attorney-General as he reviewed the developments from early in the last century.

"A bill in 1841 provided that Separate schools were to receive from the district treasurer their due proportion "according to their number, of moneys appropriated by law and raised by assessment for the support of common schools."

Several other laws followed and in 1863 the John Sandfield Macdonald Government passed an Act which was hoped to be the final settlement of the whole question. It became incorporated in the British North America Act.

There were three sections, said Mr. Roebuck, dealing with interest to anyone, who would understand the Constitutional School Law of the Province.

Law Outlined

One gave trustees power to collect school taxes from those sending children to Separate schools. A second said every declared Separate school supporter was exempt from payment of rates for support of common schools. A third provision entitled Separate schools to share in legislative school and other grants.

Dr. Simpson, Minister of Education told the Legislature he should be made in developing religious instruction in Ontario Public schools.

"There is nothing to prevent religious instruction being given in the Public schools and, in my estimation, it is high time that some start was made toward that end," he said.

Mr. Kidd (Con. Kingston) declared that the present grant Separate Schools a greater share of corporation taxes should not have been introduced until publication of the report of the special committee, which last year investigated the province's educational system.

"We have Separate schools in this province that were not necessary," he said. "Usually we find that when a town goes down, and separate orders a Separate school built."

"If the Separate and Public schools of Windsor were combined Ontario would be saved a great deal of money, he said.

BANKROLL SAVED BY WIFE'S ACTION

Two Windsor Youths Arrested For Attempted Robbery

Chatham, Ont., April 7.—(CP)—Norman and Henry Benoit, brothers of Windsor, were in jail here today awaiting trial on a charge of attempted robbery with violence after an incident at Tilbury, near here, in which Mrs. Ira Burgess was credited with saving her husband's bankroll of $230.

Burgess, proprietor of a Tilbury meat market, was driving home early Sunday with Saturday's takings in his pocket. As he rounded a two young men in it drew alongside his car and one of them yelled "stick 'em up".

Burgess jig-jagged his car along the highway to prevent the other car from getting ahead of him. Finally the other car, he charged crashed against the rear of his. One young man jumped from the front seat beside him and began pummeling him about the head with gloved hands demanding his money. A heavy fur collar on Burgess's coat, he said, saved him from serious injury. Burgess kept driving until he got home. He blew his auto horn.

"Call Kelly!" Burgess yelled to his wife, when she appeared on the porch. He was referring to provincial Constable Frank Kelly of Tilbury.

"I have," Mrs. Burgess replied.

It was only a bluff, but it worked. The two young men fled. Burgess telephoned Constable Kelly, who drove out to the vicinity of Burgess' home and arrested two young men alleged to be the pair, who attempted to rob the Tilbury merchant.

COURT MODIFIES SENTENCE GIVEN

Charged With Bigamy, Met one of His Wives in Belleville

Toronto, April 7.— (CP)— Joan Paul De La Rue, described as a professional hockey player and bicycle racer, obtained from the Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday a modification of the sentence imposed upon him by Magistrate Arnold of Chatham, Ont., for bigamy.

The penalty imposed by the Magistrate was imprisonment for two years less one day and an indeterminate sentence of two years less one day. The Appeal Court eliminated the indeterminate sentence.

Gerald Beaudoin, acting for De La Rue, said his client was a native of Three Rivers, Que., and lived with his first wife in Montreal, until 1926, when they separated. They had three children.

De La Rue was in Monterey, Mexico, in December, 1932, and there obtained a divorce from the Mexican Courts. He returned to Canada and May 7, 1933, went through a form of marriage in Chatham with a young woman, whom he had met in Belleville, Ont., in July, 1932. Beaudoin said his client had told him he understood the Mexican divorce was obtained in ex parte proceedings.

De La Rue, Beaudoin said, did not learn of the invalidity of the Mexican divorce in Canada, until after his second marriage and he continued to live with the second wife. Counsel did not think his client had told his wife.

Russian Air Strength Stirs Fears in Hitler, White Paper Indicates

"Berlin Might Easily be Reduced to Heap of Ashes"

SOVIET-FRENCH PACT

German Anxiety Said German Ambassador Lies in East

London, Apr. 8 (AP)—The British government published a white paper today declaring Reichsfuehrer Hitler's fear Berlin "might easily be reduced to a heap of ashes" from a bombing air attack.

The white paper, outlining Anglo-German-French diplomatic discussions for ensuring European peace from June 1934, to March, 1936, showed Der Fuehrer expressed that view to Sir Nevile Philpps in Berlin Dec. 24, when the British ambassador visited him to start conversations for an air pact.

Previously Sir Malcolm Sarhaw had stated a pact for air force limitations must be held in relation to the cases of the Italo-Ethiopian incentables.

Russian Lead and Air Power.

Sir Eric reporting to Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, said Hitler referred to "Russia's enormous military strength, especially in the air."

Der Fuehrer said, "Berlin might easily be reduced to a heap of ashes by a Russian air attack from Lake Ladoga or any other body would even have begun to discuss the question of how to deal with it."

Conversations Since 1934.

The 26-page white paper contained the conversations between British officials in twenty parts from June 27, 1934, until January 29, when Hitler received Ambassador in London, went to the Foreign Office late in March and saw Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, that Der Fuehrer's troops had entered the demilitarized Rhineland.

Eden recorded Jan. 27 the fact Konstantin von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, was in London for the funeral of the late King George, told him:

German Fears In East.

"Germany's anxieties however, were not with the west," von Neurath told Eden.

The German Ambassador stated, "certainly if the Franco-Soviet pact is ratified, that would change the existing pact between the Soviets and Czechoslovakia and therefore Germany is most vulnerable to the point where the Soviet forces are from the air, would render the negotiations for an air pact and air limitation agreement more difficult."

The correspondence showed that Germany being thus apprised, proceeded steadily held the view the opening of air conversations was impossible on account of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Eden also recorded an interview with Ambassador von Hoesch Mar. 3, and stated, "the main question for me whether I saw any prospect for making any progress in improving the relations between the western European powers.

"He complained it was Louis Barthou, the French Foreign Minister of France) who had started all the trouble by bringing Russia into the picture."

The newspaper asked whether the League would defend barbarism, leprosy and slavery.

Located After Trial And Affidavit Secured For Court

Toronto, April 8.—(CP)— Affidavits to support the assertion counsel for Harry O'Donnell said his father spent considerable time to learn the whereabouts of Mrs. Rita McDonnell, his wife, after he had been charged with the murder husband of Ruth Taylor and before his were read today in the Ontario Court of Appeal.

The sworn statements were those of Frank Regan, O'Donnell's counsel, Thomas H. Graham, former president in Regan's office, and John O'Donnell, father of the accused.

Each of these deponents affirmed he had been unable to obtain information from members of Mrs. O'Donnell's family and from other persons as to the place of residence Mrs. O'Donnell had gone after her separation from her husband, before her baby was born.

After presentation of the affidavits and conclusion of the address of W. W. McEwen, O'Donnell's counsel with Regan, the court adjourned until Tuesday.

W. W. McEwen is arguing O'Donnell's appeal from his conviction which was argued before Chief Justice Mulock.

He is sentenced to hang May 5. The body of the 20-year-old stenographer was found in a ditch, it's Hawtrey. She had been criminally assaulted and killed by a blow on the head.

Refused Interview

Regan deposed he went twice to Riverdale Private Hospital to see Mrs. Bessie Bach, superintendent, and was refused an interview with Mrs. O'Donnell.

Regan continued he telephoned to the home of Mrs. Mary Waller Lyle, parents of Mrs. O'Donnell, and was told by a woman that Mrs. O'Donnell's mother, she would have nothing to say.

On December 6, he continued, he had addressed a letter to Mrs. O'Donnell, stating he was acting for O'Donnell and asking for any advice he could give concerning and knows nothing of the affair. He had received no reply, but he had endeavored to get in a position to give him great assistance in the trial of her husband's valuable evidence on his behalf." He had received no reply.

Regan deposed he had also addressed his client, O'Donnell, to write a letter to Mrs. Waller and to forward her whereabouts and telling her she could help him.

This letter was registered and was returned by the Post Office on February 7, Regan said.

Later, Counsel deposed, he had been told he had advised his client not with the parents to let him know Mrs. O'Donnell's whereabouts. "On my return the following evening," he said, "I received a message for admission to the house by Mrs. Lyle and told in effect she would give me no information."

Finally, Regan said, he had located Mrs. O'Donnell and two children at Gananoque.

Regan's client and she had agreed to make the affidavits at their yesterday before the Appeal Court.

OPEN VERDICT IN STANLEY'S DEATH

Jury Did Not Determine How Military Rifle Was Discharged

"That he came to his death at the Belleville Armouries as the result of a wound received from a military service rifle in his abdomen discharged by a person, which cannot be determined on the evidence", was the verdict submitted by the coroner's jury looking into the death of the late Harry Stanley, who was found dead in the Belleville Armouries on Saturday.

The adjourned inquest opened at the police court room before Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent, with B. C. Donnan, K.C., local Crown Attorney, conducting the investigation.

Dr. C. O. Morgan was one of the first witnesses called. He told of examining the body. He position and the result of the gunshot wound, which he was satisfied was the cause of death. Cpl. A. A. Geen, of the 15th Argyll Light Infantry, Belleville; Sergeant Cox, Lancaster and Percy Howell, all associates of Mr. Stanley, gave evidence as to the manner they had never heard the late Mr. Stanley mention suicide regarding his life or threaten drastic actions against his own life. They assured the hearing, however, that he had shown recent signs of worry regarding his financial affairs.

At the conclusion of the evidence available Crown Attorney Donnan intimated, that only an open verdict could be arrived at owing to the lack of evidence surrounding the entire unfortunate matter.

AIR HOSTESS IS HEROINE AS BIG AIRLINER CRASHES

Nellie Granger, Rescues Two And Walks Miles to Give Alarm

ELEVEN KILLED

Liner Ploughs Through Fog into Rock-Strewn Woods

(By Ben Graham)

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Unionown, Pa., April 3.—(AP)—The story of a tiny heroine and the twisted dials of a shattered instrument board told the tale today of the airliner Sun Racer's End-11 dead and three hurt.

As dawn a group of investigators trudged up the highest mountain in Western Pennsylvania to check over the wreckage of the big TWA transport, which plowed through a fog into a rock-strewn woods yesterday.

Then they turned to listen to the experiences of the three survivors. The group included four Department of Commerce inspectors.

Eleven burned and broken bodies were taken to a morgue for relatives to claim them. The pilot, caught fire after the wreck.

Petite Nellie Granger, hostess on the California-bound Sun Racer, was the heroine of the disaster. Although herself badly injured she stumbled miles through the underbrush to a forest warden's home.

There she telephoned the news and insisted in going back to remain with the two injured until help came. Hours later she led the way of how the unsuspecting passengers hurried to their deaths.

Charles E. Smith, U. Arnold, Pa., decolate mountainside seven miles Cosby, Kelly, R. McCrossin, Pa.; and Robert G. Evans, 18, Warren, Pa., all students at Valley Forge Military Academy; Stanley H. Baxendorfer, vice president of the Department store Baxendorfer, O.; Frank Hardman, Jersey City, delegate to the Democratic National Convention in St. Louis; John O'Neill, Jersey City, also a delegate; G. B. D'Arcy, New York City; G. W. Hoffeman, New York City, Pilot Hugo Mer Clausen, Kansas City, and Co-Pilot H. C. Lewis, Kansas City.

Investigators who reached the desolate mountainside seven miles from Unionown soon after Miss Granger's report said the big transport crashed with terrific force.

The hostess and two survivors were in the rear of the Sun Racer and to that fact they owed their lives. That part of the ship did not catch fire.

She said the impact made her unconscious, and added: "When I came to I could see the sky above me. There was a gaping hole in the top of the fuselage and the wreckage was strewn in all directions.

Assists in Rescue

"I got up and walked—only a few paces, I think. Then I heard a child cry. He was outside the plane. I grabbed a blanket automatically and went over and spread it over him.

"I heard a woman cough, she was Mrs. Kenneth Cosby. I pulled her away from the plane at just about the time it started to blaze."

The flames burning then began her hunt through the forests for a telephone. She went to two cabins without success.

Finally she reached the home of Mrs. R. E. Adair and telephoned to C. A. Williams of the TWA in Pittsburgh—four hours after the Sun Racer was due there.

Rescuers hurried to the spot of the air disaster from all around the countryside. They ripped off unbroomed doors of the Sun Racer's wings to make stretchers for the dead.

Then it became necessary to cut a path, through the thicket to a nearby road, mountain roads, truck and two wagons, hub deep in the mud, struggled and slipped through underbrush to get the bodies to the main road and then to the morgue.

Tenders for Steel Footbridge Also Sought by City Council

Three of Four Tenders So Far Received Are For Word Construction

Possibility that a modern, light frame construction steel bridge will replace the old wooden, one which was destroyed this year by the flood, and which for decades had served residents of the west side of the river was voiced by members of city council at a special meeting held yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering and examining tenders submitted for wooden bridge replacement, called for by council some time ago.

Three wooden bridge and one steel bridge tenders had been submitted council by local contractors.

Adjournment of the special meeting was made following the passing of the recommendation that the time for calling of further tenders on the bridge be extended to five o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of submitting tenders on steel design. City Engineer Charles Mott was instructed to design the new bridge and furnish specifications.

Tenders called for tenders for the wooden bridge, but there was one bid presented on steel construction. Council thought it would be better to give the steel bridge more serious consideration. Personally I favour the latter design," commented Mayor Hill following the meeting.

STOCK BROKER GIVES SELF UP

Two Charges of Conversion Laid and Bail is Granted

Hamilton, Ont., Apr. 3 (CP)—Lawrence H. Mitchell, 39-year-old stock broker and head of L. H. Mitchell and Co., Hamilton, heard his counsel, Lord W. Gay, ask for a week's adjournment for his trial on two charges of converting clients' money to his own use, Investing Bill, Mitchell walked into the police station Monday afternoon and voluntarily submitted to arrest by Detective Digby Sharpe, having been absent from the city since April 1. A warrant for his arrest on a charge of conversion of $800, the property of Mrs. Jean Oliver, Hamilton, and after his arrest, a second charge of converting $234 belonging to Mrs. Elizabeth Ruggle, was laid.

Declaration of bail before Magistrate Burbidge revealed the allegation Mitchell's affairs are in a matter serious condition.

Stressing the fact his client had voluntarily appeared for arrest, Mr. Gay requested bail be set.

"A matter of $1,500 is involved," observed the magistrate.

"That is not all that is involved," Assistant Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch told the court, "I understand the Securities Department in Toronto is also investigated, and that $30,000 is involved."

OUT OF DANGER AFTER 130-FT FALL

Possibility of Pneumonia From Chest Injury Is Remote

Toronto, April 3.—(CP)— Ralph Wills, 53, who fell 130 feet from Moor Street viaduct Monday, was pronounced definitely out of danger, except for the possibility of pneumonia.

Doctors astounded at his rapid improvement, gave his injuries as a fractured leg and chest bone. They said he seemed to be cheerful.

Police can recall no other case where anyone fell from the Moor viaduct and lived.

Leap Year Helps Out With Holiday

School children of the city have reason to be glad this is Leap Year it was pointed out by a local educator today, for the year that comes "once in four" will give them a 24th of May holiday that they would have otherwise lost.

Last year the 24th was on Friday. If this had not been Leap Year the Queen's birthday would have fallen on a Saturday. As it is, however, the extra day in February pushed it on to Monday, and, under the school regulations, when a holiday falls on Sunday it is observed on Monday.

Unidentified Thug Assaults Theatreman

Toronto, April 3.—(CP)—Burton Burtchall, 43, theatre operator was assaulted by an unidentified thug and robbed of four dollars as he was opening the door of his Roseneath Avenue home at midnight.

Burtchall, held up at revolver point, swung at the robber but the latter slugged him over the head with a billy. When Burtchall recovered his assailant was bearing him for having only four dollars in his pocket.

The victim has a badly lacerated scalp.

Blame Hollywood For Fewer Births

Oslo, Norway, —(CP)— Norway's capital has an "alarming deficit" of 10,000 children, according to the city registrar, and he places the blame squarely on the film companies of Hollywood.

"In lowering the birth-rate", he said, "people do not really save money. They merely use their wages on unpatriotic things instead of supporting national work.

"The population of Oslo spends $1,000,000 a year for moving pictures, which means that the film companies of Hollywood get that which Norwegian farmers and food producers have a moral claim to."

As a result of the lowering birth-rate, Oslo today has 30,000 children under 15, whereas the normal number should be 108,000.

CORONATION DAY TO BE PROCLAIMED

Same Ceremony as When King Edward Proclaimed King

London, Apr. 3 (CP)—The date in May, 1937, upon which the coronation of King Edward will take place will be proclaimed next month with the same ceremony as was observed at the proclamation of His Majesty upon his accession to the throne last year.

Heralds and pursuivants will attend the garters of Lion, the College of Arms who will make the announcement. Heralds will wear three four points in London from which accession proclamation was delivered—Friary Court, St. James's Palace, Charing Cross, Temple Bar and the Royal Exchange.

The actual date will probably be announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Baldwin on the same day as the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal, issues the proclamation.

CHOOSE PRISON TO REFORMATORY

Pair Plead Guilty to Numerous Charges of Theft

Hamilton, Apr. 3 (CP) — Given their choice of a two year term each in Kingston penitentiary, or a two year definite, plus an indefinite sentence in Mimico Reformatory, Stanley Nicholson and George Oram today chose the latter in preference to the reformatory. Nicholson and Oram were arrested last night and today pleaded guilty to shop breaking and the theft of spark plugs from the Gunnies Motors in this city on March 28, and to the theft last night of some shirts from Sellers Ltd., in St. Catharines; ten sets of underwear from the Canadian Underwear Store in Niagara Falls, Ont., and three pairs of shoes from the Shoe Store in Welland.

These goods were found by the constables in the car last night and they were placed under arrest by Detective Sergt. Wilburn.

Oram again Magistrate Burbidge observed the need for special justification for incarcerating offenders was indicated, especially in cases where drugs played a part, and he sentenced them to two years each in Kingston on the shopbreaking and theft charges, and six months on the theft of merchandise charges, all sentences to run concurrently.

Police can recall no other case where anyone fell from the Moor viaduct and lived.

NURSES PLAYED HEROIC PART

Succeeded in Rescuing All Patients From Burning Building

Toronto, Apr. 3 (CP)—Nurses played a heroic part in rescuing all the patients from the Sanatorium of Zoraland Hospital destroyed by fire at Aklavik, N.W.T. Monday, Rt. Rev. A. L. Fleming, Bishop of the Arctic, was informed in a letter received here today, the damage was estimated at over $25,000, Bishop Fleming is in Toronto at present.

Miss M. A. Solomon of Toronto was in charge of the hospital. Miss Ruth Hamilton of Peterboro and Miss Hutchison of Hamilton were the other graduate nurses at the hospital.

The original eight-bed hospital was given by Col. and Mrs. Leonard of St. Catharines, the Bishop said.

The Aklavik hospital of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada was destroyed early Monday. Patients were removed safely to tent cabins of the settlement. Despite efforts to extinguish the flames the blaze spread quickly through the frame structure, destroying all equipment.

HONORING CANADIAN AVIATORS

That Canada should not be backward in doing honor to Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, who is at his home in Belleville after making part in the Ellsworth flight to Antarctica, which will remain one of the world's historic flights in the view of the Winnipeg Tribune, which claims that the opportunity should not be missed. He has brought honor to Canada and it would be a pity were the occasion passed over to honor this man and to bring before the world Canada's deep interest in the science of aviation."

The Tribune says:—

"Other nations have already honored other participants in this exploratory flight, and surely Canada alone does not mean individually to be singled out as being nationally indifferent to the exploits of her sons. The United States Congress has meritoriously been swift to recognize Mr. Lincoln Ellsworth's devotion to scientific exploration and his major share in bringing about the Antarctic expedition, and it has awarded him the Distinguished Flying Cross. This is the second time Congress has paid its tribute to the Polar services of Mr. Ellsworth.

"Captain Hill commanded and navigated the Discovery. It was she who brought Messrs Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon from their restination on the Bay of Wales. Their services were immediately appreciated by the British officially by making him a Commander in the Order of the British Empire.

"Only the two pilots upon whom the accomplishment of the expedition depend are left unrecognized, and their deeds unsung. They were not even admitted to be Canadians in the early references to the completion of the splendid feat, but England and Australia and elsewhere were alluded to repeatedly as Americans.

"The rest of the world cannot be blamed for not being aware of what Canadians themselves appear so little to realize. The Canadian nationality of Messrs. Hollick-Kenyon and their co-pilot and engineer, Mr. H. I. Lymburner, can best be demonstrated by Canadians themselves. Mr. Hollick-Kenyon enjoys the privilege of having actually flown the flight, but upon Mr. Lymburner's ability, amounting to genius, depended the airworthiness of the plane in which the flight became possible.

"Where and how they have done their flying in Canada. Their experience has been gained in the Canadian commercial flying, in which they are ordinarily employed. They deserve well of Canada, for they have brought great honor to her. They deserve to be nationally honored. They should be municipally complimented. Mr. Mr. Hollick-Kenyon was entrusted with the crest of Winnipeg, to bear it across the Antarctic and restore it to the City Hall. That it is to rest, a singular and coveted memento.

"Precedents for such honor as the Dominion may wish to show these fliers can be found in Austrial and in other Dominions whose fliers have won recognition for their services in advancing the practicalities and the scope of air-transport.

"There need be no difficulty in finding means to honor these Canadian pilots. There are precedents and there are means. Honoring them will be honoring Canadian commercial flying. Honoring them will at least pay tribute to the splendid work of fliers who have made Canadian commercial air-transport the unique and remarkable accomplishment it is recognized as being everywhere, it might seem, but not in Canada. Generous public acclaim of these Canadians before the Antarctic flight only needs national and communal expression. Opportunities for this should be provided. None would be better pleased than the sportsman and explorer, Mr. Ellsworth, who, with the backing of the Australian, Sir Hubert Wilkins, projected the expedition."

THE QUEEN MARY'S LIFEBOATS

"Safety is a prime consideration on British passenger ships, so it is in the nature of things that the protective devices on the Queen Mary should be the last word in efficiency," says the Montreal Gazette. "The entire vessel is fitted with a complete and up-to-date fire-detecting and alarm system and there is an abundance of lifesaving appliances in case of wreck under any circumstances. "There are twenty-four smokinable motor lifeboats of unique equipment and design. These vessels are seagoing craft in their own right. Nothing like them has ever been provided before, and they are the result of experiments conducted over a period of four years. They are 36 feet 6 inches by 12 feet by five feet, approved for 146 persons each, with a small Diesel engine. The outfit of these boats is in accordance with Board of Trade requirements: Two pounds of biscuits per passenger, a quart of water per passenger, a pound tin of condensed milk for each, a tin of red distress flares, an oil lamp to burn eight hours and a tin of oil for the lamp, a box of matches in soldered tin, a gallon tin of fish oil and a canvas bag and line for distributing oil on rough waters, a canvas sea anchor, drag line and tripping line, two axes, a compass with lamp, a set of oars and two spares, one and a half sets of rowlocks, a bucket, a bailer, a mooring rope and two bilge pumps. The provisions are protected in a waterproof device so that they will be capable of functioning even if the boat gets water-filled."

RESURRECTION

After the trackless, saddy places,
After the doom of a starless night,
I have suddenly sighted a cool oasis,
I have caught a glimpse of the day's first light.

Out of the winter's desolation,
A promise of spring has found my heart;
Reaching with delicate emanation
To hands that tremble and eyes that smart.

Here is a wonder for explanation.
What manner of miracle is this?
Witness a dead heart's re-creation,
Brought to life by a single kiss.

—Joseph Upper, in "The Lyric"

THE SADDEST, MADDEST MAN IN ALL NEW YORK is Babe Ruth, former Emperor of Swat, the Home Run Ex King, according to a sport writer who states that The Bambino does not know what to do with himself, hence he is the saddest, maddest man in all Manhattan. Babe Ruth's specialty for years was knocking out home runs for the Yankee baseball team—that he could do and do well, better for years than any other player and became a big box-office attraction for his specialty, many people going just to see the Babe swat 'em out of the lot. His salary rose to a peak of seventy thousand dollars, and then he began to go back, and finally backed out of the game. The applause of the crowd, so dear to his ears, is no longer for him—others have arisen and his baseball star has set, and The Babe does not know what to do with himself, for he knew one thing and one thing only, how to swat home runs. He never had time to absorb an active interest in anything else, hence it can be said of him now that he is the saddest, maddest man in Manhattan.

IN AND ABOUT BELLEVILLE THERE ARE A NUMBER OF BLIND FOLKS, and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind extends to them a very helpful service, expending over seven hundred dollars annually in their behalf. Belleville is asked for a contribution of considerably less than that sum which should be easy to get, and the citizens who have undertaken to help raise this sum for the benefit of the blind will without doubt meet with a hearty and generous response.

NEW YORK SKYSCRAPERS HAVE EARNED AN UNCANNY REPUTATION from the number of people who have jumped to death from their lofty windows. One of the latest to leave the world by this route was a wealthy young man from the British Isles who had been hitting the hot spots between New York, Palm Beach and Hollywood. He jumped from the fifteenth story, landed on top of an automobile, caromed off to the street and was picked up a mangled corpse. A letter of credit for $10,000 was found in his room. His travelling companion said that the young man "had been drinking heavily."

Vera is a college graduate, and became interested with a married man. When he failed to divorce his wife in Germany as promised she sent four bullets into his body and ended his life. The jury found that her "self defense" although the bullets were poured into the man's body as he lay in bed. What queer quirks jury trials often take in the land of Uncle Sam.

Knife Lost 13 Years Found at Auction

Lost by him over thirteen years ago, a small pocket knife has been returned to Mr. Oswald Green, member of the local fire department, recovered once by the point in this city it had originally been accidentally dropped.

The knife was recovered by an unknown donor who returned it after buying it among the effects of personal property at a recent rural auction sale.

EASTER NOVELTIES ATTRACT CROWDS

More Buying at This Season Than Usual, Merchants Says

Chocolate bunnies and fluffy, little yellow baby chicks, handpainted, double hens and tinsel decorated egg cups, Easter grass, small pots of corn ready to sprout in white icing at nominal cost. The city stores are already prepared for one of the biggest and most prosperous Easter seasons on record.

With windows already heaped high with seasonal offerings of candy and chocolate moulded in delightful variety and shapes, merchants report even at this early date that the sale of novelties have been even above expectations. Especially they're selling the "Easter fake" it was added by one large department store manager when the counters and windows have been dressed with particularly appealing displays. This manufactured article and salesmen have exceeded themselves in original offerings. For the first time child movie stars have formed the pattern for many of the chocolate moulds. Even the much passed Mooney Quintuplets, each in their little chocolate bed and pajamas trimmed in tinsel, have been purchased readily by customers. But the old time typically Easter novelties are also prominent in the dealers' displays.

"There seems to be a better spirit this year than there has been for some time" another department store manager who has found business picking up. Many vacant offices and quarters seem available for them to spend. If things keep up like they have been, we should have no reason to find fault."

Typically a Christian festival of the rebirth of the world, the season is marked by many symbolic customs in nearly all its countries. To the Norseman it was the festival of the divinity of spring, called Ostara or Eos. From this festival great importance of the egg, rabbit or the rabbit as prolific reproducers of the species. The coloring of the eggs was borrowed from the brilliant tones of the Aurora Borealis and the dawning hues of the Easter morning Sun.

Apprenticeship Says Woodsworth Is Out-of-Date

Ottawa, April 8.—(CP)—Instalments of the annual report of the Federal Government's Legislative program for consideration before the Easter recess will be made today.

The national employment commission bill passed the committee stage in the House of Commons last night and the $25,000,000 relief received second reading.

The former comes before the House for the third time today with the prospect of a speedy passage while the bill is to be debated in committee. The relief bill provides for grants to provinces and sets up the general machinery of administration being similar in part to the acts passed in other sessions except that the powers conferred on the cabinet are more restricted.

A protest against delay, long discussion and needless investigation of matters connected with unemployment was voiced by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader. He claimed there had been plenty of investigation and that more relief was now needed.

Mr. Woodsworth's protest followed a series of suggestions from members as to the activities of the commission and was based on a clause in the bill instructing that body to investigate apprenticeship.

"We are asking the commission to travel up every blind alley we can think of," said Mr. Woodsworth. He said apprenticeship was an out-of-date as many other methods of former days.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID

The April meeting of the Front Road Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. E. Grass. Despite inclement weather conditions there were nineteen ladies present.

Quilting was done for Mrs. Grass in the early afternoon after which the president, Mrs. T. J. Brown called the meeting to order and it was followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. Psalm 121 was read by Mrs. A. Clarke. Minutes of last meeting and business letters were read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Bell who was afterward authorized to purchase six dozen forks for the Aid.

Quite a little time was given to discussion regarding purchasing new seats for the church and Messrs. T. J. Brown, R. Bedford, R. Thompson and A. Clarke were nominated a committee to enquire into particulars regarding same and return report by the next meeting.

A splendid article was read by Mrs Helen Brown giving many good hints on how funds might be raised by church organizations, some of which are to be acted on in the near future as the Aid is bending its efforts towards remodeling the church shed into a building suitable for carrying on the church's activities.

It was decided the secretary send an invitation to the Women's Association of the Kingston Road methodist church to visit the Aid.

Following the suggestion of one of the members it was decided to send "sunshine baskets" at Easter to a few ladies of the community who had been shut in for the greater part of the winter.

After singing grace the hostess served a very tempting lunch assisted by Mrs. C. Wilkinson, Mrs. S. Calder and Mrs. T. J. Brown.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The Stirling branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., and the veterans of the district observed the Anniversary of the Canadian advance and capture of the Vimy Ridge in the Great War. Assembling in parade formation on Front Street in front of the Legion quarters the procession headed by Command Pipe Major Hamblin and led by Stirling Citizens' Band proceeded to the Public Library where a section of the seats were reserved for them. The memorial service which was conducted by the choir under the leadership of Mr. C. D. Rose. Mrs. Betty Dunlop sang a solo in a very pleasing way. The service was followed by an inspiring message in keeping with the occasion delivered by the 14th verse of the 26th chapter of Joshua. Mr. Howard Hall, Legion Padre, gave an Over for the manner in which the service was conducted with every man from the Commander in Chief to the private in the ranks having perfect knowledge of his duty and performed it with accuracy and precision. The singing of the hymn "O God our help in ages past" was followed by prayer, first to God and then to Humanity, that all might be united in the cause of Brotherly Out-Father which is in Heaven.

At the close of this impressive service the Legion marched to the cenotaph in front of the Town Hall and the band was silenced by the direction of Mr. Hall and a two minutes silence was observed in memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice. The Last Post was sounded by Bugler James Ward of the Band and Reveille by Bugler Ward and the parade continued to Bridge Street Methodist where they were officially dismissed.

Tweed Park Managed by Fleet Foxes—The decision of the recent meeting in Stirling will not all be received with favor by all of the citizens of the main business section in charge of the Tweed Park Committee of the Bridge Street Methodist Church, who superintend the park of Memorial Park. The cement wall erected many years ago to preserve the banks of the river is not the only attractive beauty spot the wayfarer has enjoyed in the Rawdon Creek at all seasons of the year. But the raging torrents of the March flood of the year six inches deep round the Pond began to leave the ground, a large section of the West end of the wall was washed away and two sections of the concrete rail with it part of the cinder walk and the bank was washed into the creek.

Stirling has always been proud of this very attractive park and it will require a great deal of work to get back into the condition it was before it has been in every summer for a number of years, with a committee working continually putting the park in beautiful order.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL "BULK"

Needed to Correct Constipation*

Most people recognize the seriousness of constipation. But too often they leave themselves with strong cathartics that often actually lead to chronic constipation.

The safe, sensible way to overcome constipation is to correct the condition which causes it—usually, deficient "bulk" in the diet.

How can you get "bulk"? Fruits and vegetables have some. Bran has more. But the most popular of all this kind is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gently active. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

This delicious cereal is a wholesome food. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk." If not relieved, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN gives you gentle internal exercise. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Premier King Makes an Announcement in The House

Ottawa, April 7.—(CP)—Economic, monetary and social problems converged in a general discussion of the proposed National Employment Commission in the House of Commons yesterday as the Bill to create the Commission advanced slowly through committee stages.

Old political controversies and new ideas were threshed over and the House on the whole was in an amiable mood; Conservative Leader Bennett exchanged jokes and pleasantries with Prime Minister Mackenzie King as they discussed whether or not the present government was getting out to take away the powers it had given itself, govern by Order-in-Council after the fashion of Parliament 1926-30.

From the discussion emerged a few salient announcements and declarations which may be of significance.

Mr. King announced the Government's expenditure for unemployment relief in the present year would run to $75,000,000. The program would not be submitted until next session.

Country Needs Confidence

Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, said the country needed confidence and freedom so that those who could launch development would not hesitate to do so. He deplored statements in the Lorraine Hotel, where certain millionaires took a well known throughout the district for her ability at the keyboard and her numbers are always greatly appreciated. The solo entitled "Mary" was sung by Miss Marion Carlisle. The entire program was in charge of Miss Christina Devenow. Supt. — Invited. Mr. Miss Gladys Fryer who superintends "Parents Lover" contest and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Says She Was Wearing Wool Jacket When He Visited Her

Toronto, April 7—(CP)— Motion to amend the grounds of Harry O'Donnell's appeal against conviction of the murder of Ruth Taylor last Nov. 4 in an East Toronto ravine was made today by T. W. W. McKeown, acting for O'Donnell, as he opened discussion preliminary to the main argument but covering leading features of the trial evidence.

In support of his motion, Mr. McKeown read a lengthy affidavit in which Mrs. Ida O'Donnell, wife of Harry O'Donnell, declared Frank Regan, her husband's counsel, had been unable to locate her at the time of her husband's trial; that she was unable to give evidence at the trial but was prepared at O'Donnell were granted a new trial to give evidence on his behalf.

Mrs. O'Donnell's affidavit alleged that, when her husband visited her in hospital on several occasions just prior to the time of the murder, she was wearing a blue knitted suit instead of which was soft and fluffy and hairs of which were found on Taylor.

She said her husband embraced her on each of his visits to the hospital and handled clothing including a blue and white rabbit wool jacket, which she had taken to hospital for her especial baby.

HOFFMAN STUDIES CASE BY HIMSELF

N. J. Assembly Turns Down Plan to Probe Officials

Trenton, N.J., Apr. 7 (AP)—Officials pushed two investigations of phases of the Lindbergh kidnapping case today but attempts to win legislative authority for two related probes were listed as closed chapters.

Whether the grand jury will take notice of information John P. Hollis, former police chief of North Abington, Mass., claims to have about the kidnapping, remains to be seen.

Hollis, now a jailer at the Plymouth, Mass., House of Correction, said he had wired the foreman of the grand jury that he saw Wendel and Hauptmann with the kidnapped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., here in North Abington on April 10, 1932.

Soldier, Pastor, Convict Bares His Life History

Herbert E. Wilson of London Testifies on Own Behalf

CONSPIRACY CHARGED

Toronto, April 7.—(CP)—Soldier, pastor, convict, Herbert E. Wilson, of London, Ont., began his testimony before Judge James Parker in general sessions Tuesday in his own defence against a charge of conspiracy to defraud A. E. Ames and Company of $92,240 in the sale of alleged spurious bonds.

Charged jointly with Wilson is Donald T. Holliday of Toronto, who previously testified.

Wilson, as the seventh day of the trial commenced, testified he was born in Wyndham, a small town near London, Ont. In 1897 he went to South Africa and joined the City Volunteers during the Boer War. On returning to Canada he said he became head of a furniture company in London.

Organized Near London

Later, he said, he was converted near London and became a pastor in the Baptist ministry. He also became an evangelist, and preached in various places in Canada and the United States.

He said he volunteered for service with the U.S. Army when the Great War broke out but was turned aside from his purpose by his brother, Louis, who persuaded him to become a criminal instead.

In 1932, he said, he was incarcerated in San Quentin Penitentiary, Prize to that, he had served an 18-month term in Los Angeles jail.

Wilson was asked concerning a newspaper story containing the statement he had stolen $8,000,000 worth of bonds in his time without "firing a shot".

Approximately true, but a little exaggerated," said accused.

His Story Denied

References were made to "Caught"—an autobiography written by Wilson, while an inmate of San Quentin, and to certain other manuscripts.

Wilson said he wrote "Caught" to show how futile a life of crime was.

He was sent to San Quentin, he said, for being involved in a mail robbery. Half a million dollars worth of the loot was returned to Uncle Sam.

He said he was sentenced to San Quentin for murder in connection with a jail break, when one of the inmates of the Los Angeles jail was shot to death. The whole escape was a frame-up, he claimed, on the part of his officers.

Wilson said he was paroled after a study of his case, in which, he claimed, it was found he was not guilty. He was deported to Canada as an undesirable, he added.

Denies Crime Costly

Wilson said while in prison he had decided crime did not pay and had never done so since.

Wilson said he had met Holiday in prison and had arranged for Holliday to further Wilsons literary interests in Canada.

Accused said he returned to Canada last June 15. He claimed Holliday invited him to Toronto some time that month. He registered at the Dewdney hotel.

In London he had previously met a friend, Fred Reidlinger, an ex-convict of San Quentin. He and Reidlinger, he stated, had agreed on a South Sea Island jaunt for literary purposes. He said he and Reidlinger was coming to Toronto, he (Wilson) gave Reidlinger a letter introducing him to Holliday. The two met, he added.

"Reidlinger also met Paterson," he said, referring to D. S. Paterson, a witness in the case.

Mr. Holliday had told him in a letter, he added.

He and Reidlinger journeyed to Vancouver later, he said, where they were to purchase a boat for their trip. There they were joined by a woman interested in their venture, from whom, he added, he received about $300. After two months in British Columbia, he returned to London.

Criticism was called when J. Clyde Rider, a jail turnkey, was called as a defence witness by Wilson's counsel. Rider was called to tell of a purported conversation he had in the jail hospital with Holliday. He claimed that Holliday, while in hysteria, made a statement.

A Strange Situation

"A most amazing situation," said His Honor, as Rider told of being called to Holliday, and sitting on Holliday's bed while the latter, sobbing and crying, made the statement. "Here is a guard of the jail, sits on an inmate's bed for twenty minutes and practically invites Holliday to give a statement. I never heard of such a thing. Under such conditions as these no inmate is safe and absurd of a fair trial."

His Honor ruled Rider's evidence inadmissible; said that of a prisoner in the hospital at the time of the statement.

As Holliday placed the onus of a transaction involving $66,348 worth of counterfeit bonds, on his former associate Herbert E. Wilson at last week's hearing, of charges of conspiracy and false pretences against them, so Wilson laid the complete blame on Holliday yesterday.

BROTHERS HELD ON SERIOUS COUNT

Windsor Men Are Accused of Attempted Robbery With Violence

Chatham, Ont., April 3.—(CP)—Henry and Norman Benoit brothers of Windsor, arrested early Sunday by Provincial Constable Frank Kelly on suspicion of the attempted holdup of Dr. Burgess Butcher, were arraigned before Magistrate Arnold Tuesday on charges of attempted robbery with violence. They reserved plea, and were remanded to jail until next Tuesday when, it is expected, they will be tried.

The alleged bandits were scheduled to appear at the regular police court at Kingsville, but in view of the fact the accused men desired representation by Major Clark of Windsor, the formal remand was arranged here as a matter of convenience and to avoid the necessity of transporting the pair to and from Tilbury.

Constable Kelly intimated the car in which they were travelling broke down half an hour after the attack on Burgess, on one which had been reported stolen from Windsor.

The Benoit brothers, it is alleged, waylaid Burgess while on his way from his bunker shop in Tilbury to his home on Queen street. Two, Tilbury East.

In spite of the beating he received from one man who climbed into his car and struck a murderous blow on to his running-board, Burgess headed into the driveway of his home, his assailant in hot pursuit and by his wife who minified the assailants by shouting she had called the Provincial Police.

KIWANIS CLUB ENJOYS PARTY

Stone Church, Sidney, Scene of Supper And Maple Sugar Party

Members of the Kiwanis Club enjoyed an old fashioned church supper with their ruralist at the evening at the Stone Church in Sidney Township but due to the cold weather and the members being busy with spring operations the attendance was quite slim but those present had a really good time. Frank Domenico, president of the club, presided at the banquet board and Phil McGee collected the several fines, while Gordon Seay led the community singing with Leo B. Hogg at the piano. All the contributors of the sumptuous supper all wended their way to the church auditorium, where again community singing was held, and an address delivered by H. H. Richardson of the O.A.C. on "Forests and Streams." The address was illustrated with lantern slides and was most instructive and interesting.

Concluding this part of the program, the ladies of the Stone Church who supplied the supper arranged for a Maple Sugar party and the members of the club certainly showed their ability in consuming this spring delicacy. On behalf of the club were ably expressed by the President for the wonderful time and appreciation was given by the speaker for his illuminating address. The party broke up early with all hoping for the next party to be held in the country next year.

3 CARS STOLEN, TWO ABANDONED

Police Search District For Alleged Organized Robber Gang

A breakin and the theft or over one hundred dollars worth of groceries coupled with the theft of three automobiles, two of which have been recovered in Toronto, is still being investigated by Provincial Police today. The first information that led the police to these bewildering serious had happened, when two cars were discovered and found abandoned on Highway No. 2, between Marysville and Desoronto early Monday.

Traffic Officers Irvine of Belleville and Sergeant Bowen of Picton immediately commenced an investigation, the in still in progress. Reports given by the officers this morning and a twisted tale, that includes names of well known citizens have been found abandoned on Highway No. 2, between Marysville and Desoronto and entered Arnold's grocery store at Knott, stealing $100.00 worth of groceries and tobacco. The following westward by motor the robbers apparently stopped Odessa and stole one pair of Ontario licence plates AH-91, from the automobile of Harry Wood, 1934 Sedan a Falcon Knight, automobile, apparently stolen in Toronto was found abandoned in the ditch two miles south of Marysville, while alongside of which was found the car of Mr. Arnold or J. G. Brant, Desoronto.

Continuing their flight the robbers ditched the Knight car in some manner and stole Mr. Brant's car from his Desoronto garage in hopes of pulling the Falcon-Knight out of the ditch, but without success. Then leaving the two vehicles abandoned the robbers walked to Desoronto where they released the power of Allan Marcele and stole a Pontiac sedan, bearing license plates AF-861, in which they made their escape. The robbers are still in possession of Mr. Marcele's Pontiac car and a quantity of tools stolen from the Knight garage, as well as the groceries taken from Knott. The Wednesday Police and Provincial Police throughout the Province are still investigating. Today Constable Irvine revealed the Falcon-Knight was registered under the ownership of Mr. H. Peck, 265 Sherbourne St., Toronto, and had apparently been stolen.

MUMMY 5,700 YEARS OLD

Cairo, April 8—A tomb believed to contain the mummy of a prince of Coptic who was the daughter of Cheops, builder of the second Pyramid about 3,700 B.C., has been discovered near the Pyramids by Prof. Selim Hassan.

The discovery was made between two previously discovered tombs of two sons of Cheops. The tomb lay very deep under another one, which was probably the reason it had not been discovered before.

The mummy was dressed like a bride, with a gold diadem and necklaces of golden beads and golden-beaded anklets and armlets. The fingers of her left hand were encased in gold.

Belief that another ancient Egyptian tomb cut from solid rock to a depth of thirty feet dates back more than 7,500 years, was expressed by its discoverer, W. B. Emery.

MANDATE LACKING

tour trails had been dropped from the order paper.

One was the bill to establish intermediate schools, created a furore considerable contention. Others provided for regulation of summer camps, administration of oaths to employees in mental hospitals and approval of the Health Minister being necessary for appointments of Health officers in municipalities.

Following an appeal for support of the bill by Aurelien Belanger (Lib. Prescott) the legislature was told last night by Leopold Macaulay (Cons., York South) the government had no mandate from the people to bring in the Separate School tax legislation.

Would Repeal Act Says Acres

A. H. Acres (Cons., Carleton) declared if he were chosen leader of the Conservative party at the convention next month and later elected Premier one of his first acts would be to repeal the School Tax Act.

Other speakers were: M. M. MacBride (Ind., Brantford), W. A. Baird (Cons., Toronto High Park) and William Duckworth (Cons., Toronto Dovercourt), whose motion for adjournment at 11.30 p.m. was granted by the Premier. The debate resumes at this afternoon's session.

Principle of the bill was to give all children "reasonable opportunity," said Mr. Belanger, and he appealed to all members, of the House and citizens of the province to cast aside religious prejudices and judge the question on its merits.

Existence of Separate Schools was a question in the province, he went on. If they were abolished costs of Public School education would increase, Mr. Belanger said and he believed former Premier Howard Ferguson, had the full backing of the opposition at present, would have supported the bill.

The Prescott member made no appeal for votes by dividing Roman citizens' taxes although he said 42 per cent were owned by Roman Catholic in the present situation "with bitter propaganda made in certain quarters it would be fatal to attempt to get full justice."

Separate Schools Not Mandated

He agreed, however, with Premier Ferguson's description of the bill as a "fair and just compromise."

The legislation should be suspended until there was a mandate from the people, Mr. Macaulay said. If government members were not subject to iron-clad party discipline they would defeat the measure.

Mr. Macaulay blamed introduction of the issue into Ontario politics on a letter sent out before the 1934 provincial election on declaratory of the Roman Catholic taxpayers' association of Ontario, signed by Martin J. Quinn. He read the letter which urged support of any government of "insulting" Catholic citizens.

"It was a letter got out by a partisan junta in order to further the interests of the Liberal party," said Mr. Macaulay and he did not believe it represented the opinion of all the Roman Catholic people.

"We're dealing with an act that takes the money out of the pockets of the Public School supporters and puts it into the pockets of the Separate School supporters," he declared.

Mr. Macaulay told the legislature if Roman Catholic citizens were given additional rights to those contained at Confederation these could not be repealed.

Simply Act

Solution of the present tax problem, said Mr. Macaulay, involved first of all finding what is the 1863 School Act meant and what the British North America Act of 1867 guaranteed after that "we of succeeding generations shall live up to the Makers of British law."

Mr. Acres made his declaration of policy respecting the bill the following a question by W. E. Hoodless (Lib., Wentworth) and other members questioned two government members from Toronto, Mr. Newton, Victoria and B. J. Anderson, Welland, on the promises they made to oppose the bill. Mr. Newton made no comment and Mr. Anderson said the member was misinformed.

"I am opposed to anything of this nature, which is going to the seeds of discord," said Mr. Acres. He cautioned members against attempts to "hang their heads in shame for legislation, which divide the province" and demanded that a government resign and see if the seekers would return. Premier Hepburn is expecting the school tax.

Premier Hepburn would never be Prime Minister again if he allowed the bill to go through, Mr. Acres said.

"Are we deliberately going to starve the Separate Schools of this province out of existence?" Mr. MacBride asked.

No measure since Confederation aroused such opposition as the proposal of the government to take from public schools moneys which belonged to them, said Mr. Baird. He estimated revenue of public school boards would be depleted by about $2,000,000.

Relative Hunting Knowledge Stirs Assembly Debate

Nixon and Challies Stage Scene on Question of Dogs in Hunting

Toronto, Apr. 8.—Welfare Minister Croll received second reading for his omnibus bill, the Municipal Amendment Act.

Early Evening Council Meetings.

An amendment is designed to enable municipal council to meet earlier in the year. It may meet the second Wednesday in January and remain in session a month unless business before the meeting.

Old Gold Dealers Licence.

Provision is contained in the bill for licensing dealers in old gold at a nominal fee.

According to another section, the failure to give or insufficient notice of claim for injuries received due to non-repair of a road is not a bar to action for recovery of damages. The only exception is more or less upon a sidewalk.

President Secretary Nixon was criticised by George S. Challies (Conn., Grenville-Dundas), former provincial secretary in last year's legislation permitting use of dogs in deer hunting. The criticism came during second reading debate of Mr. Nixon's bill amending the Game and Fisheries Act.

"You didn't satisfy anybody last year," Mr. Challies declared.

"I don't know of any province of Canada where they are running with dogs in hunting deer."

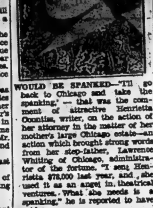
Dogs In Hunting.

The Act the former government passed to abolish dogs in deer hunting had been unpopular, Mr. Nixon said, but the former provincial secretary insisted that he had not given sufficient trial.

In a discussion of the relative hunting knowledge of the two provincial secretaries, Mr. Challies declared: "You did take a trip north last year. Some people said you were hunting on the Nipissing Game Preserve but you denied that."

The bill containing several other changes in the fish and game laws, provided records, outfitting camps in the northern part of the province, shall not be operated without a license.

The fee shall be $10 in the case of residents and $25 in the case of non-residents. The bill received second reading.



Standards Act.

The Industrial Standards Act would prohibit manufacturers not "drive any wolves out of industry," Sam Lawrence, (C.C.F., Hamilton East) declared after Welfare Minister Croll outlined amendment to the legislation passed last year.

It was the most contentious piece of legislation on the statute books, said Mr. Croll. Aim of the bill was to correct imperfections.

"I sent Henrietta $78,000 last year, and she used it as an angel in theatrical ventures. What she needs is a spanking," he is reported to have said.

Standard Wage Paid On All Civic Work

Peterborough, Ont., April 8—(CP)—Unemployed men of Peterborough will be paid a standard wage while working for the city.

The decision made by City Council after a delegation from the unemployed Workers Welfare League met with Council Monday night.

Mrs. D. F. Ferguson, speaker for the unemployed Workers, demanded the men be paid 40 cents an hour. "If you do not give it to them," she said, "the women will get together and go on strike.

"They are not going to keep on washing clothes and looking after homes and children without ever having a dollar coming in for the things they so badly need".

Lincoln, Neb., April 7 (CP)—J. A. McEachen of the Nebraska Labour Central Communion's industrial department made a survey of his personnel's former residence and found he had an ordained minister, an actor, two lawyers, a former federal prohibition agent, a couple of former filling station attendants and one reformed debater, turned teetotaller.

SCOTSMEN LEAD AS FAMILY MEN

New Book of Facts and Figures Reveals Detail of British Life

London, April 8 (CP)—The private lives of John Bull and his wife are no longer a secret. "The Home Market," by Major G. Harrison and J. C. Mitchell, pours forth figures down to the minutest detail. The book has just been published.

Great Britain's 1934 population was 23,000,000 females and 21,750,000 male. Scotsmen lead in families. While 90,000 people have an income of more than $10,000 a year, 19,000,000 get less than $780.

The average family spends $1650 and eats $180 yearly. On a weekly basis one family uses 94.28 for food and $2.50 for clothes. Travel takes $2.25 and smoking costs $1.00, entertainment, 62 cents, and reading material, 50 cents.

Delving into the country's industrial life, the authors point out few male workers earn more than $15 a week while the earnings of the majority of girls and women average $6.75. Nearly 79 per-cent of male workers of more than 90 per cent if boys under 14 are excluded. "Unoccupied" or retired number 1,500,000. Students number 300,000. There are 300,000 pensioners of various classes and 300,000 "men of leisure" or unemployables.

Getting back to the women, one quarter are workers and another 25 per cent girls under 14. The remaining half totals 13,000,000 and of these 8,500,000 are married and the rest unmarried, widowed or "unoccupied."

TEACH RELIGION IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

Course in Religious Instruction Forecast by Hon. Dr. Simpson

Toronto, April 8.—(CP)—Possibility of a course in religious instruction in Ontario's Public Schools was forecast by Education Minister Simpson. He would not comment on whether he would make it compulsory.

"We have to work the whole thing out," the Minister said. "We are going to investigate the whole matter after the session."

Reference to religious education was made by the Minister Monday, during his speech in the School Tax debate. Referring to religious training in Roman Catholic Schools, Dr. Simpson said there was nothing to prevent religious instruction in the Public Schools, too, and in my estimation, a high time that some start was made towards this end."

"In this one respect, at least," he said, "we are behind the times. In the private Protestant schools in all of which a substantial amount of time is given to a training in religious knowledge."

Police Mistaker Must Pay Costs

London—(CP)—Forty shillings ($10.80) costs against the police were awarded Donald Grong, 17, Nora Kensington, an Hindoo Police Court, when a charge of being a suspected person and loitering with intent to commit a felony was dismissed.

The magistrate, Sir Gervais Rentoul said: "I do not understand why this charge was brought at all; it has been brought on entirely insufficient grounds."

Police officers said the accused walked into a private road in the evening and looked in a basement, to which the magistrate replied: "You have to have something more than that before a man is arrested."

WOMEN GAINING IN EQUAL RIGHTS

Russia Notable Example and Even Turkey Makes Progress

Montreal, April 8 (CP)—Woman has, on the whole, gained more than she has lost by reason of changing forms of government, in the opinion of Mrs. R. Folkes of Toronto, who addressed the Montreal Women's Club on "Woman and Child in New Society."

In Russia, Mrs. Folkes pointed out, woman now had every civil and political right and equal opportunity with men in every field. Medicine was becoming almost a monopoly, nearly 80 per cent of the medical students being women. Motherhood was encouraged and the government had built up a colossal machinery for the protection of mother and child.

Nowhere had freedom come to women more dramatically than in Turkey, where they had "leaped from the confines of the harem to the benches of the bar." They sat in Parliament, were doctors, lawyers and judges. Male legislation had been needed to compel men to take off the veil, for the women found the veil voluntarily except in country places.

In Italy women were better off economically and had political rights and duties, however. The black side of their position lay in the coercion into childbirth.

The position of women in Germany, the speaker believed, was not certain. The German idea appeared to be that women existed for the purpose of bearing male children. They were being driven back into the kitchen and the nursery. Even in sports, however, this had been found impossible to turn the hands of the clock entirely backward, and women were being taken back into industries from which they could not do without them, though "without the blaring of trumpets."

WOMEN TRAINING AS EYE-TESTERS

Students at College of Optometry Says Wide Field

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—Another field, hitherto man-ruled, has been invaded by women. At the College of Optometry here, six young women, representing four provinces are "learning the ropes" with 40 men students. All between the ages of 19 and 24, these fair braves are going to classes daily and according to Dean J. C. Thompson they are doing as well as the men.

Three of the girls came from the prairie provinces, the fair locale of Tremaine, represents Saskatchewan. From Manitoba comes Dorothy Fraser of Winnipeg and Del Dunkin of Brandon. Ruth Stoddard is from Regina, Alta., and Miss Stella Krol, Hamilton, and Kay Archer, Ottawa.

Although she hadn't the slightest idea where she would practice after graduation, Miss Leslie declared, "I love every bit of my work,' and the dean says they are doing well enough up. There will be plenty of opportunities.

Miss Snyder plans to work with her brother in Fort William, and Del Dunkin will assist in her father's business in Brandon. "This is the most intriguing profession there is," she announced. "It's better for girls than medicine or law." Miss Archer has plans for service with her father; so does Miss Archer.

They aren't thinking of marriage yet, but it was the general idea they would get around to it eventually.

Wild Bird Flock Freed from Cage

Belgrade—(CP)—Twelve hundred wild singing birds soared into the air at Sombor, Yugoslavia, when released from cages into which they were packed for transport to Holland.

The freed birds, mostly finches and starlings, had been consigned to a client in Holland by a bird dealer of Sombor. Yugoslav officials at Sombor station decided that the birds had neither sufficient food nor air for the journey, and that they would inevitably die before arrival.

A veterinary commission was forthwith summoned and confirmed the station officials' opinion. Without delay, the crates packed tight with frightened birds were pried open and amid a chorus of songs and cries a host of songsters soared out to freedom.

ISLANDERS STILL ISOLATED

Kingston, Ont., April 8 (CP)—Howe Island residents were still more or less isolated as the road leading from the eastern end of the island to the ferry was closed by Mrs. William McFadden, across whose property the road runs.

Mrs. McFadden had a stout gate chained to a tree on either side of the road, about 75 feet from the ferry landing.

The township has used the road for more than sixty years without being hindered in it without rent being paid. It is likely permission will be sought to have the gate removed and road used again.

CANARIES REQUIRE SIMPLE CARE

Require Fresh Water Daily And Seed Every Other Day

"Danny-Boy" suffered from an interior complex. Not the usual kind of inferiority, but a very unfriendly feeling because he was a canary bird; and a full-bodied, pedigreed one at that. He was presented at the age of one year at a high price. Great things were expected of him in the way of warbles but alas, he seemed to be songless, until one morning his mistress awakened very early and there floated to her consciousness the vibrations of a sweet, liquid song—just a few thrilling bars. Surely it was a new voice, quite different from her other birds. She was decidedly puzzled. Later she told her husband the story, remarking she felt it was the new blue roller, but with truly masculine indifference he pooh-poohed such a fairy tale. Determined to sift the mystery she tried for three successive mornings to catch the little songster in the act, but each day she failed. Persistent, the woman made up her mind to settle the thing to finish. On a near-by couch she slept the next night and just before dawn took up a silent vigil.

King Sol cast a flicker of a sleepy eye above the horizon line and at the same instant the little blue rollbird burst into vibrant, full-throated glory. Transported with joy his mistress almost spellbound! The song was short, but oh, so perfect! "Poor little "Danny-Boy", his mistress exclaimed, "he is shy and not dumb." Giving him a place among her other birds in the living room she noted that each morning, when the older birds sang their early matins, the blue roller was silent. Then, when the chorus finished, the timid warbler gave his confreres a solo. This continued for three weeks, after which the "Little Boy Blue" decided to be like other canaries.

This pre-amble goes to prove the point that canary birds have their individual characters, with peculiarities, that require skilful study. In the matter of canaries, not only domestic and imported ,one learns how grossly ignorant we are about these tiny, bright-colored birds whose cheery song helps to de-finite a manner to brighten many thousands of homes.

Fourteen "Tours"

The canary's song is not a limited warble, but includes four-teen different "tours", which means that number of note forms. There is the bass song, and the slow gluck, this latter like a hen calling her chicks, and then there is the "schockel" when the warbler sings from his whole heart and soul, his tiny body vibrating as with an electric shock. This song is said to contain phrase of the canary's song and it has that lovely echo of a babbling brook gurgling over the pebbles. There are just a few of the wonderful chromatics that give the birds such a wide repertoire.

For the who are desirous of inwesting in a songster there is a choice of breeds offered. Canaries are native-born, or imported ,but in either case success is assured if properly cared for. Such varieties as the roller canary, chopper, Yorkshire, Norwich, and the Border Fancy, these latter found along the borders of England and Scotland, are all first class breeds that may be purchased today. There is, also, a distinct variance in color; for example the yellow, red, orange, blue, white, cinnamon and green canaries. Perhaps a green canary is the most beautifully pencilled in black, is the best singer, his notes being particularly fine.

Cage Is Important

With regard to the age of a newly purchased bird experts advise the 2-year-old canary and the proof of a bird's age is detected by the little steel wristlet that is always clasped around the leg or pedigreed canaries. The cage is another very important matter. Too small a cage is real punishment, for pet needs enough space to jump about and exercise himself. The cage may be either brass, or enamelled, but all no time should it be hung in the window because of draughts. If birdie takes cold his songs are often silenced forever.

Must Not Swing.

The best singers are not allowed to swing, which may seem strange to the layman. However, it has been proven that in pushing or swing the canary stops his melody and thus forms a habit, breaking into the continuity of his theme thus.Finally, Some birds do not, like a dirty small boy, appreciate their morning bath. This may be overcome by arranging a basin in the side of the cage with a piece of tempting lettuce just beyond. In endeavoring to reach the dainty morsel he must dip into the water to seize the treasure. Never force a canary to bathe, because it frightens him and he may cease to sing again. Encourage your little songster to wash by placing bits out on a table, on a paper with his dish of seed and in no time he learns what he must do.

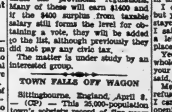
SINGLE WOMEN WANT CIVIC VOTE

Income Tax Payers Want Voice in Municipal Affairs

London, Ont., April 8—(CP)—Women in this city began their laws and amendments recently to determine if the new provincial income tax regulations are to give them a vote in the civic election.

Under the former regulations of civic income tax all single persons earning $1500 paid a levy to the municipality. If they earned only $1500 they were given a vote.



The new provincial income tax laws state that all single persons with an income of $1000 annually must pay a tax. Part of this money will be given to the municipality and much of it will come from single women who were exempted under the old legislation. Just how many will be added to the tax rolls is not known but a survey showed that 106 single women teaching school will pay some tax on their income. These incides only the group which had previously been exempted. The major portion of secondary school teachers paid municipal tax previously.

A conservative estimate indicated that at least 500 women would pay under the provincial regulations. Many of these will earn $1400 and if the $400 surplus from taxable salary still forms the level for obtaining a vote, they will be added to the list, although previously they did not pay any civic tax.

The matter is under study by an interested group.

STOPS SUFFERING WHEN CHILD BORN

Washington Hospital Develops New Anaesthetic in Obstetrics

Washington, April 8—(CP)—The new childbirth anaesthetic mixture developed by George Washington University medical scientists was hailed by authorities as the "greatest advance in obstetrics in 25 years." Huge reports of its use in nearly 1000 cases were presented at an alumni celebration at the university.

The new anaesthetic mixture consists of paraldehyde and benzyl alcohol. It was developed after years of research in the pharmacology laboratories of the university's medical school by Dr. George B. Roth, in collaboration with Dr. Howard F. Kane, head of the obstetrical department where he was given its clinical trial on mothers in childbirth.

Safety is one of the greatest advantages of the new anaesthetic mixture. It is only mildly toxic, and if pure and properly given is considered safer than any of the other methods used to relieve suffering in childbirth. It can be easily given, another big advantage, as other anaesthetics require more complicated apparatus and skilled anaesthetists for administration.

After the injection, the mother falls into a deep, restful sleep. There is hardly any excitement and the desired oblivion comes quickly. The mother can be roused to answer questions and occasionally is a bit restless, but when she awakens, hours after her child has been born, she has no memory of the experience at all and has suffered no pain during the birth progress.

Another of the advantages of the new anaesthetic is the fact that the babies are in much better condition when they are born. They do not need to be slapped or held upside down to make them start breathing. They cry normally and most immediately after birth and are pink and healthy looking.

The wife of a Washington physician, writing of her experience with the drug, said:

"Like every woman, I suppose, who is expecting her first baby, I delight at the thought of the coming child was overshadowed by my dread of the actual childbirth. I tried not to remember the too-vivid accounts I had heard of other women's sufferings. Perhaps because I am a physician's wife, or I had heard more of them than most women. Even the knowledge that I was to have a new anaesthetic to help me through my ordeal, one which my doctor-husband assured me would deaden the pain definitely, failed to lessen my fear when the time drew near for me to go to the hospital.

"What happened exceeded my most optimistic hopes. The experience was not only painless but most restful as well. They gave me an injection and presently I fell asleep. When I awoke I felt much refreshed and was surprised to learn that my baby had been born hours before."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was late coming down to breakfast and ma said, Well, I think you better get yourself out of bed. I hope you feel better this at least she said.

No they do, I dont, pop said. I feel as if I could go rite back to bed and only another dream, I dont know what the dooce is a matter with me, maybe I need a little change. Maybe I awt to take a little trip and get the air of a different clime how the dooce do you do of my head, he said, and I said, O, pop, why dont you take a trip around the world and stop at every country there is?

I cant deny it would be a change, to say the least, he said, I would get me from blames for quite a while and it would be confounded expensive, pop said, and I said, Well why dont you go like Sid Smith's brother Fred is always saying he's going to go? I mean on a fruit steamer. They dont charge anywheres near as much, I said.

But I take much longer and understand the menu consists of hardtack, green bananas and scorpions, pop said, and I said, Well then Jimmy crickits, pop, maybe you could go on a cruiser but why send the captain would leave you be cause you are so sensitive and it wouldn't cost you a cent.

By golies that's an idea, pop said, Dr. Grier my captains my pal, coul gitre me a letter to? he said, and I said, Why sure you ayertizin the papers?

I dont like to sound conceited but your mother mite miss me if I stayed away so long, pop said, and I said, Sure, but you could write a letter home from every single country you visit.

Yes,gods are you engineering this whole proposition or can you fill up your stamp album? pop said, and I said, Gee! Pop!

Meaning mostly, and pop said I refuse to fall into your trap. Maybe I will go but I will never write a line opening the trolley car window or sending for the office. If I can get it open.

FRONT STREET BELLEVILLE PHONE 802

"Danny-Boy" suffered from an interior complex. Not the usual kind of inferiority, but a very unfriendly feeling because he was a canary bird; and a full-bodied, pedigreed one at that. He was presented at the age of one year at a high price. Great things were expected of him in the way of warbles but alas, he seemed to be songless, until one morning his mistress awakened very early and there floated to her consciousness the vibrations of a sweet, liquid song—just a few thrilling bars. Surely it was a new voice, quite different from her other birds. She was decidedly puzzled. Later she told her husband the story, remarking she felt it was the new blue roller, but with truly masculine indifference he pooh-poohed such a fairy tale. Determined to sift the mystery she tried for three successive mornings to catch the little songster in the act, but each day she failed. Persistent, the woman made up her mind to settle the thing to finish. On a near-by couch she slept the next night and just before dawn took up a silent vigil.

King Sol cast a flicker of a sleepy eye above the horizon line and at the same instant the little blue rollbird burst into vibrant, full-throated glory. Transported with joy his mistress almost spellbound! The song was short, but oh, so perfect! "Poor little "Danny-Boy", his mistress exclaimed, "he is shy and not dumb." Giving him a place among her other birds in the living room she noted that each morning, when the older birds sang their early matins, the blue roller was silent. Then, when the chorus finished, the timid warbler gave his confreres a solo. This continued for three weeks, after which the "Little Boy Blue" decided to be like other canaries.

This pre-amble goes to prove the point that canary birds have their individual characters, with peculiarities, too, that require skilful study. In the matter of canaries, not only domestic and imported ,one learns how grossly ignorant we are about these tiny, bright-colored birds whose cheery song helps to de-finite a manner to brighten many thousands of homes.

Fourteen "Tours"

The canary's song is not a limited warble, but includes four-teen different "tours", which means that number of note forms. There is the bass song, and the slow gluck, this latter like a hen calling her chicks, and then there is the "schockel" when the warbler sings from his whole heart and soul, his tiny body vibrating as with an electric shock. This song is said to contain phrase of the canary's song and it has that lovely echo of a babbling brook gurgling over the pebbles. There are just a few of the wonderful chromatics that give the birds such a wide repertoire.

For the who are desirous of inwesting in a songster there is a choice of breeds offered. Canaries are native-born, or imported ,but in either case success is assured if properly cared for. Such varieties as the roller canary, chopper, Yorkshire, Norwich, and the Border Fancy, these latter found along the borders of England and Scotland, are all first class breeds that may be purchased today. There is, also, a distinct variance in color; for example the yellow, red, orange, blue, white, cinnamon and green canaries. Perhaps a green canary is the most beautifully pencilled in black, is the best singer, his notes being particularly fine.

Cage Is Important

With regard to the age of a newly purchased bird experts advise the 2-year-old canary and the proof of a bird's age is detected by the little steel wristlet that is always clasped around the leg or pedigreed canaries. The cage is another very important matter. Too small a cage is real punishment, for pet needs enough space to jump about and exercise himself. The cage may be either brass, or enamelled, but all no time should it be hung in the window because of draughts. If birdie takes cold his songs are often silenced forever.

Must Not Swing.

The best singers are not allowed to swing, which may seem strange to the layman. However, it has been proven that in pushing or swing the canary stops his melody and thus forms a habit, breaking into the continuity of his theme thus.Finally, Some birds do not, like a dirty small boy, appreciate their morning bath. This may be overcome by arranging a basin in the side of the cage with a piece of tempting lettuce just beyond. In endeavoring to reach the dainty morsel he must dip into the water to seize the treasure. Never force a canary to bathe, because it frightens him and he may cease to sing again. Encourage your little songster to wash by placing bits out on a table, on a paper with his dish of seed and in no time he learns what he must do.

Fresh Water Daily

Birdseed should be given every second day. The realhered mists are wasteful little creatures and dop as much food as they demolish. Fresh water every day is absolutely imperative. No bird can be healthy with slime sticking to his drinking vessel. Give him good, fresh water for his thing every morning. Gravel on the bottom of the cage is also very necessary. Little birds have no teeth and the gravel acts on the seeds as our teeth on the food we eat.

Simple "Treats"

Now, as to "treats"—give him bits of apple, lettuce, or the green leaf of celery and this will keep him well and happy, too. Some people's treats are prone to make the bird almost intoxicated and he has a reaction very similar to that of a drunken man the day after the feast the bird feels groggy, because of his artificially high spirits of the day before. Too much attention will drive a bird to lunacy. Talk to him in reason, keep him near you, but let him be quiet when it is necessary.

All your little canary asks of you is simple, daily care and in return he will repay you with silver notes sung from a tiny throat that quivers with longing to tell you in music how happy he is to be with you.—The Montreal Daily Star.

GRAIN
Winnipeg, April 8—(CP)—Wheat prices were lower in brisk, early trading on Winnipeg exchange today, reflecting a advancing cables markets and good-sized over-night export sales of Canadian wheat.

American markets opened weak 5-8 to 1-2 cent higher, May at 80 1-2, July 81 1-4, and October 81 7-8 cents.

The prospect that the United States Government may relax dividend payments to foreign investors is a bullish card for Canadian securities for the reason that many local investors now holding high-grade American stocks would, no doubt switch to this better class Canadian securities.

'Defenceless' Leafs Swamped By Detroit Red Wings 9-4 in Second Game for Stanley Cup

Biggest Score in Cup Play in Last Twenty Years

HAINSWORTH HELPLESS

On Three Occasions, Detroit Players Scored in Open Net

By ELMER DULMAGE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit, April 8—(CP)—Beaten into retreat by the sensational Red Wings of Detroit, the year's ranking hockey team, Toronto Maple Leafs staggered home today for a lag stand in the Stanley Cup series, On foreign ice they had been overwhelmed by one of the "hottest" forces ever to play for the historic trophy.

They were humbled 9-4 here last night in a game, that apparently marked the near-finish of Conny Smythe's great Toronto machine as it stands.

Nothing was the first game of the best-of-five series Sunday night, the Wings hope to complete their double conquest tomorrow night in Toronto.

Again the "defenceless" Leafs, Jack Adams' National League champions ran riot to pile up the biggest goal total in at least 20 years of Stanley Cup finals. And treated a crowd of nearly 12,000 to a matchless display of offensive hockey, tearing apart the fabled and prideful defence of the fighting Leafs.

Hainsworth Helpless

There was virtually no protective barrier for the veteran George Hainsworth, who stood solitary guard over the Toronto goal, after the Wings snapped in three goals in the first 10 minutes. Against the sort of diversified passing plays launched at him, Hainsworth was helpless.

It was a great, team, that whipped the proud Leafs, matched their speed—and pace, checked big Charlie Conacher to a standstill for the second straight time and turned loose an attack, that was all the more daunting because it struck, when the Leafs had left themselves wide open. It was a team, that could do nothing wrong.

Having downed Montreal Maroons in three straight games in the M.H.L. finals, Red Wings plan on being the second team since 1926 to race through the playoffs without defeat, winning both league title and Stanley Cup. They will be overwhelming favorites to cop down the Leafs a third time tomorrow night.

Adams Astonished

The pudgy, genial Adams, himself astonished at the all-round strength of his men in red last night, brought the Wings out of a slump towards the end of the season, and sent them into the playoffs under full steam. The post-season warfare has seldom been dominated by such a commanding hockey army. Detroit has won its last seven games.

Much faster and more confident than when they entered the first game Sunday night, the Leafs can loose with an attack at the outset, leaving Hainsworth back to look after the detail of preventing Detroit scores. The Brylcreemers used to get away with an offensive like that.

Only a year ago, when they carried the most potent scoring wallop in hockey, the Leafs could forget defence and concentrate on stopping goaltender. In those days such defence masters as King Clancy and Hap Day got back in a hurry; when the foe broke loose and threatened. But the Leafs were just another attacking hockey team last night—no longer a great two-way outfit. . . .

Wings Score in Minutes

The game had been in progress only a minute and a half, when Wally Kilrea and Johnny Sorrell skated through the defence pennants and the younger Kilrea balled Sorrell's rebound into the net. Three minutes later Scotty Bowman, who in the helpless Hainsworth era pulled George out on his chest with a fake shot and passed back to Marty Barry, who fired in the second goal.

Both of these goals were finely executed and so was the third, scored by Herbie Lewis, while Clancy was serving time in the penalty box. When the Wings got on the mass attack, they did it right. The puck passed from Larry Aurie to Barry to Sorrell, and finally to Lewis. The little winger slashed in from the edge on the goal crease.

Thoms, Bell Brilliant

Bill Thoms and Buzz Boll, brilliant pair on a beaten team, engineered the fire of their two goals later in the first period, but Syl Apps' own Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald matched it. The defence rookie, cheered on by his rabid admirers in the second balcony rode down alone with Kilrea's pass and registered.

The Leafs played a five-man offensive game during the second and third periods and Red Wings packed up goals steadily. Here they found no defence at all between them and Hainsworth. Sorrell and Gordon Pettinger scored in the second frame before Joe Primeau rapped in the second Toronto goal on Jack Shill's pass.

It was wide open in the third with Goalie Normie Smith of the Wings starring. He took care of at least four close-in shots from Bell and otherwise distinguished himself. Pettinger and Aurie combined to score for Detroit and Thoms and Bob Davidson for Toronto.

Whether the Leafs system would be changed tomorrow night in favor of a defensive game was not divulged by Smythe or Coach Dick Irvin. It seemed likely the various assignments to defencemen Clancy, Day, Blair and Horner would be withdrawn. Any change in defence was hoped by Leaf supporters, be surprised and pained to face a lineman defence guarding forlorn George Hainsworth.

WESTONATS WILL REPRESENT EAST IN CUP FINALS

Defeat Pembroke Lumber Kings 6-3 in Smart Contest

Toronto, April 8—(CP)— Newly crowned monarchs of Eastern Junior hockey, West Toronto Nationals today were determined to square things for their sector in Dominion championship play. The fast-stacking youngsters qualified to face Saskatoon Wesleys, Western champions, when they downed Pembroke Little Lumber Kings 6-3 last night.

Since East and West started to battle for the prized Memorial Cup 18 years ago, western standard bearers have held a slight edge. Triumph for Harold Ballard's lads would square the inter-sectional exchanges at nine titles each. The Reds were confident they would achieve this win but were not letting Wesleys lightly.

West Toronto had to step the limit before they emerged as the representatives, a three-goal splurge in the third period giving them the edge on the slower Pembroke team. It was a six-point-spree victory for Nationals. They won the first of a best-of-three series in Ottawa 9-4.

Lumber Kings staged a great comeback from a two-goal deficit in the first period and outplaying and outscoring them in the second period. There was less than four minutes play remaining when Johnny Crawford, stanch Pembroke defenceman, blazed the winning goal past Bobby McGlinchey in the Pembroke nets.

Leavy Equip Thrills

From the first bell, it was the Westons' night on the ice surface of the Utrills. They jumped into the lead when Everett Doran, second-line centre, scored after eight minutes of play but it only took the winners 21 seconds to match the effort. Roy Conacher, brother of the Toronto Maple Leaf star Francis Charlie, was Nats' marksman.

Ranger Roy Glesbrecht, considered one of the best professional prospects in junior ranks, led the Kings second period drive, that gave them a two-goal advantage. He scored both goals, the first when Teddy Robertson, big Toronto rearguard, was in the penalty box and the second, when he broke clear from a Toronto gang attack while Pembroke was shorthanded.

"TANKNITE" AT "Y" IS SUCCESS

Various Demonstrations and Novelty Races Entertain Crowd

Presenting a full-length program of swimming, diving, water polo, lifesaving and novelties, the local Y.M.C.A. natatorium was filled to capacity as boys contestants delighted a splendid audience of spectators in the "Y" pool last night. The event was called "Tanknite" of aquatic sports.

Swimming, diving and water polo were the various demonstrations of life saving. Novelty events for male and female members of Instructor Jack Morden's splendid group of swimmers, kept the crowd in continuous forth rounds of laughter as they competed against each other in entertaining. Instructor Morden divided the entire class into four groups, "A", and "B", with five girls and four boys on each team. These teams competed in the various novelty and straight swimming races and entered into the competition with a competitive spirit throughout the one and one-half hour program, that is to be repeated again this evening in the "Y" pool, so successful was last night's performance.

The entire class gave a lengthy diving exhibition demonstrating all of the recognized Olympic dives that are entered for competition. The directors deserve proper credit for success of the swimming classes at the "Y" as many of the boys showed that many an unexcited dip was taken last night in the common pools.

The various demonstration of life-saving were taken from the American Red Cross guide and included floating, strolling, treading water feet only, same hands only surface dives, floating and resting, sculling, reject from water, diving for several objects, defence against grasp from back and front sommersaults, wade glide, under water approach, portage, towing, carries for unconscious persons etc. The candle race with lighted candles in the race and the twin race all provided amusement while the competitions in the breast, side and back strokes were all keen throughout.

Those taking part in the "Tanknite" program arranged and supervised by Instructor Ralph Morden were: Team No. 1—Doris Gardner, Marion Maclean, Madge Howard, Grace Bongard, Marg. Griffin, Al Moncrieff, E. McMurray, J. Cole, and J. McKeen. Team No. 2—Dorothy Gardner, Edna Bush, Evelin Cole, Jean Cryderman, Gladys Mayhew, J. Peoples, M. Burley, R. Cluff and R. Kerr.

SASKATOON JRS. CAPABLE SQUAD

Average Age is 19 With Plenty of Weight Evenly Distributed

Saskatoon, April 8—(CP)—An unknown quantity in Dominion title-play, Saskatoon Wesleys, who represent the West in junior hockey's Memorial Cup classic at Toronto, are rated a capable squad.

The Saskatchewan Rinkies average 19 years of age, distribution of weight along the attacking lines works out at 165 pounds and on the defence, 170 pounds per man. Four-fifths of the squad are playing their second season together. The remainder are graduates from juvenile and midget ranks.

Thumbnail sketches of the players follow:

Norman Bernsek, goal — Age 19, weight 185. One of the best junior bet men in the west. Second year with Wesley juniors.

Jack Kayle, right defence—Age 19 weight 165. Rangy type with Wesleys. All-round athlete, alone-wall defender and equally dangerous on individual rushes.

Nichols Holds Champ To Draw in 10 Rounder

Buffalo, N.Y., April 8—(AP)—George Nichols, who lost his National Boxing Association light heavyweight title four years ago without throwing a punch, is back after a clinch, Tuesday.

Nichols, who won his NBA crown in 1932 as a 100 to 1 shot, last night held John Henry Lewis champion, to a draw in a ten round ring-side bout in Buffalo's Broadway Auditorium. . .

Today, the former champion was more confident than ever his showing will land him in the same ring with Lewis in a 15 round affair with the title at stake.

Merchants, businessmen and citizens in general have been asking questions of late, what's the trouble with baseball in Belleville? Why has the game fallen to such a low level? Why is there such a scarcity of new playing material in our midst? What's the matter with the entire set-up anyhow?

Naturally with conditions as they are in the local baseball circle there is little wonder at such questions being asked as people up and down the main streets. None of all of the above questions could be eventually answered in some volume or other, but besides taking too much time, the answers might lead to embarrassments. First and foremost all concerned should commence to realize that the "golden age of baseball," Fox and other sports in the smaller centres, has passed. "It ain't no more." That should about clear up the ticklish point at least. Of course there are answers other angles but they'll have to pass.

The scarcity of players can be laid to one thing, and one thing alone. The lack or passing of baseball from our public schools, which were the early training school of Belleville star ballsters. In years gone by baseball flourished in all of the public schools the game lost its foundation; the place where the "teen age boy received his primary introduction to the game. Where even as boys there was competition and the present-day athletic material of a century ago to play on your school baseball team.

There is no fault to be found with the work of the Ki-Y leagues, but of recent years there has been a scarcity of baseball teams in the Ki-Y leagues. Why? It all goes back to the foundation-head, there is no baseball being played in the public school or Separate school to give the boys that primary introduction to the game, that remains in years to come as a foundation.

We may be wrong, but firmly believe that until baseball is again played in the public and separate schools, there will be a continued paucity and quantity in future baseball material in a city like Belleville.

Nearly all fans can recall Belleville's entrance into the O.B.B.A. in 1919 with a team of "world beaters" that swept everything before them and won the Provincial title. Where did such baseball players as "Penney" and Harry Mills, Freddie Goyer, Wicky Ross, Frank Goyer, Joe Kellerer, Al Meagher, Vern Weir, the Casey boys, Slim Hagerman, Harry Whalen and others, get their early baseball training in Bellevile? No other place than in our public and separate schools, we contend.

Up until perhaps 1919 a splendid school league was operated among the various public schools of the city and baseball fans will well remember the calibre of games played between these. I school teams, Victoria (where the Collegiate now stands) Grier Street (with Mc-Sizaplins at the helm) and the smart team that came from the St. Michael's crowd, who used to attend school on John Street. Those were the days when baseball players were receiving an education on the diamond and were taught by them to greater heights as they grew older and faced stiffer opposition throughout the baseball world.

Today, however, the public and separate schools are conducted with a serious problem. "We'd like to organize baseball in the school league, but find the financing much too great for us," state the school heads. The great trouble seems to be the outfitting of a catcher with the usual pads, mask and catching mitt. Now, if the local service clubs desire to be of service to the community, and to baseball in general, they could provide two complete catchers' outfits and present them to the schools. Only two outfits would be necessary, as only four teams would be playing at one time and since football could be won by two opposing teams, while the other would naturally be available for the other two opposing teams, of course this is only a suggestion and has been made before, but the proof of the pudding is in the eating and since baseball has passed from our public schools, there has been a marked scarcity of players each succeeding year.

On Friday evening April 24th, a meeting of all interested in rugby football will be held in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Rugby football, officials, coaches, players, players and even fans are invited to attend.Signalled out of the province east of Toronto. Mr. John DeGruchy, father of modern football in Ontario, along with Harold Bailey, secretary of the O.R.F.U. have consented to be present and lecture at the gathering on the present-day rules and regulations of the game. It is especially hoped, but this cannot be definitely stated, that coaches, managers of teams composing the League will be present to bring themselves of this splendid opportunity to meet on a common level and iron out differences of opinion, that have confronted the game in the past. Sports editors in Kingston, Cobourg, Oshawa, Peterboro' and Lindsay should be especially interested and relay this message to those sponsoring the entrance in their respective communities. This also applies to the Separate school, who may be interested in enrolling themselves in the present-day football set-up.

Efforts to rejuvenate junior baseball in this district are being made today by Bruce Gibbard, 1st vice-president of the O.B.A.A.

It begins to look as though the Detroit Red Wings will have to accomplish something never before done by any N.H.L. club, that being the feat of winning both the N.H.L. championship and the Stanley Cup in the same playing season. When the Adams-led Red Wings blasted the Maple Leafs 9 to 4 last night they just about knocked the bottom out of the Toronto hopes.

...If you have nothing to do this evening, drop over to the Y.M.C.A. and take in their "tanknite" programme of aquatics. The entire programme promises to be a delightful afternoon's mixed classes of girls and boys, it's amusing as well as interesting.

Service citizens are meeting at the "Y" tonight in hopes of pulling the local senior baseball situation out of the fire.

Philadelphia Ramblers Win Fontaine Trophy

Providence, R. I., April 8—(CP)—Undefeated throughout the Canadian-American Hockey League championship and the Fontaine Cup today but the team defeated in the title-series, Providence Reds, overwhelmed them as much prestige.

The Ramblers ended as tingling a cup struggle as the league has known by edging past the Rhode Islanders by last night on Jerry Connolly's third period goal, the smallest possible margin—a single goal—but had decided the margin necessary to name the champions.

Playing on home ice, the Phillies won the first encounter 2-1 last Thursday on Joe Conacher's overtime tally. The advantage was wiped out when the Reds won on Saturday by the same score. Here Sunday, again on Conacher's goal, the Ramblers fought back to win after the Red's star of the series, Dorgie Kuhn, former Montreal Maroon, had given them the lead.

The overtime battle, as last night's turned out to be, was a carbon copy of the earlier, clopping affairs. Each evenly matched team fought with fine combination attacks that could do little material the fore coal fences and keen-eyed goalies block-ing the shots.

The break came in the fourth minute of the third period. Red Conn was banished for tripping. Neil and Mac Colville, the Ramblers brother set from Toronto, advanced the puck into Providence ice. Connolly worked his way to the front of the Reds' cage, uncorked a shot and scored on a high corner shot after Neil's snap pass

They're interesting enough, something to talk about, to wonder at, perhaps, but pretty far away from that most important spot and the people who live there . . . your own home.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXIV.

Doubting to the door, Vernon half expected it to be locked—but it yielded. Down the shabby-looking stairs she ran, and out into the street, and hailed a taxi, driving to the Hotel Splendide.

On the threshold of the apartment on the 37th floor she found the fatty maid, Arlene. Arlene was one of Mrs. de Kray's "finds". There was a curious look in the girl's eyes as she said: "I've been ringing the door bell for all of ten minutes, but I couldn't get an answer. Aren't your father and mother back, Miss Vernon?"

"No. Mother's sick. They'll be home tonight." At that, risk Arlene's eyes like pistols bating down on the frings of golden gown showing below the coat, and golden slippers.

Arlene made her a cup of coffee while Vernon changed, and bathed and dressed. Even in the bathtith she did not remove the precious necklace.

A quarter to ten found her at Dresells, in the manager's office. "Would you mind unfastening the necklace? I haven't had it off one moment since I put it," she said breathlessly.

The manager complied. Necklace in hand, he looked sharply at the gems, then rang for an assistant.

"Would you turn your magnifying glass on this?" Both the assistant and the manager inspected the diamonds in turn. They stared at each other; then at Vernon.

"My dear young lady, this is not the necklace we gave you yesterday" said the manager, his keen eyes on her face, "this—" he stared at the gems in the palm of his hand—"is nothing but a clever imitation—!"

Vernon stared at the jeweler in a shocked daze. The diamonds not real? "The necklace is "clever imitation," he had said.

Why, the man must be mad! Even the moment she had arrived afternoon when it had been clasped securely round her neck in her own apartment, it had never been removed!

She told him so. "I've been wearing it all the time! It never once was unclasped! If you say that these diamonds are imitations, then they were imitations yesterday —and I've been wearing an imitation necklace right along!"

The manager looked strangely at her. "I assure you that no imitations find a place in this shop, Miss Tyson. I left you myself wearing a $50,000 string of diamonds."

"Then how on earth do you account for this? But of course it's the same necklace!"

"I shall call our principal diamond expert in. He will convince you," Bill the stranger, marshaled look on the manager's face.

Without any hesitation the expert confirmed the opinion. This necklace was nothing but a clever piece of paste!

"But I don't understand. What shall I do? You mean that someone has robbed me without me knowing it?" breathed Vernon, widened and shaking. Terrifying thoughts rushed through her mind. Those hours after leaving the Gypsy Pavilion when she had been lost to the world in Prince Karinoff's apartment....

"Will you kindly sit down while I telephone?" Shortly after the manager's call they were joined by two other men, the insurance detective and his superior. They asked Vernon to fully account for every moment of the time since half past six o'clock yesterday when the necklace had been delivered into her keeping.

She gave them a frank story up to the time of her departure from the Gypsy Pavilion. "It was very late when I left there—"

"You went straight home?"

Her face turned perfectly white as she said—she told herself she had to lie, to save her reputation—"Yes, To the Splendide."

The insurance detectives exchanged glances with the manager. "We'll take this young lady back home and talk the matter over quietly with her then." They had noticed Vernon's shaking hands, and how white she had become.

She walked through the outer shop with them, passed the dazzling showcases, feeling for all the world like a criminal.

In the cab again she argued with them about the impossibility of the real necklace having been stolen from her and a fake one put in its place.

"I tell you it was never off my neck for one moment!"

They merely looked at her in suspicious silence.

"My father and mother are down South. I don't expect them back till this evening," Vernon informed them as she fitted her key into the door of the apartment.

Then the inquisition began. Oh Lord, if she'd never gone near the apartment of Prince Karinoff! She had slumbered on his couch for hours—the clock had been striking nine hours of the morning when she had awakened from her strange deep sleep and rushed in panic off and away.

"Now you claim the necklace never left your neck? You were wearing it when you left the Gypsy Pavilion? You're sure of that?"

"Yes!"

"And when you got home here you were still wearing it?"

"Yes. It was never unclasped."

"And in the morning when you woke up, it was still on?"

"Yes." Vernon did not flinch, but she turned paler than ever. They noticed that.

"What time did you get home?"

"I haven't the least idea."

"Ah! I take it there was someone—contrivality in the way of refreshment at the Gypsy Pavilion?"

"Some of my friends had Scotch with them, or wine, I only took a very little."

"Not enough to affect you?"

"Oh, no."

"Who were those friends?"

"I'd rather not say."

"But you've got to say. We represent the insurance company. Don't you think that a $50,000 loss is a serious matter to us?"

She clasped her hands till the knuckles stood out whitely. Nodded wretchedly.

"You must realise that it's your legal duty to give us every possible assistance, otherwise you, Miss Tyson, place yourself under suspicion."

"I'm—sorry."

"Who brought you home from the Gypsy Pavilion?"

"I returned alone."

The senior detective leaned his broad bulk back on the sofa in the drawing-room and lit a cigar. The girl was hiding something. The jewelers were fools to have loaned her the necklace. Probably she had an accomplice, and was shielding him.

At this moment Arlene, the maid, overcome with curiosity, made a pretext to enter the drawing-room.

"Oh, I'm sorry, miss. I didn't know you were here. I came in to dust a bit." And she made as though to withdraw.

"Stop. You are the maid here?" one of the detectives asked her.

"Yes, sir."

"Do you stay here?"

"No. I come by the day. I usually come around nine in the morning, sir."

"Ah!" He stared at her. Arlene returned his look boldly. What were those men doing with Miss Tyson? It did look queer.

Suddenly he shot out at her: "You do the housework, I suppose? Have you made Miss Tyson's bed this morning?"

"No, sir. It didn't have to be made." Arlene's bright eye moved to Vernon's ashy countenance and then back to the detective's as she added, with a kind of malicious triumph: "The bed hadn't been slept in."

Vernon found voice to say, haughtily: "Arlene, go back to the kitchen."

"Stop!" boomed the detective. "Say that again."

"I said Miss Tyson's bed hadn't been slept in and I still say it," declared Arlene. She gave Vernon look for look. She had her lover to power. Ought she to tell these gentlemen that she had met her mistress's knighty-knighty young daughter, still in her golden gown and evening cloak, right on the doorstep late this morning?

"You say you don't remember what time you got home?" the junior detective asked Vernon.

"I answered that question to the best of my ability before," she said.

"Then maybe you'd like to come with us to headquarters!"

She quavered, wide-eyed: "You're not the police, are you?"

He jerked his coat an inch or two open, displaying his badge. "Perhaps now you'll answer?"

Arlene did not hesitate. Self-preservation is a first law.

"There was nobody in the apartment to let me in. Mrs. Tyson doesn't let me have a key, I had to wait till somebody arrived. It was Miss Tyson."

"So? After nine o'clock this morning? How was Miss Tyson dressed?"

"In a gold evening dress and a velvet coat and gold slippers." Arlene loved her head. Her attitude plainly showed her disapproval.

"Miss Tyson came from the elevator as you were waiting?"

"She came from somewhere. She didn't speak to me. I went to the apartment, anyhow. She let me in with her key, and then I made her some coffee."

"Okay. You can go now," Arlene departed for the kitchen.

When she was out of earshot, the senior detective said, in a toneless voice: "If I were you, I'd come clean with the truth, Miss Tyson."

CHAPTER XXV.

At the detective's meaning words, blood flamed to Vernon's cheeks. "Are you accusing me of stealing the diamonds?"

"We're not accusing you of anything yet. But untruths won't get you anywhere."

Vernon shrilled on the sofa, she felt weak and limp, and mentally exhausted.

"But thank heaven! she told herself, the Gypsy Pavilion would be closed this early in the morning. She breathed a little freer. Here was a temporary respite.

Alas! for her hopes. The watchman was there. He gave the detective the information he wanted.

No—no diamond necklace had been turned in. No—the place wasn't open all night. It closed on the dot at 4 a.m. He could absolutely vouch that everybody had cleared out then. Of course he was certain about it, because he came on duty shortly before four in the morning.

Vernon subsided on the sofa. She felt weak and limp, and mentally exhausted.

As Doc fell in the path of the charging lion, Dick turned back and helped him to his feet. An instant later the boys were clambering swiftly into the lower branches of a great tree. Roaring angrily, Numa sprang into the air, his talons unsheathed to drag them down!

PITILESS FLOODS DESTROY SOILS

Millions of Loss in Flood And Wind Storms in U. S.

Washington, April 8 (AP)—This spring's floods and last summer's dust storms are phases of the same accelerating national catastrophe—destined to increase in destructiveness, believes H. H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, unless a national conservation program is carried out.

"These pitiless floods," he says, "are carrying millions of tons of rich soil to eternal waste, just as the dust storm did, ravaging field and city, and snatching lives along the way. Both are sign-posts of America's misuse of the land."

"In capsule form, he describes the events which led to the present floods:

Fields were plowed for crops, leaving the soil unprotected from rains. Forests were cut down. Annual freshets washed away the top soil. Nothing but hard clays were left.

Rains fell. Instead of seeping slowly through top loam most of the water slid off the clay. The rivers, cut off formed rivulets and streams cut gullies and poured at an accelerated rate and in increased volume, into the rivers.

To illustrate the increase of flood waters in recent years, Mr. Bennett quotes readings from the gauge on the Mississippi at Memphis:

"In 1927, when the greatest and most disastrous flood in the history of the river occurred, the gauge reached a height of 48.8 feet. Reading the records, we find the next highest flood was that of 1916 when the gauge measure was 43.4 feet. The greatest previous flood was that of 1890, when the reached 34.8 feet."

The damage of rushing flood waters is usually calculated at the moment by estimating the destruction of homes, bridges and roads and the loss of life. But Mr. Bennett points out the corollary loss of soils, which is costing American farmers $400,000,000 a year. Further millions are spent in the dredging necessary in reservoirs, streams and harbors which are filled with silt.

There can be no permanent flood control, says the conservation service chief, until soil conservation is practised over entire watersheds. "What means the knowledge we have of crops and their relation to water means the pain in the neck."

It has been found in southeastern Ohio, for example, that soil loss has been 36 tons an acre every year. When the same land is covered with such a protective growth as timothy grass, the loss crops to .07 tons an acre.

At the same time, 94 percent of the water which falls on the mile-sized acres is turned off and adds to the loss of water which form Ohio river floods. On the acres protected by timothy only three per cent of the rain waters are turned off. The rest is absorbed.

In critical areas, Mr. Bennett advises, the more erodible slopes should be taken out of civilization and planted on some rotation schedule of protective crops. Floods he says, can be reduced 30 to 35 per cent by such measures.

FIGURES INCREASE IN CLAY PRODUCTS

Output of Brick and Other Building Material Shows Better Trend

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—Output of clay products in Ontario which dropped sharply in 1932, is slowly recovering, according to the preliminary report recently issued by the Mines Department of Ontario.

Face brick showed the largest item, showed a value of $545,917 in 1935 compared with $329,703 in 1934 and $321,382 in 1933. The 1931 output had a value of $1,718,864.

The value of common brick produced by Ontario plants last year, was $586,180 compared with $377,276 in the previous year and $183,336 in 1933.

Structural, roofing and floor tile is also on the increase with a value of $156,361 in 1935 against $120,861 in 1934 and $74,006 in the previous year. Clay pipe production shows little change, holding around $51,000 to $53,650 yearly through the last three years.

KING HAS PLANS FOR HOME SPORT

Edward VIII Considers Tennis Court And Pool at Palace

London, April 8 (CP)—It is believed in court circles that King Edward is planning extensive alterations to the grounds of Buckingham Palace so as to make them more suitable for outdoor sport.

Construction of a swimming pool, a hard tennis court and a squash racquets court are among the possibilities discussed.

It is the King's desire that his presence in London—necessary during a large part of the year—should not take from him the opportunities for exercise which he was accustomed to enjoy as Prince of Wales.

The swimming pool probably will be constructed in a part of the large lake at present devoted to water plants and swans. Although in the heart of London it is admirably screened by the high palace walls and a thick fringe of trees.

CLINIC FOR CRIME IS ADVOCATED

English Doctors Propose Mind Treatment For First Offenders

London, April 8 (CP)—Crime hospitals for first offenders instead of prisons are embraced in a scheme of several Harley Street specialists and psychologists, Lord Dawson of Penn, the King's physician, and Lord Hewder, are among the supporters.

An appeal has been made for $100,000, the amount required for a clinic on the outskirts of London. The plan, presented by the Institute for the Scientific Treatment of Delinquency—at present limited in scope—provides for fund treatment.

The Home Office has been interested in the plan and Sir Norwood East, criminal, commenting on a similar experiment at a reformatory, has permitted through wickedness or weakness, but many, too are due to disease, mental, he explained, as he stated. "In 1934 magistrates sent 35 cases to the Institute for treatment. Last year the number treated increased to 75."

The staff of the Institute is composed of 45 voluntary physicians and lay workers.

DISPLACED MEN FROM GALLERIES

Women's Deputation Fill Visitors' Seats in Council

London, Ont., April 8 (CP)—Led by their president, Mrs. Lucy Cole, almost fifty members of the newly formed Forest City Women's organization routed the habitual spectators from the city council chamber.

Appearing first before the deputations committee, Mrs. Cole spoke on welfare matters and then they filed practically all the seats in the chamber, leaving the male visitors the men and quickly occupy those seats, standing outside. At the conclusion of the meeting committee read a resolution in appreciation of the interest shown by the women in the city's business.

NAVIGATION OPENED

Sarnia, Ont., April 8 (CP)—Navigation in the St. Clair River was unofficially opened when the steamer Pandy passed down Lake Huron. The steamer was believed to have cleared from Bay City, Mich., enroute to Cleveland.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLS

"Collens"

Jack Oakie, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler Blend Twelve Famed Star Cast, Going Through the Parade

That inimitable team of screen lovers Dick Powell with tuneful songs on his lips and Ruby Keeler with her rhythmic dancing together with Joan Blondell and Jack Oakie, head the cast of Warner Bros.' latest spectacular musical comedy, "Colleen," which comes to the Bells tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily.

In addition to the four stars, the cast which is one of the most notable ever assembled for a production of this type, includes Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Paul Draper, Marie Wilson and a score of other famous names besides two hundred beautiful chorus girls and dancing youths.

There are two big spectacular specialty numbers created and staged by Bobby Connolly, famous dance director for the Ziegfeld Follies and other New York shows, one timely and gorgeous specialty that will hold the interest of every feminine heart is the dazzling Spring Fashion parade, that outshines "Modern" revealing tomorrow's styles on today's prettiest girls.

Dick Powell is the serious minded young manager of an estate for a rich and flirtatious uncle, who had purchased a modiste shop for a girl friend.

Dick falls in love with the efficient secretary of the shop, and manages to win her heart after a series of entanglements filled with hilarious comedy for the audience, although heartbreaking for the two young lovers. He also sings three songs.

Miss Keeler has the role of the secretary, and introduces some remarkable tap dancing, both by herself and with that wizard of the stage, Paul Draper.

Jack Oakie and Joan Blondell portray a pair of gold-diggers after all the loot they can get out of the eccentric millionaire, a role played by Herbert. His wife, a hysterical society woman, constantly upset by her husband's philanthropies, is portrayed by Louise Fazenda.

Draper, the famous interpretive dancer of Broadway, makes his film bow in this picture. He has been the rage of New York, and in this picture is said to do some of his finest byte dancing.

Other important members of the cast include Marie Wilson, Luis Alberni, Jiskeath Cavanaugh, Berton Churchill, J. M. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters, Addison Richards, Mary Treen and Charles Coleman.

Major Bowes Amateurs

Major Bowes all new amateurs are announced as a special extra attraction on the same program, and let the "prove" look to their laurels, for this selected crop of amateurs are excellent performers. The Major brings his best amateurs to the talking screen, of course, Major Bowes appears in the picture swapping repartee with the artists. A clever novelette will be exhibited on the same program. "Collegn" starts at 2.55, 7.35 and 9.48 p.m.

Two Features Tonight

HEO Reid's hilarious comedy, "Silly Billies" is the second feature length film in which Fred Guiol, director has worked with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

Guiol's first association with the hapwire pair of comics was in "The Rahmakers" a recent release.

Dorothy Lee, diminutive blonde, who furnishes the romantic interest in the Wheeler-Woolsey opuses, is again cast in the feminine lead for this story of the Wild West and California gold rush days.

"So Red the Rose," Paramount's stirring adaptation of, Stark Young's novel of the same name, is the second feature attraction on the same program.

Margaret Sullavan is the star and the supporting cast includes such well known names as Randolph Scott, Walter Connolly, Janet Beecher, and the child actor Dickie Moore. The Belle Latest News Flashes completes the program, to be repeated again for the last times tonight. The last complete show starts at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

The new musical romance "First a Girl" showing at the Capitol Theatre, has Jessie Matthews cold that means everything. It's just about the last word in dancing, singing and comedy. In addition, the story gets four delightful people in a tangled plot that is fraught with fun and romance.

Jessie is an errand girl with stage aspirations who gets her chance when she meets a female impersonator in a rainstorm. She catches cold and can't go on with his act. He's broke and needs the money, so Jessie pinch hits for him.

She's scared and terrible but, with the aid of several accidents she panics the audience. A talent scout sees her, thinks she's great but when she takes off a wig and apparently masculine attire he can't be decider she's terrific and gives her a contract.

That means Jessie has to be a boy, so it is as Bill that she is introduced to the handsome Robert, with whom she falls hopelessly in love, even though he is engaged to the sophisticated Helen Hunter. Robert is suspicious that Bill is not the man he pretends to be and puts him to the test time and again, but Bill is so convincing that Robert gives up his dream of Bill really being that gorgeous girl he impersonates on the stage. And then he he discovers that she is a girl! But he dare not reveal her secret, or the whole show would not let her dress on stage. Robert is suspicious that Bill is not the man he pretends to be and puts him to the test time and again, but Bill is so convincing that Robert gives up his dream of Bill really being that gorgeous girl he impersonates on the stage. And then he he discovers that she is a girl! But he dare not reveal her secret, or the whole show would not let her dress on stage through with her until she is through with them, will have her jailed on a charge of criminal impersonation. A pretty battle of fists and riddlestick with everything, however, turning out happily for the two young people concerned.

"First a Girl" is set to some grand syncopation by that popular crooner, Jessie Matthews sings "Everything's In Rhythm with My Heart" your heart and feet will be in rhythm with the peppery little Princess Pocahontas Herself, and when Sonnie Hale burlesques it you'll get one of funniest laughs that has come once in a lifetime. Other attractive numbers are "The Broken Silkworm", sung at a fashion display of what the Well Dressed Woman Will Wear—if she can afford it; "It's Written All Over Your Face"; "I Can Wiggle My Ears," "Stair and Hair" and "Say the Word and it's Yours."

Under the direction of Victor Saville the picture has sparkle, fire and speed. The cast is superb, Gerald Jones plays his first light comedy role as Robert and reveals himself as a matinee idol type who's sure to give a lot of Hollywood Romeos a run for their money. He's previously been seen in "Escape Me Never" playing the good but dull brother, Caryl. In "First a Girl" he's far from dull. And handsome . . . oh, girls!

Bonnie Hale, once more proves himself the perfect comedy foil for the star, Anna Lee, svelte and sedate, is also sulpsy and snooky, but makes you like her. And you'll like the Nice and Monte Carlo atmosphere for some of the action— it's the real thing!

An emergency was made by doctors to save the hand but it was later found necessary to amputate at the wrist. Just a year ago Deck fell on a saw, while working at the same place and suffered a badly gashed shoulder.

RUMORS PERSIST BALDWIN TO RESIGN PREMIERSHIP—Though British parliamentary circles remain unconvinced, rumors persist that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin will shortly resign. It is stated that the premier's deafness is seriously hampering his work. Parliamentary circles declare he will remain at the helm until after the coronation, of King Edward in May, 1937. Should he resign soon, however, observers believe there will be a general cabinet shuffle with Neville Chamberlain, new Chancellor of the Exchequer, becoming Prime Minister; Baldwin would become Lord President of the council; Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, would take the post as secretary for India, with Sir Robert Horne or Lord Halifax becoming foreign minister. No mention is made of who would be chancellor of the exchequer. The above layout shows, TOP, Neville Chamberlain (LEFT) and Stanley Baldwin. School Tax Bill Passes After Drawn-out Debate; Prorogue House Today

Vote is 65-35 With Only Four Members Being Absent

FEW BOLTERS

Amendment to Put Question to Electorate Turned Down

Toronto, Apr. 8 (CP)—An all-night battle in the Ontario legislature over Premier Hepburn's bill to give separate schools a larger share of corporation taxes ended at four o'clock this morning with the bill receiving second reading.

Conclusion of the contentious school tax debate means the session will end before Easter. The bill, which received second reading by a vote of 65-35, will be advanced through final stages this afternoon after which Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce will prorogue the legislature.

A stubborn opposition offensive which started at 9.35 last night was climaxed when Wilfrid Heighington (Conn., Toronto St. David) introduced an amendment to submit the question to the electorate. After a debate, at first final time in the start of a filibuster, the "amendment" was defeated by 67-34. Only Liberal, R. G. Croome, Rainy River, voted with the Conservatives on the amendment.

Three Liberals joined the opposition in the vote, on a roll call member. They were: J. K. Crawford, Port William; George S. Henry, Wellington-Northeast, and Mr. Croome. Agriculture (C.C.F.) Member Guy Sould) and Mr. M. MacBride (Ind. Brantford) supported the government in that division.

Only Four Absent.

"We're going ahead with the bill," Premier Hepburn declared in his wind-up address as government members urged their attack. "We're going to put it through tonight. We're going to give Catholics a right long dividend."

* * *

"I'm sad and all my supporters are mad now," Premier Hepburn said at 3.30 o'clock "because they think they have been sold out. I don't look as if we can prorogue today as we had planned, do I?"

From them on the atmosphere in the chamber was tense with numerous sharp exchanges. The Premier was called "a contemptible cur" by George H. Challies (Conn., Grenville-Dundas) after he had interrupted an address between Mr. Challies and Mines Minister Leduc.

Later his Honour clashed with Mr. Henry and Attorney-General Roebuck provoked a heated exchange with Col. W. H. Price (Conn., Toronto Parkdale) by charging flim of the Attorney-General's Department had been termed when the former government left office.

Col. Frank Hunter (Lib., Toronto St. Patrick) followed Mr. Roebuck and urged the opposition to "get on board wagon" and support the bill.

* * *

Amendment Moved.

Col. W. H. Price (Conn., Toronto Parkdale) said there was only a "strong trail" between a letter written by Mr. Roebuck in 1934 to the an Catholic Taxpayers' Association before the 1934 election, the election of the Hepburn government and the separate school tax legislation.

The premier: "I'll tell you that wasn't a matter of grants; it was a matter of letting the people run the school and giving it to another."

ROME OBSERVES HOLY THURSDAY

Period of Silence Will Last Until Saturday

Vatican City, Apr. 9 (AP)—Tolling bells and organ music, ending in a sudden silence, signalled today the opening of Holy Thursday services, commemorating Christ's institution of the Eucharist.

The solemn booming of St. Peter's bell blended with the higher pitched notes from the towers of smaller churches and chapels while within the holy edifices resounded the vibrant notes of the "Gloria In Excelsis".

Then simultaneously, the bell tollers relinquished their ropes, the organists dropped their hands to mourn for the passion and death of Christ. The period of silence will last until Saturday.

Pope Pius and eighteen Cardinals attended a Mass this morning in the Sistine Chapel.

VICIOUS RINGS ARE BROKEN UP

Police Claim White Slavery Rampant in Political Clubs

New York, Apr. 9 (AP)—A series of raids on political clubs has broken up one of the most vicious white slave rings in the city, police officials claimed today, if the story of a woman complainant is true.

At least 300 women were caught by the syndicate in the last five years, the unidentified informant reported to Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine. Some of the victims, she said, were of well-to-do families and many of them were married. Many were mothers, she declared.

Leaders of the raids was March 1 on a political club in the Bronx where sixteen persons were arrested. Other raids followed in which more than seven in all were closed — but principals escaped, police said, by tipping or disorderly conduct charges.

As related by the informant, the ring's system was to rent from the clubs rooms for gambling. That brought a profit of $50 for each room an they could bring into the card rooms, she said, girls and women invariably found themselves in debt and pressured into accepting the exhorbitant rates for loan sharks.

In endeavoring to extricate themselves from debt, she said, they became more deeply involved and their resistance was broken down as complices of the ring to persuade them prostitution would solve their financial problems.

YEOMAN BEARS PURSES

Nosegays of Sweet Herbs Carried by King And Officials

London, Apr. 9 (CP)—Westminster Abbey was thronged today when King Edward was present in person to participate in the pathetic and age-long ceremonies associated with Maundy Thursday.

It was the first time His Majesty had participated in a formal public ceremony since the funeral of King George, his father. King Edward wore purple robes for the event.

In accordance with custom, there would ordinarily have been forty recipients of the Maundy Money—the number corresponding to the years of His Majesty's age—but his next birthday. But by the King's command 71 men and 71 women received the Maundy gifts. This was the same number as would have been present had King George been alive.

Each received 71 instead of 43 pence and in the specially-minted Maundy purses.

Second Time in 300 Years.

Only once before in the last two centuries has the sovereign been present at this ceremony taking place on Thursday of the week before King George, who was accompanied by Queen Mary, personally distributed the gifts [illegible] years.

Recipients of the Maundy money, who are drawn from all over the country, must be sixty years of age, have paid rates and taxes and have employed labor. The fortunate ones, who are selected on the list compiled by the Royal Almoner, receive coins to the value of the years of their lives.

Gifts in Purses.

The purses and bags containing the specially-minted silver pennies, which are very plain, were carried borne into the choir of the Abbey by a yeoman of the King's Bodyguard, resplendent in Tudor uniform of scarlet and white.

Nosegays of Herbs Carried.

All carried nosegays of sweet herbs, which in the days when the plague had to be guarded against. In addition, officials carried "towels" across their chests, a symbol of the towels with which servants of the King used to wash the feet of the pensioners.

When the sovereign actually to perform this act was King James II, in 1689, the custom was discontinued.

The "pence" distributed today did not bear the head of King Edward VIII, but that of his father, new coinage bearing the head of the new sovereign having not been issued and therefore the special dies for Maundy money have not been made.

Vimy, Symbol of Sacrifice, Has Passed Into Proverb

Nineteen Years Ago Today Impregnable Fortress' Found Canadians in Possession and Germans in Full Flight

Ottawa, April 9 (CP)— Nineteen years ago today, in a driving storm of sleet, the men of the Canadian Corps swarmed across the Vimy Ridge which dominated the fortresses of the western front of France, and in a few hours the ridge fell to the valor of the troops from the Dominion. The anniversary of April 9, 1917, saw the Canadians ensconced on the western slope of the long ridge from which swooped the mighty guns of the enemy and the Canadian machine gun emplacements had a temporary halt been called. With the clearing of the "Pimple" on the northern end of the ridge, a day or so later, the whole job was completed.

Symbol of Sacrifice

Before the Canadians lay the Plain of Douai, the smoke from the chimneys of this substantial French city beckoning them on the far horizon. Across the plain fled the defeated Germans. Churchill, speaking in Ottawa in reference to imperial developments said: "Canada's proper part therein, said: "Canada's proper part therein, said: "Canada's proper part therein,

RILEY'S POETRY IS DESCRIBED

Mr. J. O. Herity Tells of Poet's Love For Child Life

Members of the Teachers Association of the Ontario School for the Deaf and Blind were given a happy evening at the School last night when they had the pleasure of an address on poetry, particularly the poetry of James Whitcomb Riley delivered by Mr. J. O. Herity. The occasion was the regular monthly meeting of the association.

Mr. Carson Stratton, president, welcomed the guests and introduced the speaker of the evening. It was a privilege to have as guest such an outstanding speaker, whose oratory has won for him high regard wherever he has appeared. A keen student of literature, Mr. Herity was well qualified to address an audience on this topic.

In his reply to the welcome extended him, Mr. Herity paid sincere tribute to the achievements of the staff of the school. "Your work has impressed me profoundly," said Mr. Herity, "it and first rate. I did not know of any charge until I went back to Wellington and immediately got in touch with the police. I did not plead the truck as I had permission to drive my children over to Wellington from Mr. Somberg," added Johns.

After hearing the evidence His Worship dismissed the charge, and immediately Provincial Constable McIlrian asked to have the prisoner held. "This man was convicted

Johns was charged in a previous court with having stolen a truck, the property of his employer, Abraham Somberg, Station Street.

Somberg stated he had instructed Johns to put the truck away after having had delivered a second-hand stove, Johns being employed as Somberg's truck driver. Later Johns drove away in the truck and did not return until the next day, Somberg alleged. In his testimony, Johns stated he had asked Somberg for the use of the truck to transport children to Wellington and had received permission to do so, inspecting Johns supplied the gasoline and oil for the trip.

When I returned to Belleville the next morning, Somberg accused me of taking the truck without permission, but I reminded him of our previous agreement. Later he said me what he were due me for my time. I did not know of any charge until I went back to Wellington from Somberg," added Johns.

MOTOR STOLEN AS WARDENS SEARCH

Taken From Car And Submerged in Seven Feet of Water

Found submerged in some seven feet of water an outboard Johnson motor, the property of the Ontario Game and Fisheries Department was recovered from the water of the Bay of Quinte by Game and Fishery Warden Herb McCabe and P. C. Arnott of the police department, after the motor had been stolen from Mr. McCabe's automobile late yesterday afternoon.

Warden McCabe, assisted by Game Warden A. R. Brown of Prince Edward County, was investigating alleged illegal fishing in the Bay of Quinte at a point off the end of George St., when he noticed the motor under the cover of darkness. In the motor car was an outboard motor, the property of the department. After questioning some little evidence pertaining to the illegal fishing and poaching, the two game men returned to their automobile only to find the outboard motor missing, after searching the surrounding vicinity without results, the officials reported the matter to the police.

Sergeant Harman immediately assigned a call to the police car, in which P. C. Arnott was patrolling, over radio station CHR. P. C. Arnott picked up the message and drove to the foot of George St. and assisted in the investigation. Later, however, the outboard motor was found lying at the bottom of the bay in about seven feet of water where it had been ditched by those responsible for its theft. By means of a long pike pole, Constable Arnott and Warden McCabe finally recovered the motor.

It is believed by the authorities that look-out men, who were on shore to warn the alleged illegal fishermen were responsible for the theft of the outboard motor and had thrown it into the bay with hopes of returning later and recovering it. Although no arrests were made for the illegal fishing last night, a strict watch is being continued by the authorities for poachers and fishermen using gill nets in the bay.

"We want it understood, it is not commercial fishermen, but rather ordinary citizens, who are fishing illegally in the bay," explained Warden McCabe today.

POLICE BLOTTER

The largest number of transients to sign the register at the police sergeant's desk thus far this year was in evidence last night, when 38 were admitted to the police cell block and given warm dry sleeping quarters.

P. C. Arnott was called to investigate the wilful destruction of private property at 45 St. Charles Street last evening. Upon his arrival the officer found some twelve windows had been broken by mischievous youths. The names of some of the guilty parties were obtained and court action will doubtlessly follow. The house is owned by Deputy Fire Chief Harold Vance, who informed the police of the malicious destruction of his property.

Local motorists were today warned of the annual checkup of motorists operating their vehicles without adequate brakes as required by law. The traffic officers of the district have been checking motor vehicles at various intervals and finding numerous motorists operating their vehicles without the proper braking facilities.

SCHOOL TAX BILL PASSES

"It would be all right if a high court had decided this," he said, adding that the government to hold the bill over until next session. He accused the Attorney-General of delivering "a sop" to the house. "I don't know why he spoke that way," he said.

"There aren't half a dozen men on the government side with enough backbone to vote for the bill," the Conservative Whip concluded.

After Mr. Mills' brief address which finished at 2.15 o'clock Mr. Heighington moved his amendment.

"That this bill be not read a second time on the ground that it involves a new policy in the field of education and a distribution of taxes for which the government has no mandate from the electors of the province, and that second reading should therefore stand until the government has appealed to the electors and received their endorsement of the bill."

"I never heard one suggestion that the government has a mandate from the people for anything," replied Mr. Heighington. While the rights of the minority were protected, the rights of the majority were not protected, he said, and now it was the minority that looked to this legislature for protection.

Claimed Only Two Courses.

He accused the government of seeking to do by this bill what criminal law called a corporation a religious vehicle" and said the original idea was the tax was to come from bonus. There were only two solutions—retirement to the house or to the electorate.

Mr. Griffin was not satisfied with this legislation and next year he would approach the government for the removal of counties, said Mr. Nesbitt.

"I would not like to be leading such a sapless bunch as you are," Mr. Henry replied, after demanding the government state why members scheduled to speak, had been called off.

"You never will," shouted Col. Fraser, Hastings.

Tell us how long you are going to lead that string of yours," Premier Hepburn invited.

The opposition leader tangled with the Premier by referring to a letter by her Attorney-General Roebuck tendered earlier in the evening, describing the section as "a grave error," but Mr. Henry said he had been appointed and some members were having difficulty in expressing themselves.

"I am not among them," he said.

"What is the inference?" the Premier queried.

"I haven't any," said Mr. Henry.

Speaker N. O. Hipel finished the position more quickly by calling the division.

Attorney-General Roebuck had declared in his speech in the debate that he had had no file showing Mr. Henry had prepared the letter to the Privy Council on the school question, but Premier Hepburn had produced a communicated with him.

The file of the Attorney-General's Department, on the letter from the last government, were taken in charge by Premier Hepburn "under lock and barrel," Mr. Roebuck replied.

"There's not a word of truth about it," Premier Hepburn burned, interjected Col. Price, former Attorney-General. The school tax files had been taken from his department, he said.

His government, Mr. Henry continued, had every intention of submitting the letter to the Privy Council. Turning to the Premier, he asked if the question of extra assistance to separate schools was an issue in the last provincial campaign.

"No," said the Premier.

"Then why," asked Mr. Henry.

"That's the reason why we're moving an amendment to your motion," said Mr. Henry.

In reply, the Premier said if the people of the Opposition would guarantee to lead the Conservative party to a great election the government might consider the amendment. He reviewed the reasons he gave on introducing the bill last Friday why the extra assistance should be granted.

The question boiled down to two features—constitutionality and finance. Rights that had been enjoyed for years could not be swept away and Separate Schools had not been given what in his opinion was a fair share of the taxes.

Mr. Hepburn recalled his home county of Elgin had been a hotbed of the struggle for responsible government a century ago. The family of Col. Talbot, Mr. Henry, Egerton, famous inventor, was a member and had been prominent in the country in that struggle.

"If you intend to ride into power on an appeal to prejudice, you're going to be sadly mistaken," he told the Premier. "The people of Canada endured too much in the last 20 years."

No Sign of Election

"We are not afraid of facing the issue if you want to force it," Premier Hepburn said. "We aren't going in the country now. We might as well settle that point. We have

BELIEVED LOST 3 BOYS RETURN

Fishermen Stay on Island All Night on Account of Storm

Windsor, Ont., April 8—(CP)—Three young fishermen from Harrow believed lost on Lake Erie, arrived back at Colchester at 11:30 o'clock this morning. They had been missing since yesterday morning and were the object of a wide search by fishing tugs and planes this morning. The boys reported they had put into one of the small islands that dot the lake off Colchester, when the storm struck yesterday afternoon. They spent the night on the island and started for home this morning.

The young men are Robert Rickett, of Dromilleard Road, Windsor; Douglas Mowbray, son of Lorne Mowbray, president of the Harrow Farmers Co-operative; and Marcellus Ferris, son of David Ferris, manager of the L. C. Ferris Hardware, at Harrow.

The three young men, as has been their daily custom since the opening of the fishing season, left Colchester yesterday morning in an 18-foot cabin cruiser.

When they failed to return home last night, their parents became alarmed, and when other boats had been out on the lake had not observed the young men during the day.

Small Town Adopts Petticoat Rule

Kansas City, Apr. 8 (AP)—Women in politics took charge of two municipal strongholds in the west today but men took care of their "better halves" at home.

Petticoat politicos campaigned hard and promptly.

Feminine candidates completely swept the ticket yesterday as Green Top, Mo., a community of 382 and women were elected all but one of the offices as Dan Monroe, M.M.

From Mills, a little town now town, came a different story. Incomplete returns last night showed men candidates well ahead of a slate of women, the "Petticoat Pantry" platform notwithstanding.

In Green Top political party lines were disregarded in the balloting. Ballots for the "opposing" sexes, "The new mayor, Miss Edith Pearce, said it would be unanimous today when she meets with the council to select a city marshal—a woman.

Green Top took its place with another Missouri town, Urbandale, ruled by women without interruption for all the 13 years of its existence.

Trenton and District

Trenton, April 8.—(Special)— By the help of an air compressor, which was loaned to the town by the R.C.A.F., the break in the spring water main, which passed under the river has been located. The pipe was found to have been broken, and the water level of the river said had the compressor not been used, operations would have been prolonged considerately. The compressor moved to the foot of Bridge Street, and air stirbus was sent from it to the mouth of the main. When the air was forced into the pipe the break could be easily rifled as the bubbles could be seen rising to the top of the water in the centre of the river. Residents of the east side of town will have their water supply back to normal pressure much sooner than they expected.

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Richardson of Trenton celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday. Mrs. Richardson was the former Miss Jane Brown of Strathroy, Ont. They were married in Strathroy and Mr. Richardson recalls that on their wedding day, April 7th, 1886, there was over a foot of snow. Their parents were pioneers. Mr. Richardson brought the first steam threshing machine to Middlesex County. Mr. Richardson is 77 years of age and Mrs. Richardson is 72. Mr. Richardson is a retired lumberman. They have one daughter with whom they live, Mrs. R. E. Smithrim, Dufferin Ave.

At the Trenton Town Council meeting last night a resolution was passed stating that the sewer and a half per cent cut in relief, which was to go into effect April 1st, according to a letter received by the council from the Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour would not be exercised yet as the weather is still cold and work is not available. A by-law was passed dealing with the relief recipients, who shirk on the job and Lloyd Bonter stated the rule will be cut off relief until their case is investigated. The chairman of the Grievance Committee for the Co-operative Workers met the Mayor and Council and put before them several cases of relief workers who in the past few weeks have been almost entirely cut off relief and he stated they were not receiving enough to live on. The Mayor showed these cases had been investigated and that there were families of eight and ten, who were supposedly dependent of relief and yet one or two of the family were working in factories, It was also learned, that where there were eight and ten in a family and one or more had work, that as soon as the workers were asked to give their money in to the support of the home they would move out and look for boarding houses, leaving the family in the position, that they were obliged to seek relief again. The Mayor stated, that in a time like this the authorities must stick together as according to the rules relief to all the family is considered as a whole. Reports have been received from different sources that relief workers have said they would rather sit at home and earn their pay by the store and let the ratepayer put up with the expense than to get out and look for a job. Another report revealed that since the time the reclosed has been on relief he has purchased radios and other luxuries. Relief expenditures for the town of Trenton last month were $17,230.00.

Basketball

At the Trenton Collegiate Institute last night the Trenton Junior basketball team defeated the Port Hope girls by the score of 25 to 16. The game was a hard roughs contest throughout but the Trenton girls were at no time in danger. Port Hope at half time had the score tied 10 to 10, but as soon as the Trenton girls came on to the floor in the third frame they went out into the lead. Line-ups—Port Hope—centre, N. Trott; forward, R. Stapleton; forward, R. Thompson; guard, E. Jamieson; guard, M. Brown; guard, M. Horsefield; alternate, V. Dark. Trenton—centre, J. Langdon; forward, K. Davis; forward, M. THE SEASON

The year is at that season which is particularly associated with the Founder of the Christian religion who has given His name to His followers and to the religion they claim. It is also peculiarly associated with the great Passover time in the Jewish year. It is a turning point in nature with spring and the growth which it stimulates.

Easteride is different from the Christmas observance. There is the natural sense of awakening from the bonds which have tied nature and man, and there is a lesson of this afterlife with the symbol of eternity found in the reviving life in the sod. Christmas is a joyous, very human feast time because all is warmth, glowing humanity; Easter in its religious significance stirs life to its high opportunity and in the message of the Resurrection it brings hope of the great eternal day beyond. It is natural people in the presence of the Easter festival feel as they do when they offer the pure white Easter lilly as a symbol of the time.

At this season the Christian calendar contains two great days marking two great events, the Crucifixion on Good Friday and the Resurrection on Easter. The world could not stop with the event of the first, to the Christian the second is the direct and natural outcome of the event of Good Friday. The change from the Lenten season reaches its climax on Good Friday to the joy of the spirit of the First Easter and the feeling of human liberation after trials and self-abnegation is impressive, and in Christian belief it is the key to life.

CAPT. A. E. BAKER, O.M.E. COMING

Captain A. E. Baker, O.M.E., M. C, Croix de Guerre, B. Sc., managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is to address a meeting in the library of the collegiate institute in Belleville on Tuesday evening April 14th, when the drive for subscriptions for the work of the society will be launched. Capt. Baker, whose work since he lost his sight in battle in the autumn of 1915 has marked him out as an outstanding Canadian is assured of a warm welcome. He will speak under the auspices of the Belleville branch of the institute.

Belleville citizens have supported the institute well since organization of the branch here a few years ago. Mr. Herbert C. Trevor, of Toronto, field secretary was in the city some days ago and laid the plans for the collection.

Belleville Boards have been able to render invaluable assistance towards the work of the institute in caring for the blind and it is expected that the 1936 collection will reach the records of the past.

Captain Baker, who is a living exponent and visible evidence of the value of training for the blind, is an inspiring speaker and will make an abiding impression upon his hearers.

The work he carries on deserves every support and the committee is confident that this will be forthcoming.

YOUTH'S ENTHUSIASM

While the youth of Germany and Italy back up dictatorships and lend them force, some of the youth of the democratic new world are busy laughing away the next war. But there is no laughing away the spirit of German and Italian youth, particularly the German which has not yet had a taste of war.

The appeal which the dictators make to youth is of course marked. Here is Mussolini speaking in hyperbole and fiery phrases, and there is Hitler engaged in bombast. Here is youth which has heard so much of the unfairness of the end of the Great War of which they know nothing, bearing arms as their fathers did.

The appeal indeed is to youth. Marching armies, tramping feet, flags and banners everywhere.

On this continent youth calling itself "Veterans of Future Wars" is ridiculing and trying to laugh war off the face of the earth, though armaments increase on every hand.

There is a spirit of youth which has touched not only youth but their elders in the trying days since the war. It seems there is a spirit of youth everywhere.

No doubt youth will be given a place in that revival that is so desired. Youth has not had in some countries any too bright a prospect and many a tragedy can be laid to the conditions of depression which have held many of the youth from their rightful place. Youth's enthusiasm is needed to bring in that better condition which everyone is hopeful of.

EASTER

"Because I live, ye shall live also."

Life, life renewed we see in all about us,
The grass grows green, the maple buds show red,
Hepaticas are blooming in the wild wood,
The world of Nature is no longer dead.

And down across the years we catch the message,
The words of that far distant Easter day,
"He is not here, the Lord indeed is risen.
Come, see the place where Christ the Saviour lay."

O weary heart, we, too, may catch the message,
The word that Death no longer holds a power,
For lo! He burst the bonds of Death forever,
And lives for aye, our risen Lord and King.

"Because I live," He said, "ye shall live also."
O blessed words to soothe life's pain and strife.
We need not fear to pass Death's dreaded portal;
Risen with Him, we'll antar into life.

EIGHTEEN BLIND TEACHERS ARE TEACHING IN CANADA. These teachers have been trained in a special Normal class for Home teachers and their pupils are also blind. These blind teachers work in conjunction with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and are specially selected for their ability and aptitude as well as sympathetic understanding of those handicapped as they are themselves. Instruction in the reading and writing of embossed type and useful handwork is given by these teachers to blind persons in their own homes, without charge. Since seventy per cent of all blind people lose their sight in adult life this service is particularly valuable for the reason, who must adapt their previous training and experience to their changed conditions. Last year over 13,000 lessons were given to 600 blind adults in Canada.

TEA FOR TWO, OR THREE, OR FOUR, OR MORE, IS SERVED BY JIM CURRAN at the Soo Star every afternoon at four o'clock, and some editors are inclined to jeer at Jim for adopting this excellent English habit. At four o'clock in the afternoon the human machine begins to slow up, especially the working machine on afternoon newspapers in the reaction after the hard drive up to the last take of copy and the closing of the forms on the main edition. Then a good cup of tea certainly refreshes and life purrs on like a song again with nothing more serious in sight than the production of yet another newspaper on the morrow, preparations for which must begin today. Jim Curran is to be congratulated upon his perspicacity and his oddity which again thrusts him into the news what is news. Jim Curran's specialty heretofore was wolves, the Algoma kind which bark but will not bite a white man, unless—Jim's assertions of the harmless traits of timber wolves and sich make good if not convincing reading and whenever the cry of the pack is heard by lone hunters they either climb a tree or take other promising measures of putting the wolves beyond the reach of having to put to the test Jim Curran's theory of the harmlessness of Algoma wolves.

MAUNDY THURSDAY IS AN INTERESTING CUSTOM, started in England in 1363 when it was established by Edward III in commemoration of Jesus washing His Disciples feet. The rite at first required the king to wash poor men's feet as well as make them gifts. Queen Elizabeth, it is said, varied the procedure by having the favored feet washed and scanted in the royal laundry. William III delegated the feet washing to his Almoner and in 1754 George II stopped the foot washing altogether. The custom fell into disuse until four years ago when it was revived by King George V, who watched in Westminster Abbey while his Almoner distributed doeskin purses of scarlet and white thongs to 67 hand picked old men and 67 old women, in token of the 67th year of His Majesty's age. Maundy Pence are specially minted and as a coin collector's item are worth $1 each. They also get $12.50 per man and $8.75 per woman in lieu of a gift of clothing. King Edward has announced that since he will be forty-two at next birthday he will give Maundy Money to 42 old men and women and to 58 more besides to equal the number of poor who would have got the pence had his father continued to live.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"First a Girl" Is Musical Starring Sonia Hinie

It's a dancing picture at the Capitol Theatre today until Friday night. Sonia Hinie in "First a Girl," with Sonnie Hale contributing his inimitable comedy, Griffith Jones contributing the heart interest, and Anna Lee contributing the necessary plot complication.

"First a Girl," directed by Victor Saville and produced by GB, tells the story of a girl—Miss Hinie—who, of course—who can have fame and all the luxury that goes with it if she will pose as a beguiling female impersonator, or be just a little nobody out of a job. She decides to be a boy, and then falls in love! After that it's an amiable mistaken and scrambled hearts to the tune of an enchanting new songs by the team of Sigler, Goodhart and Hoffman, and five spectacular dance ballets, London, Paris, Nice and Monte Carlo, provide a glamorous background.

"The Orange" Coming

Rex Ven Strobeim, notorious villain of the screen, is starred in the latest screen horror drama, "The Crime of Dr. Crespi," announced for the Capitol Theatre on Saturday only. Based on an Edgar Allan Poe narrative, the story recounts the fiendish plot of Dr. Crespi to bury his victims alive, so that their outward appearances is dead but in reality lives.

The film is a John H. Auer production, with story and direction by Mr. Auer, and adaptation by Lewis Graham and Edwin Olmstead.

On the Screen "You Said a Mouthful"

More hilarious original gags and comedy stunts are said to be involved in Joe E. Brown's latest First National picture, "You Said a Mouthful," than any production which has been shown on the screen in many years. The entire story, which will be unveiled at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday Only, is based on a series of grotesque scenes which lead to the most surprising and laughable incidents.

Brown is said to be at his funniest, and has as his co-worker, seasoned and swim member, that rotund imp of the "Our Gang" comedies, Farina. Ginger Rogers, the red-haired and peppery musical comedy and screen star, who played in a similar capacity opposite Brown in "The Tenderfoot," is again the leading lady, with Preston Foster, Sheila Terry, Guinn Williams and Harry Gribbon handing a strong supporting cast.

AT THE ISLE

Star Is "Caliban" Sparkling Musical Comedy

Major Brown New Announcer

"Caliban," Warner Bros. latest comedy-hit, at the Isle Public tonight and Friday matinee and evening with an all star cast including Jack Oakie, Jim Blondell, Hugh Herbert, Ruby Keeler, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, and a score of other principals as well as a couple of hundred chorus beauties and dancing youths.

Robert Lord has provided a real plot for this musical comedy which is said to be packed with delightful and hilarious fun as well as romance and some dramatic moments.

As a spectacle, the picture presents two song and musical special numbers staged by Bobby Connolly, famous dance director, in which scenes filled with wonder and delight. One is staged aboard an ocean liner, with everyone save the captain to the crew as well as the passengers doing a dance in rhythm. The other takes place in a nocturne in which a dazzling ballet, headed by Miss Keeler, entitled "Roberta" is featured.

The musical score and songs were written for the production by the famous composers Harry Warren and Al Dubin. Powell sings two of them, one with Keeler and the other, a comedy number is sung by Miss Blondell and Oakie.

Mr. Keeler proves himself her famous tap steps, some solos, and duets with Powell. Dorothy Dandridge sings a wizard, who was taken to Hollywood especially for this production.

Others in the cast include Marie Wilson, Lois Albard, Robert Cavanaugh, Berton Churchill, J. M. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters and Charles Coleman.

Major Brown New Announcer

Just as the world heard Major Bowes' maiden effort in his radio weekly program, it will be able to see and hear the more talented victim in the person of Major Brown, and his foiling attempts, tonight and Friday, matinee and evening. Of course Major Bowes appears in the picture, swapping repartee with the artists. In his screen appearance he is said to be as much at ease as genial in celluloid as he is on the air. "Ham Sheep Ham", a clever comic novelette will be exhibited on the same program. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.15. "Caliban," starts daily at 3.00, 7.35 and 8.50 p.m.

"Follow the Fleet" Saturday

Ginger Rogers has been handed a treat in the successor to "Top Hat," RKO Radio's new musical "Follow the Fleet," coming to the Isle Saturday for four days, in which the vivacious titian-haired star dances four times and sings three to Berlin's inimitable melodies.

Three or Ginger's dance numbers are done with her bewildering partner Fred Astaire.

They perform a sizzling hot collegiate ballroom routine to the tune "Let Yourself Go."

Later, they do a screamingly humorous eccentric specialty dance to "All My Eggs in One Basket," and they also join in a vocal rendition of this number.

For the finale, Miss Rogers and Astaire performs a difficult interpretative dance to "Let's Face the Music and Dance."

Besides the musical shorts, Ginger establishes the fact that she can dance as a tap dancer and she goes through her solo routine in the strains of "Let Yourself Go."

Ginger's opening song number is "Let Yourself Go," is sung in a San Francisco dance hall and in the background a chorus she is backed by a girl trio.

Miss Rogers and Astaire are supported by a "top-hole" cast including Harriet Hilliard, Randolph Scott and Astrid Allwyn.

KIPLING LEFT LARGE ESTATE

Book Royalties To Pile up For 21 Years To Come

London, April 9.—Rudyard Kipling, whose books outsell all others in this country, left an estate in England and Wales of £153,599 gross, or $762,486 net, according to his will, which was filed with his widow.

Mrs. Kipling receives the house and certain property in Sussex. Sheet Mrs. George Bambridge, a daughter, for whom Mr. Kipling had made also other provisions, receives £5,000 and £1,000 is bequeathed to Miss Elsie Bambridge, Mrs. Bambridge.

The widow receives the income from the residue during her lifetime, after which it will go to the daughter or her children. If there be without children one-fourth of the estate will go to her husband if he is then living, and subject to his provision the estate will be divided equally between the Australian and New Zealand branches of the Fabridige Farm Schools.

Mr. Kipling directed that the income from his books should be allowed to accumulate for twenty-one years after his death and then be added to the capital.

The Fabridige Farm Schools, in which the King is deeply interested and for which as Prince of Wales he made an organization fund of nearly $100,000, were the idea of Mr. Kipling's daughter, Mrs. Bambridge, an Australian Rhodes Scholar.

The first was established in Western Australia a model farm school for the orphaned children of British soldiers. It took poor boys and girls out London streets and trained them to "fit the world to-day and-to-morrow".

Five schools— three in Australia, one in New Zealand and one in British Columbia—are now running, and nearly 500 children well equipped with farming and dairying knowledge.

Mr. Kipling was a frequent subscriber to the Fabridige Fund, which additional schools in Australia and New Zealand.

His annual report disclosed, that there was not a number for cats or dogs in this town for the winter months and he motioned that a meeting be called to look into the building of such a shelter, as he believed there is no other place in the province with so man stray animals as there is in the town of Trenton. Constable William Bain stated, that if children were found cruelling animals they also would learn to respect their fellow men and would develop into more useful citizens.

A few night ago an unknown man entered a local hotel and registered under the name of Charles Smith of Toronto. He proceeded himself as a transport crusher, who was looking for drivers. He explained, that he had a transport service operating between Toronto and Kingston, but anyone driving must put up ten dollars to guarantee his against being penalised to pay the first fine which they were levied, while driving. A local gentleman fell for the scam and had paid the would-be transport owner the dollars and was about to procure the balance, when police arrested and took the impostor into custody. His case was remanded and he is now in Belleville jail awaiting trial on Monday.

Leafs Will Change Tactics Against Detroit Redwings Playing a Defensive Game

Defencemen Will Stay Behind Their Own Blue Line

DETROIT CONFIDENT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, April 9.—(CP)— may be assumed that the vanishing defence of Toronto Maple Leafs will be rounded up some time before they are tonight to make a last stand at Maple Leaf Gardens against the Red Wings of Detroit. Tomorrow night can be said that Leafs possess a defence.

They have King Clancy and Hap Day, who work together, and Red Horner and Jack Shorey, who work up when the veterans are resting. The Red Wings would be surprised, indeed, should these fellows decide to play defence tonight. They might be surprised to know they are there.

On the point of achieving hockey greatness such as few teams in postwar times have reached, the Leaf Birds will be Stanley Cup and National League champions tonight if they humble Leafs for the third straight time in the best-of-five series. A crowd of 14,000 or more will watch them try.

Whether or not they had a defence to overcome on their way westwards, the Red Wings of Art Adams and Jack Stewart looked like a masterful hockey machine as they crushed the Leafs 3-1 and 9-4 in the opening games on Detroit ice. Few veteran critics admitted having seen better hockey. Clancy bleated.

In the earlier N.H.L. finals against Montreal Maroons, the Wings won by scores of 1-0, 3-0, and 3-1, so there remained but the slightest doubt of their superiority over the Stanley Cup winners of 1935. Now their veteran coach has a horrible job to be taken.

Adieu Tops as Coach

Should they conquer the Leafs this time, completing an amazing six-game series of the playoffs, the Red Wings will go down in the record as one of the best teams of all time. The plump and cautious Adams, one of hockey's most prolific scorers in the years immediately following the war, will have reached the top as a coach for the first time.

The question to be answered tonight is whether the vanishing defence of the Leafs can be hooked together on occasion and whether the Red Wings will knock it over anyway. Three scores on double Dick Irvin will order defensive measures at the outset—a strange issue for Toronto.

It is years since the Leafs have angered in a decisive manner after even choosing on home ice. They have been the mighty bombers of the sport since 1931, the greatest collection of marksmen in the business, the boys who could always score, but they have already bowed to better snipers.

In this series the Red Wings have accomplished extraordinary scoring feats in the face of the game's strongest defensive. They blocked the Leafs' attack neatly and then stopped them cold. Goalie Normie Watson, veteran George Hainsworth, the goalie without a friend, Hainsworth has been a one-man defence.

Brilliant Attack

Against the brilliant passing plays conducted by Marty Barry, Herbie Lewis and Larry Aurie, Syd Howe, Sorrell, Wally Kilrea and Modere Bruneteau, Eddie Kilrea, Doug Pettinger and Syd Howe, old Georges has been helpless, and no wonder. Tonight it has its chance.

Bill Thoms, Sum Soll and Charlie Conacher, veterans who have been the brunt of the Toronto attack on this occasion, and they will be expected to do some heavy scoring on the side. The Leafs are determined, at least, to see what can be done with the rampaging Red Wings on their own ice.

The betting odds were 7 to 5 and 9 to 5, that Detroit would win anyway, making the series ended unless it unnecessary for the teams to play a fourth game here Saturday night.

THUMBNAIL SKETCHES OF EASTERN TITLISTS FOR MEMORIAL CUP

Toronto, April 9 (CP) — Toronto Marlboro, youthful kind of hard checkers and fast skaters, today prepared to launch an offensive that wrecked a West Toronto team six years ago despite the presence of such stars as Bill Thoms and Bob Gracie.

Happy Day's huskies were confident they would place the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy, in their city junction Saturday night when the first of three series against Stratford, Western Ontario champions, is played here Friday.

Six years ago Regina Pats beat a gallant Weat Toronto band in Winnipeg and the 1936-37 edition is due to avenge the defeat by the west.

Included in the lineup are two Schaefer twins, Roy and Bert, brothers of National League's Charlie and Lloyd, and Lloyd's son, Gordon Shill, brother of the Maple Leafs Jack.

Thumbnail sketches of the Eastern Canada finalists:

Happy Day, Coach, known everywhere as the defensive veteran of Toronto Maple Leafs. The years since give him all credit for bringing him into the finals.

Fred "Ginger" Hall, 20, goalkeeper, has been another figure the past three years with Nationals. He guarded the brine for Griffiths Harriers, Manitoba Senior Canadian lacrosse champions last season.

Bill Thompson, 17, sob goalie, has not stepped up from school ranks. He has been used but little this season, being overshadowed by the brilliant Hall.

Johnny Crossan, hardhitting defenceman playing his last season as a junior. Title is his first season with the Marlboros, he also starred in marcaille hockey this season. Weighs 190 pounds and is the heaviest lad on the lineup.

Lindsay Lamont, defence, 18, makes a great teammate for Crossford. He has been with Marlboros the past two years and weighs 176. He is also a lacrosse stalwart.

Jeffrey Thoms, 18, scrappy alternate defence, has played with Toronto Redmans for two years. He weighs 170 pounds but looks heavier.

Bert Conacher, sub defence, 19, never misses a practice but has played little this season. This star is his third year with the club. Weighs 170 pounds and is five feet tall. He resembles brother Charlie in build and hockey ability too.

Fred "Ted" Heron, centre scoring ace 17-years old and weighs 152 pounds. He is the tallest player on the team and is the only boy of craftiness and is playing his first season with the junior, two of them with Nationals. He is also a member of the senior-calibre lacrosse club.

Gordon "Flash" Shill, 18, left wing, weighs but 140 pounds. A wearing type of player, he is one of the lightest lads in the club. Maple Leafs are keeping a fatherly eye on him.

John "Tennis" O'Flaherty, 17, right wing, has a wicked shot. This is his first season with the Marlboros. He weighs 145 pounds. Both Shill and Heron are Majors last season.

Bert Schaefer, twin, 19 years old and is wearing a West Toronto sweater for the first time. He replaces mercaille hockey and is expected to be a star.

Roy Conacher, 19, left wing, is the counterpart of brother Charlie in build and hockey ability. Scored. Weighing 165 pounds he has developed into one of the best checking backs around enemy nets put him in the Leaf camp with the scoring leaders this season. This is his third year with the Marlboros.

Bill Jennings, 19, right wing, weighs 165 pounds and has a terrific shot. Has been with the Toronto Marlboros the past three years, this is his third season in a National uniform.

Harold Ballard, Manager, tells the team how to win, when Happy is away with the Leafs. He has been associated with West Toronto National senior and junior teams for a number of years and is one of the most popular personalities in the club.

GRADS DEFEND CROWN

Director of Civic Athletics Suggested by Sportsman

Belleville, April 8th, 1936.

To the Sports' Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—

Last year of the seeming public apathy of Belleville citizens in sponsoring sports and their athletic contests and with their great good for patriotism for the city and the beckoning of opportunity for the more freshmen of the youth who have the ability and physical fitness to seek out that you cause to be recognized a movement in the question of athletic activities as carried on in Waterloo, New York. You can therefore open your columns for comment from interested citizens as to their opinion of the lead that got to be made in Belleville to awaken the interest of the citizens at least in general of the great good of sport to the moral and physical upbuilding of our youth, if is up to you, Mr. Editor to start a campaign to arouse the Belleville citizenry to do their part by actively coming out to support the Civic Athletic Director should not to the burden of the many but the few. The few have done it in the past to do this for the good of the city. It is up to all to do some part and make the load easier for the ones who have been carrying the load in the past.

The present indifference of the general public needs awakening and a mass meeting re their benefit is surely needed for this purpose.

Yours very truly,
"Lover of Sport".

P.S.—The following is the article I recently clipped from a Waterloo paper, which I considered was something I deem worth consideration. Made in the article re the "The Whitehern Recreational Development."

"The recreational department of the city has now been in operation long enough so that the people in the community can be appraised. The report for the year 1935 ended till last Summer. Mr. William I. Hall, who built into the department has been director of athletics in the Waterloo Collegiate Institute and is pertinent. A recreational commission was named of which Mr. Hall is secretary, and others are Mr. New York Air Brake Company, and member of the Board of Trade and Commerce, was made chairman.

The recreational department is applied on by the city recreational department during the few months of the year, and is very successful. Through the generosity of the New York Air Brake Company, the use of a large building, now known as the Arena was secured for the winter and the use of another building for basketball. Whitehern was the attraction the amateur boxing bouts became. Literally thousands of people have been entertained in the Arena to see these bouts.

A sporting park which the city made for the support of its recreational program, was very small and it was necessary to find another. Because of the necessary expenses of the boxing bouts. As the city, itself, could not charge admission to the boxing matches. Boxing Club was organized. Then a small admission was charged and the proceeds turned into the treasury of the recreational commission. Every dollar that is paid out of the recreational fund is paid by city voucher through the city treasurer.

"Boxing, however, is only one phase of the program carried on by the city recreational department. The department operates skating rinks in Winter. It conducted Waterloo's first Winter Carnival which was such a notable success. It operates baseball and recreational grounds and children's playgrounds shows, classes in handicrafts for children, clubs of all kinds, basketball games and checker contests. In Summer, there are the multitude of playground activities, the swimming meets and field day, the playground baseball activities, swimming meets and field days, the playground dramas, the volley ball and golf ball games, the track meets so popular and the band concerts which were so appreciated last Winter even people last Summer.

Before a full time recreational program was adopted in this city, Waterloo County appropriated a little over $6,000 annually for the use of the playgrounds and the swimming pool in the Park. Now it is going to have a full time program with all the activities mentioned above, plus $26 is appropriated.

In other words, we are spending only about $6,000 more than we did before. How has it been possible to carry on this extensive program with such a small outlay of money? For one thing the Kiwanis Recreational Camp is used. The recreational department are paid through the W.P.A. The Board of Education has thrown open the schools for certain indoor activities. The New York Air Brake Company has been generous in permitting the use of their buildings. Small admissions have been charged for certain of the activities, and for example boxing and the Winter Carnival, and collections were taken up at the band concerts.

The recreational commission is entitled to the thanks of the people of Waterloo for the splendid manner in which the city's recreational program has been carried on. And the paid workers, the paid players, Mr. Graf, of course, should be given great credit. He proved to be a splendid man for the position and here to put over the program. The city people should applaud when the council decided to go into a full time recreational setup last year but there are few signs of it. Mr. Hall has proved to be one of the best things that has been inaugurated and has probably given more pleasure to more people than anything undertaken here in a long time".

Brevity and Hollyrood Favorites for Derby

(By Orlo Robertson)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 9.—(AP)—The betting commissioners are quoting 8 to 5 on Brevity and 11 to 5 and holding Phil Price Headley's Hollyrood at 5 to 1 to take the Kentucky Derby, but their traders declare the odds far too short.

"It's a 5-1 shot and there can't make a starter," declared Pete Orne who trains Hollyrood for Headley yesterday.

Hollyrood is too short at "even odds," said 36-year-old Doral Sherry as he watched his uncle's star workout over the track.

Along with the two favorites, Brevity, Rockingham Stable entry, says he is receiving a strong play on William Woodward's Granville and R. R. Bradley's Bashford Manning, both stables that sent out Gallant Fox and Omaha to win the Derby, still can be had at 20 to 1. The same odds are quoted against Bashful, which until recently was not regarded on a par with Bradley's Blen Joli, the two-year-old of 1935, which is held at 30-1.

DETROIT O'S WIN IN FIRST GAME

Defeat Bulldogs From Windsor 8-1 For I. H. L. Trophy

Detroit, April 9.—(CP)— This city of champions had a firm hold on the International Hockey League championship today as Detroit Olympics routed after their victorious start in the title hunt.

The high-powered Olympics moved confidently and successfully to defeat Windsor Bulldogs 8-1 here last night in the first game of the best-of-five series for the league crown. They go into the second game in Detroit Thursday night with a lead to end the series quickly.

Just like their big league brothers, Red Wings of the National league, the Olympics were primed perfectly after a week's layoff. They had disposed Syracuse Stars in three straight in the league play-off but were expected to meet stiff opposition from the tenacious Bulldogs.

There was no doubt as to the result after the first period as Carl Gerou shot Olympics into a 3-1 lead in the first period. Jim Arnott had fired a goal for Bulldogs after only six minutes and it seemed the Windsor defence, behind the brilliant Earl Robertson, would hold.

The rout of the Bulldogs started midway through the second period in which Gerou, Jack Shill and Ken Doraty scored for Olympics. Doraty finished the net trick in that period and Fred Sheridan and Johnny Caldwell once apiece. Johnny Sherf, Don Smillie and Don Deacon drew the assists.

It didn't take the Olympics long to break into the scoring in the third period. Ron Hudson did it a little more than three minutes from the start and Sherf wound it up four minutes later.

YAWKEY WANTS TO SPEND MONEY AS HE PLEASES

(By Scotty Reston)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 9.—(AP)—If he's not adding too much, Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of Boston Red Sox, would like to spend his money as he pleases without a flood of criticism from the other owners in the American League.

Yawkey nearly wants it made clear "with the exception of the deal for Joe Cronin every price I have been quoted as paying for ball players has been grossly exaggerated, even if they hadn't it would be none of the league concern. It is generally accepted Yawkey spends more money than the club since 1932.

Everybody's worrying about my going broke," Yawkey said. "And while I appreciate their interest, I don't think there's much to the existence of that. I'm not thinking about going broke. I'm planning to splurge this season if I can get the players I want, because I think this adverse criticism is justified."

Yawkey's remarks were or three officials of other clubs in the League" and complained about the price the Boston Red Sox paid Cronin on Yawkey hopes to be able to negotiate the league meeting here Monday to get a new working agreement with other clubs whereever Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, is at work for the Ohio, can effect satisfactory deals.

DYNAMITERS AND SUDBURY READY

First Game For Allan Cup To be Played in Winnipeg Tonight

Winnipeg, April 9.—(CP)—Sudbury Cub Dynamiters, Northern Ontario Hockey title, Kimberley Dynamiters and Allan Cup champions, the only one the ice here tonight in the first game of the best-of-three series for the Cup.

Coach Johnny Ashbacher, who piloted the Sudbury squad to championships in their first Western Championship, and Frank Dumoulin, coach of the Western champions, announced their charges ready for the fray.

Dynamiters, arriving from the east yesterday, had a light drill at the Amphitheatre Rink. Kimberley, who laid down for them by their Intermediate victory here last night, were crippled children's and under-privileged children's hockey stars today.

Frank Dumoulin, through whom returns the local baseball fire hose and ladder team with a small sport of late, still chuckles over the way he had the pressure of the various Sudbury players. Dumoulin, who will actively present the situation with his team here next week, was a member of the team that won the title here by the local Sudbury Cubs, and had also been under selling, but at the time a crew grabbing the best of it.

The latest reports from President Swanston's Peterboro office of the O.H.A. is to the effect that the next league meeting will be held on May 2nd. At this time the question of further entries, umpires, play-offs, schedule and other questions will be the topic of discussion. Another message comes from Calder, to the effect that the "Cherries" would like to have the Belleville Intermediates back in the O.H.A. Ken Mercer and Ralph Redding will be on the job.

Jack Forney, Fatty Kemp, Fred Hall and Cecil Kosak are expected to get the call for the Sudbury forwards lines. Burrell and Botterill are also likely starters, with several others on their way to Winnipeg by plane. Ashbacher will announce his lineup tonight.

Jim Coleman, former professional who re-entered amateur ranks a years ago, will guard the Sudbury goal. Ken Reid, Sudbury defence man are slated to do the defence work with Bruce Cowell, centre and Wilbur Hiller and Jimmy Foster, wing.

Subs expected to be picked for the ice appear are Art Stuart, Tony Ortaldo, Eli Gervais and Ernie Grosso.

The officials will be "Windy" Lyndon, of Winnipeg and Tom O'Brien of Portage La Prairie, Man.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles. It is a reduced circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles. Don't resort to cutting yourselves and supposedities do not give you lasting or permanent relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal remedy like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it relieves the cause of piles—the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get relief from any round from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have my promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. J. S. McKeown & Son, druggists say you may return empty bottle to any gumming HEM-ROID.

How About It Bill? Do We Step Out This Easter!

I'll say we do—let's get a complete outfit of new clothes at Quick & Robertson's and step out with heads up in feeling gay, looking good, feeling good, and bound to make good.

That's a sample of conversation which might be heard between two young men of Belleville, chums—pre-Easter.

Consequently it was laid down for them by their Intermediate team, and the Belleville crippled children's and under-privileged children's baseball team.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Palm Sunday was observed at the United church and Rev. Dr. Bigg dealt with a special address by Rev. R. R. Nicholson, Colborne, entitled "The Calss of the Palms." Mrs. Harry Crier sang "The Palms."

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Brum (nee Pauline Buyck) of Toronto visited friends in town on Monday.

Mr. Chas. Allen, organist of the Presbyterian Church, Cobourg, presided at the organ at Tweed United church at the funeral of the late Mat Clarke on Monday.

A number of adults have been victims of the measles epidemic during the past few weeks. The disease is of a mild type and none has suffered any ill effect after-effects.

The ice has almost cleared out of Stoco Lake, only a small section along the east shore remaining. The water in the lake has dropped nearly three feet during the past few days.

The funeral of the late Max Gerald who passed away at Cobourg General Hospital early on Saturday morning, was held in Tweed United Church on Monday afternoon with Rev. R. R. Nicholson having charge of the service. The deceased, who had lived for the past four years in Cobourg was in his twenty-eighth year and succumbed to a two days' serious illness. Miss Dorothy Rogers sang most effectively "Only a little while," with Mr. Chas. Allen providing the accompaniment.

The deepest sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved relatives, namely Mrs. Ward of Tweed and the three small children, Helena, Jean and Billie.

A large number of friends from Cobourg motored to Tweed to attend the funeral. There was also a host of friends in Tweed who turned out in large numbers to pay their last respects.

The bearers were four brothers: Alex, George, Fred and Morrison and two brothers-in-law. Frank McGowan and Jack Ryan. Interment was in Victoria Cemetery, Tweed.

The County Roads Committee of the County Council met in Tweed on Tuesday afternoon to discuss repairs and improvements on the roads of the vicinity.

Tweed Travel

A supper held in the basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed, on Monday evening, March 30th, was the occasion of an interesting event in the history of the church—the presentation by the Session of the silver trowel used in the laying of the corner stone on September 18th, 1901, by Rev. Samuel Houston of Cook's Presbyterian Church, Kingston. The trowel after the ceremony was presented to Rev. Mr. Houston, as he was mainly instrumental in the founding of St. Andrew's. On leaving Canada for Ireland some years later Mr. Houston gave the trowel to his daughter in Kingston.

History of Church

At the last meeting of the Presbytery in Kingston on March, 1901, Rev. W. A. Hunter, minister of St. Andrew's, Tweed, was asked by this body to convey the greetings of the Session of the church in Tweed. Dr. W. M. Mather, on accepting the trowel from Mr. Hunter, gave a sketch of the past history of St. Andrew's from 1891 down to the present time.

In the early part of the year 1890 a family named Baird belonging to Cook's Church, Kingston, moved to the village of Tweed. In this way the attention of the minister of Cook's Church was called to the needs of the village. At the next meeting of the Kingston Presbytery held September 16th, 1890, the matter was brought up and a resolution was passed appointing Rev. Mr. Houston and Mr. Mowat to visit Tweed and report to the next Presbytery meeting.

Following Sunday, October 12th of the same year, two services were held in the Town Hall, Tweed, and arrangements made to provide the people with a missionary supply. During the months that followed his efforts on behalf of the people of Tweed a vote of thanks from the Presbytery was approved. Encouragement was held by Rev. Houston and a roll of membership was prepared. On presenting this report to the Presbytery on April 13th, 1891, the following resolution was agreed to: "That Tweed be put on the list of mission stations and that two declares per Sabbath be allotted this field."

During the winter of 1895-1891 the Mission Association of Queen's College supplied the station, and at the request of the people, Mr. Neil McPherson, theological student, was appointed to hold services during the following summer. At this time the people decided to build an edifice in which to hold public worship, it is was required, plans drawn up, and work was begun on the construction of the building.

Memorial Stone Laid

On September 22nd, 1891, the memorial stone was laid with due ceremony by Rev. Samuel Houston, amid general rejoicing of the people and to the great satisfaction of the Presbytery. Some time previous to the laying of the corner stone, a second Communion was conferred by Rev. Mr. Laing or Mr. Wallace. Mr. Mowat, afterwards, James Holdcroft and Hugh Stewart were elected Elders and were ordained on September 26th, 1891. During the winter of 1891-92 supply was continued as before, and for the summer of 1892, Mr. Neil McPherson was again appointed to take charge of the field.

Church Opened

On May 15th, 1892, the Tweed Presbyterian Church was opened in an appropriate manner by the Rev. Dr. Grant of Kingston, who preached to a congregation that filled the church to capacity, from the text Psalm 122-1: "Therefore, behold, we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race that is set before us."

During the same summer, services were begun at Fuller and in the following year Mr. Robert Laird, student, was placed in charge of Tweed and Fuller. In the summer of 1894, Mr. W. W. Peck looked after the spiritual needs of the people. The winter of 1894-95 saw the last supply of regular pastoral charge, as during May, June and July of 1895 Rev. Mr. Dutton was called by regular ministers appointed for a call.

On November 13th, 1895, Rev. D. M. Martin was ordained and inducted into the pastorate of Sesbon thereafter, Mr. James Holdcroft was appointed Session Clerk. In 1900 Rev. Martin resigned and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Harkness who continued as minister until the autumn of 1902. On November 30th Rev. Jas. Rimmis was inducted. During his pastorate two additional elders, Mr. S. R. Rollins and Mr. W. H. Delbridge were appointed. Services were discontinued at Fuller and a new field was opened at Bellside. Fuller united at this time with the Roslin charge.

In 1913 Rev. Jas. Raitray succeeded Rev. Mr. Rimmis. Induction services took place in January. After eight years in charge of the Tweed-Sulphide field, Rev. Mr. Raitray retired, to be succeeded by Rev. W. A. Campbell in 1921, and Rev. W. J. McTavish in 1923, the latter remaining for two years. In 1925, a congregational vote on the question of Church Union was taken, resulting in 13 for and 38 against Union.

After the vote, Rev. T. C. Marshall of the Presbyterian Church, Madoc, agreed to supply the Tweed pulpit, holding services on Sunday afternoons. In 1931 Rev. Marshall resigned the Madoc charge. For several months subsequently, various ministers supplied the vacancy. Finally Rev. Bertram Nelles of Port Hope was chosen and carried on until 1934. On his resignation Rev. W. J. Hunter, B.A., B.D., was chosen minister and has carried on efficiently and to the satisfaction of all since that time.

Just as your household needs cleaning, so the human body needs cleansing. Nature does this by means of the kidneys. Healthy kidneys get rid of the poisonous matter in the blood—but in their normal function they fail, poisons gather and disease follows. Grass Seed Mixtures For Pasture Lands

(Experimental Farm Note)

A careful study of pasture problems at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Fredericton, has shown, that the use of an ordinary hay-seed mixture may be corrected into good permanent pasture by proper fertilization and good pasture management. This does not mean that permanent pastures may not be more quickly established by the use of special pasture strains of grasses and legumes, but these are more expensive and the seed is not so readily available at the present time.

Pasture investigations at the Fredericton Experimental Station show quite definitely that a gradual change takes place in the character of the herbage where pastures are properly managed. Annual surveys of experimental pasture plots made for the Fredericton Station by the Division of Botany, Ottawa, show that the more desirable plants are gradually replacing the less desirable ones. For example, in one pasture area, White Dutch clover which was in third position in 1928 is now in first position and make up 30-35 per cent of the herbage. Brown top which was in first position, is now in second place while Red top in position five years ago is now only to be found by search.

There are also undesirable plants such as tall buttercups and tall dandelions which normally occupy the same position as they did five years ago. On the other hand, such weeds as the daisy, were quite plentiful five years ago but today can only be found on pasture plots that have remained untreated by means as checks.

Another pasture experiment at the Fredericton Station began in 1935 will be of interest in this connection. An area previously summer fallowed was divided into plots and seeded down with five different single species like timothy, Red clover and five mixtures of grasses and clovers in duplicate. Two additional plots were also seeded to serve as checks. This experiment has been treated with a complete fertiliser and grazed with cattle each year. Three years' observations of this area show that a gradual change has taken place on all plots. There is every likelihood that the majority of these plots will have much the same ground in a few years. Crested wheat grass alone was winter killed the first year. This plot now has an excellent stand of plants composed as follows: 30 per cent wheatgrass, 15 per cent volunteer brown top, 10 per cent other volunteer grasses and some weeds. Ground cover is per cent.

The plot where grass were left unseeded had a fair stand of plants the first year and the herbage at present is as follows: White clover 40 per cent, brown top 7 1-3 per cent, red top 13 1-3 per cent, Kentucky blue 7 1-3 per cent, remainder other volunteer grasses. Ground cover 86 1-3 per cent.

Space will not permit of a complete summary of this very interesting experiment but it should be pointed out that the herbage at present is as follows: White clover 40 per cent, brown top 7 1-3 per cent, red top 13 1-3 per cent, Kentucky blue 7 1-3 per cent, remainder other volunteer grasses. Ground cover 86 1-3 per cent.

LODGE HONORED HOCKEY PLAYERS

Honoring Belleville's three stellar hockey teams of the past season, the Belleville Collegiate Institute athletic team and the two local O.H.A. squads, junior and intermediate, the officers and members of the Eureka Lodge 263, O.R.C., A.F. & A.M., tendered the players and officials of these clubs a banquet at their regular monthly meeting held in the Masonic Temple this evening. A splendid turn-out of players, visitors and members availed themselves of the get-together, that inclined to weld together a mutual feeling between the hockey fans and the players.

Speaking on "the value of athletics to a community" Mr. J. E. Shortt, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., gave the principal speech of the evening, a talk that proved educational as well as interesting. Mr. Shortt opened his address by telling of various personal relationships with great athletes of past years and some of the handicaps these sportsmen were confronted with. In speaking of sports and athletics Mr. Shortt pointed out their value in a community to the growing youth, as they build the youthful mind and body to fine the more difficult tasks of mature life. Mr. Shortt also dwelt on sport for adults and the advantages of athletics in a community from the standpoint of recruiting together a community spirit. In closing Mr. Shortt lauded the various major hockey teams that represented Belleville last winter and brought fame and recognition back to our city. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Jas. Adams.

In replying Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, principal of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, Coach Shiels and Don Thomas, secretary of the O.H.A. team, responded, stated Mr. MacLaurin as he paid tribute to the B.C.I.V.S. scholars and their combined athletic endeavours in general. CHICKEN HATCHERY HANDLES CHICKS WITH GREAT CARE

Manager of Local Company Denies Stories of Cruelty That Have No Foundation in Facts

FEW FREAKS

Live baby chicks as Easter playthings for pampered children of the more well to do homes are definitely out. Appealing though they may be, the sentiment that the balls of fluff may not fit playthings for children of any age. To sell them as such would be cruel, although in the past they have admittedly been purchased from transient sellers in cities or towns as an added touch for Easter decorations. But no reputable dealer would sell the chicks unless in specified lots, emphatically declared Mr. Stan Wensley of the local Trenton Electric Hatcheries, one of the largest hatcheries of baby chicks in this central region.

Years of experience with hatching, breeding and the care annually of thousands of the furry chicks, has taught Mr. Wensley that chickens as well as humans have individual personalities. Casual observance of a pen for even week old chicks will prove this statement.

Tales of cruelty in the disposition of the young chicks until the market through the method of drowning, gassing and other simple means of throwing them, still alive, in cans and leaving them with the garbage, or as food for pigs in commercial piggeries were spoiled by the local manager.

"Again no dealer could afford to do this, even if he wanted to. His reputation would suffer. When you are dealing in the business you think more of the little things than just as something to treat with cruelty. Anyone with experience knows how to kill the young chickens with no pain at all. And we don't use poison gas, water or anything else like that."

In Rochester, N.Y. it was stated in a news despatch, several hundred live baby chicks were thrown into two 40-gallon cans to die. It was alleged. But this was denied with a record replies by hatchery men of that city.

Well Regulated Business

"Hatcheries", pointed out Mr. Wensley, "are one of the most regulated industries under the inspection of the department of agriculture."

In spite of an apparently delicate constitution, chickens possess a vitality that is far in excess of the human constitution. Given an egg, heat they'll survive conditions under which the human frame would perish. The average rate of hatch from ordinary eggs is generally seventy per cent.

Out of a total of between 70,000 and 80,000 chicks hatched in the local plant only a few percentage of cripples, freaks and other deformed chicks is surprisingly low.

"I've been in the business for years, and I've never seen a freak, that is regular freak", although often you read about them in the papers. About the most I ever saw was one or two with legs where their wings should be, or minus legs at all, but these are not considered real Barnumesque freaks among dealers.

Very Dependable

Commercial incubators at the present time, it was stated possess a high degree of dependability and are possessed of almost human intelligence in the matter of hatching. The local hatchery possesses one that has a capacity of 20,000 eggs at one time. Its perfect has been its operation that even during the recent flood when water invaded the building, reaching a point several inches above the floor, and only three inches from the motor where it stayed for days, out of a custom batch of 20,000 eggs brought in by a rural resident of the district, 247 live chicks were hatched even though twenty-nine of the eggs were later found infertile.

PARISIAN ARTIST ON GLOBE TOUR

Gives Impressions of His Travels During Brief Stay in City

His only stock in trade a bundle of pencils and a portfolio of drawing paper and finished specimens of his many portraits, Andre Devenson, late of Paris, France, and now globe trotter extraordinaire, pays his way in his aimless travels through his lightning quick pencilled portraits he sketches en route.

Today, during a brief stop over in Belleville, the beret topped, high-booted visitor, in English that was picturesquely dotted with sentences in his native tongue and aided with the unfamiliar quotations of modern day slang, he described business in Paris.

"Out, but the business, you look for it, non? On side streets and main streets and restaurants. And then, if it pay well, I go to the future there will be no pay, yes?" he impressed as he finished the last drop of his steaming hot coffee at the lunch counter of a downtown cafe.

Deft and sure of his wanderings, Devenson and his pencils have invaded homes of the wealthy and palaces of the rich. On the dark brown walls of modern lunchettes hangs many exhibits of his portrait and scenic art. For the Belleville visit, he chose to give preference to the darkmoonless of evening. Ships, barges and gravels, burgomasters, town managers and mayors of cities here and abroad are included in the group of exhibits. During the past winter months he has been in the lumbering regions of the Ottawa Valley, but now that the snow will be returned to his home near Paris for a brief trip after a previous stop over in Montreal and then the southern portion of the United States.

Out for Experience

Now, at the age of 26, for four years Devenson has been plying his art from studio apartments to use when he reaches the goal he has set.

"Some", he indicated, waving a hand, "is just a—how do you call it?—a manner paster it can go on further, and maybe save a little as I go. There is much yet to see; other countries; they, too, shall be drawn with their people".

Unlike the ordinary itinerant portrait artist, Devenson does not "hitch rides or depend on rides from place to place. Well supplied with money he travels by bus and car, living hotel when convenient and farm houses when away from the more settled places. Portraits at twenty-five and fifty cents apiece is how he was slowly income to pocket. When the sum gets too large for safe carrying it is banked to be used for further efforts towards permanent art in oils, preferably portraits with allusings in his own studios.

Enjoys Working with Oils

"Not always do I use the pencil, but the best, yes, eep?" From the wide range of exhibits two small canvasses were produced. Remarkable in tone and color and character, the two portraits were a fine example of art, from the reporter's untrained view point.

Despite hard times and depression have left behind nations of and faced people, in the opinion of the artist, not particularly in Canada or the United States, continental unrest in Europe has imprinted a passivity and seriousness upon faces that has been strangely noticeable to the trained observer. Even the proverbial smiling countenance of the French has undergone a change.

Fortunes Vary

Devenson will not tarry too long in Belleville, smaller cities of Ontario have been "not so much money" for transient artists. Kingston visited yesterday, was good for only coffee and cakes. Montreal, however, is a bonanza for his trained hand.

Heading toward the west today the next visit will be Toronto. From there the setting sun will beckon further toward the coast. After that "who knows?" he asks, with a characteristic shrug.

Walking at the city hall this morning, Devenson sought an interview briefly with Mayor Hill. It was unnecessary and the means of creating good will, to present free of charge a small portrait in pencil of the chief principal characters of the various cities he touches on his tours.

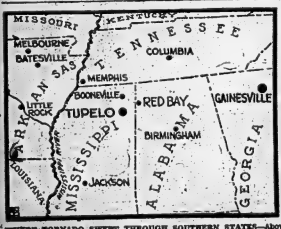
Two other persons survived the crash. The aeroplane was westbound from Newark and crashed in a storm.

HOLY CITY, ONCE TINY VILLAGE, NOW THRIVING—Modern architecture mingles with landmarks of antiquity in New Jerusalem. Once a tiny village in the time of Christ, it has become a thriving metropolis of 300,000 inhabitants, many of whom fled to the Holy City from Germany and other nations of Europe where anti-semitism raises its head. The pictures ABOVE show how modernity and antiquity exist side by side in the historic city.

The massive British liner is viewed from an aeroplane as she is nudged into the world's largest drydock at Southampton for a last cleaning and primping. She will leave May 27 for her maiden voyage to the United States.



WEDDING GONGS FOR MAJOR BOWES?—Reports of a romance which may lead to marriage between Major Edward Bowes, king of the radio, and Mary Garden, queen of the opera, are sweeping through theatrical and operatic circles in New York. The major, $600,000 a year miracle man of the gong and microphone, has been repeatedly seen in the company of the diva, and she has frequently been a guest during the major's amateur hour programs. They are shown together in the photograph. The major is a widower. Miss Garden has never been married.

FIRES FOLLOW IN WAKE OF SOUTHERN TORNADO—Broken gas mains and electric cables caused many fires to break out amid the ruins of Gainesville, after tornado had swept through the town. At least 179 persons lost their lives in the wind storm; and 1,000 more were injured. Property damage, that was greatly increased by the fires, will probably reach $6,000,000. This picture shows a vista of wreckage in Gainesville after the storm; with flames raging in damaged building in the background.

PRINCIPALS IN ONTARIO SEPARATE SCHOOLS DEBATE—In the above layout are principals in the battles being waged in the Ontario legislature over the reading of a government bill to give separate schools (Catholic) a larger share of corporation taxes than they have been receiving in the past. Sessions running until the early hours of the morning and featured by much vituperation on both sides led by Premier Hepburn (UPPER LEFT), Hon. Geo. S. Henry (UPPER RIGHT), opposition leader; LOWER LEFT to RIGHT, Hon. Leopold Macaulay and A. H. Acres, opposition members, and Aurelien Belanger of Prescott, government spokesman.

WHERE TORNADO SWEPT THROUGH SOUTHERN STATES—Above map shows areas hit by tornadoes which caused a heavy death toll and great property damage. At Tupelo, Miss., the known death toll reached 62, and at Gainesville, Ga., where the business district was hardest hit, the death toll was expected to reach 300.

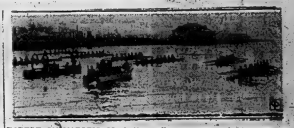
Now another tornado has torn through the neighboring state of Georgia leaving greater ruin and death in its wake.



FAMOUS SCIENTIST LEAVES ON "VACATION"—When Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, energetic American scientist, who pokes into odd corners of the world in search of man's earliest ancestors, sailed from Vancouver recently for the Orient, he embarked on something of a "Pulping Picnic". The indefatigable doctor, who has a habit of coming back from the Gobi Desert with odd collections of dinosaur eggs and other relics of life in distant ages, is—take his own word for it—going on a holiday. He adds to that the explanation that it is really a honeymoon, for he is accompanied by his charming bride of a year. "No exploration this time—things too unsettled over there," Dr. Andrews said.

ORATORIO SUNG AT ST. ANDREW'S

'Olivet to Calvary' is Impressively Presented by Choir and Soloists

"Olivet to Calvary", Easter oratorio by J. H. Maunder, and one of his best known compositions, was impressively sung at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening by the choir and vocal soloist artists. A large number heard the music of the theme, which Miss Harry Sting to usher in Good Friday, Mr. G. G. Bender, organist and choirmaster, conducted and played the organ.

The oratorio which is not a lengthy composition, contains many magnificent choruses and a number of fine solos, so that it is an apt vehicle for musical expression of the theme leading up to the dread event on Calvary. It is indeed a favorite with choir and lover many every bar and every line. The choruses were rendered with a very fine sense of the importance of the musical thought; the clashes of thought and music beautifully given, the rhythm was perfectly preserved, and the volume of the choir, tenor, alto, bass and soprano sections clearly marked in those parts where they were necessary for the most pleasant and harmony of the musical theme. The soloists were Mrs. Fay Andrew of Mount Pleasant, Miss Leatha Hoover, Mr. Lewis Hoover and Mr. Ernest Deacon, who rendered their solos and duets with fine appreciation of the theme and the music. Mrs. Andrew's solo, "Oh Rest in the Lord" was well rendered by the members. A short business session followed after which the members played croklinoe. A contest conducted by Miss Grace Wilson and Miss Gladys Gladney was much enjoyed by those present after which delicious refreshments were served by the ladies.

LEADS PHILHARMONICS—A recent portrait of Artur Rodzinski, young conductor of the Cleveland orchestra, who will be one of the two conductors of the New York Philharmonic orchestra next season. The Philharmonic—one of the ace groups of the music world—has not yet announced the name of the other conductor. It had recently arranged to bring Wilhelm Furtwengler, a German conductor, to the U.S., but the storm of protest that followed because of the Nazi situation, caused Furtwengler to decline the invitation.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

"So you left the Gypsy Pavilion at least five hours before you got home here," said the mother, her eyes slowly and suspiciously to Vernon.

"What if I did? It's none of your business what I did!"

The two men looked at each other, then the elder said: "Don't you know that we can put you under lock if you refuse to accompany for your movements? Don't you know it's a serious matter to impede the course of the law? That servant girl out there"—he nodded towards the kitchen region—"answered fair and square. All you do is lie to us."

"Done, John," said the younger, more sympathetic man, "tell us where you were between four and nine o'clock this morning."

"I can't. I won't." Her voice broke, though she bravely tried to steady it.

"Then you'll be forced to tell it as headquarters. We'd better take her along, Mike," said the superior.

Vernon stammered, pleading: "Give me a little time. My father and mother—wait till they arrive tonight—they'll fix everything."

Hooted a pregnant pause. Then the older man told the younger dumbly that he must wait in the apartment with that girl until someone was sent to relieve his watch.

"Of all the crazy-fool things to do as borrow a valuable necklace and then lose it, this beats everything, Maggie Tynon!"

Her mother and father had returned late in the evening, and both were terribly perturbed to find, not only Vernon, but a stolid-faced detective guarding her in the apartment.

"If it gets into the papers, it'll ruin us! No one'll ever dare to say-where. I could slap you for your silly vanity, Maggie!" wailed her mother. "Oh, I should never have let you come here alone from Hot Springs, the gracious! losing the Prince's family necklace!"

The same old performance was gone over and over. The supervising detective for the Insurance company had returned. Vernon had another grilling.

"And you were out all night, and you won't even tell us where you were, My daughter a common little flapper!" And Mrs. Tynon's voice, never low at any time, rose to an hysterical scream.

"Be quiet, Sadie. You confuse the child. We should never have come to this town at all. It was all come to this town at all. It was all your doing, Sadie, and I will say in the bedroom by ourselves and don't let them hear us, you old Dad!" With a heavenly compassion and love brimming his round face, he put his arms around his daughter.

Instead they were alone, Vernon flung her arms about his neck and clung to him. "You're an angel, darling. You'll stick by me?"

"To my last breath!"

She wept a little on his shoulder, his big arms were so comforting, and she was so exhausted.

Then suddenly she drew back. Her eyes had a bright hope, a power in them.

"Darling will you trust me? Will you do something for me?"

"To the best of my ability, my girl. I've never failed you yet, have I?"

"Never, Daddy dear! I only want time, and I'll get that necklace back. Don't breathe a word to those detectives, but I'm sure I know who took it!"

"Tell me, my pet. We'll put the law on him—if he'..The law'll move quickly."

"Listen. I haven't the evidence yet—not nearly enough to convict the—the person. But if you'll give me just one little—one little short week—leave it to me—I'll clear up everything!"

He stroked her head as though she were a child who had to be humored. "But what could a little thing like you do against a thief? The affair's beyond us. It's in the hands of the law now."

"It won't be—not if you do as I say—if you'll agree to my plan, darling! Oh, you know you must!"—she pleaded frantically—"if you want this thing kept out of the papers—if you want justice at all—you've got to agree to my scheme!"

"Out with it then," said Jake dubiously. Certainly they were in the direction of a mess. If a scandal leaked out in the papers, it would kill Sadie!

Vernon acted on this. "You know what all this means to Mother? You know how she depends on the opinion of people!"

His general, Sadie's absurd social ambitions were his very old afflictions.

"I want just one little week to work in, and no questions asked. I tell you I've a shrewd idea of what has happened to the necklace. But if suspicion were thrown on the per-

THE TARZAN TWINS

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

The springing lion missed the boys, but by a margin so narrow that a claw touched the heel of Dick's shoe. With an agility born of desperation they climbed high above the angry beast of prey. "Why didn't you look him in the eye and make him turn tail?" Dick demanded.

"I was going to, but he wouldn't stand still." Doc replied; "why didn't you bring an umbrella to frighten him?" Beneath them now, Numa, the lion, stood glaring up with blazing yellow-green eyes, exposing yellow fangs, and keeping fateful vigil over his intended victims.

Fortunately for the boys Nature had not endowed Numa with the ability to climb.

But perhaps a quick death was preferable to this long must surely end in death. To remain in the tree would be to starve or to fall asleep and topple down. All paths led to doom!

But Numa was not of a mind to prolong this game of human versus animals wits. Numa knew a trick which should bring it to swift conclusion. He strode majestically back along the trail; but around the first turn he halted, kneaded about, and lay down out of sight.

son now, nothing would come of it. But I'll find ways and means, Dad —it will never go through the bank, put I want you right now to write a check for $50,000 please!"

"Jumping Jehosophat! That's a tremendous amount!"

"I know. But it's the amount the necklace is insured for. The check'll never go through—it'll never be cashed—it's just to be written as a sign of good faith, to Dreamy. We'll get them to promise to hold it for one week—against the loss of the diamonds. They'll promise us to return our check the minute I get back the real necklace."

"But—"

"No buts. You'll have to pay in any case, if you don't let me go ahead with my plan, darling. I signed a paper making me responsible for the necklace when I took it from the jeweler. Now I've lost all my movements, so that makes me the criminal, in their eyes. If I tell everything I know now, if I account for my movements, I'll be arrested, and they'll never catch the real thief."

Jake Tynon pondered this. While he trusted his young daughter, he was skeptical of her ability as a detective. Still and all, she was so desperately eager—he was financially able to put up $50,000 as a guarantee—her reputation, family reputation were worth it. And maybe the check would never be put through.

"Darling, write it now. Drouet's will wait the week. Let me get busy on the job in my own way, I'll show you!"

Jake yielded to her pleading. He adored his daughter, though he did not often show it. And there seemed a method in her madness. Certainly it would keep a scandal out of the papers in the meantime, anyhow.

Vernon scarcely slept that night, her mind revolving various courses of action.

She had been "not at home" to the telephone calls of Prince Karlieff. She did not wish, at this stage, to discuss the missing necklace with him. Nor did she wish him to know that she definitely suspected him.

He had deliberately dropped the cup of coffee in the Gypsy Pavilion, after the Pageant, she was sure. How else could one account for the dizzy, drowsy feeling that had overcome her almost immediately she had drunk the coffee?

Then—taking her in that condition of semi-consciousness to his apartment—and permitting her to pass the night there! It had surely been done for two reasons—to remove the real diamond necklace and substitute the imitation in its place—and to compromise her, so that her lips might be sealed.

"The cad! The criminal!" Lois thought Vernon. Mrs. Graves, at the time, Her now showing how the wind was blowing.

Yet Mrs. de Bray was the very one who was constantly furthering the Prince's chances with Vernon! Surely friendship alone couldn't be the motive! They had known these people such a short time. And Mrs. de Bray somehow had always been in the centre of their honeymoon spending.....!

3 DROWNED AS BRAZILIAN CLIPPER OVERTURNS

CLIPPER UPSETS AVOIDING BOAT, 3 PERSONS DROWN

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, Harbor, Scene of Disaster

17 REPORTED HURT

Victims Include Two Passengers And One of Crew

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, April 11—(AP)—Three persons drowned today when the Pan-American Airways Brazilian clipper turned over in the harbor in an attempt to avoid a fishing boat as the plane was taking off.

The dead, including two passengers and one member of the crew, were—

Eric Brough, London, passenger.

E. Roman Martinez, New York City, passenger.

Amedeo Lopez, steward.

The plane sank after it had ground looped on the water and became almost totally submerged.

The accident occurred at 9.35 a.m. local time (4.30 a.m. E.S.T.).

Many Injured

Rio de Janeiro, April 11.—(CP)—Reports received here today said that 16 or 17 passengers on the Brazilian Clipper which overturned in the Port-of-Spain harbor, including Jose Iturbi, celebrated pianist, were injured in the accident.

The injured, it was included Mrs. Maxwell Rice, wife of the Vice-President of the Pan-American Airways of Brazil.

Jose Iturbi, world famous pianist, left Miami aboard the Brazilian flying boat for a concert swing around South America, which will end in Rio de Janeiro. He was believed Pan-American officials to be one of the rescued passengers.

Another of the party was ordered South from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to rejoin the Brazilian Clipper on its trip. From Trinidad, the planes' wing 1,650 miles to Para (Belem), at the mouth of the Amazon.

Senator Cagidio Culbertson and Stewart Graham, the Clipper's purser crew consisted of the following, all from Miami, Fla.:

L. B. Osborne, co-pilot; Frank Rose, Flight engineer; F. L. Fowler, Flight engineer; John W. Fowler, radio operator, and Ralph W. Rice, purser.

Damage to the plane, which cost $250,000 to build two years ago, was believed slight from the actual collision but the corrosive effect of salt water on the delicate instruments and motors were expected to take heavy toll.

Pan-American said the following were aboard the wrecked airliner—Arthur W. Carr, Turcolo; Norman L. Smith, New York; Jose Iturbi, Hayward, Milwaukie; Jose Iturbi, New York (and his secretary; name not immediately known); and Mrs. Clayborne Rice, Rio de Janeiro.

Pan-American reported its radio facilities functioned well and endeavoring with difficulty to obtain the names of other passengers.

Brett of Stratford was badly smashed, when it collided with a truck driven by Leslie Davidson of Glowell.

Mr. Brett, his wife and daughter, Mrs. J. J. Smale, were cut by flying glass but were not seriously injured. A baby daughter of Mrs. Smale's, held in her lap, escaped injury although pieces of broken glass were found in her clothing.

EMPEROR SELASSIE CLOSE TO DEATH

Rome, April 11 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, his famous beard cut off to prevent recognition, came close to death on the northern front, Italian dispatches said today but escaped by hiding in an abandoned church while his bodyguard held a defense.

Advices from Asmara Eritrea said the emperor was cut off with slight reconnoitering party defeated by the northern Italian army last week just south of Lake Ashangi.

Weather Fair, Generally Mild For Easter Day

Balmy sunshine and soft breezes may greet Easter parsders on Sunday and top coats will not be needed to cover milady's finery, if predictions of the weather man made today are accurate. Although a threat of showers is hinted over the week end, according to probabilities, Sunday will or is expected to be fair.

As in the past Front Street and adjoining business streets are expected to be the scene of the annual turn-out of residents, clad for the most part in newly purchased togs that await Easter Sunday morning for their initial airing. Leading a bona fide "board walk" the central section of the city has been practically set aside for the exhibition of finery styles.

Throughout the city during the morning church bells will ring and worshippers, young and old, who will now their heads at services especially arranged for the glad Easter morning.

REV. DR. WILSON DIES IN CLEVELAND

Former Minister of Bridge Street Methodist Church

Announcement of the death of the Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, which occurred in Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday, Good Friday, will be received with deep feelings of regret by a large number of friends in Belleville and throughout this part of the Province of Ontario, where he was a well known and held in the highest esteem. Dr. Wilson had been ailing for months ago, as was his custom to spend the winter with his daughters, Mrs. Noble Rodgerson (Ethel Wilson) (Harry Frost, at Cleveland, and Mrs. Jack Bellamy, at Miami, a stroke recently which resulted in his death.

In the passing of the Rev. Dr. Wilson, a fine Christian gentleman in the full sense of the word has been removed from this life. For many years prior to his retirement in the year 1918 he was an outstanding and militate first in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and after the union with the Methodist Church. He was a preacher of cultured eloquence and profound piety; an able pastor; an exceptional merit and possessed a pleasing personality which attracted and held close friendships. Since his retirement Dr. Wilson had been living retired at his residence on Bridge Street East, and although his health had been failing of late years, he enjoyed excellent physical and mental health until his recent sudden illness. He was a faithful member of Bridge Street United Church.

FATHERS KINLIN AND WHALEN HURT

Car Strikes Trolley Car and Then a Motor-cycle

Toronto, April 11—Two priests in an automobile, a youth on a motorcycle were severely injured Saturday in a spectacular three-vehicle crash in the centre of Prince Edward Viaduct at 10.20 a.m.

Smashing with terrific impact into an eastbound trolley, the light coupe occupied by the two priests, shifted into reverse and then darted across the mechanical freak and shot back for a distance of 40 feet, colliding with a motorcycle, which was following along behind.

The injured are Rev. Father Frank Whalen of Tweed, Ont., and Rev. Father Joseph Kinlin of Hamilton Ont. and Robert Van Hunt, age 21 years of Toronto.

After colliding with the motorcycle, the driver of which flew over the handlebars of his car, the auto continued its mad course backwards and crashed against the wall of the viaduct. The motorcycle's frame was badly warped from the impact of the crash.

Father Kinlin, 1067 Dufferin Street, a passing motorist rushed Van Hunt to the East General Hospital where it was found he had received fractures of the left leg and shoulder.

Father Kinlin was taken to the East General Hospital by Chaplain Higler, of Millitem, Ontario. Examination disclosed that he had received severe head injuries, also he had not lost consciousness.

Father Whalen, attended at St. Michael's Hospital by ambulance. He suffered from head and facial injuries. He was also conscious when admitted to the hospital.

PILGRIMS THRONG INTO JERUSALEM FOR GREAT FETES

Bells in Rome Clang Out Resurrection of Christ

'NEW FIRE' LIGHTED

Paschal Candle Blessed by Papal Secretary of State

Jerusalem, April 11 (AP)—Pilgrims from the four corners of Christendom massed in Jerusalem for Holy Saturday ceremonies today while Jews observed the passover and Moslems celebrated their feast of Nebimusa.

Great crowds gathered at the church of the Holy Sepulchre for the Holy Fire Ceremony and the Patriarch's celebration of High Mass before Christ's tomb.

Rome, April 11 (AP)—The familiar clamor of bells of Rome's churches and Cathedrals filled the air today as the Church of Christ's resurrection and the end of the 40 days of Lenten mourning.

The bells have been silent since Holy Thursday with the Papal benediction, from the Papal Secretary of State blessed the Pope's Paschal candle, eight feet long and three inches in diameter.

Deep feelings of regret is being manifested in Belleville and throughout this part of the Province of Ontario where he was so well known and held in the highest esteem. Dr. Wilson had been ailing for months ago, as was his custom to spend the winter with his daughters, Mrs. Noble Rodgerson (Ethel Wilson) (Harry Frost, at Cleveland, and Mrs. Jack Bellamy, at Miami, a stroke recently which resulted in his death.

POLICE CAPTURE GOOD SUSPECT

'Easter Gift' Bomb Outrages Killed One and Blinded

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 11 (AP)—Investigators for the United States Department of Justice and police quizzed several persons, including one they termed a "good" suspect, today as they pressed a solution of the "Easter gift" bomb outrages that killed Mrs. Marie Barrand and blinded four other persons and terrorized the Back Mountain district.

Authorities refused to discuss the suspect but some officers said a clue not similar to those used in making the bombs was found in his possession.

Speeding to Wilkes-Barre from Washington and other eastern points inspectors considered two theories: a possible connection with the bomb killing of two postal employes at Easton, Pa., in 1931, and the impression existed here was the work of a crank maddened by a smouldering grudge against the anthracite valley. The bombs were similarly marked "Greetings."

State police and local authorities, however, stressed the fact most of the explosives sent to 12 persons early were figures in mine wars which made this region in turmoil for several years.

RECORD BREAKING EGGS ARE EXHIBITED

Mr. Walter Treverton, Latta, believes his pen of White Leghorn hens have given him the best in millinery records. Consistently during the past three weeks two of three of his hens have presented their owner with eggs of record breaking size, averaging in weight from 8 to 8 ounces.

One of the larger eggs exhibited to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer today measured 8 inches in length by 7 1-2 inches in circumference.

It weighed just 8 1-2 ounces.

The other egg was slightly smaller but was accompanied it. The large eggs filled ready sale to a local resident.

GEORGIA CHAIN GANGS HELP CLEAR TORNADO DEBRIS—Wearing their prison stripes—and in some cases their chains—convicts (Georgia chain gangs) work with other workers in clearing the wreckage from the site of a department store located on the town square of Gainesville, Ga. United Veterans Honor Vimy Dead and Renew Fealty to Britain's King

Guest Speaker at Vimy Dinner is Col. W. A. Bishop

WREATH IS PLACED

Vice Air Marshal Gives Interesting Sidelights on Great War

At the greatest gathering of War Veterans ever witnessed in this city, a gathering which brought together medal-wearing ex-members of every branch of His Majesty's service, members of Belleville and district United War Veterans' Association, the only organization of its kind in Canada, paid tribute to their hallowed dead and commemorated the nineteenth anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge at the city hall on Thursday evening.

Three hundred veterans representing former units of the Imperial Forces, the Canadian Legion and British Empire Service League, The Army and Navy Veterans in Canada; Gunners' Club, the 21st Battalion; 2nd Battalion; Royal Navy; Royal Canadian Air Force and representatives of the American Legion and former overseas units of the United States' Army, took part in the most successful program yet arranged.

Col. Bishop is Guest

The gathering had as its guest speaker Air Vice-Marshal W. G. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., Canada's war-time flying ace and highest ranking officer of the Canadian Air Forces, who waived the formalities of rank and honor to bring in his own inimitable style a human and vivid picture of Canada's part in the Great War, and her position in this respect today. Drama in the air; a forecast of what may come; humour and keen wit/clever were included in one of the best addresses his attentive listeners had ever heard.

In opening the evening's program, which was featured by the colorful following the excellent music served, G. H. Stobbs, President of the United Veterans' Association, voiced his sentiments as well as those of the gathering. Briefly he referred to Air Vice-Marshal Bishop as one who had measurably added to the laurels and undying fame of the Canadian Corps.

"Deeds of brave and daring achievement whom a nation are fit to honor with the highest award that could be bestowed. It is not necessary to say that we are proud and honored to have him here tonight," added the chairman.

The toast to His Majesty the King, previously proposed by Dr. Stobbs, was responded to by the National Anthem with the massed voices of all present.

Canada Requires Air Policy Is Challenge of Bishop, V.C.

Vimy Day Gathering of Belleville Veterans Told of Absolute Requirement of Development of Aviation

In spite of the fact that other nations have long since come to realize that safety of their country lies in protection from the air, and have equipped themselves with the best in military accessories that gold can offer, Canada is without an air policy. At present understatted with only 200 officers and 1,000 men, she is also dependent upon planes and equipment that is quite inadequate to protect her neutrality, declared Air Vice Marshal W. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., in a challenging address before the assembled war veterans at the annual observance of Vimy Night at City Hall on Thursday evening.

"We, too, in this country have a peaceful record, a justifiable pride in our defence. There have been great developments in aviation during the past thirty years, but Canada has been drifting along."

Prince Not Forsaid

"There is no use of us saying there will never be another war. It is quite possible that if the Empire is threatened our neutrality will be threatened—the results no one can conceive."

"Bullfighting is Like Love Says Woman Toreador

New York, April 11—(AP)— An urge to go back to bullfighting when she becomes a mother, explained by 18-year-old Portia Portar, who stopped waving the red cape a bull in the ring because "my mother wouldn't stand for it."

"Bullfighting is a very nice profession for a girl. It's like love: You never know how its going to turn out," Portia said. "Maybe I will be sad to have been North America's first woman toreador."

Her wish to go back to the bandarillas was voiced promptly by her mother, Mrs. Portar, who lives in early or San Antonio, Tex.

"I didn't raise my daughter to be a bullfighter," said Mrs. Portar, a worried-looking blonde woman. "When a bull snores rushing at you daughter, I want to tell you I'm fainting.

MARION STINSON OF WELLINGTON, DIES AFTER CAR CRASH

Driving Rented Car, Which Goes Out of Control And Hits Pole

NO INQUEST

Victim Going to Wellington With Friend to Spend Easter

Picton, April 11—Miss Marion Stinson, 40, employee of the Bell Telephone Company of Toronto, was killed when the car she was driving struck a telephone pole and overturned three miles west of Wellington, Friday.

Miss Stinson's chest was crushed when she was pinned beneath the car, and she lived only a few minutes. A passenger in the car, Jessie Haight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Haight of Wellington, living at Apartment 47, 2341 Yonge Street, Toronto, and employed by Millin-Bingham Limited, 72 Front Street West, Toronto, escaped with only a slight cut on the left eye and a bad shaking up.

Miss Stinson was driving a rented car and was going to Wellington, where she intended to pick up her mother and take her back to Toronto to live with her.

The car failed to make a corner and when the brakes were applied jumped the ditch, struck a hydro phone pole and landed on its top. Apparently the door came open, throwing Miss Stinson out as the car fell upon her.

Mr. Graham, who saw the accident, and his father, W. A. Graham, were the first on the scene and helped Haight lift the car from the injured girl.

Coroner T. A. Thompson of Wellington stated that it was unlikely an inquest would be held.

Miss Stinson was a former employee of the Bell Telephone Company in Wellington, leaving there only some years ago. She was in the middle forties. Her mother, Mrs. Thomas Stinson, is an invalid.

Evidence of railway employees that a whirring and alarm signals were operating at the time of the accident, and testimony by Tom Jackson of Toronto, Charles Murdoch and G. P. Young, members of the train crew, the car was proceeding north on the highway, and was driving directly in front of the train.

Twenty-five cars passed over the automobile before the train could be stopped. The body of the girl was found on the track near the scene of the accident and her father's body 70 yards away. Mrs. Woolton was found near her husband.

TRAGIC END TO EASTER WEEKEND AS FOUR KILLED

Two Cars Collide on Brow of Hill, One Travelling Very Fast

MASS OF WRECKAGE

Bodies of Victims Terribly Mangled And Crushed in Collision

London, Ont., April 11 (CP)—A deathroll of four was counted today from one of the worst automobile tragedies on record in Western Ontario.

Hugh Lamont, middle-aged plant manager of the General Steel Wares of London; his wife, Argylena, 41; Mrs. John McCue, Detroit, and Lyle Pardee, Schenectady, N.Y., were killed yesterday in a head-on collision of two automobiles on No. 2 highway just outside London city limits.

Homer Bettis, Toledo, O., believed to be the driver of the car in which Mrs. McCue and Pardee were passengers, and Isobel, five-year-old daughter of the Lamonts, were injured. Bettis had his ribs crushed and the young girl suffered only a bruised shoulder.

The crash up left a tangled mass of wreckage and brought tragic end to a planned Easter week-end holiday in Detroit by the Lamonts.

Eye-witnesses, police pieced together the story of the terrific collision on the brow of Wharncliffe Hill. Preliminary hearing will be held today under Coroner J. F. G. Colling of Lambeth.

The eye-witnesses, Aner Russell, 18, Don Luce, 18, and Bernard Gulle, 17, told police the Lamonts car had reached the top of the hill, moving leisurely, when the Ohio car came over the crest at terrific speed.

Almost Stopped.

Lamont drew his car over onto the shoulder of the road and had almost come to a stop when Bettis car, breaks jammed and skidding wildly, plowed into the London machine, swerved across the road and almost sheared off the right front section of the Lamont car.

All but Pardee died almost instantly. Pardee died after being rushed to hospital in London. All the deaths were attributed to crushed chests and fractured skulls.

Russell, Luce and Gulle rushed to the wreck and pulled the injured from the wreckage. They found Mrs. Lamont pinned under the steering wheel, her head cut and bleeding where it went through the windshield. Lamont was found a little farther on after making an effort to speak.

Bettis, his side badly crushed, was trying to free himself from the shattered wreckage. He was the only one still came to help him. Pardee was in the front seat with Bettis and Isobel in the Ohio car was sprawled in the back.

BLOCKS SIDEWALK AND WINS BET

On a fifty cent wager with a friend a local youth early Thursday evening, while on his holiday spree was at 8a peak in the midtown section. Both the bettor and the man on Front Street, and blocked the way side traffic temporarily, while backs turned skyward.

People are curious' commented the man who started this unusual stunt. "In the curious that, I'll bet I can block that walk over nothing at all."

"For fifty cents," squirred the friend.

Bets were placed. Taking up a station just off mid centre on the walk, the youth, apparently unconcerned to the passing crowds, stared steadily, at the sky directly above.

By twos and threes others stopped and gazed wonderingly, upward. Soon a large circle of star gazers had collected, blocking the walk while others detoured. Silently the youth slipped away, collected the bet and left the throng still gazing absorbedly skyward.

UNITED VETERANS HONOR VIMY DEAD

Toast to Comrades

Briefly, but impressively, Rev. Mr. Hall in his toast to the Fallen Comrades, referred to the inspiration that the aerial exploits of the honored guest had been to the youth of the Canadian Forces during the dark days of the war.

"Nothing could revive those memories of the spirit of comradeship of those days more than the meeting tonight," he added.

For over twenty years it had been his desire to meet Vice-Marshal Bishop, who had been so well known to all in the command, he continued' Mr. Hall.

"We, who are the groundlings of the Service, often had occasion to witness those aerial dog fights. That's Billy Bishop," he would say to say when a German plane was seen tumbling down the sky, with a red streak of fire. Then we were all satisfied."

Before the toast to the Fallen Comrades, Rev. Mr. Hall pointed to a scene hung on the wall, behind which whose chairs were turned inward, reserved. "We're here tonight, comrades, to pay our tribute of memory and respect to those fallen comrades—comrades we shall remember."

Quietly the lights clicked off as three hundred veterans arose to their feet and in the darkness, beheld a soft shaft of light. The rest darkness. A solitary bugle call, sweet breathing appeared suspended, while unforgettable memories of comrades whom they had fought with and fought, and now lay in their last sleep, flicked and trooped by, as bowed heads, which paid their silent tribute. Then, as the first soft notes of a piano began to play the silent voice of "Nearer My God to Thee" arose in memorial hymn, swelled and throbbed and died away.

From outside the first notes of a bugle broke. A silent reverie. Lingering at first, as if reluctant to break the spell, the bugle continued in the slow dirge for the dead. It was the most solemn moment of the year.

Then as lights again flooded on men's faces, there was a long pause, or tempo, loud and true, came the awakening notes of Reveille; death had not been in vain, in spirit of those, who had died.

Mayor Presents Key

Following the community singing led by Sergt. Major Tilberdey of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Major Leo delivered several variety numbers, Mayor Wallace Hall in a few previously welcomed Vice-Marshal Bishop at the dinner, taking the occasion to extend an official civic welcome on behalf of the city.

"Belleville is proud of Vice Marshal Bishop, and on behalf of the city which I represent, I have the present I hereby extend the official key as our appreciation of your visit," said the Mayor, simply. Amid hearty applause the large key was presented.

Wing Commander G. O. C. Johnson of the R.C.A.F. then spoke on behalf of the permanent air service, in his congratulatory address to Vice-Marshal Bishop upon achieving the highest honor possible in Canada, declared the occasion was the first offered since the appointment.

We can only say, sir, that the Royal Canadian Air Force deeply appreciates the privilege of having taken part in such a great unit of the Force. We feel that the inspiration of your war record will be most helpful and one, that will linger many years."

Wing C. O. Aaronson, M.P., declared he would reverse the ordinary procedure of the evening and instead of introducing the guest of honor, he would introduce the man who would be introduced to the guest. Belleville, after the war, was like a lot of others, when we had returned men's units formed here, but they were scattered and pointed out the local representatives.

"They seemed to be working at cross purposes, finally, through the co-operation of the organizations, unification into one solid body was accomplished and we formed the first and most unique organization of its kind in Canada, now known as the Belleville and District United War Veterans' Association."

Mr. Cameron referred to the efforts made to secure a speaker for the annual Vimy observance. There was only one name suggested Col. Bishop. I was to be content. I had my doubts, but when I didn't know Mr. Bishop then as well as I do now. I wrote him; Marshal Bishop replied "Count on by—I'll be with you."

Biographical Sketch

In a brief, biographical sketch of the distinguished guest he was to introduce, Mr. Cameron referred to Marshal Bishop as being Padre of Owen Sound, later attending Royal Military College, and being one of the first Canadian graduates of the 9th Battalion. When this was broken up, privately Bishop applied for transfer to the air service. In the year 1917 he was made Lieutenant. In April of that year Lieut. Bishop won his first decoration, the Military Cross. On July 1st he was made Captain. Soon after he received the Distinguished Service Order, and in August of the same year he was given the highest honor the Empire can bestow, the Victoria Cross and a bar to the D.S.O. Besides this, outlined Mr. Cameron, Col. Bishop was given decorations by almost every Allied power. Those awards can speak and introduce Marshal Bishop more eloquently than I," concluded Mr. Cameron.

Mr. Cameron recalled Mr. Bishop's work performed by the sea.

"His war job was a day and night patrol, crossed the lines and sighted an enemy Zeppelin. No one about here, and no form. He continued twelve miles into German territory and sighted another 'drome. Several machines were outside, some with engines running, while mechanics were tuning up others. Diving low, he opened fire with his machine gun. One pilot managed to get off the ground but he crashed that plane. Then a second one, and Major Bishop put his ship in zero. Two more climbed and he finished them. A fourth managed to get clear enough to suffer his enemy fire, but the while he was forced to head for home, during the run, he managed as he turned to go home to shot down two more. Major Bishop well above him, between him and his own lines. But the German fighting spirit was very aglow to attack him."

"Tonight we will not only introduce him as a brave and heroic but as a veteran of the air service—a man who was and is the idol of all Canadians," concluded Mr. Cameron, amid applause that pealed and deafened, drowning out the cheers for hand who had responded in salute.

Visibly Affected

Visibly affected by the spontaneity of the tribute to his former service—a man who was and is the idol of all Canadians," concluded Mr. Cameron, amid applause that pealed and deafened, drowning out the cheers for hand who had responded in salute.

TAXATION CAUSE OF MOST DEBATE

Sometime Lacking in 19th Legislature's Session

Toronto, April 11 (CP)—Believed of their duties for another year, Ontario legislators have left Queen's Park to the traditional inter-sessional calm after the strenuous second session of the province's nineteenth legislature.

Civil servants, returning Tuesday after the long Easter week-end, once more will walk through nearly-empty corridors. The green-walled legislative chamber will remain neglected except for visits of tourists.

Taxation aroused most discussion in the exhausting session. When it opened Feb. 11, the Provincial Income Tax Bill, assuming the municipalities' rights of taxing incomes, was introduced. The last bill passed before prorogation Thursday was the measure granting Separate Schools a larger share of corporation taxes.

Between the lengthy debates provoked by both bills members discussed Hydro, forestry resources and a long list of other legislation concerning health, labor, highways and numerous other matters.

Sensations Lacking.

The session lacked the sensational features of last year when Premier Hepburn's government introduced legislation to cancel the Quebec power contracts, this brought a 37-hour Conservative filibuster.

The 1936 assembly of the legislature, however, was perhaps more strenuous with more committee meetings, morning sessions for the first time and the customary number of night sessions. The Separate Schools Bill caused the longest consecutive debate, lasting more than 36 hours, and for a time threatened to defer prorogation.

Scheduled to open Jan. 21, the session was postponed until Feb. 11 owing to the death of King George V. On opening day tributes were paid to the late Monarch. The House passed a humble address to King Edward VIII expressing sympathy on the death of his father and congratulations on his accession to the throne.

Income Tax Bill.

When the government introduced the Income Tax Bill that day, it brought a protest from the Opposition. From that time, Conservatives waged a stubborn attack on the measure, contending the government should suppor a financial statement showing why it was necessary. Finally, a move to give it a six months' hoist until the following session was forthcoming was made but the government defeated the amendment.

Brief mention of last year's Hydro debate followed introduction of the bill to validate contracts with the Madawaska, Quinsam and Chatham Power Companies. From these contracts the government estimated a saving this year of $6,280,688 compared with the former commitments.

The Power Resources Regulation Act provided for re-allocation of large blocks of power, thereby limited the charge of "repudiation" at the measure sat on Thursday tried unsuccessfully to give it a six months' hoist.

Labor Acts Amended.

Amendments were effected in several labor acts to give workers further protection and the Apprenticeship Act was changed to make it available more youths entering useful trades.

The government curbed what it contended was arbitrary power exercised by the former optometrical board and now plans a study of special legislation for the betterment of the similar organizations.

Provision was made for increased provincial and municipal aid to convalescent hospitals and sanitoria. Another health measure provided for controlling fumigation.

With the session over, the government resumes its economy drive to achieve a balanced budget next year, and now plans a study of special legislation for the betterment of the similar organizations.

EASTER

Another Easter has come with its appeal to the Christian world from the life, teachings, death and Resurrection of the Master whose dominion is greater than that of any potentate who has ever lived in this realm of time or who will ever live, whose sway of love for and sympathy with man is that constraining force that has drawn men to Him from one generation to another and which is responsible for that devotion with which His people regard Him. No dictator though he hold in control millions upon millions has so stirred men as has the Man of Nazareth.

Not only from Christians but from those of other faiths, tribute to the place of Jesus in the life of men and of the world is paid. Today leading men of other religions acknowledge the constraining beauty, the tenderness and love, the deep sympathy for the poor, the afflicted and distressed, the tireless helping hand to all in sorrow, that intense suffering, patiently borne for others, binding to him the hearts of millions of men in every day and generation. Gandhi of India, and a non-Christian has referred to Jesus' attitude towards life and towards the ills of society and nations as that one which will bring in the day for which all the world is yearning. There was a time when the life of Christ was to some doubters a tradition, some having even gone so far as to say that He never lived, but no one, not even those of the most liberal attitude on points of doctrine will now deny that He lived and that His true teaching is recorded in the Gospels. The Man Jesus today is acknowledged throughout the world.

It has always been to many another thing when it comes to living out His principles and being a true follower of that Man of Nazareth. Many professing Christians are but shells of the name. Some events of the most cruel nature have been done in the name of the man who loved mankind. It is only to refer to those historic blights, the pogroms against Jews when pillage and murder were rampant and when the death of a Jew was a delight to the fanatics.

Were men true followers of the Nazarene they could not do such acts as have disgraced history. Did they truly reflect even in a small measure the surpassing beauty of that character they would transform the world.

But despite those shortcomings His influence has grown more and more as Christian civilization expands. Christians as they look upon a world which is rapidly becoming a unit can see in this a sequel to that command and one given those favored men who dwelt with Him, "Go Ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." They know that missions have had much to do with this world unification.

And Christians have but to think that some day that world once outside the pale of Christianity will turn back to aid that part which has given them the Gospel. Last week the report was made that Manchurians converted to Christianity, last year have sent three hundred dollars to Canada because they heard the Presbyterian mission was running into debt by sending missionaries to China. Here is a case of Chinese converts sending mission money to Canada. As grows Christianity so the reflex action from the Orient will increase.

At this Eastertide the Christian world again celebrates the event which is the pivotal point of the Christian faith—the Resurrection. That unparalleled life which walked through Palestine shedding a glory on that land which time cannot efface and which left so sweet memories, did not end, they believe, with the tomb but reached its fulfilment on Easter and that same life still walks through the crowded ways of men with ever-increasing power for good.

Easter is indeed a day of intense joy, linking earth and the after-life in one grand harmony of Divine design.

DRILLED YOUTH

The statement made by Col. Drew before the St. George's Society in Toronto that the pageantry of youth should not be neglected is important. In his opinion the enthusiasm of youth is one of the greatest forces behind the dictatorships of Germany and Italy, and hence democracies should not overlook all that appeals to youths.

Hamilton Spectator comments upon this: "One of the peculiar disadvantages from which the democratic nations of the world are suffering today is the fact that the citizens of a militant corporate state are of necessity less apathetic about the state than the citizens of a democracy. When men begin to wear shirts of a political color, in order to proclaim a political allegiance, the chances are that they have made the first step towards surrendering their freedom. Individualism is the democracy and uniforms and parades are not compatible with individualism. One of the worst aspects of war, for instance, is the regimentation of human beings which army training entails.

"Col. Drew's appeal for the organization of youth within democracies is a wise one and it may be some way will be found to display corporate enthusiasm in a spectacular manner, but the people of a democracy will never goose step up and down their cities in massed formation, because such regimentation is completely at variance with the basic principles of democracy.

"Perhaps the greatest danger of fascism is that it is strong because it is narrow and crippling to the soul."

Tell me again how sailors love the sea,
And tell me how the landsmen love the foam,
For half my heart has moved with crests of foam,
And half my heart grown upward with a tree.

Picture a child's soft hair against my knee
And paint the sky's illimitable dome,
For my two hands are deft with curl and comb,
But my two feet are journeying, and free.

And part of me has dwelt in Bethany.

A POLICEWOMAN HAS BEEN SUGGESTED FOR SMITH'S FALLS by the Local Council of Women of that place, asserting that such an officer is urgently needed because "drinking, drug addiction, immorality, and general disregard of law" was increasing to an alarming extent. It was contended by the Local Council of Women that a female officer would undoubtedly act as a preventative measure and more than pay for the amount expended. Just how a policewoman could accomplish this was not revealed, but the Town Council considered that the male police force could cope with any disregard of law that became apparent.

KING TUT ANKNAMEN, ONE OF THE OLDEST INHABITANTS OF EGYPTIAN TOMBS, recently disturbed from his peaceful sleep of centuries by representatives of what tribe of men, is said now forever ensuring occupants of tombs and uncovering buried cities, and in the process dislodging a few choice curses buried with the bones of important people who did not want to be disturbed—King Tut has lost the crown of the oldest inhabitant of ancient Egypt to be uncovered. The body of a young Egyptian princess who reigned 3,000 years before King Tut was born, was discovered recently in the Gisch pyramids. The professor making the discovery said that water had seeped into the tomb from the Nile, and with the water that tenacious Nils mud which had enclosed the body of the princess and given it a wonderful preservation. Daughter of Pharaoh Cheophren, the princess was said to have died 5,500 years ago. Gold and silver ornaments on arms and ankles and head were found with the body. The head and teeth were said to be in a perfect state of preservation but the rest of the body was in such a fragile mummified state that it had to be handled with the greatest care.

ANDY GARRETT ENTERED THE SERVICE OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY in Brockville in 1856 and rose to be one of the best known and popular passenger conductors on the line between Toronto and Montreal. He served the railway forty-two years before taking his retirement in 1898, and lived to see the day he reached a "ripe, old age," turning in his final ticket one day recently in his 90th year. Andy Garrett was born in Cobourg, and served in the Cobourg Cavalry of 1866 during the Fenian Raid under Col. D'Arcy Boulton, and saw service at Toronto and Ridgeway, the Cobourg Cavalry being brigaded with the Queen's Own of Toronto. All Old Time Grand Trunkers knew and esteemed Andy Garrett and he was one of the last survivors of that fearless and famous class of 66, men who railroaded during the Fenian Raid despite frequent alarms and threats to blow up bridges and trains by the would-be captors of Canada who did most of their fighting by word of mouth across the United States line, and finally became such a nuisance that the United States authorities disarmed and disbanded the units which had gathered along the border pending a proposed invasion of this country.

A Real Surprise

A preacher staying with us promised the little fellow a prize if he could answer a question. He asked, "If your father received $50 a week and gave your mother that sum within fifty cent, what would she have?"

The son, who is precocious, thought for a moment, smiled and answered: "A big surprise."

Meaning what was I going to be, and I said, Well, I thawt I mite like to be a lawyer.

An honorable profession which can very well stand some more honorable men in it, a very good choice, Mr. Hammer said. A country is as artful as a lawyer as the lawyers and judges are, though you always remain a gentleman, and I hope you will always strive to be a credit to the highest ideals of the profession, he said, and I said, Sir! But I haven't quite decided, because I mite be a doctor instead, I said.

A more difficult and exacting life, but an even nobler one, Mr. Hammer said. I'm sure you will be the high type of docter who rises from his bed to ease the pane of a penniless sufferer as willingly as he goes to the mansion of his richest patient, he said, and I said, Yes sir, my maybe I'll be a grate docter.

To serve the cause of bewty is a very commendable ambition, even though you always remain a poor man, he said, and I said, Yes sir, sometimes I often think I'd like to train people dogs to do tricks for about 5 dollers a trick.

Yee gods I was afraid of that, but arrange the flowers you want, if you telephone 813 we arrive a few minutes after the appointment. A few minutes spent among these most magnificent of nature's treasures will give you something that man alone could not create nor money alone could buy.

Remember The Florist has facilities for the delivery of flowers and plants to all parts of the city and suburbs. They can arrange to send floral greetings to any place in the world. We need the hope and joy that flowers express in every Belleville home on this Easter and on Monday. Sunday every Belleville resident should wear one. 618 is the telephone and the address of the florists of Potter The Florist.

Flowers Express Spirit of Easter

It is comforting to contemplate with Easter almost here that the world is definitely emerging from the period of depression. Coming in this new spring season, Easter is especially this year a time for rejoicing. It is an occasion calling for brightness and beauty. Nothing, perhaps symbolizes the glad Easter spirit as appropriately as do flowers.

And the Florists of Belleville this year have put forth especial effort to fill the demands that Belleville people will make upon them. Hence lilies and other beautiful blooms have been secured in glorious profusion for the patrons of Potter The Florist at 36 McAnnany. And although they will gladly select

Agricultural Notes

Preparation for Seed Supply

Another springtime has come and another seeding season when farmers again look to their supply of seed.

The first thought of a farmer should perhaps be given to an estimate of the quantity of seed likely to be required for the area to be seeded. In this connection sufficient seed should be provided so that the rate of seeding of grasses and clovers expected may be generous. The consideration should be given to the quantity of the seed to be used. This consists of the selection of suitable varieties and seed of the highest known grade whether purchased or home-grown. Thoroughly cleaned to remove weed seeds, inert material and light-bodied or undeveloped seed or kernels. Good seed should not only give a high percentage of germination, but should also provide the necessary reserve of plant food to sustain the seedlings against adverse conditions in the early growing and well filled.

Experimentalists and plant breeders are emphasizing strongly the matter of adaptation of varieties to sections of the country rather than to the country as a whole. Selection of variety, therefore, calls for consideration of factors that may be generally supposed. Suitability of variety is usually determined by date of maturity, yield and market value. Efficient cleaning contributes in a large measure to the purity and quality of seed. This may be accomplished by the use of properly equipped and operated hand fanning mills. Where it is not available a central seed cleaning plant should be employed. Assisted by government inspection the many instances of such cleaning plants have been established in different districts.

The treatment for disease should receive serious consideration, particularly where grain is grown in sections. Heavy loss is sustained each year through smut and other diseases which could be largely obviated by proper treatment of the seed before sowing. Information concerning several treatments may be obtained by application to an Agricultural Representative, an Agricultural College or to any Dominion Experimental Farm or Station.

Feast or Famine For King's Caddy

London, Apr. 9 (CP)—Prospects brightened today for J. E. Whitethread, a former caddy to the King when the latter was Prince of Wales.

Whitehead, who lives at Millbank, Surrey, has written a letter to His Majesty saying that his family was in desperate straits. He had been jobless for five years, he said, and his children needed shoes to go to school.

The King sent his former Windsor caddy $10 for shoes for the children.

Since that was made known, money and clothes have been sent from all directions to Whitethread. He and his wife have both accepted several offers of work.

22 PRISONERS AT THE COUNTY JAIL

Warmer weather, instead of decreasing the population of the local County Gaol has resulted in holding the number of prisoners to the same comparatively high total of winter population. At the present time a total of twenty-two prisoners are occupying the cells.

Accused of "Whiskey Singing"

Huntsville, Ark., April 11 (AP)—Two youths were jailed here Saturday on the "whiskey singing" of a six-year-old boy.

Sheriff Virgil Weathers named the prisoners as Russell Reavers, 19, and Dennis Davidson, 17, both of Newton County, and said they were arrested on complaint of Truman Exley of Kingston, father of the dead boy.

Sheriff Weathers quoted Exley as saying his son died a few hours after drinking from a jug he had been lured from the Exley home and forced to drink about a half pint of moonshine whiskey.

PRINCIPAL FIRED STUDENTS STRIKE

Bowmanville Entrance Class Boys Leave Grounds Early Today

Bowmanville, Ont., Apr. 9 (CP)—Forty entrance class public school boys went on strike today protesting the dismissal of the school principal, J. H. Johnston. They refused to fall in line at 9 a.m. and left the grounds.

Mr. Johnston, at present in ill health, was dismissed at a recent board meeting because 40 girl students admitted copying during a geography exam.

"We want Johnston," chorused the young strikers as all attempts at persuasion failed. Col. R. S. Snyder, Port Hope district school inspector, was called in an effort to right the situation.

W. P. Corbett, former board chairman who resigned in protest at the principal's dismissal, also spoke to the youthful strike group.

STREET NOISES ANNOY SENATOR

Friends of U.S. Senator Glass of Va. Kindly Donate Cotton Balls For His Ears

Washington, Apr. 11 (AP)—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia sought modern device today in his renewed campaign against noises in the United States capital.

"Look," he snorted at staff experts checkin, "look what they've sent me for support!"

Opening a tin box, he laid out on his desk ten objects which looked like tiny rolls of pink cotton. With them was a letter from Dr. George C. Rothbard, District of Columbia Health Officer.

"My dear senator," it read, "may I as one who is much interested in noise abatement, submit something which I have personally found to be rather satisfactory in dealing with this problem? I hope that the enclosed may also bring you the desired relief."

"If he's joking," said the Senator, "he's right, but if he's serious then he has certainly hurled an indictment against conditions here."

Senator Glass has launched into a denunciation of many kinds of noises, but principally fire engine and ambulance sirens.

Windsor, Ont., Apr. 11 (CP) — David Meisner, exonerated in the John S. Labatt kidnapping after serving 18 months of a 15-year sentence, will go on a Canadian vaudeville tour.

Arrangements have been completed, it was announced, for a Dominion wide tour opening in Hamilton April 27. After that Meisner will appear in Toronto, London, Montreal and possibly Winnipeg before going further afield.

Meisner will talk about his wrongful conviction in the ransomless kidnapping of John S. Labatt, wealthy London, Ont., brewer, but his material will be in some degree educational and evangelistic.

Affiliated Theatrical Offices of America is sponsoring the tour.

A book, "The Truth About David Meisner," has been written with a Windsor newspaperman as ghost. A publisher is being hunted.

DEBT OF ALBERTA MAY BE REFUNDED

Each Issue on Interest Date Will be Taken Care Of Edmonton, Apr. 11 (CP)—The entire $180,000,000 public debt of Alberta may be refunded within the next 90 days, Premier Aberhart said.

"The treasury department is now working on it now," he said. "But there probably won't be any announcement for a little while yet."

Many of the bond and debenture issues now outstanding call for payment of interest during the next three months, he said. "We want to arrange refunding of each issue on its interest date."

The Social Credit leader did not state, however, whether the provinces would attempt to pay interest for the previous six months on a basis of the reduced interest rate provided in such refunding operations; that is, whether the interest deficiency would be made retroactive to cover the period for which interest is falling due.

Hero of Mercy Flights Injured in Crash

Sioux Lookout, Ont., April 9 (CP)—Hero of many "mercy flights" throughout this Northwestern Ontario mining area, Pilot Rhan Cram was in hospital here today in serious condition after an airplane crash.

Cram suffered broken legs, arms and jaw when his plane fell out of control yesterday as he circled for a landing at Savant Lake, 100 miles northeast of here, and crashed on the ice. The plane was badly damaged, one wing and the nose of the machine being torn away.

The injured pilot was brought here in a Canadian Airways plane. Though serious, hospital authorities said his condition was not critical.

FIVE YEARS FOR BURGLARY

Windsor, Ont., April 8—(CP)—James Tillard, 34, was sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary for five years and Roy Menard, 21, for four years today for burglary of C. C. Harris store in Kingsville, they had pleaded guilty.

Both had previous criminal records and in passing sentence, Magistrate Smith said: "It is evident you have made up your minds to live a life of crime. When a person does there is only one thing to do—put him away for enough to make sure he will not again be menacing society until he has had time to realize his folly."

Three other members of the gang that robbed the store were remanded.

Magistrate at Peterborough Wonders Why $,500 Rounds Kept in School

Peterborough, Apr. 11 (CP)—Dealing with charges against three Peterborough youths jointly accused of breaking and entering and theft of 1,500 rounds of small arms ammunition from Prince of Wales' School, Magistrate Langley expressed surprise such a large quantity of ammunition should be kept on school premises.

"It does seem to me a strange thing that such a large quantity of ammunition could be kept around a school. I have no recollection of seeing any authority in the statutes for such a thing but I presume there must be some authority under the Department of National Defence."

Clifford Moore, 20, and Francis McIntosh, 19, pleaded guilty to the charge and were remanded for sentence until next Tuesday while Robert Sutherland, 19, was bailed until the same date without sureties or plea.

The ammunition used at the school in connection with cadet training was stolen from a store-room. The accused are said to have gained access to the storeroom with a key taken from the lock of another door in the school after having entered the premises by breaking a window.

Uniform Early Closing Requested by Grocers

Toronto, April 9 (CP)—The Ontario Retail Grocers' Association at its annual convention to be held here next Monday and Tuesday, will seek support from all Ontario grocers to obtain a uniform early closing regulation for Toronto grocers.

Toronto's present bylaw, which set 7 p.m. as the hour when all retail food stores are to close, is rendered ineffective by a provincial regulation exempting all stores on the ground their stock is perishable, according to George H. Roughan, secretary of the association.

"The trade is miserable under present chaotic conditions," says Mr. Roughan. "We're holding out for done as long as the province maintains a loophole for the minority that won't co-operate."

Woman Sees Loose Ends In Hauptmann Case

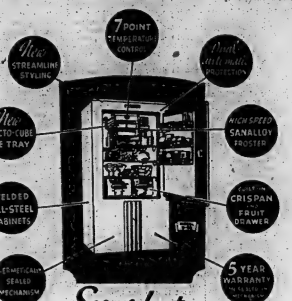
Washington, April 8—(AP)—Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, who paid $104,000 for a fake investigation of the Lindbergh kidnapping case after the child was stolen, says there were "too many loose ends" in the case to warrant Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution.

"They could have locked him up for life," she added in an interview. "It is all very confusing, but I do not think it was a one-man job. It will be solved in time because so many people are interested."

The wealthy Washingtonian revealed she has received "serious" letters, some containing threats, as a result of her interest in the case.

PRESENT WEATHER NOT EXCEPTIONAL

Snow And Frost Occurred in May Several Different Years



Despite the reports and beliefs of local residents this spring season has not been unduly retarded or exceptionally cold, it is proven by city hall records of the vagaries of previous seasons for many years past.

A comparison of the data from the years 1928 to 1936 inclusive is of interest.

A summary of the late dates from the records since the year 1917, show:

April 16, 1927, six inches of new snow fell; April 19, 1918, the ground was still covered with snow; April 26, 1918, saw snow fall on that date; April 17, 1921, sleet and snow was

MAIDEN VOYAGE

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments:

Antoinette Taft is delighted with her job as society editor on the San Francisco Call. The Call staff also is a blonde named Rose Quiter who quits a large salary and has an impressive apartment at which Frank Fitch, the managing editor, is a frequent visitor. When Rose invites Tony to a dinner party there, Tony asks the advice of her friend Barney Kerr. This precipitates a proposal, the last thing Tony wants. She meets a Mr. Larry Bellamy, handsome young editor of the Journal in search of news which policehunting. Ruth Bellamy is a frail woman ten years older than Larry. She and Tony become fast friends. Tony, a guest of the Bellamys at Santa Barbara, receives a telephone call from Larry when a truck hits their car. He thinks her badly injured and she hears him say, "Tony, my darling, my darling." Back on the Journal in respect with the Call. Tony meets Joe Vanderwall, Ruth's half-brother, and a young doctor engaged in biologic research, who tells him in love with Larry, but she is hopelessly in love with Larry. Fitch's interest in Rose cools, she loses her job and commits suicide with his picture in her hand. The Call buys the advertising of Vanderwall's biggest department store. Fitch calls Tony in, telling her that Kerr, formerly of the Intelligencer, gave the high school students post cards instructed her to Oakland, stating that they had seen a certain ad, published in the papers, for the store, owned by Opps, brother-in-law. Tony is sent to see Miss Wallace. Opps' secretary.

Tony went into the office at six o'clock to meet a sour greeting from the city editor.

"Get anything on the Oakland affair?" Greenwood asked.

"Yes."

"No; did you? Greasy was impressed. Decided to go right in here. I'll go with you."

When they were in Mr. Fitch's office Greenwood said: "Mike Fitch, the Oakland school superintendent, story."

"Get anything on it?" Frank Fitch asked harshly.

"I got it," Tony said simply, experiencing the most thrilling sensation the newspaper reporter ever knows.

"She talk?"

"Miss Webster? Yes. She talked. There's one of the postal cards Tony said displaying it. A determined look graced in ink script with the words: "I am in accordance in the Oakland and high school. Having seen your advertisement. In the 6pm I am very much interested in your Opps and Child and would be glad to learn the conditions of membership."

"Where'd you get this?"

"She gave it to me. That's Opps' handwriting; that was the model."

Mr. Fitch said it in his habitual few seconds, considering it. Then he said, "Well, here a minute."

Greenwood managed editor came back and with him Mr. Arnoldson and Mr. Pfeiffer. He introduced a Mr. Pfeiffer. The last was a notary public.

"I'm going to tell us only the simple truth, Miss—Miss Taft," Mr. Arnoldson said, pushing a chair toward her," and so you needn't have the slightest hesitation in Mr. Pfeiffer's taking it down. Just be careful, that's all, and be sure of what you say. You have no objection to having it witnessed after words?"

"None whatsoever." Tony said, feeling carried away, and talking hastily, not exaggerating. The turning over of the postal card finished she quite well, and read indifferently asked her if she would swear to it. "To my answers to Mr. Fitch's questions."

"Well done, Miss Taft," Mr. Arnoldson said then, going away Mr. Fitch echoed the praise and by this time Tony had quite entirely ordinarily exhilarate.

"Who got Opps' story?" Tony asked, turning toward the city room between Creeny and Mr. Fitch.

"That's the interesting part of it Miss Taft," Mr. Fitch smiled. "No one has talked to Opps yet. But we'll get his story now that's enough without it. Wouldn't She's squeaked, and that'll bring him right into line."

Tony stopped short and the men stopped with her.

"You mean he hadn't talked?"

"Nope. We thought it was best to handle it this way," Fitch said complacently. "I sent a man over to talk real nice with Opps this morning at half-past eleven. Opps has some interest in a development called Paradise Cliffs, you know. This fellow suggested that he drive out with him and show the place and that's why he wasn't in his office when you were talking to his assistant."

"Oh, but I lied to her," Tony began in a heat moment.

"You got your story, and that's all the Call cares about," Mr. Fitch said smoothly. Thank you!" He closed the door.

She and Creeny were out in the city room now. Tony looked at the man wonderingly for a long minute.

"She'll lose her job," she said breathing hard. "Is that fair Creeny?"

"Aw shucks, what's the diff" Creeny said, with a wry face. Fitch has you where he is. Opps had no business to do it and if he sees fit for it it's coming to him."

Tony went to her desk and sat down. She felt sick. Indifferently she tried to bring her mind o her social notes; it was no use. She had been absorbed in her assignment all afternoon; she had run down his story for Fitch, when she despised, and in doing so had injured perhaps ruined, a woman who was a hard-working woman of forty, who had believed in her and listened to her and taken her advice — second rate, as Tony writhed to remember. She meets a Mr. Larry Bellamy, handsome young editor of the Journal in search of news which policehunting. Ruth Bellamy is a frail woman ten years older than Larry. She and Tony become fast friends. "Oh, but I lied to her," Tony began in a heat moment.

"You got your story, and that's all the Call cares about," Mr. Fitch said smoothly. Thank you!" He closed the door.

She and Creeny were out in the city room now. Tony looked at the man wonderingly for a long minute.

"She'll lose her job," she said breathing hard. "Is that fair Creeny?"

"Aw shucks, what's the diff" Creeny said, with a wry face. Fitch has you where he is. Opps had no business to do it and if he sees fit for it it's coming to him."

Tony went to her desk and sat down. She felt sick. Indifferently she tried to bring her mind o her social notes; it was no use. She had been absorbed in her assignment all afternoon; she had run down his story for Fitch, when she despised, and in doing so had injured perhaps ruined, a woman who was a hard-working woman of forty, who had believed in her and listened to her and taken her advice — second rate, as Tony writhed to remember. She had betrayed her friend Barney Kerr. This precipitates a proposal, the last thing Tony wants. She meets a Mr. Larry Bellamy, handsome young editor of the Journal in search of news which police-hunting. Ruth Bellamy is a frail woman ten years older than Larry. She and Tony become fast friends. Tony, a guest of the Bellamys at Santa Barbara, receives a telephone call from Larry when a truck hits their car. He thinks her badly injured and she hears him say, "Tony, my darling, my darling." Back on the Journal in respect with the Call. Tony meets Joe Vanderwall, Ruth's half-brother, and a young doctor engaged in biologic research, who tells him in love with Larry, but she is hopelessly in love with Larry. Fitch's interest in Rose cools, she loses her job and commits suicide with his picture in her hand. The Call buys the advertising of Vanderwall's biggest department store. Fitch calls Tony in, telling her that Kerr, formerly of the Intelligencer, gave the high school students post cards instructed her to Oakland, stating that they had seen a certain ad, published in the papers, for the store, owned by Opps, brother-in-law. Tony is sent to see Miss Wallace. Opps' secretary.

Tony went into the office at six o'clock to meet a sour greeting from the city editor.

"Get anything on the Oakland affair?" Greenwood asked.

"Yes."

"No; did you? Greasy was impressed. Decided to go right in here. I'll go with you."

When they were in Mr. Fitch's office Greenwood said: "Mike Fitch, the Oakland school superintendent, story."

"Get anything on it?" Frank Fitch asked harshly.

"I got it," Tony said simply, experiencing the most thrilling sensation the newspaper reporter ever knows.

"She talk?"

"Miss Webster? Yes. She talked. There's one of the postal cards Tony said displaying it. A determined look graced in ink script with the words: "I am in accordance in the Oakland and high school. Having seen your advertisement. In the 6pm I am very much interested in your Opps and Child and would be glad to learn the conditions of membership."

"Where'd you get this?"

"She gave it to me. That's Opps' handwriting; that was the model."

Mr. Fitch said it in his habitual few seconds, considering it. Then he said, "Well, here a minute."

Greenwood managed editor came back and with him Mr. Arnoldson and Mr. Pfeiffer. He introduced a Mr. Pfeiffer. The last was a notary public.

"I'm going to tell us only the simple truth, Miss—Miss Taft," Mr. Arnoldson said, pushing a chair toward her," and so you needn't have the slightest hesitation in Mr. Pfeiffer's taking it down. Just be careful, that's all, and be sure of what you say. You have no objection to having it witnessed after words?"

"None whatsoever." Tony said, feeling carried away, and talking hastily, not exaggerating. The turning over of the postal card finished she quite well, and read indifferently asked her if she would swear to it. "To my answers to Mr. Fitch's questions."

"Well done, Miss Taft," Mr. Arnoldson said then, going away Mr. Fitch echoed the praise and by this time Tony had quite entirely ordinarily exhilarate.

"Who got Opps' story?" Tony asked, turning toward the city room between Creeny and Mr. Fitch.

"That's the interesting part of it Miss Taft," Mr. Fitch smiled. "No one has talked to Opps yet. But we'll get his story now that's enough without it. Wouldn't She's squeaked, and that'll bring him right into line."

Tony stopped short and the men stopped with her.

"You mean he hadn't talked?"

"Nope. We thought it was best to handle it this way," Fitch said complacently. "I sent a man over to talk real nice with Opps this morning at half-past eleven. Opps has some interest in a development called Paradise Cliffs, you know. This fellow suggested that he drive out with him and show the place and that's why he wasn't in his office when you were talking to his assistant."

Tony thought anxiously. "When you're out of a job it seems as if there weren't any in all the world."

She and Bruce had a cold dinner, and he went to bed early. Tony thought she would get on the train with Rose and Fitch, when she despised, and in doing so had injured perhaps ruined, a woman who was a hard-working woman of forty, who had believed in her and listened to her and taken her advice — second rate, as Tony writhed to remember. Advice to the Lovelorn

TO MAKE MARRIAGE A SUCCESS THINK OF IT AS A REAL JOB.

The trouble with many young people who are in love and marry is that they imagine there is some magic in the formula of spoken words in the marriage ceremony which will make them live up to "live happily ever after."

In that they're wrong. There's no magic abracadabra in saying "I will" when the clergyman — not wife — if you have eight bridesmaids and the handsomest set of fathers in town hoping to make a lovely picture before the altar.

You've got to make up your mind, once you've shaken the rice out of your pockets and come back from your honeymoon — a job, if you like that term better — the same as any other contract which involves human beings.

Don't think you see on every side wrecks of other peoples' lives, fancies, plans and hopes and start out still believing that your own marriage will be perfect.

Don't come to make your own marriage just as you wanted it, without the things that were so annoying in your old home or in your bachelor or spinster apartment. And don't say he or she for the first rapturous weeks.

Womanish! How can the candles on the beautiful birthday cake, after which refreshments were served by the Past Worthy Matrons who were hostesses for the event.

Good Manners

WEDDING ETIQUETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I plan to attend a wedding shortly, but I must frankly admit that I am puzzled as to what to wear. The wedding is to take place in the city at four o'clock, and the reception is to follow at five-thirty at the bride's home, which is in the suburbs. Is a dress distance from the city. I had originally planned to wear a dressy street or afternoon dress — of street length and color. Am I wondering if, since I am also to attend the reception at five-thirty, I should not perhaps wear a long dress perhaps a dinner dress, or rather a cocktail dress. What do you advise?

2. Also please tell me whether it is necessary to put anything more than the name on the card that you enclose with the gift?

3. Also, what would one say to the bride's parents and to the other people in the receiving line?

Grace.

1. To a four o'clock wedding and to a five-thirty reception, you should wear your "best" afternoon ensemble of street length. This would be especially correct when the marriage is to take place in the city and the reception is to be in the suburbs.

2. No. With a wedding gift we usually enclose our visiting card dumping the contents of a can into a frying pan and calling it dinner. It's so easy to drop into "leading concessions" is still a good recipe as say for a happy marriage. Don't begin by setting a new and unfamiliar table for him. Mr. Trapp, even if they catch the victim, are poor matrimonial triumphs for long run.

Better by the boy or girl scout motto guiding principle of doing "a good deed" daily. Even if you've had a bad day, with everything going wrong — and such days come to every one of us — don't tell your husband about it when he comes home after struggling for the ever elusive dollar.

And if your wife is looking particularly pretty, don't neglect to tell her so. Or if she looks tired, suggest some amusement — a good movie for instance — even if you've been thinking on the way home of relaxing in an easy chair with your newspaper and pipe.

Such little attentions mean everything to a woman and make them contented.

And, finally, do learn to turn out appetizing meals and put them on an attractive table! A meal ill-digested with the eyes as well as the stomach. And a table on which dishes have been thrown together and will not appeal very long to even the best of husbands.

It's my conclusion that every woman can learn to cook well even if she has spent her time between school and marriage in a business office, shop or factory. To me, it's just as easy to cook well as badly, and lots more fun!

Bringing Figure Up To Standard
(By Helen Follett)

Ever changing is the feminine silhouette. It's wonderful the way the girls do it.. Fashion maps the whip and the ladies go round and round.

Now the order is: small waist, normal bust accenting high, poised back, arms neither plump nor thin. That's the artist's ideal of what the feminine form should be. And it's a tremendous satisfaction to the dressmaker who knows that a figure of that kind will carry off any design splendidly and beautifully.

Any woman with a grain of determination in her mind can mold her figure so that it will come up to standard. If she is underweight she must spread more butter on her bread, drink milk and cream half and half, get plenty of sunlight, exercise moderately, eat-of-doors, sleep eight hours every night. If she belongs to slow-moving traffic and wants to reduce, let her try the rowing exercise. It's fun and what it will do to slenderize her plumpish shape is plenty.

Sit on a low stool with feet braced against the wall. Close the hands, bend forward, stretch the arms with strong muscular exertion,

DONNA ROBERTS

Her figure has ideal measurements

then sit all yo, just merely greet them as you pass down the line....saying perhaps only "How do you do", or "How do you do, Miss Allen——" wasn't it a beautiful wedding!"

HATS AT LUNCHEON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. How should one drink bouillon?

2. Does a woman remove her hat when she is a luncheon guest?

3. When a woman goes into a dining-car, does she wear her hat?

4. What is the etiquette of the situation?

Fred.

1. With the spoon that is placed with the bouillon, bouillon spoon or tea spoon, take the first few sips, to test the heat of the soup. Then drink the rest of the bouillon, as you would drink tea.

2. No....and this is the answer whether she is lunching in a home or in a restaurant.

3. Yes, a woman should wear her hat in the dining-car.

4. You are right.

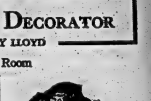
Living Room



Are you weary of your last year's living room, as tired of it as you may be of your last winter's coat, for instance, and sick of its dull and lifeless state? Remember that the best and most effective way to refurbish a room is with the single expedient of color. Color lends dignity, warmth, comfort or gaiety to your room. If you are tired of the room's appearance just say to yourself, "Well, it can't look any worse than it does!" And from that thought to mind sit down and plan a least one change in color. Paint the walls a new tone, paint the woodwork a contrasting color, select your paint and then be off.

Plan your color carefully. Decorate in haste — repent at leisure. If your furniture and rugs are dark keep the walls and trim warm. If the room has a high ceiling use darker colors than on the walls and trim and balance with a dark floor. And these walls .... remember that a room's lightness is in the walls and give the room the cheerfulness of bright colors.

Above all, let there be a room of light in your room. Lack of window space can be overcome by lack of light. Any color in which you dress up the room .... it's the originality and personality of your taste .... and you will have succeeded in making cosy the corners you live in most .... and that is the secret.

Walls and ceiling of pastel .... unobtrusive, something they are, and woodwork of the same and colors become your obedient servants. Colors which complement each other are always pleasant to the eye. Gone are the days when best-mannered was the thing and pale colors ruled. Now it is the bright and more forthright; there is a tendency toward the lighter, brighter colors in the room of decorative which is index to the spirits of the decorator.

This is a rapidly changing appreciation for the bright colors—brilliant blue, flame green, deep brown, creamy yellow, rose red .... and white and more white. An all white background is something perfectly grand and good for almost any style of furniture, especially if you are spirited enough to apply it to your tables, chairs and chests as well as to walls. That, plus white accessories and two or three good colors in accessories and rugs is a perfect combination. Visualize the above complemented by a large chintz covered couch, comfortable armchairs in the fireplace, a brilliant lacquer coating the inner walls of the fireplace, and a few choice pieces of modern upholstery, white lacquered tables with shining tops, and you have the most elegant background for the most elegant guests. Gone are the days when best-mannered was the thing and pale colors ruled. Now it is the bright and more forthright; there is a tendency toward the lighter, brighter colors in the room of decorative which is index to the spirits of the decorator.

A pointer for parents

Something every parent should know

A child's internal system is a frail thing. It takes years before it is fully developed.

Is it sensible, then, to give her a laxative made for an adult every time she needs relief from elimination? Doctors think not. For an adult laxative can be too harsh and purging for a youngster's delicate organs.

The logical thing is to give a child Castoria—made especially for children—a laxative that doesn't contain a single harmful ingredient —CASTORIA. It is SAFE. It is mild, gentle—completely thorough. It won't cause cramps. It won't form a habit.

And it has a pleasant taste that children take without coaxing or whimpering. They love it.

And you should be thankful that they do. For the senna a child feels when forced to take a laxative she hates can completely upset her entire nervous system.

CASTORIA is sold at every drug store. It is a good precaution never to be without a bottle. Follow the Family-Size. It gives you more for your money.

C.A.H.A. Prepares to Stamp Out 'Shamateurism,' Defining What Constitutes Amateurism

Likely to be Break Between Hockey Body and Amateur Union

SUMMARY GIVEN

Delegates Told How Canada Lost Hockey Title in Germany

Toronto, April 11 (CP)—Whether the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada likes it or not—and there is no doubt the A.A.U. doesn't—its definition of an amateur hockey player is likely to be altered within two days of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. In its own behalf, the C.A.H.A. is preparing to stamp out "shamateurism."

Strong support appeared at the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A. yesterday and today for a resolution defining the 1936 amateur hockey player as liberty to play with and against athletes who are professionals in other sports and who receive far from least from work, and capitalize on his playing ability to obtain legitimate employment.

A special committee of the Association spent a year before bringing in this resolution yesterday, and delegates to the meeting voted on the question Monday. A committee between the association and the A.A.U. committee, headed by President W. A. Fry, was scheduled for late today.

The meeting, it was predicted, would fail to achieve an agreement. Then a definite split between the A.A.U. and its 'shrouding ally, the C.A.H.A., appeared close at hand.

"If we pass this resolution, we won't have to sever relations with the A.A.U. of C.," President E. A. Gilroy of the C.A.H.A. told Monday's meeting. "They will be already severed."

Embargo Stated.

Fry, who is life member of the C.A.H.A., added that Canada's status in international amateur sport would be endangered. He said having the question thrashed out at the next A.A.U. convention in Regina next November.

But leading sponsors of the proposal, including Cecil Duncan of Ottawa, Clarence Campbell of Edmonton, Prof. W. O. Hardy of Edmonton and George Dudley of Midland, Ont., carried the question to the point where Monday was set as the voting day. Even strong opponents admitted the resolution was likely to pass.

Gilroy gave the convention a summary of what happened at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in February when Canada dropped its Olympic hockey title. He told of the embargo that when the International Ice Hockey Association suspended two Canadian players for the Olympic team, it did so against the expressed wishes of Canada.

Canada Responsible.

The Canadian officials were responsible for having the suspension against the two players—Jimmy Foster and Syd Howe, of Detroit—lifted at a last-minute meeting of the International body, Gilroy said.

Tournament rules which prevent all Canada getting a second chance at England, the Olympic title winners, after losing a game in the second round were changed at the request of the Canadian delegation, the president charged. Under the original arrangement, four teams qualifying for the final series were to have played a round-robin series for the championship.

England, the president charged, took part in the round-robin series and Archer who were ineligible. They were born in England, but Winnipeg, and John Gerald Armstrong ab Port Arthur. Since neither had been in Britain for the years as specified in the Olympic rules, they should not have played, Gilroy said.

Twenty-two players who went to England this last season were on the suspended list of the C.A.H.A., it was revealed. The players included Howard Peterson, Don Willcox, Ralph Hollinsworth, Garfield Forbes and F. M. Dunn, all from Ontario. Seven Calgary players on United Grain teams were also under suspension were released.

Eight players, all Winnipeg Falcons. They are: Harold Ingram, Vance Kilmer and John Hutchison, Toronto; Harry Frost and William Morrison, Sudbury; Frank Boucher, Collingwood; Harry Currie, Charlottetown, and Leonard Godin, Kirkland Lake.

WINDSOR PLAYER SUSPENDED

Windsor, Ont., April 11 (CP) — Bernie Brophy, veteran forward for the Windsor Bulldogs, was defined and indefinitely suspended by the club management as a result of his refusal to perform with the two locals against Detroit Olympics in the International Hockey League playoff game at Detroit.

President John Childe of the International League has been notified of the suspension. If the action of the Windsor club is upheld, Brophy loses his amateur status, even professional hockey in any capacity.

Walter Baker Knocks Maples for 415 Score

Records do not last very long these days in the alley bowling game. On Tuesday night another one was smashed wide open. Walter Baker, bowling for the C.D.S. team against the Red Caps in the Major A League came through with a 415 for a single game. Starting out the third game with a "head-pin" split for a 10 spare, "Walt" notches the "Maples" for 11 straight strikes. This smashed the high score of 360 held by Les Stiebs of Davis Tobe's "Cake-Baker." In the Major A Section and Dawson Boyd's 397 of Pat Drumm's "Look-Mac" in the "B" Section.

Walt Baker has been one of the mainstays of the C.D.S. team, this season and his big score on Thursday was richly deserved as he is one of the most popular bowlers in the city.

WESTONATS WIN OVER SASKATOON IN GREAT GAME

Score is 5-1 And The Eastern Team Had That Much Edge

LOSERS CHEERED

Heron, Centre Star, Had Too Much Class And Not Held in Check

West Toronto Nationals defeated Saskatoon Wesleys 5-1 in one of the most thrilling exhibitions of power playing junior hockey has provided here in years. Only the brilliant goal tending of Red Hall kept them from heading home four several goals when they lossed aside any pretence of defence.

The Westons Nationals scoreless for more than 30 minutes after they had tied the score 1-1 in the second minute of the game but their defence broke under the repeated individual assaults in the second session and West Toronto scored three goals, adding another in the final period.

The Westerners had courage, style and speed but lacked the deadly finishing prowess of the well-trained Eastern Canada Hillbilla. Their biggest weakness in this respect was most noticeable in the way they broke through the Nationals' defence for their second period tallies.

Time and time again the Saskatoon machine they fought through the third period to a crowd that had been forced aside from the start completely over to the Saskatoon side. They cheered every time a Saskatoon player got his stick on the puck. Cheered, loud Nationals' plays and showered Red Hall with applause when Ross Lewick's goal in the last minute of the game was disallowed.

Western Dream Chase.

Wesleys drew their first cheers from the gallery of 300 when Captain Paul Rowat caught the National defence napping for the first counter.

Having won four and lost four games on their home ice they have been beaten yet at home—the Leafs have a machine that has won five and lost four.

Redwings Frank

"My team is frank," explained Jack Adams of the Wings. "If the Leafs are tired after that scorching finish Thursday night, then we should have a big edge tonight. We were mighty disappointed to lose and the only we're determined to end the series at four games."

The answer to that comes from Conny Smythe, who predicted a second straight Toronto win.

"We've got Red Wings on the run at last and we will pick up power tonight. They're the fastest power team in sport. They haven't been beaten in their own rink this year will be now. We're still in there."

There was no doubt the Leafs would play cautiously as they did for two periods in the third game. After scoring early 1-0 and 2-0 default at Detroit, they set up a two-man defence to protect George Hainsworth and prevent any goal. But why it won, nobody can say. It did.

Midway through the third period Red Wings had a 2-0 lead. They had broken through for goals by Scotty Bowman and Syd Howe, and Modere Benedict had lifted a high shot from centre, that bounced past Hainsworth.

The Toronto system was an improvement over previous efforts, but it was inadequate at this point.

Then the Leafs scored three times with one accord in a stunning rally. For the first time in the playoffs, the Red Wings were forced back into their own end of the rink and held there by a fierce offensive. The near-champions fumbled. They wobbled, and finally they cap- itulated to the charging Leafs.

As the crowd showered programs on the ice, threw hats in the air and cheered each other to the echo, Pep Kelly drove in the tying goal 42 seconds from the scheduled finish.

Joe Primeau and Kelly had scored the earlier tallies, two minutes apart.

Their momentum carried Leafs to victory in overtime. Busy Bun scoring in 21 seconds on a relay from Red Horner and Art Jackson.

DYNAMITERS EXPECT TO END SERIES WITH FALCONS TONIGHT

Winnipeg, Apr. 11 (CP)—Kimberley Dynamiters were all set today to push the lever that would blast the Allan Cup back to British Columbia for the first time. Sudbury Falcons, on the other hand, were digging around waiting to swep down and take the title east again.

The teams meet here tonight in the second of a best-of-three game series to decide the Canadian senior hockey champions. Dynamiters, Western Canada champions, jumped to a 2-0 win over the Falcons, eastern titlists, in the first game Thursday night and a win tonight will give the British Columbians possession of the coveted trophy.

Bellinger Out.

Sudbury will be without the services of William, "Slink" Bellinger, starry centre, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in a practice game Friday. His position will be filled by Don Grosso, defenceman. Trevy Drakooli will take Grosso's position alongside "Stingo" Kampman. The lineup otherwise will be the same as in the first game.

With the exception of Bellinger, Rothschild reports his charges all in good shape and confident they will win tonight's game and force a third and deciding encounter Monday night. The team went through a stiff workout yesterday and will rest until the hour they go on for tonight's game.

Johnny Achtemer, coach of Kimberley, will start the same lineup that took the measure of Falcons in the first game. Dynamiters were out yesterday limbering up with a light skating practice. The boys have fully recovered from colds contracted during the western playoffs.

Both teams arrived in Winnipeg for the final in uniforms of the same colors. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decked the Kimberley players with red and white stripes, of red and blue stripe, the Blasters are now sporting white sweaters and stockings with the name Kimberley emblazoned diagonally across the front of each jersey.

The new regalia didn't have much effect on their play. They outplayed and outsmarted the eastern champions in the first game and only through the good work of Joe Cronstone in the Falcon cage kept the score down.

Officials for tonight's game are W. Lyndon Wilson and T. O'Brien, Portage la Prairie, Man.

Detroit Forty - Two Seconds From Hockey Immortality As Leafs Charge to Victory

Score Four Goals in Twelve Minutes to Win 4-3

WINGS ON RUN

First Time in Series De- troit Back in Their Heels

Toronto, April 11—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings, who were 43 seconds from hockey immortality a couple of nights ago and now are just another good team trying for the Stanley Cup, plan to end their series with National Hockey Leafs here tonight. They figure on winning the fourth game.

If they fail to squash those mad Maple Leafs this time, the series will become hectic in every sense and will be concluded as Detroit next Tuesday night. Red Wings rate many favorites to take the game and series.

Despite the roar of acclaim for Leafs in their dramatic 4-3 overtime victory Thursday night, Detroit still has the better hockey team, in the opinion of unbiased observers. But the Red Wings have been found to be vulnerable and a one-sided series has picked up pace and interest. Detroit showed may total 14,500 and pay $20,000 into the Gardens coffers.

The thought from the first three games, the gross from which was roughly $60,000, went into the players' pool. They won't participate in further takings, the league and clubs keeping the profits.

Having won four and lost four games, Maple Leafs may well have been beaten yet at home—the Leafs are a machine that has won five and lost four.

HANK GOES HIGH—This young man goes high—and he comes pretty high, too, according to official of the Detroit ball club. Hoy Hank Greenberg in action in training camp at Lakeland, Fla., after signing for $20,000. He was one of the most stalkers of the spring holdouts.

Pickups from Memorial Cup Game

Toronto, April 11 (CP)— It's doubtful that Maple Leaf Gardens has ever housed a crowd that cheered for a tilting team as much as the 4,500 fans did for Saskatoon Wesleys when Toronto Nationals beat them 5-1 last night. The Western youngsters did nothing to displease them.

The crowd's support of the Western Canada junior champions started long before they became underdogs through Nationals' three goals in the second. There seemed to be a definite feeling against the West Toronto team and favorable to Wesleys long before that.

Young Conacher, brother of Charlie the great, impressed Toronto Maple fans with his resemblance to his brother. He is a left winger, while Charlie is a right but other wise he is much like his brother.

He has the same fast skating stride and lifts his feet high when skating slowly, just as big brother Charlie does. . . . He is on Boston Bruins reserve list.

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League watched the youngsters, some of whom may be in his circuit in a year or two. The N.H.L. President is here for the Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup games.

Joe Primeau, Frank Finnigan, Art Jackson and King Clancy of Toronto Maple Leafs also took a boshman's holiday from the Stanley Cup games to watch the kids at it.

Clancy, a great fighter himself, liked the stout battle the westerners staged. He thinks it may easily be a different story Monday night.

Saskatoon found difficulty getting their power attacks started. They were called back often for offsides, when they attempted to get the puck over the National blue line but persisted in trying to get over with a pleasing play, when they might have carried through.

COURAGEOUS PILOT—Here is a picture of courageous Miss Betty Shiell of St. Thomas, Ont., pictured after she qualified at London, Ontario, for a private pilot's license despite the fact that she has never walked since she was stricken with infantile paralysis at three years of age. The fact that the boys have to carry her to and from the aeroplane in their arms she says is "not so very distressing." Miss Shiell said she is going on for a commercial license and a career in aviation.

DUNCANMcCALLUM WINS MARATHON

Unknown Before Race Except to Neighborhood Pals

Toronto, Apr. 10 (CP)—Duncan McCallum, unknown as a runner except by his neighborhood pals, today rushed as one of Canada's leading distance stars. The rugged Gladstone Athletic Club youngster led a smart field to the tape in Toronto's annual 15-mile Good Friday marathon.

Sprinting to pass such seasoned veterans as Harold Wedge of Hamilton and Billy Reynolds of Preston, McCallum covered the grind in 26 minutes and 33 seconds. Dick Widdup of the Y.M.C.A. Athletic Club, second, nine seconds behind the winner.

At the 10-mile mark, Webster, British Empire champion, was leading the pack, McCallum trailing by 150 yards. The youngster moved up to second place a mile from the finish line and moved out in front as the leaders started the last half-mile.

Art Clarke of Toronto was the pick of the field in a five-mile event. The east-end Beach star was timed at 26 minutes and 47 seconds. W. Frederick of Hamilton was second in the three-mile event to give visiting athletes their only victory. His time was 17 minutes and 9 seconds.

PROTEST WAGE SCHEDULE

Brockville, Ont., April 11.—(CP)—A committee of the felt process workers who walked out of the John R. Stenson (Canada) Company here Monday in protest against a new wage schedule, were notified by Labor Minister Croll he could not accede to their request for a board of conciliation. He said a reach agreement unless application for that end was made by both parties to the dispute. The strikers voted 100 per cent. Wednesday to remain out.

Another local softball team dropped by the wayside yesterday when Manager Harold Bawden announced the Continental Life team had folded up, while Gerald Barriger's Gulf Refining Club already has a doubtful starter. With the senior softball situation dropping into practical oblivion it leaves the Tweed club holding the well-known bag. There is a movement afoot now, however, to endeavour amalgamating the remnants of the three local defunct "mush-ball" squads and forming one team in Belleville. If this proposal is carried out the local entry will have to apply for a berth into the Intermediate "A" O.A.A. play-downs. "If we complete these plans there will be no more softball for the Tweed area. We're going to play our way or stay at home, for the past few seasons we have been providing a good brand of softball for the fans, and although they turned out in small did numbers, when the hat was passed they figured it completely, with the result that teams were running in the red, which naturally discouraged subsequent sponsorship of softball teams in Belleville," explained one manager Monday night.

We have been told that one local softball team that operated at Central Park last summer, dipped into the red somewhere around the two hundred dollars. When collections taken in from crowds numbering anywhere from 40 to five hundred fans, amounts to less than three dollars, it is a hard matter for the club to exit a ball. The fans should remember that every game played in the city park costs the club about $3, a back fifty each, as rent to a definite person, and that the money has to be paid for the use of Central Park, which also cuts into the profits. Then there are the umpires who also get hidden slices, but sometimes and other they are necessary. Perhaps an off season is merited, would eventually bring the fans around to a healthier point whereby they might support their local softball clubs in the game in future seasons when the game might be revived. After all we were really sober enough to take pleasure in until it is taken from us.

A slight change has been made in the drafting of the major league schedules for 1936. In years past the honour of opening of the big league bid went to Washington where the Senators were entertained prior to the remaining clubs comprising the two major leagues. This year all shots of on Tuesday instead with St. Louis at Chicago, Detroit at Cleveland, New York at Washington and Philadelphia at Boston in the American League, while in the National League the Boston Braves will be host to the Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds at Chicago battles the Seabees Gang at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis, when Goddessey the one and only Dizzy Dean will ascend the mound for the Red Birds. St. Louis and Chicago seem to be high favourites in the second hop with Detroit, Cleveland and the Red Sox are favoured in the American League as 1936 league champions. The race is wide open in both loops, however, and many a surprise is in store for the fans before the baseball classic next October.

This afternoon another effort to advance the cause of senior baseball will be made by representatives of the base ball clubs and interested citizens at a special meeting to further probe into the possibilities of the operation of a senior team in Belleville during the season of 1936. With the Intermediate "A" O.A.A. club expecting players by the thousands this year, it is more than likely that it is not ready to meet all opposition on the field of battle. Then parochial interested in baseball in Belleville today are strictly in favour of "one team in the coming season, if any." We have not seen anything in the Quinte district to compare with Trenton's, so let's give our own home team a chance to show what material their wares," is the slogan of many who are in the background, but who are willing to financially back the project. The entire trouble in Belleville lies in the inability of interest citizens into assuming executive office, the secretaries, treasurers and other officials usually and willing to sacrifice any financial gain to the club, but positively refuse to accept the responsibilities of an executive office.

Some time ago we reviewed with considerable pride material was available for a senior ball team in Belleville for the coming year. In so doing we added a crack about "home- grown" talent, being that the inadvertent crack was immediately picked up by Bill Hall, sports editor Peterboro' sports scribes with the result that the following sport note was published in the Peterboro' contemporary. It reads—"Our genial friend, Bill Hall, knows no humour—oh, well, he knows a crack in the manner Belleville-ward; wouldn't it be nice for Belleville if unknown ball player" is a catcher they were looking for? Think of experience and ability! Someone of the class of Scub Flaks, perhaps, eh-hem-hem." Trouble is we have lost year played for the G. W. Cards, Toronto champions. But then M couldn't be Scub Flaks, because he was some place else that we know of on March 18th, which is one day after the qualifying rescue of pairing off the big league tilt went to Washington where the Senators were entertained prior to the remaining clubs comprising the two major leagues. This year all shots of on Tuesday instead with St. Louis at Chicago, Detroit at Cleveland, New York at Washington and Philadelphia at Boston in the American League, while in the National League the Boston Braves will be host to the Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds at Chicago battles the Seabees Gang at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis, when Goddessey the one and only Dizzy Dean will ascend the mound for the Red Birds. St. Louis and Chicago seem to be high favourites in the second hop with Detroit, Cleveland and the Red Sox are favoured in the American League as 1936

In true Marrivell fashion the Toronto Maple Leafs threw off the Detroit Red Wing jinx to win 4 to 3, in overtime, at the Maple Leaf Gardens on Thursday night. The Leafs were trailing 3 to 0 with only ten minutes left in the third period when they staged their heroic rally that left the spectators spell-bound. With the series standing two games to one in favour of the Red Wings, the two teams meet in Toronto in the fourth Stanley Cup game tonight.

Mother Accidentally Wounded by Son

Welland, Ont., April 11 (CP)—Mrs. Annie Bolond, 60, Crowland, is in Welland County General Hospital recovered from a rifle wound accidentally inflicted by her 13-year-old son, Mike, at their home in Crowland this morning.

The boy was toying with a .22 calibre rifle, found by his brother on the east bank of the Welland Canal, when his mother entered the room. The lad pressed, the trigger twice just as his mother appeared and one of the shots lodged in the fleshy part of the woman's shoulder.

Mrs. Bolond was taken to hospital where the bullet was removed. Her condition is not serious.

HUES of EASTER COLOR MARKET

Lilies, Tinted Eggs, Potted Flowers, Typify Festal Season

Homegrown lilies, and eggs naturally colored in all the hues of the rainbow; sprays of pussy willow and potted flowers; even offerings of live rabbits in cozy little pens, all less it typical Easter as to a point in the calendar Easter Saturday market this morning.

As if typifying the season, eggs again underwent a slight drop, selling today at 19c per price, although heavy offerings later in the morning resulted in a drop to 18 cents per dozen, 15 cents the low price. In a few instances pullets' eggs, small as they were, sold at 15 cents.

Butter also felt the decline selling for the first time this season at 30c below the 30c mark. Potted pound rolls were being offered at 25 cents in the odd lots, while 1-lb. prints sold at 28 cents per pound. Two pound rolls were the most common offering.

Chickens which were offered in fairly large quantities were also comparatively cheap, selling at from 50c to 75c for the single bird, according to the weight, while prices ranging from $1.35 to $1.75 were being asked for plump pairs. A few turkeys had their innings at from $1.75 to $2.00 each. Ducks were scarce and a few birds being held at $1.00 each.

Maple syrup, thick and heavy, with the end of the season now in sight, dropped considerably during the past few weeks, being quoted today at from $1.50 to $1.75 per gallon, with containers supplied at the buyer's option.

"Syrup will soon be gone. Now is a good chance to get a cheap," commented Mr. Chas. Samuels, Trenton's veteran market gardener, who was liberally loaded with heavy oats of the Belleville variety. Samuels said, "Sap's stopped running now, and there won't be any more of it this year, either," commented the sugar bush expert.

Potatoes, registered, and offered for seeding purposes, were being quoted at $1.75 per bag, being sold at $1.50 per bag, at $1.25 and $1.35 for the 75-pound bag.

Green onions, rhubarb, (cellar grown), fresh lettuce, all ranged from 10 cents to 15 cents per bunch, onions to 19 cents for the rhubarb. Vegetables in greenhouse were the same prices, ranging from 30 to 40 cents the pack. Apples, a perishable supply, were also among the chief purchases. Delicious were selling at $2.50 a pack; McIntosh 50c; Snows 40c and cooking apples 30c.

Little pigs were the chief offering on the outside market, the first being sold at from $4.50 to $5.00 each, according to size.

No cattle were offered and only little change in livestock quotations was noted.

MUSIC

STAINER ORATORIO IS SUNG BY CHOIR

Impressive Singing of 'Crucifixion' Heard at Christ Church

Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion", a favorite oratorio for choirs in Lent and at other seasons of the year because of its content of so great a part of Scripture dealing with the Passion of Christ and the significance of His life and death, was sung at Christ Church by the choir on Good Friday evening. Mr. George Hicks, organist and director of music, in charge. The Stainer work is a massive composition containing some of the finest of modern sacred music, while as well enjoys numerous popularity. Its undertaking by Mr. Maybee and the success which he achieved with the choir and soloists that Christ Church possesses in its choir an outstanding musical organization. The soloists were a number of the choir and sing regularly in the church services.

So well known are so many of the portions of the work, both solos and anthems, that the large congregation could follow very closely the choir as they progressed through the stages of the Passion, as marked by intense lyric and dramatic power.

Christ Church choir is composed of three groups, sixteen men, twelve women and thirty boys whom Mr. Maybee has been training regularly. In last night's oratorio the boys lent very valuable aid with their fine soprano and contralto voices, blending with the voices of the women and of the tenors and basses.

The soloist in this composition carry a great deal of a theme, and the dialogue provides a powerful sense of the drama of the tragic and spiritual emotion. A. B. Sanders, tenor, sang with very clear quality and power and Mr. R. S. Hubbard, who took the part of a robust character, provided a real strength in the oratorio's presentation. The bass baritone, S. S. Hector and A. Thomas peculiarly filled the demands on these parts. The character their voices and their fine tonal quality gave a fine finishing touch to the work. In the chorus, the voices of the soloists had body in the production of the male chorus of the latter portion of the oratorio was most outstanding piece of singing.

The parts of the choir were well balanced, the sopranos and altos blending with their volume and precision, the boy sopranos with their voices of purity, sweetness and vocal texture, and the men with their strength building a rounded out effect. There are some majestic choruses as "King the Glory Now", "Had deeply spiritual ensemble "God So Loved the World", following the male voices in the introduction and the theme was done in excellent tone.

Some part has to be picked out for mention as the phrase, "Woman, behold thy son", while the tenor solo followed by the air "My God, why hast Thou forsaken me", the "Is it nothing to You" then the "Hail" sweep of the chorus which carried the theme of "Is it nothing to You" leading up to the shout "Crucify", in "It is finished" there was a purity of tone which was very effective. The tenor sang with a quiet sense of completion in "Into Thy hands I commend His head and gave up the ghost", the choir and both the parts could be chosen, such as will long linger in the memory of those who heard the work.

Mr. Maybee's organ work was characteristic of his gifts, the accompanying complete accord between the thought and expression as he held rein in the organ and as he achieved it through the voices of the choir.

A feature of this oratorio is that the congregation on occasion sing four hymns, "Holy Jesu", "Jesus the Crucified", "A Soldiers Thee", and "All For Jesus".

Rev. G. G. Wright, pastor, introduced the choir and soloists before the choir began to sing the oratorio, and closed with the Benediction.

MANY PARISHIONERS MAKE WAY OF CROSS

Good Friday services were attended by large congregations at St. Michael's Church, Belleville, when Mass of the Presanctified with Rev. J. J. Collins as celebrant began at eight o'clock. In the afternoon many parishioners visited the church during the hours of three o'clock to make the Way of the Cross.

At seven thirty last evening, with Rev. E. M. Leacy, Deseronto, in charge, there was the Way of the Cross, followed by an inspiring sermon on the passion of Our Lord, delivered by Rev. J. J. Collins, Veneration of the Cross completed the service in which the choir, Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. was assisted by Father Leacy.

The ceremonies of Holy Saturday began at seven thirty this morning including the blessing of the new fire, the baptismal water, Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the pastor, assisted by Father Leacy and Father Collins.

Tomorrow morning at 1.30 Pontifical Solemn Vespers proper to the festival Sunday will be sung by a choir of men and boys. The celebrant will be Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G.

Sisco Gets Rich Ore On Tenth Level

The current issue of The Quebec Miner reports that drilling this week from the 10th level at Sisco Gold Mines intersected a fine belt of quartz material. The core showed plenty of visible gold. It has not been definitely ascertained as yet whether this vein lines up with the ore in the ore shoot on the 9th or years to be tremendously high grade.

The development in the greenstone territory, south of the working, is opening up a section to be called the "Sisco" vein having been first discovered by drill probe directly under the mine manager's residence. It has been developed by the drift for over 200 feet in length now, and is the width of the drift right along. The first hundred feet averaged five feet in width and gave average returns of $13.75. The Miner also comments that these are impressive dimensions are promising. As pointed out previously, the "Sisco" vein is the first occurrence to be located in the greenstone formation and is situated away to the south of the main workings. There is quite a belt of mineralized in evidence. This development is of significant importance opening up as it does, immense possibilities.

Greene Stabell Reported In Ore In Big Formation

Strength in the shares of Greene Stabell the past two days is reported to be due to reports from the property, news which had been anxiously awaited for some time. It will be recalled that a crosscut was being driven for the main objective from No. 3 shaft to the area under Stabell Lake, where some high grade ore had been indicated obtained by diamond drilling in the granodiorite.

The future of the property depends largely on the outcome of the present crosscut which is being carried out. During the past week small extensions in the width of the ore have been reported and the crosscut is definitely flat. The mine manager outlined the situation in reports to directors of reports being circulated that there is only one month's ore ahead of the new drift on the 400-foot level from the upper levels and from the present development on the 400-foot level. The latter has opened ore continuous for a longer distance than any ore body as yet developed and the downward extension of the ore developed on the 400-foot level is ahead and is expected to be cut within the next month, he said.

McWatters Gold Mines

An analysis of the latest Ontario annual statement reveals that it contains points which are of a very optimistic statement regarding the future of this mine. The remarks of mine manager are said to be very interesting as he states that: "In December a diamond drill was put in on the 400-foot level to further test the results obtained in the C-3 hole of the original drilling campaign, although scattered values were obtained, they were not encouraging. During the past year the work was confined to the area in the side pronounced by the diamond drill holes. This work has disclosed further ore, some of which is of high grade but still profitable. With the addition of the diamond drill, a more extensive plan of exploration is now under way..... There is over two years' ore in sight, with a present mill capacity, and the chances are equal that before this period is used up, further deposits will have been encountered."

Announcement from Ottawa is to the effect that the Government is in consideration in Parliament after the Budget speech that will provide $75,000,000 for reforestation, buildings and highways, in an effort to combat unemployment. Recipient of this sum will be utilized to complete projects started under the Bennett regime.

The import of this, from a market angle, is evident. Not only will the money provide work for thousands of people, but many companies are in the lumbering industry. In this connection, the companies catering to the building industry are bound to obtain substantial contracts. The following companies should participate: Canada Cement, Foundation Company, Steel of Canada, Hamilton Bridge, Gypsum Lime, etc.

The consensus of opinion in the Street is that from now on considerable distribution will be necessary for making profits in the market. The public is only buying those securities that are attractive either from an earnings angle or from the point of speculative prospects. The construction group has not, as yet, reflected the Government announcement that it intends to spend $75,000,000 in an effort to alleviate unemployment.

The early future of the market looks reasonably secure; and many things may happen later. The latest survey of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce has placed a finger on one of the most important factors in cessation of Cheap Money. Incidentally, that is the market reading. The central point seems to be that,

Centenarian Chief of Bonaparte Reserve Dies

Ashcroft, B.C., April 11 (CP)—Indians of the Bonaparte Reserve today mourned the death of their centenarian chief and one of the most colorful figures of early British Columbia history, Chief David Israel.

The aged chief, 102 years old, and one of the last survivors of the tribe that inhabited the Bonaparte district before the white men came, died at his ranch eight miles north of there Thursday after a short illness.

Chief Israel led a party of British Columbia chiefs to London for a conference with King George in 1925 when Indians of the district became purchased regarding the titles under which Indian lands of the province were held. They were unable to obtain an audience with the sovereign and returned to Canada.

Mystery Still Hangs Over Death of Miner

(By Richard R. Tyron)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Today police detectives hunting the murderer who strangled Mrs. Nellie Tilterton, attractive 34-year-old mother of two children, found near the victim's nearly nude body was their "only clue"—a definite clue.

Fingerprints on the wall beside the bathtub where Mrs. Tilterton's body was discovered last yesterday were smudged so badly they were worthless, the detectives said.

Lewis Tilterton, husband of the victim, said the detectives he never had seen the pen before. The officers assumed the slayer dropped it.

"GLITTERING GIRL"

By MAY CHRISTIE

It gradually dawned on Vernon pen that Mrs. de Bray had been skilfully feathering her own nest. One of the principal ways in which the unscrupulous adventuress got along in this town—especially in so-called "society"—was by the cultivation of racket.

The Tyson family had been rooks, unwittingly themselves to be so exploited.

The first move that Vernon would make would be a visit with Mertina de Bray, as tactfully and as artfully as possible, she would drag out of Martina every scrap of information about Prince Karinoff, admitting her to believe that the Prince really had fascinated her....

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Prince telephoned again in the morning. He wanted to know if dear Mrs. Tyson was feeling quite "restored," and if he might have the pleasure of coming to call on the ladies that afternoon?

"Why, certainly, Vernon and I will be right here," Mrs. Tyson was flustered. Everything must be done to placate the Prince in the loss of his valuable necklace!

She was furious when Vernon told her she was going out. "Suppose the Prince comes early? I call it downright ungrateful of you to be so mean to him! You know he's good—and you don't even have the decency to be at home to the poor thing! Suppose he not only makes you pay the full amount of his necklace, but drops you, and you lose one chance at his wonderful title?"

"Oh, Mother, you make me tired," sighed Vernon. No use to argue. She also would certainly be present during the Prince's call.

A little after half-past three she left the club and set walked up Park Avenue and over to Central Park South, where Mrs. de Bray resided. She would take her out to tea somewhere and skilfully find out everything she could about Karinoff....

But Mrs. de Bray was not at home. "Won't you come in? I'm expecting her any time," said the maid pleasantly. Vernon thought how much more likeable she was than Arlene. Could it be possible that Mrs. de Bray had visited Arlene on them as a kind of waiting-

The cosy comfort—nay, even luxury of the little apartment struck Vernon as she entered. Mertina posed as being desperately poor, and here there was no evidence of it. One's feet sank into a deep piled rug that glowed with the rich colors of the Orient. The windows were hung with beautiful brocades, and curtains of gold gauze across them transformed the daylight into a golden haze.

Tall lamps spilled golden light on a great bunch of white lilies, and of flowering dogwood. A heavy Mandarin robe, beautifully embroidered with double dragons, adorned the top of a "baby grand" piano. It was a great vase filled with enormous white chrysanthemums.

Vernon seated herself on a deeply cushioned couch. The maid switched on the light in an electric fire that cleverly resembled burning logs. It glowed realistically. Vernon thought whimsically that there was an analogy between it and Mertina. It gave light without warmth!

"I'm expecting Madame any time now. Would you like me to mix you a cocktail, Miss?" the maid suggested.

"No, thanks." Then the maid departed to the kitchen, which was at the end of the small passage.

The minutes passed. Vernon grew restless. She rose and went over to a bookcase that extended from the fireplace to one wall, its shelves being about four feet from the level of the floor.

Her eye ran over the titles. The books evidently had been bought more for their appearance than for reading. They were big, showy, and some in showy sets. She stood there drawing several at random, idly inspecting them, and then putting them back.

Finally she found one with an interesting title. She took it over to the couch and proceeded to glance down at the first page.

Something fell from the inside of the book to the floor. Vernon stooped to recover it. It was a parchment booklet of some kind. It had opened as it fell. There were two small photographs gummed in the inside left.

Light from the lamp at her elbow fell full upon the pictures as she lifted this document. With startled eyes she found herself gazing not only upon the likeness of Mrs. de Bray but also that of Prince Karinoff!

How extraordinary! She looked closer. It was a PASSPORT!

"Marie Mirchevera" was written clearly in ink below Mrs. de Bray's picture. Under the photograph of Prince Karinoff, in his own flowing handwriting which at once she recognized, was the signature: "Serge Mirchevera"!

Vernon looked in amazement as she regarded this.....

"Marie Mirchevera! It means! What did it portend?

Good heavens!—at her eyes raced over the document—the pair were MARRIED!

Vernon's heart thudded with excitement as she stared at the passport. She had come to Mrs. de Bray's apartment in the desperate hope that some sort of clue might be found that would direct her into her hand by his "friend"—and fate had decreed that this should happen!

"Marie Mirchevera"? There was a familiar sound about that name. Where had she recently heard it?

Why, the stout lady by the desk in the hotel in Hot Springs who had greeted Mertina de Bray as "Madame Mirchevera" only three nights ago.....!

And it had been almost directly on the heels of that when Mertina had telephone Vernon to come up to her room and had told her, in so-to-her room and had told her, in agitated manner, that she must leave for New York immediately! She had told her that a telegram had just arrived from her lawyer, summoning her back....

Prince Karinoff, too, had departed speedily!

Was it because he also feared recognition from this woman?

There were plenty of views on the passport. Vernon looked for the most recent. There it was! The palace had entered the United States almost thirteen months ago!

They were Mirchevera then! It was quite feasible that Mrs. de Bray (so-called) had divorced the "Prince" in that period and married a de Bray....

Vernon's head whirled with excitement. She gasped when she saw their ages—Marie Mirchevera forty-four, and "Serge" forty-six! There it was as plain as plain, clearly on the passport. They were both Latvian nationality as Latvian.

She thought: "This will explain lots of things. The Karinoff necklace indeed, worn by Queen Catherine of Russia!"

She stuffed the passport in her handbag, and slipped that into the other book that had contained it, back in the case.

"I shan't be able to wait any longer," she told the maid hurriedly, "will you please tell Mrs. de Bray that I am sorry to have missed her."

She was thankful when the elevator disgorged her and she was out in the open street. She hailed a taxicab.

The first thing to do was have a photostatic copy taken of the open passport!

x x x

Vernon rose at six o'clock next morning. Her plans had taken form the day before. She would make a flying trip of investigation back to the hotel in Hot Springs!

The stout lady who had spoken to the "so-called Martina de Bray under the name of Mirchevera would in all likelihood, still be there. If she had gone, it would be Vernon's task to discover her name and present whereabouts. These would doubtless be supplied by the office of the hotel.

From the detective agency employed by the company with which the Karinoff necklace was insured, Vernon had engaged—by the day—a reliable detective-chauffeur.

That is to say, he had the legal right to wear a detective's badge—and he could handle a car.

She had decided she would take this trip without consulting her parents. For they would ask innumerable questions which, at this point in the affair could not be adequately answered unless she told them of her discovery of the Mirchevera passport!

Were she to do that, the recovery of the necklace would recede into the blue sky. For her mother most certainly—and probably her father, too—would want no time in tackling the "Prince" and his accomplice, and both would turn tail and flee against further exposure!

Or they might even hurl it out, in order to gain time, which was a scarce commodity in this investigation. Only six days were left to her—in default of the diamonds being returned to Drake—before Tyson's check for $50,000 would be put through by the jewelers.

Therefore Vernon felt herself justified in commandeering the family limousine before the arrival of the chauffeur in the morning.

She wrote a little note addressed to Dad. She dipped into his dressing room, and stuck it in the rim of his shaving mirror.

In that way, he would get it first, and he probably would consider he'd better half only what he saw fit.....

Vernon told herself she would telephone Father at her route around eight-thirty. This was the time he usually ate his breakfast.

It was twenty-five minutes past six when she stole out of the apartment. She carried a small, fitted suitcase in one hand, and over her arm a fur coat.

McGraw, the stolid-looking Scotch detective she had hired to accompany her to Hot Springs, was waiting for her in fact outside the hotel, in the car.

A few minutes later they were whirling down Park Avenue. Vernon encouraged the chauffeur of the limousine, and McGraw at the wheel.

For the first time in the past thirty-eight hours she felt that though a wretched load had been lifted from her mind. That everything would be all right. Her head cleared up. The sense of swift motion—being driven by another—as the fresh breeze through the open window with a hint of frost in it—was a tonic.

Even the recollection of Nan's bits yesterday about Terry Jean soon could not daunt her. "Once he knows that Prince Karinoff—the detestable Serge Mirchevera—is nothing in the world to me, things will straighten out for myself, smiling at her own charming reflection in the strip of mirror opposite her.

Terry only looked upon her flirtatious little cousin as a child, thought Vernon. His could never take her seriously.

Absorbed in her own thoughts and plans, it was almost nine o'clock before she ordered McGraw to stop at a wayside inn for breakfast. Immediately she telephoned New York; fortunately it was her father's voice she heard at the other end of the wire.

She was still more relieved when he told her that luckily he had found her note without "poor Sadie" seeing it—had that he had simply told Sadie that Vernon had gone off with friends in the car for the day. He had taken the precaution of telephoning his chauffeur that he might take the day off. He would think of something to tell Sadie later on.....

"You're an angel, Dad. Don't worry about me. Put a call through to the hotel in Hot Springs around four this afternoon. If I miss that call, I'll telephone you."

CHAPTER XXVII.

But her happy mood had fallen a little as she ate her breakfast. If only she'd never borrowed that necklace! She knew that Dad had worried about her going off like this —but she told herself it was the only course possible, in the circumstances.

Would that stout lady who had greeted "Madame Mirchevera" in the lobby of the hotel be still around? That was the important question in Vernon's mind as the car finally drew up at her destination.

She must proceed carefully. Be circumspect. Perhaps the unknown woman was of the same type as Mertina, and—scenting something wrong—might even communicate with her?

Then why had Mertina left so abruptly after encountering her here? In the light of Vernon's present knowledge, and with the incriminating passport in her pocket-book, she had little belief in the alleged telegram that had summoned Mertina back to town!

It would be her business to find out from the office clerk, tactfully, if any such telegram had been delivered to Mertina on that day and hour.....?

As she signed the hotel register after her room had been allotted to her, she turned the page back four days ago, looking down the list of arrivals on that day.....

"Mrs. Mirchevera, Miss Mirchevera of the hotel!" she asked with attempted nonchalance. But—because one or two had gone, and she had no knowledge of the lady's name—the reply was unsatisfactory.

Vernon went up to her room, had a bath, got into a negligee, and then the telephone rang.

It was her father. He HAD telephoned before, he said. He was worried about her, and thought After a period of silence, Dick cried out, "I've got it! We'll swing through the trees like cousin Tarzan. Come on! This is the way to the train."

Dick led off, working his way gingerly along a branch of a tree, carefully seeking footholds below and handholds above.

"I don't call that swinging," said Doc. "Well, smarty, let's see you swing." "Come on—if you can't do it, how do you expect me to?" "Humph," growled Dick. "I've got to have a little practice, despite their awkwardness, the boys made progress.

Twilight had fallen, and it was no easy matter to follow a straight line through dense jungle when the sun was not visible. So it was not strange that within a hundred yards the boys had so altered their course that they were penetrating deeper into the perilous wild!

he had better come down.

She pooh-poohed that, assuring him that a couple of days at most would see her back in the family nest.

Then she dressed for dinner. With all her heart she prayed that the stout lady would be in the dining room.

Vernon got her wish. The stout woman who had greeted Mertina de Bray as "Madame Mirchevera" was in the dining room of the Hot Springs hotel on the evening of her arrival.

She had a thin, elderly friend with her—a sharp-faced, rather aristocratic-looking woman with pince-nez.

Coffee was served in the lounge of the hotel after dinner. Vernon manoeuvred so that, as though accidentally, she found herself on a settee beside the plump one. The thin lady sat in an armchair opposite.

Within a few minutes she had contrived to get in conversation with them, by remarking on the sugar. The stout one seemed garrulous and friendly.

"Haven't I seen you before, my dear?"

"Yes, I was here with my parents and some friends. I was here just as you arrived. I think you spoke to a guest of ours—a Madame Mirchevera?"

This system is found of certainly goodness to awake the villagers from their peaceful slumbers will do away with the former custom of ringing the church bell which is a strong objection of debate, especially in the daytime whether it was a case of fire or an announcement of church service.
